And when al the people per ceaued, ỹ the seuen dayes were past, & I not come agayne in to the cytye, they gathered them altogether from the lest vnto the most, & came vnto me, and sayde: what haue we offended thee, and what euell haue we done agaynst thee, that ỹ forsakest vs, and sittest here in this place? For of al people thou onlye art left vs, as a grape of the vyne, and as a candel in a darcke place, and as an hauen an dly ppe preserue from the tempeste. Haue we not eis aduersite ynough, but thou must forsake vs? Were it not better for vs that we had bene brent vñ Sion? For we are no better then they that dyed ther: and they wepte vñ loude voyse: Then answered I them, & sayd: Be of good comforte O Israel, and be not heuy thou house of Jacob. for the Hyest hath you in remembraunce, & ỹ myght hath not forgotte youin tetaciõ. As for me, I haue not forsaken you, ne ther am I departed from you: but am come into this place to praye, because of ỹ mysery of Israel, ỹ I myght seke mercy for ỹ lowe estate of your Sanctuary. And now go youre wai home euerì mã, and after these dayes wyl I come vnto you. So the people went their waye in to ỹ citte, lyke as I commaunded them: but I remayned styll in the felde seuen dayes, as the Angell bad me: and I ate onely of the flowres of the felde/ād had my meate of the herbes in those dayes.

The .xiii. Chapter.

And it happened after the seuen dayes, that I dreamed a dreame by night. And be hold there arose a wind frõ the sea, that it moued al the stondes therof. And I loked, and beholde, the man was stronge and increased with the cloudes of heauen: and when he turned his contenaunce to considre, al the thynges trembled that were sene vnder him: and when the voice went out of hys mouth, all they brent that harde hym, lyke as the earth when it fealeth ỹ fyre.

After these I sawe, and behold, ther was gathered together a multitude of men out of nombre from the foure wyndes of the heauen, to fyght agaynst the man ỹ came out from the sea. And I loked/& beholde, he graued him selfe a greate mountayne, and flew vp vpon it. But I wold haue sene ỹ bozder or place, wherout the hyll was grauen, and I coude not.

I sawe after these/that al they which came to fyght agaynst him, were sore afrayede, and yet durste they fighte. Neuertheles when he sawe the fearsenes and wolnes of the people, he neither lyft his hy hand nor held swerd, nor any weapen: But onely (As I sawe) he sente out of his mouth as yt had bene a blast of fyre, and out of his Lyppes the wynde of the flamme: And out of hys tonge he cast out sparkes and stormes, and they were all myxte together: The blaste of fyre, the wynd of the flammes, and the greate storme, and fell wyth a ruishe vppon the people, whych was prepared to fyght, and brent them vp euery chone: so that of the innumerable multitude there was nothynge sene, but only dust and smoke. When I saw this I was afrayde.

Afterward saw I the same man come downe from the mountayne/and callig vnto him another peacable people: and there came much people vnto him: some were glad, some wer sory, some of them were bounde, so that they were caried & brought forth.

Then was I sycke thorow greate feare, feare, and I awaked, and sayde: ỹ haste shewed thy seruaũt al thy wonders frõ the begynning, and hast coũted me wor thy, that thou mightest receaue my prayer: shew me now per the interpretacyon of this dreame. For thus I consydre in my vnderstanding. Wo vnto theym that shalbe lefte in those dayes: & moch more, wo vnto them that are not left behynde: for they that were not lefte, were in heuynes.

Now vnderstande I the thynges ỹ are layde vp in the latter dayes, whych shal happen vnto them ād to those that are not left behinde. Therfore are they come in to greate perells, and many necessities, lyke as these dreames declare. Yet is it easier, that he which sufferreth hurte, come in these then to passe away as a cloude out of the worlde, and now to se the thynges that shall happẽ in the law.

Then answered he me, and sayde: The interpretation of the syght that I shew thee/and I wyll open vnto thee, ỹ thynge that thou haste requited. For thou hast spoken of them that are lefte behynde, and thys is the interpretacyõ. He that taketh away the parel in that tyme hath kepte him selfe. They that be fallen in to harme, ar such as haue workes and fayth vnto the most hiest. Knowe this therfore, that they which be left behinde, are more blessed, then they that be dead. This is the meanyng of ỹ vysion. Where as thou sawest a man commyng vp from the depe of the sea, the same is he whom god the Hyest hath kept a greate season, which by his owne selfe shal delyuer his creature, ād he shal ordre them that are left behind. And where as thou sawest, that oute of his mouth there came a blast of wynde, fyre and storme, and how that he left vp nether swerde nor weapon, but that the rushinge in of him destroyed the whole multitude, that came to fyght: agaynst him: it signifieth, ỹ the dayes come, whã God wyl delyuer them that ate vppon earth/and in a traunce of mynd shal he come vpon thẽ ỹ dwel in the earth. And one shal vndertake to fyght agaynste another, one cytte agaynste another, one place agaynste another, one People against another, and one realme against another. When this commeth to passe / then shal the tokens come, that I shewed thee before: and then shall my sonne be declared, whom thou sawest clymme vp as a man. And when al the people heare his voyce, euery man shall in theyr owne lawe leaue the battayll that they haue one agaynst another, and an innumerable multitude shalbe gathered together, as they that be wyllyng to com and to ouercome him by fighting. But he shal stande vpon the toppe of the mounte Sion. Neuertheless Sion shall come, and shalbe shewed, beyng prepared and buylded for all men / lyke as ỹ sawest the hyl geuen forth without any handes. But my sonne shall rebuke the people that ar come for their wickednes with the tempest, & for their euel imaginacions: & their paines, wher vñ they shalbe punished, are lykened vnto ỹ stãre, wout any labour shal he destroy the, ete by ỹ law, which cõpared vnto ỹ fire.

And where as thou sawest that he gathered another peaceable people vnto him: those are the ten trybes which were caryed away prisoners out of theyr owne lande in the tyme of Oseas the King whome Salmanasar the Kyng of Assiria, toke prisoner, and caryed them ouer the water, and so came they into an other lande.

But they gaue theym thys councell, that they shoulde leaue the Multitude/ of the heathen, and to go forthe into a farther countre, where neuer mankind dwelte: that they myght ther kepe their statutes, which they neuer kept in their owne land. And so they entred in at the narowe passages of the Water of Euphrates, and God shewed tokens for them, and helde styll the floude tyll they were passed ouer: for thrOw that contre there was a greate way, namely of a yere and a halfe iourney, for the same regiõ is called Asareth. Then dwelt they ther vnto the later tyme: and when they come forth agayne, the hiest shall holde styl the springes of the streame agayn ỹ they may go thrOw/therfore sawest ỹ the multitude with peace. And they that be lefte behinde of thy people, are those that be found with my bozder.

Now

Now when he destroyeth the multytud that is gathered together, he shal defed his people that remaine, and then shall he shewe them greate wonders.

Then saide I: O Lorde Lorde, shew me this: wherfore haue I sene the men cõmyng vp frõ ỹ depe of the sea: & he saide vnto me: Like as thou canst ne ther seke out nor know these thinges ỹ are in the depe of the sea, euen so mayst ỹ not se my sonne, or those that be wyth him, but in the time of the daye. This is the interpretacion of the dreame why che thou sawest, therfore thou only arte here lyfte hence: for thou haste forsaken thine owne lawe, and applied thy dylygence vnto myne, and sought it. Thy lyfe hast ỹ ordred in wysdom, & hast called vnderstanding thy mother, and ther fore haue I shewed thee the treasure of the Hyest. After thzee daies I wyll shew the more, and talke with the at more large, pea herp and wonderous thinges wil I declare vnto thee.

Then went I forth into the felde, gevyng prayse & thankes greatelye vnto god, because of his wonders whyche he did in time because he gouerneth ỹ sae & such as is in tyme, and there I sat thze dayes.

¶ God apzeth vnto Esdras in the bush, & sheweth him what he shal do.

¶ The. xiiii. Chapter.

And Vpon the thyrd daye I sat vnder an oke tre, then cam there a voice vnto me oute of the bush/ and sayde: Esdzas, Esdzas. And I saide: here am I Lord, & stod vp vpon my fete. Then spake he vnto me: In ỹ bush dyd I appeare vnto Moses, and talked wt him, when my people serued in Egypt, and I sent hym and led my people oute of Egipte, and brought him vpon the mount Sion, where I hyld him by me a long season, and tolde him my wonderous wozkes, and shewed him the secretes of the tymes and the ende and commaunded him, sayinge: These wozdes shalt thou declare, ād not hide the. And now I saide vnto the, that thou laie vp in thine hert the dreames that ỹ hast sene, and ỹ interpzetacions whych I haue shewed thee: for thou shalt be receaued of al, thou shalt be turned and remayne with my councell, and wyth suche as be lyke ỹ, until the tymes be ended. For the worlde hath lost hys youth, and the tymes begynne to waxe olde. For the tyme is diuided into twelue partes, & ten partes of it are gone already, and halfe of the tenth parte: yet remayne there that, which is after the halfe of the tenth parte.

Therfore prepare and ordre thy house and reforme thy people: comforte suche of them as be in trouble: and tell nowe of the destruction: let go from thee mortall thoughtes: cast awaye the burthes of man: put of the weake nature: lay vp in some places the thoughtes, that are moost heup vnto thee/ and haste the to flyt from these tymes: for such euel and wickednesse as thou hast now sene happen, shall they do yet muche worse. For the weaker that the worlde and the tyme is /the more, shal synne and wickednes increase, in them that dwell vppon earth. For the trueth is fled farre away, and lesinge is hard at hande. For nowe hasteth the vision to com, that thou hast sene.

Then answered I, and sayde: Behelde Lorde, I wyll go as thou haste commaunded me/ and reforme the people whych are present. But they that shall be borne afterwarde, who wyll exhorte or rebuke them? Thus the worlde is set in darkenes, and they that dwell therin, are wythout lyght: for thy lawe is kyndled, because no man knoweth the thynges that are donne of thee, or that shalbe done. If I haue founde grace before thee, sende the holygoost into me, & I shall write, all that hath bene donne in the worlde sence the beginninge, which was written in thy lawe, that menne maye fynde the path, and that they which wyl lyue in the latter dayes, maye lyue.

And he answered me, saiynge: Goo thy waye, gather thy people to zether, and saye vnto them, that they seke thee not fo. xl. dayes, but looke thou gather the many boxe trees, and take wyth the Sarea, Dabria, & Elemia, Ethanus & Asiel, these fyue, which are redy to write swyftly swyftly and come hither, and I shal lyght a candle of vnderstadyng in thyne herte which shal not be put out/ tyl the thinges be reformed/ which thou shalt begyn to wryte. And then shalt ỹ declare some thinges openly vnto the perfect and som thynges shalt thou shew secretly vnto the wyse. To morow this houre shalt thou begynne to wryte.

Then went I forth (as he commaũded me) ād gathered al the people together, and sayde: Heare these wozds O Israel: Our fathers from the begynnynge were strangers in Egypt, from whence they were delyuered, and receaued thee lawe of lyfe, whiche they kepte not, wyche ye also haue transgressed after them. Then was thys lande and the lande of Sio parted amõg you bi lot to possesse. But your fathers and ye your selues also haue don vnrighteousnes, and haue not kepte the wayes whych the Hyest commaunded you. And for so moch as he is a ryghtuous iudge, he toke from you in tyme the thynge ỹ he had geuen you. And now are ye here, and youre brethzen amonge you. Therfore, yf so be that ye wyl subdue, your owne vnderstandynge, and reforme youre herte, ye shall be kepte alyue, and after death shall ye optayne mercy. For after death shall the iudgment come, when we shal lyue agayne: and then shall the names of the ryghtuous be manifest, and the names of the vngodly with their wozckes shal be declared. Let no man therfore comnow vnto me, nor aske eny question at me these. xl. dayes.

So I toke the fyue men (as he commaunded me) and we went into the feld, and remayned there. The nexte daye, a voise called me/ saying: Esdras, opẽ thy mouthe, and drinke that I geue thee. Then opened I my mouth, and behold he reached me a ful cuppe, which was ful of water, but ỹ colour of it was like fier. And I toke it and dronke And when I had/ dzoncken it, my harte had vnderstãdyng and wysdome grewe in my brest: for my spzete was kept in remembrãce, and my mouth was opened and shut nomore. The Hyest gaue vnderstãding vnto the fyue men ỹ/ they wzote ỹ hy thinges of ỹnight, which thei vnderstod not

But in the nyghte they ate bzeed: as for me/ I spake in the daye, and held not my tonge by night. In xl. dayes they wzote two hondzeth and iiii. bokes.

And it happened when the. xl. daies were fulfilled, that the Hyest spake, saiynge: The fyrst that thou hast wzytten, speake openly, that the wozthy and vnwozthy maye reade it. But kepe the. lxx. last, ỹ ỹ mayest shew it only to such as be wyse among the people. For in them is the spzynge of vnderstanding/ ỹ fountayne of wysdom/ and the streame of knowledge. And I dyd so.

¶ The punishment that euel people shal haue, which god commaundeth Esdras to shew vnto them.

The. xv Chapter.

Beholde, speake thou in the eares of my people ỹ wozdes of prophecy, whyche I wyl put in thy mouth, sayeth the lozde: and cause thẽ to be wzittrn in a letter/ for it is the trueth. Feare not the ymmagynacions agaynste thee, lett not the vnfaythfulnesse of theym trouble thee, that speake agaynste thee.

For all the vnfaythfull shal dye in their vnfaythfules. Beholde sayth the Lord/ I wyll bzinge plages vpon the worlde, the swerde/ honger, deathand destruction, for wickednes hath the vpper hand in all the earth, & theyr shamful wozkes are fulfylled.

Therfore sayeth the Lozde: I wyll holde my tonge nomore vnto theyr wickednes, which they do so vngodly: neyther wyll I suffre them in the thinges that they deale wyth all so wyckedly. Beholde, the Innocente Bloude of the troubled crieth vnto me, & ỹ soules of ỹ Righteous complayne Continually/ and therfore (sayeth the LORDE) I wyll surely auenge and receaue vnto me all the innocente bloude from amonge them.

Beholde, my people, is led as a flocke of shepe to be slayne, I wyll not suffre theym nowe to dwel in Egipte, but wyll bzinge them out with a mygti hande and a stretched out arme, and smite it wyth plages as afore, ād wyll destroy all the lande of it. Egipte shal mourne, and the foundacions of it shalbe smitte wyth the plage and punishemente, that God shal bring vpon it.

¶ They that tyll the ground, shalmourne: for their seades shal be destroied thorow ỹ blastyng ād hayle, and horryble starre. Wo worth the worde & them that dwel therin, for ỹ worde & their destrucciō draweth nye, and one people shal stande vp to fyght agaynst another, and swerdes in their handes. For man shalbe vnsted fast and some shall do vyolence vnto other: they shal not regarde their kynge and princes, the waies of their domges and handelinges in their power. A man shal desier to go vnto the citie, and shal not be able. For because of ther pryde ỹ cytes shalbe brent in feare/ the houses shal shake, and men shalbe afrayed. A mā shal haue no pyty vpon his neibour but one shal prouoke another vnto batayl to spoyle their goodes because of ỹ honger of bred, and because of ỹ great trouble.

¶ Beholde, I gather and cal together all the kynges of the earth which are from the vprysyng from the South, from ỹ East, and Libanus to turne vnto thē, and restore the thinges that they haue geuen them. Lyke as they do yet this daie vnto my chosen, so wyl I do also, and recompēse them in their bosom. Thus sayeth the Lorde God My ryght hand shal not spare the synners, & my swerde shal not ceasse ouer them. that shed the innocent blode vpon earth. The fearers gone out from his wrath, and hath consumed the foundations of the earthe, & the synnes lyke the strawe that is kyndled. Wo worth them that synne/ & kepe not my commaundedementes/ sayth the Lorde: I wyl not spare them. ¶ Goo youre waye ye children from vyolence & spyled not my Sactuary: for the Lord knoweth al them that synne agaynst hī, and therfore delyuereth he them vnto death and destruccyon: For now are the plages come vpon the worlde, and yee shal remayn in them. For God shal not delyuer you, because ye haue synned agaynst him.

Beholde, an horrible vysion commeth from the East, where generatiōs for Dragons shal come out and the people of ỹ Arabes with many charettes/ and the multitude of them shalbe as the synde vpon earth, that all they whych heare thē raging in their wrath, may feare be afrayde: and as the wylde bores of the wod, so shal they go out and with greate power shall they come, and stande fyghtinge wyth them, and shall waste the pozeyon of the lande of the Assyrians.

And then shall the Dragons haue the vpperhande, not remembryng theyr byrthe, and shal turne about swerynge together in greate power, to persecute them. But these shalbe afraied, and kepe sylence at theyr power, and shal flie and one out of the lande of the Assyryans shal besege them, and consume one of them, and in their host shall be feare and dreade, and stryke amounge theyre kynges.

Beholde cloudes from the east, and from the nozth vnto the south, and they are very horrybte to loke vpon, full of wrath and storm. They shall smyte one vpon an other, and they shall smyte at the great starre vpon earth and their starre, and the bloude shal be from the swerde vnto the bely/ and the smoke of mā vnto the camels lytter: And ther shal be great fearfulnes and trenbling vpō earth/ and they that se the wrath, shalbe afrayde, and a trembrynge shall come vpon them.

And then shall there come great rayne from the south and from the nozth, and perte from the weste, and from the stormy wynde from the Easte, and shall shut theym vp agayne, and the cloude whych he rayseth vpp in wrath, and the starre to cause fere toward ỹ east & west wynde shalbe destroyed: and the greate cloudes shall be lyfte vp, and the myghtie cloudes ful of wrath and the starre, that they may make all the earth afrayed and them that dwel therin and that they maye poute oute ouer all places an horrybte Starre fyre and hayle and flyeng swerdes, ād many waters, that all feldes maye be full, and all ryuers and they shall breke downe the cities and walles mountaynes and hylles all trees wod and the grasse of the medowes & al their frutes. And they shall stedfast vnto Babilon, and make her a fraude, they shal come to her and besege her: the sterre of all wrath shal they poure oute vppon her.

Then shal the dust and smoke go vp vnto the heuen, and al they that be aboute her shall bewayle her: and they that remayne vnder her, shal do seruice vnto the that haue put her in fere. And thou Asia that comfortest thy selfe also vppon the hope of Babylon, and art in worthyp of her personne: wo be vnto thee thou wrath, because thou hast made thy selfe lyke vnto her, & hast dect thy daughters in whordom, ỹ they myghte tryumphe and please thy louers, whych haue alwaye desired to commyt whordome wyth ther: thou hast folowed the abhomynable cytie in al her workes & inuencyons.

Therfore sayeth god: I wyl sende plages vpon the, wyddowhode, powertes, honger, warres/ & pestilence, to wast thy houses with destruction and death: and the glory of thy power shall be dryed vp as a floure, when the heate aryseth that is sent ouer thee. Thou shalt be sycke as a poore wife that is plaged and beaten of wemen: so that the myghtye and louer shall not be able to receaue thee. Woolde I so hate thee sayeth the Lorde. If thou haddest not alwaye slayne my chosen, exaltyng the stroke of thy handes, and sayd ouer their death/ when thou wast drocken: set forth the bewty of thy countenaunce.

The swarde of thy wordome shalbe recompenced the in thy bosom, therfore shalt thou receaue * rewarde.

* Shewrede backwarde.

Lyke as thou hast done vnto my chosen (sayeth the Lord) euen so shal God do vnto thee, and shal deliuer thee vnto the plage. Thy childzen shal dye of hōger, and thou shalt fal thorow ỹ swerd. Thy cities shalbe broken downe/ and al thyne shal perish with the swerd in the felde. They ỹ be in the mountaines shal dye of honger and eate their owne flesh and dryuke their owne blood for very honger of bred & thirst of water. Thou vnhappye shalt com thorow the sea, and receaue plages agayne.

In the passage they shal cast downe the flame citie/ and shal rote out the part of the lande, and consume the porcion of thy glory. They shall treade the doune lyke stubble, & they shalbe thy fire, & shal consume thee, thy cities & thy lande, thy wod, and thy frutefull trees/ shall they burne vp wyth fyre. Thy childeren shall they carye awaye captyue, and looke what thou halte, they shall spoyle it, & marre the bewty of thy face.

The xbi Chapter.

WO be vnto thee Babylon and Assia, wo be vnto thee Egypt and Syria: gyrde your selues wyth Clothes of sacke & hearre, & mourne for your childeren, be sory/ for your destruction is at hande. A swerd is set among you and who wyll turne it backe. A fyre is kindled amonge you and who wyll quenche it. Plages are sent vnto you, and what is he that wyl dryue thē awaye. Maye any man quenche the fyre in ỹ stubble, whā it hath begonne to burne. Maye one turne agayne the arow that is shot of a strounge archer. The myghty Lorde sendeth the plages/ ād what is he that wyl dryue them awaye. The fyre is kindled/ & gon forth in his wrath and what is he that wyl quench it. He shall cast lyghtnenges, & who shal not feare. He shall thondre and who shall not be afrayd. The Lord shal threate, & who shal not vtterli be bete to pouder at his presence, ỹ earth quaketh & ỹ foundations therof: the sea ariseth vp with waues from the depe, and the floudes of it at vnquiet, and the fyshes therof al lobefore the Lorde, and before the glory of hys power. For stronge is his right hand that holdeth the bowe, hys arowes that he shooteth, are sharpe, & shall not mysse, when they begyn to be shott into the endes of the worlde.

Beholde the plages are sent, and shal not turne agayne, tyll they come vpon earth. The fyre is kyndled, and shall not be put oute/ tyl it consume the foundacions of the earth. Like as an arow whiche is shot of a myghtye archer, returneth not backewarde: euen so the plages that shallbe sent vpon earthe/

shal not turne agayne. Wo is me, wo is me, who wyl delyuer me in those daies? The begynnyng of sorowes and great mourning: the beginnyng of dearth and great dearth: the beginning of warres, and the powers shal stande in feare: ye begynnyge of euels, and they shall trẽble euery one. What shall I do in these thinges, when ye plages come? Behold, honger/and plage/trouble and ãguish are sent/as scourges for amendement. But for al these thinges they shall not turne from their wickednesses, nor be al waye myndeful of the scourges.

Behold, victayles shal be so good cheape vpon earth/that they shal thinck them selues to be in good case: & euẽ thẽ shal mischefe grow vpõ earth/warres/ derth and greate disquietnes. For mãy of them that dwel vpon earth shal perish of honger, and the other that escape the daũger, shal the swerde destroye: and ye deed shalbe cast out as donge, and there shalbe no man to cõfort theym. For the erth shalbe wasted, ãy cytyes shalbe cast downe: ther shalbe no man lefte to tyll ye earth, and to sowe it. The trees shal geue frute, and who shal plucke them or gather them? The grapes shalbe rype, & who shal treade them? For all places shalbe desolate of man, so that no man shal desire to se another, or to heare hys voyce. For of one hole citie there shalbe ten left, and two in the felde, which shal hyde them selues in the thycke boughes and in the clyfes of stones: lyke as whẽ there remaynyd thre or foure olyues vpon the olyue tre, or as when a vynyard is gathered, there are left some grapes, of them that diligently sought thorow ye vinyarde.

Euen so in those days there shalbe thre or foure left, for them that search their houses with the swerde. And the earthe shal be left waste, and thee feldes therof shal waxe olde: ãd her wayes and al her pathes shal grow ful of thornes, because no man shall trauayle there thorowe. The daughters shal mourne, hauing no bridegromes: the wemen shall make lamentacyon hauing no housbãdes, ther daughters shal mourne hauyng no helpe of their bridegrome. In thee warres shal they be destroyed, and their husbandes shal perish of hunger.

Ope seruauntes of the Lorde, heare these thynges, and marck them: behold the worde of the Lorde, O receaue it: beholde, the plages draw nye and are not slacke in tarienge. Lyke as a trauayling womã, which after the .x. moneth bryngeth forth a sonne, when the houre of the byrthe is come, an houre two or thre afore that the paynes come vpon her body, and when the chylde cõmeth to the byrth, they tary not the twynckynge of an eye: Euen so shall not the plages be slack to come vpõ earth, and the world shal mourne, and sorowes shal com vpon it on euery syde.

O my people, heare my worde, make you ready to the batayle: and in al euell be ye euen as pilgrems vpon earth. He that selleth, let him be as he that flyeth his waye: and he that bieth, as one that wyl lese. Who so occupieth marchaundies, as he that winneth not: and he that buyldeth, as he that shal not dwel therin: he that soweth as one that shal not reape: he that trymmeth the vyne yeard, as he that shal not gather the grapes: they that mary, as they that shall get no children: And they that marye not, as the wyddowes: and they that labour, labour in vayne. For straungers shal reape their frutes, and spoyl their goodes; ouerthrow their houses, and take their children captyue, and in captiuytie and honger shal they get children.

And they that occupye theyr marchaundice/wyth robbery/howe lounge decke they theyr cities, theyr houses, theyr possessions, and persounes: the more wyll I punish them for theyr synnes, sayeth the Lorde: Lyke as an whoremuieth ãn honest womã, so shal ryghtousnes hate iniquitie, & when the deceyth her selfe, & shall accuse her to her face, when he commeth that deceyueth, which shal make inquisicion for all synne vpon earth. And therfore be not ye lyke ther vnto, nor to the workes therof: for or euer it be lõg, iniquitye shall be taken away oute of ye earth, and ryghtuousnes shall rayne among you.

Let not the synner saye, that he hath not synned, for coles of fyre shall turne vpon hys head, whych sayeth before the Lorde

Lorde god and his glorye: I haue not synned. Beholde, the Lord knoweth all the workes of men/their ymaginacyons, their thoughtes and their hertes. For he spake but the worde: let ye earth be made, and it was made: let the heauẽ be made and it was made. In his worde were the starres made, and he knoweth the nombre of them. He searcheth ye grounde of the depe, and the treasures therof: he hath measured the sea, & what it conteyneth. He hath shut the sea i the middest of the waters, ãd with his worde hath he hanged the earth vppon the waters. He spreadeth out the heauẽ lyke a vawte, vpon the waters hath he founded it. In the desert and drye wildernes hath he made springes of water, ãd poles vpon the toppe of the mountaynes, that the floudes myghte poure downe from the stony rockes to water the earth. He made man, and put hys herte in the myddest of the body, and gaue hym brieth lyke and vnderstandinge/ yea ãd the spyrete of the Almightie god, whych made al thinges, and hath searched the grounde of al these secretes of the earth.

He knoweth your imaginacons & inuencyons, and what ye thincke when ye synne/ and wolde hyde your synnes. Therfore hath the Lord serched and sought out al youre workes, and he shal bewraye you all. And when youre synnes are brought forthe/ ye shalbe a shamed before men, and your owne synnes shalbe youre accusers in that daye. What wyl ye doe Or how wyll ye hyde your synnes before God and hys Ingels? Beholde God him selfe is the Judge, feare him, leaue of from youre Synnes and forget youre Unrighteousnesses, and medle nomore with the: so shal god leade you forth, and deliuer you from al trouble. For behold ye heate of a greate multitude is kyndled ouer you, & they shal take a waye certen of you/& feade ye idle wt Idols: ãd they that consent vnto them shalbe had in derysiõ, and laughed to scorne, and trode vnder fote.

For vnto ye places ther shalbe applace, and in the nexte cyties a greate insurrection vpon those that feare the lorde. They shall be lyke mad men, they shall spare no man: they shal spoyl and waste suche as feare the Lorde, theyr goodes shall they take from theym, and thutte them out of theyr houses. Then shal it be knowen who are my chosen, ãd they shalbe tryed as the gold in the fyre. Heare O ye my beloued, sayeth the Lorde: behold, the dayes of trouble are at hãd, but I wyl delyuer you from the same. Be not ye afrayde, dispayre not, for god is youre captayne.

Who so keepeth my commaundementes and preceptes (sayth the Lord god) let not your synnes weye you downe/ & let not your vnrighteousnesses be lifte vp. Woo be vnto them that are subdued vnto theyr sinnes, and tangled in their wickednesses: Lyke as a feld is hedged in with bushes, and the path therof couered wyth thornes, that no man maye trauell thorow: and so is he taken, and cast in the fyre, and brent.

The ende of the .iiij. boke of Esdras.

The boke of Tobiah.

Tobiah being taken prysoner, forsaketh not ye lawe of truth. The mercy and charitie of Tobiah, and the maners of him in his youth. He taketh Sãnath to wyfe, by whom he hath a sonne named Tobiah. He succeedeth Gabell for mony. He and hys aze sayne to fly, but after the death of Sennacherib they returne agayne.

The fyrst Chapter.

Tobiah was of the Tribe and Citie of Nephtaly, which lyeth in the hye, cõtres of Galile aboue Naason the waye towarde the weste, hauinge the citie of Sephet vpon the left syde.

Though he was taken prysoner in the dayes of Salmanasar kynge of the Assirians, neuertheles, being in captiuite, he forsoke not the way of trueth: In so muche, that what soeuer he myghte get, he parted it dayly wt his felow prysoners and brethren that were of his kinred. And thoughe he were yonger then al in the tribe of Nephtaly, yet dyd not he behaue hym selfe childelthlye in hys worckes. And whē al the other wente to the golden calues, whiche Jeroboham the kynge of Jsrael had made, he hym selfe alone fled of the companies/and gat him to Jerusalem vnto the temple of the Lorde, and there worshipped the Lorde God of Jsrael, kaythfully offe tyng of al hys kirst frutes and tribes, so that in the thirde yeare he mynystred al the tythes vnto the straungers and con ueries. ¶ These and soch like thiges dyd he accordyng to the lawe of God whē he was but ponge.

¶ But when he was a man, he toke out of his owne tribe a wyfe called Anna, & of her he begat a sonne, whome he called after his owne name/& taught hym frō his youthe vp, to feare God/and to re frayne from al sinne.

Now when he with his wyfe, his sonne and w al his kynred was come in captiuite vnto Nynyue what tyme as they al ate of the meates of the Heathen, he kep his soule and was neuer defyled in ther meates. And for so moch as he was mi deful of the lord in al his hart, God ga ue him fauor in the presence of Salma nasar the kyng which gaue him powere to go where he wolde, and so had he ly berte to do what he lyst.

So wente Tobiah vnto all thē that were in preson/and comforted them/& gaue them wholsome exortacyons. And D whē he came to rages a cytie of the Me des, hauing ten talentes of siluer (of the thinges wherwith the kynge had hono red him) and sawe amonge a greate cō pany of people of his kinred, one Gabe lus (which was of his owne trybe) beig in necessitie, he gaue him the said weight of syluer vnder hand wrytynge.

After a longe season when Salmanasar the kyng was deed, and Sennaherib hys sonne reygned in his steade, whiche hated the childrē of Jsrael. To biah went dayly thorow out al hys kyn red, and comforted them ād gaue of hys goodes to euery one of them, as moche as he myght: he fed the hongrie, clothed the naked, and buried the deed & slain, and that dylygently.

And when Sennaherib the kynge ca me agayn and fled out of Jewrye (what tyme as God punyshed him for his blas phemy) and in hys wrath slewe manye of the childeren of Jsrael, Tobiah bu ryed theyr bodies. But when it was tol de the kynge, he commaunded to slay hi and take away all his goddes. Neuer theles Tobyah with hys Sonnes and with his wyfe, fled hys waye, and was hyd naked, for there were many that lo ued hym. But after xlv. dayes, the kig was slayne of hys owne sunnes. The ca me Tobyah againe to his house, and al his goodes restored vnto hym.

¶ Tobiah biddeth such of his frēndes as feare god, to a banket or feast. He is reproued of hys frendes. He feareth god more then the king. He becommeth blynde by the permission and sufferāce of God. His kinsfolke mocke hym.

The. ii. Chapter.

AFter these thynges vpon a solempne daye, of the Lorde Tobiah made a good feast I in hys house, and sayde vnto his sonne: Go thy way and bryng hether som of our trybe such as feare god, that they maye make me rye w̄ vs. And when he was gon, he ca me agayne, and tolde hys father that o ne of the childeren of Jsrael laye slain vpon the strete. And imediatly he lept from his table, lest the feaste came fas ting to the ded corse, toke him and bare hym preuely into hys house that when the sunne was downe, he myght safely bury hym. And when he had hyd the cor se, he ate his meate wyth mournynge & feare, remembryng the wordes that þ Lord sayth by the prophet Amos: your hye feastes shalbe turned to sorowe and heuynes.

But when the sunne was downe he D wente hys waye and buried him. Then all hys neyghbours reproued hym, say ynge, Jt is not longe sens it was com maunded to slay the because of thys ma tter and hast scarce escaped the daunger of death, ād buriest thou the ded agai Neuertheles Tobiah fearing god more then the kynge, toke the bodies of the slayne, hyd them in his house and buri ed them at mydnight.

Jt happened vpon a daye/þ he had buryed the ded and was wery, came ho me/& layde him downe bi þ wal & slept. And while he was a slepe, there fel dow ne vpon hys eyes warme doug oute of þ swalowes nest, so that he was blynde.

Thys temptacyon dyd God suffer to happen vnto hym, that they which ca me after, might haue an example of his pacience, like as of holy Job. For in so muche as he euer feared god from hys youth vp, and kepte hys commaundē mentes, he was not heuy agyanst god, that the plage of blindnes chanced vn to him, but remayned stedfast in the fea re of God, and thanked god al the dai es of his lyfe.

For like as blessed Job was hadi D derytion of kinges, euen so was he lau ghed to scorne of his elders ād kinsfol kes, whych sayde vnto hym: Where is thy hope for the which thou hast don al mes and buried the ded? But Tobiah rebuked them, and spake: sai not so, for we are the children of holye men/& loke for the lyfe, which God shall geue vnto them, that neuer turne their lyfe frō hi. Anna his wyfe went daylye to the wee uynge worcke/and loke what lyuynge she coulde get wyth the labour of her handes/she brought it. And it happened that she toke a kyd and brought it home.

And when her husband herde it crie he sayde: Loke that it be not stolne, re store it agayne to the owners: for yt ys not lawful for vs, to eate or to touch a ny thynge of theft. Then was his wife angry and sayde: Now is thy hope be come vaine openly, and thy almes dedes are manyfest. With these and such like wordes dyd she cast him in the tethe.

¶ The prayer of Tobiah. Sara the daughter of Ra guels slaundred of her fathers seruaunt. The prayer & fasting of Sara: And also the innocen cye & chastite of her. The prayers of Tobiah & Sara at herde.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

THen Tobiah toke it heuely A and with teares begann to make his prayer sayeng: O Lorde thou art righteous, and al thy iudgmentes are treue, yea al thy wayes are mercy, faith fulnes & iudgment. And now O lord be mindful of me/and take no vengaunce of my sinnes, nether remembre my mys dedes, nether the mysdedes of my elders. For we haue not bene obedient vnto thy commandementes/therfore are we sp oyled, brought in captiuite/into death/ into derysion and shame vnto al nacy ons, amōg whom þ hast scatered vs. And now O Lord thy iudgmentes ar greate, for we haue done accordynge to thy commaudementes, nether haue we walcked innocētly before the. And now O Lorde deale wyth me accordynge to thy wyl, & commaūd my spyrite to be receaued in peace, for more expedyente were it for me to dye/then to lyue.

At the same tyme it happened þ Sara D the Daughter of Raguell at Rages a citye of the medes was slaundred of one of her fathers hādmaydes, namely, that she houlde haue had seuen houlbā des/which as soneas they were gone in vnto her, were slayne of the deuel called Asmodeus. Therfor when she reproued the mayden for her faute, she answered her, saying: God let vs neuer see sonne nor daughter of þ more vpon erth/thou kyller of thy husbands. Wylt thou slay me also as thou hast slayne seuen mē? At thys woyce went Sara into an hye chamber of her house, and three dayes and thre nightes she nether ate, nor dra ke, but continued in prayer, & besought God wyth teares, that he wold delyuer her from thys rebuke.

Upon the thyrde daye it chaunced, that when she had made an ende of her prayer, she praysed the Lorde sayeng: ¶ Blessed be thy name o God of oure fa thers, which when thou art wroth, she west mercy, and in the tyme of trouble thou forgeuest the synnes of them, th at call vpon the. Vnto the O Lord tur ne I my face, vnto the lyft I vp myne eyes. I beseche the O Lord, lowse me out of the boundes of this rebuke, or els take me vtterly awaye from of the earth. Thou knowest Lord, that I ne uer had delyte vnto man, and that I haue kepte my soule cleane from all vnclenly lust. I haue not kepte compa ny with those that paste their tyme in sporte, nether haue I made my selfe p artaker wyth them that walcke in ly ghte behauoure. Neuertheles an hou sband haue I consented to take/ nor for my pleasure, but in thy feare.

Now

Now peraduenture ether I haue be ne vnworthy of them, or els were they vnmete for me, for thou happyst haste kepte me to an other housband. For why ether thy councel is not in ỹ power of man. But whosoeuer loueth the and serueth the a right, is sure, that yf his lyfe be tempted and proued, it standeth in the tryenge: and yf he endure in pacience, he shall haue a reward and be hyghly crowned: & if he be in trouble, that God (no doubte) shall delyuer hym: and if his lyfe be in chastenig, that he shall haue leaue to comme vnto thy mercye.

For thou hast no pleasure in our dānacion: and whyle after a stormе thou makest the wether fayer and styll: after weping and heuynes thou geuest great ioye. Thy name, O God of Israel, be praysed for euer. At the same tyme were both theyr prayers hearde in the syght of the magesty of the hyest God. And ra phael the holy aungel of the Lord was sent to helpe them both, whose prayers came together before God.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

A SO when Tobiah thought his prayer to be herde, that he might die, he called vnto hym hys sonne Tobiah, and sayde vnto him: My sonne, heare the wordes of my mouth, and laye them in thine hert as a foundacyon. When God taketh awaie my soule, burye thou my bodye, and holde thy mother in honoure all the dayes of her lyfe. For thou oughteste to remembre, what and how grete perels she suffred for the in her wombe. And whē she also hath fulfylled the time of her lyfe, bury her beside me. Haue God in thy thought all the daies of thy life, and beware, lest at any time thou consent vnto synne, and lest thou let slippe the commaundementes of the lord oure god.

B Geue almes of thy goodes, ād turne neuer thy face from the poore: & so shall it come to passe, that the face of ỹ Lord shal not be turned awaye from the. Be mercyful after thy power. If thou hast much, geue plēteously. if ỹ haste litel, do thi diligēce gladly to geue of that lytle, for so gatherest thou thy selfe a goodre warde in the daye of necessytie. For all mes deliuereth from death, & suffreth not the soule to come in darcknes. A greate comforte is allmes before the hyte God, vnto all them that do it.

My sonne, kepe the well from all whoremonge, and (besyde thy wyfe) se that C no falte be knowē of ỹ. Let neuer pride haue rule in thy mynde nor in thy worde, for in pride begaune al destruccyon.

Whosoeuer worcketh eny thing for the, immediatly gyue him his hyre, and loke that thy hyred seruants wages remayn not by the ouer nyght. Loke that thou nether do vnto another man, thre thinge that thou woldeste not another man sholde do vnto the. Eate thy bred with the hongrye and poore, and couer the naked with thy clothes. Set thy bre de and wyne vpon the burial of ỹ righ tuous, and do not thou eate and drinke therof with the synners. & ske euer cō cell at the wyse.

B Be alwaye thanckful vnto God, and be seche him, that he wyll ordre thy wayes, & ỹ whatsoeuer thou deuysest or takest in hande, it may remayne in him. Iceriti fy the also my sonne, ỹ (when thou wast yet but a babe) I deliuered ten talentes of syluer vnto Gabelus at Rages a cy tie of the Medes, and his hand wryting haue I by me. And therfore seake som meannes, how thou mayest com bi him, and receaue of him the sayd weight of syl uer, and geue hym hys hand wrytynge agayne.

My sonne, be not afrayed: trueth it is, we leade here a poore lyfe: but great good shal we haue, yf we feare God, ād departe from al synne, and do well.

The Notes.

Some rede from all synne & from deth.

¶ The obedience of young Tobiah to hys father, which is sent into Rages, In Aungel accompanieth with him in his iorney.

The. v. Chapter.

THen answerd Tobiah his father, and sayde: father, all ỹ thou hast commanded me, wyl I do, and that diligently. But how I shall require this mony, I can not tel. Nether doth he knowe me, ner I hym. What token shal I

I geue hi: And as for the waye thether, I neuer knewe it. Then hys father answered hym, and sayde: I haue hys hād writinge by me, whych when thou shewest hym immediatly he shall paye the. But go thy waye nowe, and get thee some faythfull mā to go wt the for an hyre, that thou mayest receaue the mony, whyle I am yet lyuing.

Then went Tobiah out, and vpon ỹ streate he founde a fayre ponge manne standing, gyrded vp, as it were one rea dy to take hys iourneye. And he knewe not that it was an aungell of God, but saluted hym, & sayde: From whence arte thou, ỹ good ponge man? He answered: Of the chylderen of Israell.

And Tobiah sayde vnto hym: knowest thou the waye that leadeth vnto ỹ countze of the Medes? He answered: I knowe it well, and all those streates haue I gone ofte tymes, and haue lodged wyth oure brother Gabelus that dwelleth in Rages a citie of the Medes, which lyeth vpon the mount Egabthanis. Tobiah sayde vnto hym: I praye thee, tary for me, tyll I haue tolde my father these thynges. Then went Tobiah in, & tolde hys father all. At the whych his father marueled, & prayed that he wol come in vnto hym.

Nowe when the aungel came in, he saluted hym, and sayde: Ioye be wt the for euermore. And olde Tobiah sayde: what ioye, can I haue that sytte here in C darckenes, and se not the lyght of heauen? The yongman sayde vnto hym: be of good cheare, God shal helpe the shortly. And Tobiah saide vnto hym: Canst thou bryng my sonne to Gabelus vnto the citie of Rages in Medea? And whē ỹ comest agayn I shal pay the thy hire. And the Aungell sayd vnto him: I shal leade thy sonne, and brynge hym there a gayn. Then Tobiah answered him: tell me I pray thee, of what house, or of what trybe art thou?

The Aungell Raphaell sayde vnto hym: Askest ỹ after the kyndred of an hyerelyng, or seekest thou a gyde for thy Sonne to go wyth hym? But that I make thee not carefull, I am Azarias the sonne of great Hanani as. And Tobiah answered: thou arte come of a grate kynred: but I praye thee, be not displeased, that I desired to know thy kynred. The Aungel said vnto him: thy sonne shal I leade forth safelye, and bryng hym whole to thee agayne.

Then answered Tobiah, ād sayde: well, goo on youre waye, and god be in your iourney, and his Aungel bear you B company. So when they had prepared al thynges, that they wolde take wt them in their iorney: Tobiah bad his father and his mother fare wel, and they went on their way both together. Now whē they were gone, his mother began to wepe, and sayde: The staff of oure age hast thou taken awaye, and sent him from vs.

Wolde God that moneye had neuer bene, for the whych thou hast sente him awaye. If we had bene contente wt oure powerte, this had bene greate riches vntovs, that we saw our sonne here. Then sayd Tobiah vnto her: wepe not, oure sonne shal come to vs agayne safe and sounde, and thyne eyes shal se him. For I trust, ỹ ỹ good angel of god shal beare him company, and ordre wel all ỹ thynges that he doth: so that he shal cō to vs agayne with ioye. At these wordes his mother lefte of from weppynge, and helde her tonge.

¶ Yong Tobiah is delyuered from the fysh, by the Angel. The Angel exhorteth Tobiah to take Sara to his wife.

The. vi. Chapter.

SO Tobiah went on hys waye, and a dogge folowed hym, and the fyrst nyghte they abode by the water of Tigris. Then went he out to wash his fete, and beholde, there came forth an horrible fysshe to deuoure hym. Of whome Tobiah was a frayde, and cryed with a loud voyce, saiynge: Lorde he commeth vpon me. And the angell said vnto him: take him by the cheke blade, and draw him to the. And he dyd so, and drewe him vpon the land. And the fysshe beganne to leape at his fete.

Then

Then sayd the Aungel vnto him: Take out the bowels of this fish, and as for the hert, the gal and leuer, kepe them by the. For these things are necessary and good for medicyne. Tobyah dyd so, and rosted the fish, and they toke him with them in their iorney: the residu they salted, as moch as was sufficyent for the/til they came to Rages. The Tobiah asked the Aungel, and sayde vnto him: I praye the brother Azariah/tel me, wherto are these thinges good of the fish, that thou hast bidden me kepe?

The Aungel answered him and sayd: If thou layest a pece of the hert vpon the coales, the smoke ther of dryueth away all maner of euel spretes, whether it be from man or from woman/ so that from thence forth the same shal com nomore vnto them. The gall is good to anoynte or to stroke the eyes withal, where as there is eny blemysh in them, so shal they be whole.

And Tobyah sayde vnto him: wher wylt thou that we remayne? The Aungel answered and saide: Here is a neyr kinsman of thine, one Raguel by name/ which hath a daughter called Sara, and hath neither sone nor daughter but her. Al hys good belongeth vnto the, and thou must mary this daughter: and therfore desyre her of her father, and he shall geue her thee to wyfe. Then answered Tobyah and sayde: As I vnderstande, she hath bene maried vnto seuen husbandes, and they all are ded: and I haue herde saye, that the deuel slew them. I am afrayd therfore/lest soch thinges happened vnto me also: which yf it came to passe (seynge I am the only sonne of my Father and my mother) I shoulde bringe them in their age wyth sorowe to their graues.

Then sayde the Aungel Raphael vnto him: Heare me, and I wyl tell what they be of whome the deuel hath power. Namely, they that receaue mariage of soch a fashion, that they shut God oute from them and from their herte/and geue them selues to their owne luste, euen as it were an horse and Mule, which haue no vnderstandyng: vpon soch hath the deuel power. But when thou takest her, and art come in to the chamber, withold thy selfe from her thre days, and gyue thy delyce vnto nothig but vnto praier wher. And in the fyrst night rost the liuer of the fysh/ and the deuel shal be driuen away. The seconde night shalt thou be receaued into the company of the holye patryarks. The thirde night shalt thou optayne the blessing of god/so that whole childre shalbe borne of you. After the thirde night take the maiden in the feare of god/and more for the desyre of children then for any fleshly lust: that in the sede of Abraham thou mayst optayne the blessing in children.

¶ Yonge Tobiah and the Aungel came to the house of Raguell. He requyreth Raguels daughter to wyfe, and obtaineth her.

The. vii. Chapter.

Then went they in to Raguell, whyche receaued them ioyfully. And when Raguel loked vpon Tobiah, he said vnto Anna his wife: how lyke is this yong man vnto my systers sonne. And when he had spoken this, he sayde: whence be ye good brethre? They sayde: Of the tribe of Nephtali, out of the captiuyte of Niniue. Then sayde Raguel vnto them: knowe ye my brother Tobiah? They said yee we knowe hym well. And when he had spoken muche good of hym, the angel sayde vnto Raguell: Tobiah of whom thou askest, is thys yonglings father. Then Raguell bowed hym selfe downe and wepte/toke hym about the necke, and kyssed hym, and sayde: God blesse thee sonne, for thou art the sone of a good vertuous man. And Anna hys wyfe and Sara hys daughter wepte also.

Now when they had talked together, Raguel bad kyl a wether, and to make a feast. And when he prayed them to sit downe to dyner, Tobiah sayd: I wyl neither eate nor drink here this daie, except yͤ firste graunt me my peticyon/ & promyse me to geue my thy daughter Sara: whe Raguell herde thys, he was astonied for he knew, what happened the other vii. men that wente in vnto her: and he begaune to feare that it should chance vnto him also in lyke maner.

And whyle he stode so in dowbte, & gaue the Younge man no answere, the aungell sayde vnto him: Feare not to geue him thy daughter, for vnto thys man that feareth god, belongeth thi daughter to wife/therfore might none other haue her.

Then sayde Raguel: I doute not, but god hath accepted my prayers and teares in hys sight: and I trust he caused you to com vnto me for the same intent, that this daughter of myne might be maryed in her owne kinred, according to the lawe of Moses. And now dowte thou not, but I wyl geue her vnto thee: so he toke yͤ right hand of his daughter/ and gaue her into the right hand of Tobiah, and sayde: The god of Abraham, the god of Isac and the God of Jacob be with you ioyne you together, and fulfyl his blessinge in you. And they toke a letter and made a wrytinge of the mariage. And then made they merry, and praysed god. And Raguel called Anna his wyfe vnto him, and bade her prepare another chambre, and thyther he brought Sara his daughter, and she wepte. Then said he vnto her: Be of good chere my daughter/the lorde of heauen geue the ioye for the heuines that thou hast suffered.

¶ The aungel byndeth the deuel. Tobiah exorteth his wife to prayer, and they praie three daies before they lye together.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

Nowe after that they hadd supped, they brought yͤ yonge man into her. Then thought Tobiah vpon the wordes of the aungel, and toke out of his bagges a pece of the leuer of the fishe, and layed it vppon the whoote coales. So the aungel Raphael toke holde of the deuel, and sent hym awaie, and bound hym in the wildernes of the hyer Egipt. Then spake Tobiah vnto the virgyn, and sayd: Up Sara, let vs make our praier vnto God to daye, for morow, and euermorow: for these three nightes will we reconsyle our selues vnto God: and whan the third nyght is past, we shal ioyne together in the dewtye of matyage. For we are the childre of the holye men and we maye not com together as the Heathen, that know not God.

Then stode they vp both together, and besought God earnestly, yͤ he wold preserue them. And Tobiah sayde: O Lord God of oure father, praysed be yͤ of heauen and earth, of the sea/welles, and floudes, and of all the creatures yͤ be therin. Thou madest Adam of the moulde of the earth, and gauest hym Eua for an helper. And now Lord thou knowest that it is not because of voluptuosnes, that I take this sister of mine to wife, but only for the loue of children in whome thy name be blessed for euer. And Sara sayde: haue mercy vpon vs (O Lorde) haue mercye vppon vs and let vs both come whole and sound to a good age.

And aboute the cocke crow, it happened/that Raguel called his seruauntes, and they wente wyth hym, to make a graue. For he sayde: yt is thaunched vnto him paraduenture, as it dyd vnto the other seuen men, that went into her. Nowe when they had made the graue, Raguel came agayne to hys wyfe, and sayd vnto her: send one of thy maydes, to loke if he be deade, that I may burye hym afore it be lyght daye. So she sente a maydē to see/whiche when she came in to the chamber, she founde them whole and sounde, sleping together. And so she came agayn and brought good tydinges. Then Raguell and Anna hys wyfe praysed the Lorde, and sayde: prayesed be thou O Lorde God of Israel/for it is not happened vnto vs, as we thought. For thou hast dealte mercyfully vnto vs, and put awaye from vs/ the enemy that persecuted vs, and hast shewed mercye vnto yonder two beloued. O Lorde cause them to magnifye thee more perfectly and to offre thee the sacrifice of thy prayses & of their health: that al people may knowe, that thou only art god in all the earth.

And immediatly Raguel commanded hys seruauntes, to fyl the graue ere that they had made, with earthe afore it was lyght and bad his wyfe prepare a feast and to make ready all thinges that were necessary for meate to soche as went by the waye.

He caused two fat kyne also, and four wethers to be slayne, and meates to be prepared for all his neyghours and frendes. And Raguell charged Tobiah, to remayne wyth hym two wekes. As for all the good that he had, he gaue tobiah the one halfe of it, and made thys wyttynge, that the halfe whych remayned, shoulde fall vnto Tobiah after theyre death.

¶ The aungell goeth to Gabelus, at the desyre of Tobiah: which delyuereth the letter, and receaueth the money.

The.ix.Chapter.

THen Tobiah called vntoo hym the Aungell, whom he thought to haue ben a man / sayde vnto hym: Brother Azarias, I praye thee, herken vnto my wordes, yf I should geue my selfe to be thy seruaunte/ I shoulde not deserue thy prouidence. Neuertheles I beseche thee, that thou wylte take the beastes, and the seruaunte, / and go vnto Gabelus in Rages, the Cytie of Medes, and delyuer hym hys handwryting, and receaue the money of hym, and praye hym to come to my mariage. For thou knoweste thy selfe, that my father telleth the dayes: and if I tary one daye to longe, he wyll be sorye in hys mynde. Now seyst thou how earnestly Raguell hath required me, so that I cannot saye hym naye.

Then toke Raphael foure of raguels seruauntes/ and two camels, and went vnto Rages the cittie of the Medes: and when he had founde Gabelus, he gaue hym hys handwryting, and receaued al the money. He told hym also of Tobiah the sonne of Tobi, how al thynges had happened, / caused hym to come wyth him to the mariage. Now whe he came to the house of Raguell/ he founde Tobiah sittynge at the table: and he leapt vp, and kyssed one another, and Gabelus wepte / prayed god and sayde: the blessynge of the God of Israell haue the/ for the arte the sonne of a ryght vertuous / tull'ma / of one that feareth god/ / geueth greate almes. And blessinge haue thy wyfe, and your elders/ that ye maye se your chyldren / your yong childers childre vnto the third / fourth generacio, / that youre sede may be blessed of the god of Israel, whych reigneth world with out ende.

And when they all had sayde Amen, they went to the feast/ but with the feare of the Lorde helde they the feast of the mariage.

¶ Tobiah and his wife are sadd for the tarieaunce of their sonne. Raguel sendeth agayne Tobiah wyth his wife.

The.x.Chapter.

NOw while yonge Tobyah made longe tarieng, by reason of the mariage, his father was ful of care and heuines, and thought: what shulde be the cause, that my sonne taryeth so longe? Or why shoulde he be kepte so longe there?

Paraduenture Gabelus is deade, / no man wyl geue hi the moneye. Thus beganne he to be very sorowful, he and Anna his wife went with hym/ and beganne to wepe bothe together, because their sonne was not come agayne vnto them at the daye appoynted. As for hys mother, she wepte with discomfortable teares, and sayde: Woo ys me, my sonne: Oh what ayled vs to sende the awaye into a straunge countre, the light of our eyes, thou staffe of our age, the comfort of our life, the hope of our generacio: Seynge all thynges that we haue are onlye in the, we shoulde not haue sente the awaie fro vs.

Then Tobiah comforted her, and sayde: holde thy tonge, and bee not dyscomforted, oure sonne is whole and sounde: The man that we sent hym with al/is faithful ynough. Neuertheles, she myghte in no wyse be comforted: but daylye went out, loked about, and went about al the stretes: whereby she thought he sholde come agayn: that (if it were possible) she myght se him comming afarre of.

But raguel sayde vnto his sonne in lawe: O tary here, and I shal sende a messenger vnto thy father Tobiah to tel him that thou art in good health. Tobiah sayd vnto him: I am sure, that my that my father and my mother count euery daye, and that theyr hartes are sory.

So whe Raguel prayed Tobyah with many wordes/ and would in no wise heare him, he delyuered Sara vnto hi, and the halfe parte of all hys goodes in seruantes and handmaydes, in shepe in Camels, and in kyne and moch moneye and so sent him away from him / peace and ioye, and sayde: The holy aungel of the Lorde be with you in your iourney, and bringe you forth safe and sounde, that ye maye finde all thinges in good case with your elders; and that myne eyes maye se youre children afore I dye. So the elders embraced their daughter kyssed her, and let go/ exorting her to honour her father and mother in lawe, to loue her husband, to rule wel her household, to kepe her house in good ordre, and to shewe her selfe faultelesse.

¶ Young Tobiah leuinge his wife / household in the myddle waie, commeth before with the Aungell. The dyeme of his mother to kepe after her sonne. He is ioyfully receaued of his father / mother. Sara cometh, vii. dayes after.

The.xi.Chapter.

AS they now were going home warde agayne vpon / xi. daye they came to Charra, which lyeth in the halfe waye toward Ninyue. And the Aungell sayde: Brother Tobiah, / knowelt how thou hast lefte thy father: therfore yf it please the, we two wil goo before/ and let thee household with thy wyfe and the catel come safte and fayrly after vs. And when Tobiah was cõtẽt that they shoulde go before, Raphaell sayde vnto him: Take of the gale of the fysh with the, for it shalbe necessary. So Tobiah toke of the gal, and they went their waye. But Anna mother of Tobiah sate dayly by the way syde vpon the toppe of an hill, from whence she might se farre about her. And whil she was waityng ther for his commynge/ she loked afarre of and anonne she perceaued her sonne commyng, and ranne and told her husbande, saying: Beholde, thy sõne cõmeth. And Raphael sayd vnto Tobyah: As soone as thou commest in the house, immedyatlye worshyppe the Lorde thy GOD, and geue thankes vnto hym: then go to thy father, and kisse him, and strike his eyes ouer with the gal of the fysh, that thou hast brought with thee. For be sure that his eyes shal strayght waye be opened and thy father shall se the yght of heauen, and shal reioyse at the syghte of thee. Then the dogge that had bene with them in their iourney, ranne before, and came as a messenger/ and wagged wyth hys tayle for gladnesse.

So the blynde father arose, and beganne to renne / stombled with his feete, and gaue a seruaut hys hand/ ranne to mete hys sonne, receaued hym, / kyssed hym, he and hys wyfe, and beganne to wepe for ioye.

Now when they had worshipped and thanked God, they sat downe. Then toke Tobiah of the fishes gal, and anoynted his fathers eyes: and taryed half / houre/ and then beganne the blemish to go out of his eyes/ like as it had bene / whyte skynne of an egge: which Tobiah toke, and drew from his eyes, and imedyatly he receaued his syght.

Then they praysed god, he and hys wyfe/ and al they that knew hym, and Tobiah sayde: O Lorde God of Israell, I geue thee prayse and thankes, for thou hast chastened me, and made me whole / lo: nowe do I see my sonne Tobiah. After seauen dayes came Sara hys sõnes wyfe also whole and sounde wyth all the household and catel wyth camels and muche money of hys wyues, and / the money that he had receued of Gabelus: and he told hys father and hys mother the benefites which god had done for hym, by the man that led hym. Achior also and Nabath Tobyah syster sonnes came, and wer glad, and reioysed / hym, by reason of all the good that god had shewed vnto hym. And so for the space of seauen dayes they made merye and were ryght ioyfull euerichone.

¶ Yong Tobiah, reckneth vp vnto his father the pleasures that the Aungel dyd hym. He offereth vnto the Aungell the halfe of the goodes that he brought with hym.

The.xii.Chapter.

THen Tobyah called his sone vnto him, and sayde: What may we geue this holye man, that wente wyth vs? Tobiah answered his father, and sayde: Father, what reward shal we geue him? Or what thing can deserue his benefites? He hath bene my gide, and brought me safe agayn: he receaued the money from Gabelus, he caused me to get my wyfe, he droue the euell spyrete from her, he hath bene a occasion of gladnes to her father and mother: he delyuered me, that I was not deuoured of the fish, he hath made the to se the lyght of heauen, yee we haue receaued greate good of him. How shuld we worthily deserue these thinges vnto him? But I praye the my father, that thou wylt deslyer him, if happly he will voutsafe, to take wyth hym the halfe of al that we haue brought.

So the father and the sonne callede him, toke him aside, and beganne to prai him, that he wolde be content to take in a good worthe, the halfe parte of all that he had brought. Then sayde he secretly vnto them: Prayse the God of heuen, and geue thankes: vnto him before al men lyuing, for he hathe shewed his mercy* vnto vs. It is good to hyde the kinges secrete, but to shew and to praise the workes of God it is an honorable thig. Prayer is good wyth fasting, and to geue almes is better, then to hord vp treasure of golde. For almes delyuereth fromdeath, clenseth sinne and causeth to fynde euerlasting life. But they that do sinne and vnrygh tousnes, are the enemyes of ther owne soules.

Wherfore I tell you the trueth, and wyl hyde nothinge from you. When the prayest with teares, and burydest the dead, and lefte thy dyner and hiddest the deed in thy house vpon the daye tyme, that thou myghtest burye the in the nyght I offred thy prayer before the Lord. And because thou wast accept and beloued of God, it was necessary, that temptacyon shuld trye the. And now hath the Lord sent me to heale the and to deliuer Sara thy sonnes wyfe from the euel spyrit. For I am Raphael an Aungel one of the seuen that stande before God.

When they hearde this, they were sore afrayed, and trembled, and fell downe vpon theyr faces vnto the grounde. Then sayde the aungell: Peace be wyth you, feare not. Where as I haue ben wyth you, it is the wyll of God, geue Prayse and thanckes vnto hym.

You thought that I dyd eate and drinke wyth you, but I vse meate that is inuisible, and drincke that can not be sene of men.

Nowe therfore is the tyme that I must turne agayne vnto hym that sent me: but be ye thanckful vnto God, and tell out all hys wonderous worckes.

And when he had spoken these wordes, he was taken awaye oute of theyre syght, so that they sawe hym nomore. Then fell they downe flat vpon theyre faces by the space of thre houres, and praised god: and when they rose vp, they tolde all hys wonderous worckes.

Tobiah the elder geueth thankes vnto God.

The.xii. Chapter.

THen old Tobiah opned his mouth, and prayed the lord and sayde. Great art thou o Lorde for euermore/ and thy kyngdome worlde without ende: for thou scourgest and helest, thou leadest vnto hel/ and bryngest out agayne/ and ther is none that may escape thine hand. O geue thankes vnto the lord ye childre of Israel, and praise hi in the sight of the heathe. For amog the hethe wherin he hath scatered you, to the intente that ye shoulde shewe for the hys maruelous wozkes: and cause them for to knowe, that there is none other God almyghtie but he. He hath chastened vs for oure mysdedes, and for his own mercie sake shall he saue vs.

Consyder then how he hath delt with you, and praise hym wyth feare and drede, and magnifye the euerlastynge king in youre worckes. I wyl praye hym eue in the lande of my captiuitie, for he hath shewed hys magesti vnto a synnefulpeople, turne you therfore/ O ye synners, and do tyghtuousnes before God, and be ye sure, that he wyll shewe hys mercy vpon you. As for me and my soule/ we wyll reioyse in God.

Prayse the lorde al ye hys chosen, hold the dayes of gladnesse, and bethankful vnto hym. O Jerusalem thou cytie of God, the Lorde hath punysshed the for the worckes of thyne owne handes, O prayse the Lorde in thy good thinges, and geue thankes to the euerlastyng God that he maye builde vp his tabernacles agayne in the, that he maye call again vnto the, al soche as be incaptyuite, and that thou mayest haue ioye for euermore. With a fayre lyght shalt thou shyne and al the endes of the world shal honoure the. The people shal come vnto the fro farre, they shal bringe gyftes/ and worshippe the Lorde in thee, and thy lande shal they haue for a Sanctuary/ for they shal cal vpon the greate name in the.

Cursed shal they be that dispyse the, and al that blaspheme the, shalbe condened: but blessed shal they be that build the vp. As for the thou shalt reioyse in thy childzen, for they al shalbe blessed, and gather ted together vnto the Lorde. Blessed are they al that loue the, and beglad of thy peace: Prayse thou the Lord, O my soule, for the Lorde oure God hath delyuered his cytie Jerusalem from all her troubles. I wil count mi selfehappi, if mi sede remaie to se the clerenes of Jerusalem.

The grapes of Jerusale shalbe buil ded with Saphire and Smaragde, and al the compasse of her walles with precyous stones. All her streetes shalbe paued with white marble stone/ and in all her streates shal Allelujа be song. Praised be the Lord, whiche hath exalted her/ and his kyngdomme maye bee vppon her for euermore. Amen. And so Tobiah made an ende of his talkynge.

Tobiah prophesyeth the destruccyon of Niniue. Hys sonne returneth to Raguell, after the decesse of his father and mother.

The.xiiii. Chapter

AND after that Tobiah had gotten his sight agayn, he lyued. xlii. yeares, and sawe his childers childre. Now when he was an. C. and. xii. yeare olde, he dyed: and was buried honorably in Niniue. For when he was fyue and fyfty yeares of age, he lost the sight of his eyes, and when he was three score yeare olde, he gat hys syght agayne. The residue of hys lyfe led he in ioye, and increased well in the feare of god and departed in peace.

But in the houre of hys death, he called vnto hym his sonne Tobiah, and seuen yonge springaldes hys sonnes children, and sayd vnto the: The destruction of Niniue is at hand, for the word of the lorde can not fayle, and our bretheren that are scatered out of the lande of Israel, shal com thether agayn. And the whole lande of it that hath bene waste, shalbe fylled: and the house of God that was brente in it, shalbe buylded agayne, and all suche as feare GOD shall returne thether: the heathen also shall forsake their Idoles, and come to Jerusalem, and dwell there/ and all the kinges of the earth shalbe glad of her, and worshippe the lord God of Israel.

And therfore my chyldren, heare you your father: Serue the Lorde in faythfulnes, seke after hys wyll, and do the thig that pleaseth hym. Commaunde youre chylderen that they doo tyghte: geue almes/ be myndefull of God, and euer to be thankfull vnto hym in trueth and with all thy pre power. Heare me therfore my chylderen and abyde not here: but in what daye soeuer ye haue buryed youre Mother beside me, get you from hence For I see, that the wickednes of it shal bringe it to destruction and ende.

After the death of hys mother, Tobiah departed away fro Niniue/ wyth hys wyfe and chyld ren and childers childre, and came again to hys father and Mother in lawe and founde them whole and in good age, and toke the care of them. And he closed theyr eyes, and was heyre vnto all Raguels goodes, and sawe fyfth generacion and childers childre en. And whe he was xcix. yeare of age, he dyed in the feare of the Lorde, and hys kinsfolkes buryed hym. And all hys posteritee continued in a good lyfe, and holy conuersacion: so that they were loued and accepted both of God and men, and of all the people of the lande.

The ende of the boke of Tobiah

¶ The boke of Judith.

¶ The buyldyng of Ebbathanis. The victory of Nabuchodonosor agaynst Arpharath. The messengers of Nabuchodonosor are dyspysed.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

A Arpharat the kynge of the Medes subdued many people vnto his dominion, and buylded a noble strong cytie, which he called Ecbathanis. The walles of yt made he of free ston, foure squared, seuenty cubites hie and .xxv. cubytes brod. He made towres therupon of an hundreth cubites hye. But vpon the foure corners euery side was twentye fote brode. He made the portes in the height, like as the towres. This king trusted in his myghty hoost and in his glorious charestes.

B So in the twelfth yeare of his raygne/it happened, that Nabuchodonosor the kyng of the Assiryās (which raygned in the greate cytie of Nintue) fought agaynst Arpharat/and ouercame hym in the greate felde called Ragau, beside Euphrates and Tigris and Jadason in the felde of Erioth the king of the Elymes.

C Then was the kyngdome of Nabuchodonosor exalted, and his hert was lyft vp: and he sent vnto all theym that dwelt in Celicia/in Damascus, in Libanus, and vnto the Heathen that dwelte in Carmel, and Cedar, and to such as dwelt in Galile in the great felde of Esdrelon, to al them that were in Samarya, and beyond the water of Jordan vnto Jerusalem and the whole lande of Jesse vnto the mountaynes of Ethiopia. Vnto all these dyd Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assyryans sende messangers. But they al with one consent, wolde not agre vnto him, and sent the messangers againe emptye/and put them awaye wythoute honour. The Nabuchodonosor the king toke indignacion at all those landes, and sware by his trone and by hys kyngdō that he woulde be auenged of all those countreys.

¶ Holofernes is sent of Nabuchodonosor, to subdue al the world. The preparatiō and pursute of Holofernes.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

A In the .xiii. yeare of kynge Nabuchodonosor/vpon the .xxii. day of the fyrst moneth, it was deuysed in the courte of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assirians, that he wold defend hī selfe. So he called vnto hym all the elders/al his captaynes and men of warre, and shewed them his secrete councel, and told them, that hys purpose was, to bryng the whole earth vnder hys dompnion. Now when they were all content with thys saying/Nabuchodonosor the kig called Holofernes the chefe captayne of hys warres, and sayde vnto hym: Goo thy waye forth agaynst all the kyngdomes of the west/and specially agaynste those that haue despysed my commaundement. Thou shalt spare no reame, al stronge cities shalt thou bryng in subiection vnto me.

B Then Holofernes called together all the captaynes and rulers of all the power in Assyria, and mustred the souldyers vnto the hoste (by the ordre the kige commaunded hym) namely, an hundreth and twentye thousand fightynge men vpon fote, and twelue thousand archers vpon horsebacke. All his ordynaunce sent he before with an innumerable multitude of camels, so that the hoost was wel prouyded for, without and smalle Catell, and that without nombre. He caused corne to be prepared oute of all Syria for his hoste. Moch gold and siluer also toke he out of the kynges house. So he toke his torney he and all his hooste, with charettes, horsmen, and archers: of whom ther were so many, that they couered the grounde of the lande, lyke the grashoppers.

C And when he was gone paste the borders of the Assyrians, he came towarde the great mountaynes of Inge/which lye vpon the left syde of Celicia: and so he went vp in to all their castels, and wanne euery stronge holde. As for the welthye citie of Melothus, he brake it downe, and spoyled all the childzen of Tharsis and the Ismaelites ites, which lay toward the wylderne, and vpon the south syde of the land of Chelon. He went ouer Euphrates also/and came into Mesapotania, and brake downe all the hye cities that were there, from the broke of Mambre tyll a man come to the see, and he toke the borders in from Celicia vnto the coastes of Japhet toward the south. He caryed away al the Madianites, and spoyled al ther goodes and whosoeuer withstode hym he slewe them wyth the swerde. After this he went downe into the felde of Damascus, in the tyme of the haruestе, and brente vp al the corne and all the trees, and caused the vynes to be cut downe. And the feare of hym fel vpon all them that dwelt in the earthe.

Kynges become wyllyngly subiect to Holofernes. the tyranny and cruelte of hym.

The.iii. Chapter.

A So the kynges and princes of all the cities and landes sent theyr Embassadours: namely, they of Siria and Mesopotamia, Siria Sobail, and Libia, and Celicia, whyche came to Holofernes, and sayde: Let thy wrath ceasse toward vs: It is better for vs to serue the great kyng Nabuchodonosor wyth oure lyues, and to be subiecte vnto thee, then that we should dye and be slayn and sereaue great hurte. Al our Cities and possessions, al mountaynes and hylles al feldes/great and small catell, shepe, goates, horses, and camels, all oure goodes and housholdes, be in thy power, vnder thy subiection be it altogether. We oure selues also and oure childeren wyl be thyne owne, come vnto vs a peaceable Lorde, and vse oure seruice at thy pleasure.

B Then came Holofernes downe from the mountayns wyth horsmen and greate power, and conquered al stronge fensed Cities/and al that dwelt in the lande. And out of all cyties he toke strong men and such as were mete for the warre, to helpe hym. There came such a feare also vpon those countreies that the indwellers of al the cities, the princes and rulers/and the peple together, went forth to mete him as he came, and receaued hi honorably wyth garlandes and torches, with daunses, tabrettes and pypes.

C Neuertheless though they did this, yet myght they not swage his rygorous stommake: but he destroyed their cyties, and hewed downe their wodes. For Nabuchodonosor the kynge had commaunded him, that he shold rote out al ỳ Godes of the lande: to the intent that he only myghte be called and taken for God of the nacions which Holofernes wyth his power brought vnder him. So whē he thorow Syria Sobal, and thorowe al Appamia, and al Mesopotamia, came to ỳ Idumeans, in the land of Gabaa and Septopolye/and toke their cities, and remayned there .xxx. dayes, wherin he caused al the whole multitude of hys hoost to be gathered together.

Israel requyreth helpe of God, agaynst Holofernes. They fast and praye.

The.iiii. Chapter.

A When the childzen of Israel that dwel in Jewrye herde this, they were sore afraied of him. There came soche tremblynge also and feare vpon them, that they sorowed he shulde do vnto the cyte of Jerusalem and thee temple of the lorde, as he had done to other cyties and their temples. So they sent into al Samaria roundabout vnto Jericho/toke in and occupyed al the toppes of the mountaynes, made faste the tounes with wales, and prepared corne for them agaynst the battel.

B Elyachim also the Preest wrote vnto al them that dwelt toward Esdrelon (whiche lyeth ouer agaynste the greate felde by Dotha Jm) and vnto all those by whom men might haue passag vnto them, that they shulde take in the wayes of the mountaynes, whereby there myght be any waye and passag to Jerusalem, and ỳ they sholde holde dylygent watche where any strayte waye was betwixt ỳ mountaynes. And the childrē of Israel did as Eliachim the Preest of the Lord had commaunded them. And al the people cryed ernestly, and humbled ther soules with fastyng and prayers, they and their wyues: The Preestes but on hearty clothes, and layed the yenge babes before the temple of the Lorde, and couered the fulter of the Lorde with an hearey clothe. And with one accorde they cryed vnto the Lorde God of Israell/ that their childeren should not be geue into a pray, and their wiues into a spoile, that their Cities should not be layd wast, and that their sanctuary should not be vnhalowed, and so they to bee a shame and rebuke vnto the heathen.

C Then Eliachim the hye Preste of the Lorde, went rounde aboute al Israel, and spake vnto them, sayinge: Be ye sure, that the Lorde will hear your petycyons, yf ye contynue stedfast in fastynges and prayers in the syghte of the Lord. Remembre Moses the seruaunt of the Lord, which ouerthrew the Amalechites (that trusted in their myght & power, in their hoost, in their shyldes, in their charrettes and horsmenn) not with weapens, but with holy prayers. Euen so shall all the enemies of Israel be, yf ye contynue in thys worke, that ye haue begonne. So vpon this exortacion they contynued in prayer before the Lord, In so moch that they which offred brent sacrifices vnto the Lorde offred the offringes vnto the Lorde, beynge arayed in their clothes and had asshes vpō their heades. And they all besoughte God from their whole herte, that he wold vyset his people of Israel.

Holofernes is discontent with the Iewes. Achior sheweth vnto Holofernes the maruels of god don vnto the Iewes, for which thig ꝑ rulers vnder Holofernes were very angry with him.

The.v. Chapter.

A AND word came vnto holofernes the Prynce of ꝑ warres of the Assiryans, that ꝑ childzen of Israel prepared them selues to make resystaunce, and how they hadd stopped the wayes betwyxt the mountaynes. Then was he exceading wroth & called al the Prynces of Moab, and the Captaynes of Ammon, and sayde vnto them: Tell me, what people is thys, that keape the in the mountaynes? Or what maner of cities are they? What is their power? Or what māer of host haue they? who ys their Captayne?

And why do they dispise vs (more then al these that dwel in the East) and come not forth to mete vs, that they might receaue vs with peace? Then Achior the Captaine of al the Ammonites answered, and saide: Syr, yf it please thee to heare me, I wyl tel the truth before the concerning this people that dwel in the mountaynes, and there shall no lye goo out of my mouth.

B Thys people is of the generacion of the Caldees, they dwelt fyrst in Mesopotamia, for they wold not folow the goddes of their fathers that wer in the land of the Caldees, and so forsoke they the customes of their fore fathers (which had many goddes) and worshipped one God, that made heauen and earth: which also commaūded them that they shoulde go from thence, and dwel at Haran. Now when there came a death into the whole lande, they went downe to Egipt, and there they dwelt foure hundreth yeares, in which they multiplyed so greately, that their hoost might not be nombred. And when the kynge of Egipt oppressed them and subdued them in buyldynge of hys Cytyes with makynge of claye and Bycke, they cryed vnto GOD their Lorde, whyche punyshed the whole lande of Egypte with dyuers plages.

C Now when the kynge of Egypte let them go their waye, and the plage ceassed, and they folowed after them, to take them, and to bryng them agayne into his seruyce, while they were fleinge awaye, the God of Heauen opened the ꝑ sea, so that the waters stode fast vppon both the sydes as a wal, and there went thorow the botom of the sea drye shod. In the which place when an innumerable people of the Egipcians folowe vpon them thei were so ouerwhelmed with the waters that there remained not one to tel them that came after, how yt happened. So when thys people was passed thorowe the red sea, they came into the wylderneesse of the mounte Synay, where neuer man dwelte afore, & where D the sonne of man had neuer reised. There were the bytter waters made swete for them, that they myght drynke, & .xl. yeares had they mete frō heuē.

where soeuer they wēt (without bowe and arowe, without buckler or swerde) their god fought for the, and caused the to haue the victory. Yee no man was able to hurte this people, excepte it were so that they departed vnfaythfully from ꝑ worshyppyng of the lord ther god. But as oft as they worshypped any other beside ther god he gaue the ouer to be spoiled, to be slayn, & to be put to confusyon. Neuertheles as oft as they were sory for departyng from the worshippe of theire god, the same god of heuen gaue them E power & strēgth to wīstād their enmyes.

Moreouer they slew the kynge of ꝑ Cananites, Jebusites/ Pherezites Hethites Emites and Amorites, and all the myghtye in Hesebon and toke their landes and cytes in possession: and so long as they sinned not in the sight of theire god, it went wel with them, for their god hate the vnrighteousnesse. For in tymes past when they went oute of thee waye, which god had geuen the that they sholde walke in it, they were destroyed in dyuerse kyndes of many nacyons: & many of them were caryed away presoners vnto a straunge countze. But nowe lately they haue torned them selues awaye vnto the lorde theire god, and are come together agayn out of the countrees wher they were scatered abrod and thus haue they conquered these mountaynes, and dwel therin and as for Jerusalē, where their Sanctuary is, they haue it agayn F in possessyon.

And therfor my Lorde, make diligēt inquisition if this peple haue done wickednesse in the sight of the god, then let vs go vp agaynst thē for doubtles their god shal delyuer thē into thy handes/ & subdue them vnto thy power. But if this peple haue not displeased their god, we shall not be able to withstand them, for their god shal defend them, and so shal we be a shame to all the worlde.

Now when Achyor had spoken out these wordes, al the Prynces of Holofernes wer wroth, & thought to slay hym, and sayde one to an other: what is be thys, which darre saye, that the Childeren of Israell are able to withstand nabuchodonosor the kinge and his hoste wher as they are an vnwepened people, G without strength or vnderstandinge of the feates of warre? That Achyor ther fore maye knowe that he hath deceaued vs, we wyll go vp into the mountaynes: and when the myghtye men of them are taken, he also shalbe slayne with the swearde, that all people maye knowe, that Nabuchodonosor is the God of the earthe, and that there is none other wythout hym.

Achior is committed into the handes of ꝑ Iewes by Holofernes. He is tied to a tree, but is loused of the Iewes. The prayer of the people. Achior is comforted of the Iewes.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

SO whē they had left of spekīg, Holofernes toke sore indignacyon, & sayde vnto Achior. For so much as thou hast prophecied vnto vs, sayinge: that the people of Israell shall be defended of theyre God, I wyll shewe the/ ꝑ ther is none other God but Nabuchodonosor. Yea when we slaye them all as one man, thou also shalt perysh wyth them thorowe the swerde of the Assirians, and al Israell shal be destroyd wyth the, and then shalt thou fele, that Nabuchodonosor is the lord of the whole earth. Then shall the swerde of my knighthode go thorow thy sydes and thou shalt fall downe stickte amōge the wounded of Israell, and shalte not come to thy selfe agayne, but be vt- B terly destroyed wyth them. But if thou thynckest thy prophecy to be true, whye doest ꝑ then chaunge thy colour, why are thou afrayde? Thynckest thou that my wordes are not able to be perfourmed? But that thou mayest know/ that thou shalte feale these thynges with theim, beholde, from thys houre forthe wyll I sende thee vnto yonder People that when the punishment of my swerd (which they haue worthly deserued) falleth vpon them, thou mayest be punished with them.

So Holofernes commaunded hys seruaunts to take Achior, & to cary him vnto Bethulia, and to delyuer hym in to the handes of the childeren of Israel. Then Holophernes seruantes toke hym, and went thorow the playne feld. But whē they drewe nye vnto the mountaies ꝑ slyng casters cam out agaist the Neuertheles they gat them awaye by the syde of the mountayne, and bounde Achior hand and fote to a tree, and so left him bound wt withyes and turned agayne vnto their Lorde.

Neues

Notwithstandynge the chyldren of Israel wente downe from Bethulia, came vnto him, lowsed hym, brought hym to Bethulia, set him in the myddest of the people, and asked him what the matter was, that the Assyrians had lefte hym bounde.

Olias the sonne of Mycha of the trybe of Symeon, and Charmim (which is also called Gothoniel) were the pryncipal rulers at the same tyme. Now when Achior stode in the myddest of the Senatoures, and before theim al he told the what answer he gaue Holofernes to ỹ thinge that he asked hym/and how Holofernes people wold haue slayne hym for so saynge, and howe Holofernes him selfe was wroth, and commaũded hym for the same cause to be delyuered vnto the Israelites: that whē he ouercame ỹ chyldren of Israel, he myghte commaunde Achior also to be put to death with dyuers tormentes, because he sayde: the God of heauen is their defender.

And when Achior had playnely tolde out all these thigs, all the People fell downe vpon their faces, prayseng the Lorde, and poured oute their praiers together vnto the Lorde, wyth a generall complaynte and weppynge, and said: O Lorde God of heauen and of earth, beholde theyr pryde, and loke vpon our lowlynes, and consydre how it standeth with thy saintes/ād make it to be knowen, that thou forsakest not those, whych holde them fast by thee, and how that ỹ bryngest thē lowe, ỹ presume of them selues, and make theyr boost in theyr own strengthe. So when the weppynge and prayer of the people (whiche they had made the whole daye long) was ended, they comforted Achior, sayig: The god of oure fathers, whose power & strēghe thou haste praysed, shal so rewarde the, that thou shalt rather see theyre destruction. When the lord our god then shal geue hys seruauntes thys lyberty, god be also wyth thee amonge vs: so that if it please thee, thou wt thyne mayest dwel with vs.

Nowe when Olias had ended the councel, he toke him into his house, and made a greate supper, called the elders to it, and so they refreshed thē selues after the fasting. And afterwarde was al the people called together/which made their prayers al the nyght longe in the congregacion, and besought the god of Israel for help.

¶ Bethulia is besieged of Holofernes. The people requireth help of god. Thei of Bethulia wold geue ouer the cyte for wāt of water. The prayer of ỹ people with feares and lamētacion.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

The nexte daye, Holofernes commaũded his host, to go vp agaynst Betulia. There were an. C. & xx. M. fightig men on fote, and two & twētye thousande horsemen, besyde the preparing of theim that were wonne: and came to them on euery side out of ỹ cōtrees and cyties which he had taken. All these prepared them selues vnto the battel agaynst the Israelites, and cam on by the hil side, vnto the toppe that lieth ouer agaynst Dothaim, from the place which is called Belma, vnto Chelmon that lyeth toward Esdrelon.

Now when the chyldren of Israel sawe so greate a multitude of the Assirians they fel downe flat vpon ỹ ground, strawed ashes vpon theyr heades and prayed with one accord, that ỹ god of Israel wolde shew his mery vpō hys people. And so they toke their wepōs, and sat betwixt the mountaines in the narow place, & kept ỹ waie daie & night. But while Holofernes was goig about he founde the water spring, which from the South syde was conueied into the cyte by a cōdite: this commaũded he to be dyuerted another waye, and to cut ther condyte in sonder. There were welles also not farre from the walles, which they vsed secretly more for pleasure then for necessyte.

Then went the Ammontes and the Moabytes vnto Holofernes/and said: the childrē of Israel trust nether in spere nor arow, but haue takē in and kepte ỹ mountaynes & hylles. That ỹ mayst ouercom thē therfore wythoute the stryking of any battayl/set mē to kepe the welles, that they drawe no water out of them: so shalt thou destroye them without swerde, or at the least they shal be so feable, that they muste be fayne to geue ouer the cite, which they thinke not able to be wonne/for so moche as it lyeth in the mountaynes. These wordes pleased Holofernes wel, and al his men of warre and he set an hundred men at euery wel rounde about.

And when this watth had endured twentye dayes/that Cisternes and all that had water, fayled them that dwell in the cyte of Bethulia, so that in that whole cyte they had not dronken ynough for one dai/ for the people had water geuen them daylyin a measuer. Thē came the men and wemen yonge persōnes and childrē al vnto Olyas ād sayde al with one voyce: God be iudge betwyxte vs and the, for ỹ hast dealt euell wt vs: thou wouldest not speake peccable with the kyng of the Assyrians therfore hath God solde vs in their handes and there is noman to helpe vs where as we are brought downe before there eyes in thirst and greate destruccyone/ Therfore gather yow together al these people that be in the cyte, that we maye al yelde oure selues willingly vnto the people of Holofernes: for better it ys ỹ we be captyryne and prayse the Lord wt our lyues, then to be slayne and perithe and to be laughed to scorne & shamed of euery man when we se oure wiues and childrē dye before our eyes. We take heauen and erth to recorde and the God of oure fathers (whiche punytheth vs according to the deserupig of oure sinnes) and geue you warnynge, that ye geue vp the cyte now in to the power of Holofernes hoost, that our ende maye be shorte wt the swerde, whych els shal endure long for wāt of water ād for thirst.

When they had spokē out these wordes, there was a greate weppyng & howlyng in the whole congregacion, ād that of euery man, and they cryed an whole houre longe vnto God with one voyce, saiēg: we haue sined with our fathers, we haue don amis, we haue dealte wickedly.

Thou that art gracious haue mercy vpon vs, punish oure vnrighteousnes wt thyne owne scourge, and geue not those ouer that knowledge thee/ vnto a people whiche knoweth thee not, least they say among the heythen: where is theyr God?

And when they were so wery wyth this cryeng and weping, that they held theyr tonges, Olyas stode vp wyth watery eyes, and sayde: O take good hertes vnto you (dere bretheren) and bee of good cheare, and let vs wayte yet these fyue dayes for mercye of the Lorde: peraduenture he shall cut away hys indignacion/and geue glory vnto hys name. But if he helpe vs not when these fyue dayes are paste/ we shall doo as ye haue sayde.

¶ Of ỹ vertuous womā Judith, which reproueth the aunciētes because they tempted the lord. She also moueth thē to encorage ỹ herden ỹ people, and sheweth her cōsel agaynst ỹ enemies of ỹ Jewes.

The. viii. Chapter.

And it happened when these wordes came to the eares of Judith a wyddowe, which was the daughter of Merary, the sonne of Idor/ the sonne of Joseph/the sonne of Oseah, the sonne of Elai, the sonne of Jamnor, the sonne of Jedeon, the sonne of Raphoim, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Melchia, the sunne of Enam, the sonne of Nathonia, the sunne of Salathyell the sonne of Simeon, the sonne of Ruben. And her husbād was called Manasses, which dyed in the dayes of the barley harueste.

For whyle he was byndynge the sheaues together in the felde, the heate came vpon hys hed, and he dyed at Bethulya his citie, and there was he buryed beside his fathers. Now was Judith hys desolate wyddowe three yeares ād syxe monethes. And in the hyer poztes of her house she made her selfe a prayuy chamber, where she dwelt beinge closed in with her maydens. She ware a sinock of heatre, and fasted all the dayes of her lyfe, excepte the Sabbathes, and newe moones, and the solempne dayes that ỹ people of Israell kept. She was a beryfayre and bewtyfull person. Her husbande also, had lefte her gret rychesplentuous plenteous houshold, greate vnmoueable possessions and many catel. This Judith was a woman of a very good report with euery one, for she feared the Lorde greatly, and there was no body that spake an euell worde of her.

When this Judith herde, how Ozias had promysed the people, that after the fyfte daye he wolde geue vp the cytie vnto the Assyrians, she sent for the elders Chabri and Charmyn, & when they cam to her, she sayde: what thynge is this, wherin Ozias hathe consented, that yf God helpe not within fyue dayes, he wyl geue ouer the citie to the Assyrians: What are ye, that ye tempte the Lorde? This deuice obtaineth no mercy of God, but prouoketh hi vnto wrath & displeasur. Wyl ye set the mercy of ỹ Lorde a time and appointe him a daye after your wil? Nevertheles, for so moch as the Lorde is pacyent, lett vs rather amende ourselues, pourynge out teares, and besechyng him of grace. For God threateneth not as a mã, nether wyl he be prouoked vnto wrathe as the childzen of men. And therfore let vs herkelye fall downe before hi, & serue hym wt a meke spirite, and wyth wepinge eyes, saye vnto the Lorde, that he deale with vs accordyng to hys owne wyll and mercy: that lyke as our herte is now bexed, and brought lowe thorow the pryde of them/ it maye so be comforted throw hys grace: in so muche as we folow not the synnes of our fathers, whych forsoke their GOD, and worshipped other GODDES: for the whyche synne they perished with ỹ swerd, were led ouled ād brought to shame of al their enemies. As for vs, we know non other God but only him, for whose comfort let vs tary with mekenesse. He shall require and make iquisitiō for our bloud, from the veracions of our enemyes: he shal bringe downe al the Heythen, that ryse vp agaynste vs, and put theym to dishonoure, euen the lorde our god.

Therfore deare brethren, seyng ye are the honorable and elders in the people of God, vnto whome all the people haue respecte, and vpon whom the lyfe of the people standeth, lyft vp their hertes with your exortacion, that they may cal to remembraunce, how oure fathers also in tymes paste were tempted, that they might be proued, if they worshypped their god a ryght. They ought to remembre/ howe oure father Abrahā beynge tempted/ and tryed thorow many trybulacions, was founde a louer & frende of God: So was Isaac, so was Jacob, so was Moses, and al they ỹ pleased god/ beynge tryed thorow many troubles/ were founde stedfast in fayth: agayn they ỹ receaued not their tētacions with the feare of god, but put them selues forth with vnpacyency ād murmuring agaynste god perishe of ỹ destroyer, and were slayne of serpentes. And therfore should not we vndertake to be auenged, for the thing that is don vnto vs: but to cōsydre, that al these punishmentes are farre lesse then our synnes and mysdedes. Beleuing also/ that this correccyon commeth vnto vs (as to the seruaunts of God) for a mēdment, and not for our destruccion.

Then sayde Ozias and the elders vnto Judith: All that thou speakest/ is true, and no man can reproue thy wordes. Pray thou for vs now therfore vnto god, for thou art an holy woman, & fearest god. And Judyth sayde vnto them, Beynge ye know we, that my wordes are of God, then proue my cōcel and deuyce, if it be of God: & beseche God, that he wil bringe my councell to good ende.

Thus haue I deuysed: ye shall stande this night before the porte, and I wyl go forth with Abra my mayden: Pray ye therfore vnto god, that he wil graciously remembre the people of Israel within fiue dayes, as ye haue said. As for the thynge that I goo vn hande wyth all, aske ye questions of yt, tyll I open it vnto you my selfe: doo ye nothinge els but praie vnto the lord your GOD for me. Then Ozias the prince of the People of Juda sayde vnto her: Go thy waie in peace and the Lorde be with thee, that we maye be auenged of our enemyes. And so they went from her agayne.

The.xi. Chapter.

Now when they were gone their waye/ Judith went into her oratory, put on an herye smocke, strowed ashes vpon her hed/ fel downe before the lord, and cried vnto him, sayenge: O Lord god of my father Symeon, which gauest him a sweard for a defence agaynst ỹ enemies, that vsed vyolence and wylfulnes, and that rauished the virgin and put her to dishonesty. Thou that gauest their wiues into a praye, and their daughters into captyuite, and al their praye for a spoile vnto thy seruauntes, which haue a zeale vnto the, helpe me widdow, O Lord my god I beseech the: For thou hast done al thinges from the beginning, and loke what thou haste taken in hande and deuysed, it came euer to passe. For al thy wayes are prepared, ād thy iudgmētes are done in thy euerlastinge for knowledge. O loke now vpon the armes of the Assiryans, lyke as yt was thy pleasure some tyme to loke vpon the host of the Egyptyans, when they being weaponed, persecuted thy seruāunts, & put their trust i their charettes, horsme nand in ỹ multitude of theyr men of warre. But ỹ lokest vpon their hoost casting a thycke darcknes before them: and when theye came into the depe, ỹ waters ouer whelmed them.

Euen so Lord let it go with these that trust in the power of the multitud of their men of warre, in their charettes, arowes and speares, and knowe not/ ỹ thou only art our god, whych destroyest warres from the beginning, and ỹ thou art the Lord. O lyfte vp the arme nowe lyke as euer from the begynninge, and i thy power bryng ther power to naught cause their myght to fal in thy wrath. They make ther boast, that they wil vnhalow and defyle thy Sāctuary, and to wast ỹ tabernacle of thy name & to caste downe the horne of thine aulter wt their swerde. Bryng to passe (O Lord) that the pryde of the enemy maie be cut downe with his owne sword that he maye be taken wyth the snare of hys eyes in me and that thou maiest smite theym with the lyppes of my loue. O geue me a stedfast mynde, that I may despyse hi and hys strenght, and that I maye destroy hym.

Thys shall bringe thy name an euerlastinge remembraunce/ yf the hande of a womā ouerthrow hym. For thy power (O Lorde) standeth not in the power of men, neyther hast thou anye pleasure in the strenght of horses. There was neuer proude persoune that pleased thee, but in the prayer of the humble and meake hath thy pleasure bene euermore.

O thou God of the heauens, thou maker of the waters, & Lord of all creatures, heare me poore woman, callynge vpon the, and put tyng my trust in thy mercye. Remembre thy couenaunte O Lorde, and myntster wordes in my mouthe, and stablysh this deuyce in my hert, that thy house maye contynue stil in holynesse, and that all the Heathen maye know and vnderstand, that thou arte God, and that there is none other but thou.

¶ Judith decketh hir self to go to Holofernes. The blessing that the elders gaue Judith. Holofernes is in loue with Judyth.

The.x. Chapter.

And whan she had lefte of cryenge vn to the Lorde, she rose vp from the place, where she had layen flatte before the Lorde, and called her mayd, wente downe in to her house, layed the heartie cloth from her, put of the garmentes of her widdowhode, washed her bodye, anoynted hir self wyth precious thinges of swete sauour, bryded and plated her heare, set an hoode vpon hir heade, and put on soche apparel as belongeth vnto gladnesse, slippers vpon her fete, armelettes, spanges, earynges, fynger ryuges, and decked her self wt al her best arraye.

The Lord gaue her also a specyal beutie and fairnesse (for al this decking of her selfe was not done for any volyptuousnes and pleasure of the flesh, but of a ryght discrecion and duty, therfore did the lorde encrease her bewtye) so ỹ she was exceading amiable and wel fauoured i al mennes eyes. She gaue hir maide also a bottel of wyne, a pot wyth oyle, pottage, cake bred and chese/ and went her waye.

Now

B Now whan she came to the porte of the cytye, she founde Osias and the elders of the cite waytinge there. Whyche when they sawe her, they were astonied, and marueled greatly at her bewtye, neuerthelesse they axed no questyon at her, but let her go/sayinge: The god of oure father geue the his grace, and with his power performe al the deuice of thy hert: that Jerusalem maye reioyce ouer the, and that thy name maye be in ỹ nober of the holy and righteous. And al they that were there, saide with one voyce: so be it, so be it. Judith made her praier vnto the Lord, and went out at the porte, she and her mayde.

And as she was going downe the mountayn, yt happened that about the springe of the daye, the spyes of the Assyryans met with her, and toke her, sayenge: whence comnest thou? Or whither goest thou? She answered: I am a daughter of the Hebrues, and am fled from theym, for I know, that they shalbe geuen vnto you to be spoyled: because they thought scorne to yeld them selues vnto you, that they myght find mercy in your sight. Therfore haue I deuised by my selfe after this maner: I wyl go before the prince Holofernes, and tel him al their secretes, and wil shewe him, how he may com to the, and winne them, so that not one man of his hoste shal perish.

And when these men had herde her C wordes, and considered her fayr face they were astonied (for they wondred at her excellent bewtie) and sayde vnto her: Thou haste saued thy life by fyndynge out this deuice, that thou wolde st come downe to our lorde: and be thou sure, ỹ when thou comest vnto him, he shal intreate the wel, and thou shalt please him at the hert. So they brought her into Holofernes pauylion/and tolde him of her: Now when she came in before hym, immediatly he was ouercome and taken with her bewty. Then sayde his seruauntes: who wolde dispyse the people of the Jewes that haue so faire women? Shoulde we not by reason fight agaynst them for these? So whe Judith saw Holofernes sytting in a canapy/that was wrought of purple, silcke, goulde/ Smaragde and precious stones, she lowted fall vpon hym, and fell downe vpō the earth, and Holofernes seruauntes toke her vp agayne, at theyr Lordes cōmaundement.

Holofernes requireth of Juda the cause of her comming, which grueth hym a subtill answer.

The.xi. Chapter.

THen saide Holofernes vnto her: be of good cheare, and feare not in thine herte, for I neuer hurt man, that wolde serue Nabuchadonosor ỹ kyng. As for thy people/yf they had not despised me. I should not haue lift vp a speare agaynst them. But tell me now, what is the cause that thou art departed from them, and wherfore art thou come vnto vs. A

And Judith sayde vnto hym: Syr/ vnderstande the wordes of thy handmayden: for if thou wylte doo after the wordes of thy handmayden, the Lorde shall bringe thy matter to a prosperous effecte. As truly as Nabuchodonosor a Lorde of the lande liueth/and as truly as hys power liueth, whych is in ỹ, to the punishement of all men that doo wronge, all men shall not onely be subdued vnto hym thorowe thee, but al the beastes also of the felde. For all people speake of thy prudente captiuitie/and it hath euer bene reported, how thou only art good and myghtie in all hys kyngdome, and thy discretion is commended in all landes.

The thynge is manifest also, that Achior spake, and it is wel knowen, what thou commaūdedst to do vnto him. For B thys is playne and of a suerty, that our God is so wroth with vs (by the reason of oure synnes) that he hath shewed by hys prophetes vnto the people/how ỹ for oure synnes he wyll delyuer them ouer vnto the enemye. And for so muche as the chylderen of Israell knowe that they haue so displeased theyr god, they are sore afrayde of thee.

They suffre great honger also/and for wante of water, they are dead nowe in a manner. Moreouer they are apointed to slay all theyr catel/that they maye drincke the bloud of them: and are purposed, to spende al the holy ornamentes of theyr God (whiche he hathe forbydden them to touche) for corne wyne, and oyle. Seing nowe that thei do these thinges, it is a playne case, that they must nedes be destroyed. Whych when I thy handmayden perceaued/I fled from theim, and the Lorde hath sent me vnto the, to shewe the these thinges. For I thy handmayden worshippe God euen here nowe beside the, and thy handmayden shal go forth, and I wil make mi prayer vnto God/and he shal tel me, when he wil reuenge them their sinne: then shal I cōe and shewe the and bringe the thorow ỹ middest of Jerusalem, so that thou shalt haue al the people of Israel, as they D without a shepherde: there shal not a dogge barcke agaynst the. For these thinges are shewed me by the prouydence of God: and for so much as God is displeased with them, he hath sent me to tell the the same.

These wordes pleased Holofernes and al his seruauntes, which marueled at the wisdome of her, and sayde one to another: there is not suche a woman vpō earth, in bewtye and discretyon of wordes. And Holofernes sayd vnto her: god hath done well, that he hath sent the hyther before thy people, that thou mayst geue them into oure handes. And for so muche as thy promesse is goodde, yf thy God performe it vnto me, he shalbe my God also/and thou shalt be exalted aboue at ỹ court of Nabuchodonosor, and thy name shalbe spoken of in all the lande.

Holophernes commaunded ỹ Judith be well intreated. She desireth licence to go out in the night season to prayer, and obtayneth it. Vagao is sēt vnto her to moue her to come in to Holofernes to a banket, and she commeth. Holofernes is dronke.

The.xii. Chapter.

A THen commaūded he her to go in, where hys treasure laye, and charged that she shoulde haue her dwellynge there, and appoynted what should be geuen her from his table. Judith answered him and sayde: As for thy meate that thou haste commaunded to geue me, I maye not eate of it as pow (lest I displeake my god) but wil eat of soche as I haue brought with me.

Then sayde Holofernes/vnto her: If these thinges that thou haste brought with thee sayle, what shall we do vnto the? and Judith sayd: As truly as thou lyuest my Lord, thy handmayden shall not spende all thys/tyll God haue brought to passe in my handē, the thynges that I haue deuised. B

So hys seruauntes brought her into the tent, where as he had appointed. And as she was goinge in, she desyred that she myght haue leaue to go forthe by nyght and before day, to her prayer and to make intercession vnto the lord. Then commmaunded Holofernes hys chamberlaynes, that they shoulde go out and in at her pleasure, to pray vnto god those three dayes.

And so in the nyght season she wente forth into the valley of Bethulya, and washed her selfe in well water. Then went she vp, and besought the Lord god of Israell that he would prospere her waye, for the delyueraunce of hys people. And so she wente in and remayned cleane in her tente, tyll she toke her mea te in the euenīnge. C

Upon the fourth daye it happened, that Holofernes made a collye supper vnto hys seruauntes, and sayde vnto Vagao hys Chamberlayne: Go thy waye and counsel thys Hebreuesse/that she maye be wyllīng to consent to kepe company wyth me. For it were a shame vnto all the Assirians/that a womanne shoulde so laugh a man to scorne, that she were come frō hym vnmedled with all.

Then wente Vagao vnto Judith and sayde: Let not the good daughter be afrayed, to come into my Lorde, that she maye be honoured before hym that she maye eate and drinke wyne/and be merry wyth hym. Unto whome Judith answered: Who am I, that I should say my Lorde nay? what soeuer is good before hys eyes/I shal do it: and loke what D is hys pleasure, that shall I thynche well done/as longe as I lyue.

So she rose vp, and decked her selfe wyth her apparell, and wente in, and stode before hym. And Holofernes herte was whol moued/so that he brent in despite towarde her. And Holofernes sayde vnto her: drincke nowe and sytte downe, and be merye, for thou haste found fauoure before me: Then sayde Judith:

Syr I wyll drynck, for my mynd is me
lyer to daye, then euer it was in all my lyfe. And she toke and ate and dranck before hym, the thynges that her mayd en had prepared for her. And holofernes was merp with her, and dranck more wine, then euer he did afore in hys lyfe.

Holofernes sleped for very dronkennes, Judith cut teth of his heade, and goeth therwith to her owne people: of whome she is receaued with ioy. Theyge ue thākes vnto God, for their delyuraūce. Judith speaketh vnto Achior, which maruelled at her feate done to Holofernes.

The. xiii. Chapter.

A NOw when yt was late in ỹ nyght hys seruauntes made haste euerye man to hys lodgyng. And Bagao shut ỹ chambre doze, and went hys way, for they were all ouerladen w wyne. So was Judith alone in the chā-ber. As for Holofernes he laye vppon ỹ bed all dronckē/and of verye dronc-kennes fell a slepe.

Then commaunded Judith her maydē to stonde without before the doze / and to wayte. And Judith stoode before the bed, making her prayer wyth teares, & m moued her lyppes secretlye & said: Stren gthen me O Lord God of Israell, and haue respect vnto the workes of my hādes in thys houre, that thou mayest set vp thy Citie of Jerusalem lyke as thou hast promised: O graunte that by the I maye performe the thynges, whyche I haue diuised thorowe the beleue that I haue in thee.

B And when she had spoken this, she wen
te to the bedsteade, and lowsed the swer
de that hanged vpō it, and drew it out.
Then toke she holde of the heavye loc-kes of his heade, and sayde: Strength en me O Lord God in thys houre: ād
wyth that, she gaue hym two strokes
vpon the necke, and smote of his head.
Then toke she the canapy awaye, and rolled the deed body alyde. Immedia-tly she gat her forth, and delyuered the head of Holofernes vnto her mayden, ād bad her put it in her walet. And so these two went forth together after th eir custome, as though they wold pray and so passed by the Hoost, and cam thorow the valley vnto the port of the cyte. And Judith cryed afarre of vnto
the watchmen vppon the walles:

Open the gates (sayde she) for god is w vs whiche hath shewed his power in Israel. And when they harde her voyce
they called the elders of the cyte together C
And they came all to mete her litil and greate younge ād olde, for they thought
not that she sholde haue come so soone:
So they lyghted candels, and gathered aboute her euerychon: but she wente vp into an hey place, and caused silence to be proclamed.

When euery man now held his tōg
Judith sayde: O prayse the Lorde oure
god for he hath not delyuered nor forsa ken thē/that put their trust in him: and in me his handmayde he hath performed his mercy, which he promysed vnto the hoste of Israel: yee in my hand this same nyght hath he slayne the enemye of hys people.

And with that she toke forth ỹ head of Holofernes out of the wallet and shew
ed it them, saying: Behold the head of D Holofernes the captayne of the Assirias and this is the canapy, where he laye in his dronkennes: where the Lorde oure god hath slayne hym by the hande of a woman.

But as truly as the Lord lyueth his Aungel hath kepte me, goinge thither, remaynyng there and comming hether agayn from thence. And the Lorde hath not suffred me his handmayden to be de fyled, but without any fylthynes of sine hath he brought e me agayn vnto you: ād that with great victory, so that I am es caped, and ye delyuered. Geue thākes vnto him euerychone/for he is gracios
and his mercy endureth for euer.

So they praysed the Lord altogether and gaue thankes vnto him. And to her they sayde: The Lord hath blessed thee
in his power/for thorowe thee he hathe brought oure enemyes to naughte. And Ozias thee chefe ruler of the People of Israel, sayde vnto her: Blessed art thou of the Lorde the hye God, a boue all we C men vpon erth.

Blessed be the lord, the maker of he auen and earth, which hath gyded the a right to wound and to smite of the head of the Captayne of oure enemyes.
For this day he hath made thy name so horyble ỹ thy prayse shall neuer come out of the mouth of men, which shal al way remembre the power of the lord:

seing thou hast not spared thine owne
self, but put the in leopardy, considrig
the anguyshe and trouble of thy people, and so hast helped their fal before God our lord. And al the people sayde:
Amen Amen.

Achior also was called, and he cāe
Then sayde Judith vnto hi: The god D
of Israel vnto whom thou gauest wit
nes, that he woulde be auenged of hys enemies, euen he hath thys night tho-rowe my hande smitten of the head of al the vnfaithful. And that thou maist se that it so is, beholde thys ys ỹ head of Holofernes, which in his presumtu
ous pryde despised the God of the people of Israel, and threatened the wyth destruction, saying: when the people of Israel is taken, I shal cause thee also to be slyckte with the swearde.

Whē Achior saw Holofernes head, he fell downe vpon his face to the grouid for very angupsh and feare, so that he sownded withal. But after that he was come agayne to hym selfe, he fell downe before her, & prayed her, saieg:
Blessed art thou of thy God in al the tabernacles of Jacob: for al the people that heare of thy name, shal prayse the God of Israel because of the.

¶ The counsel of Judith. Achior being an heathen man turneth to God. The Assyrians are afraid of the Jewes.

¶ The. xiiii. Chapter.

A JUdith sayde vnto all the people: herken heare me. Stycke vp thys head vpon your wal les, and when the sonne ary-seth, take euery man his wea pon, and fal out violently: not as thou-ge ye wolde go best them, but renne vpon them, with violence. When the spyes in the tentes se thys, they shal of necessite be compelled to flie backward and to rayse vp their captayne to the battel. So when their captaines com into Holofernes pauilyon, and fynd ỹ dead body wrapped in the blud, fearful nes shall fall vppon them: and when ye perceyue that they flie, folowe them without al care, for god shal deliuer thē
B vnto you, to be destroyed.

Then Achior seyng the power of god
which he hath shewed vnto the people of Israel, fel from his heathenyth beleke, and put his trust in God, and let him selfe be circumsitted: ād so was he wombred among the peple of Israel,
he and al his posterite vnto this dai.

Now was soone as it was daye, they stycke vp Holofernes head vppon the walles, and euery man toke his wepe,
& so they went out with an horrible cry.
When the spies sawe that, they ranne vnto Holofernes tente. And they that were wythin the tente, came before his chamber, and made a greate rustlinge
to wake him vp/because they thought wyth the noyse to haue raysed hym.
For there durst not one of the Assirias
knocke, go in or open.

But when the captaynes and prynces C and all the chefe in the kynge of the As-syrias hoost came together, they sayde vnto the chamberlaynes: Go your way in, and wake him vp, for thee myse are crepte out of their holes, and darre pro uoke vs vnto battayll. Then wente Ba gao in to hys chamber, stode before the bed, and clapped wyth hys handes, for he thought he had ben slepyng wyth J udith. But when he had herkened perf ectly wyth hys eares, and coude perce a ue no sterynge, he wente nyer to the bed & lift it vp, & thē saw he the ded body of Holofernes lieng there without a head
weltred in hys bloude vpon the earth.
Then cryed he wythe loude voyce and D
wyth weping rent hys clothes/and wēt into Judiths tent, and founde her not.
And so he lepte out vnto the people, &
sayde: one woman of the Jewes, hathe brought all Nabuchodonosors people to shame. For lo Holofernes lyeth vppon the ground and hath no head.

When the chefe of the assirians host herde that, they rent theyr clothes, and there fell an innumerable feare and trē-bling vpon them/so that/theyr mynde were sore afrayed. And there was an exceedinge greate crye in the whole hoost.

The flyght of ỹ Assirians. The pursute of Israel after them. Israel becometh ryche by the spoyles of the Assirians. Judith is prayed of Ieoacim and of the people.

The. xv. Chapter.

A NOw when al the hoste herd that holofernes was heded their mynd and councel fell frome them: and soche a fere came vpon the, that they vndertoke to defende them selues by flieng away: one spake not to another, but hanged down their heades, left al behid them, and made hast to escape from the Hebrues: for they hearde, that they were hastyng to come after with their wepes/ & so they fled by the wayes of ỹ feldes, & thorowe al the fore pathes of the dales. And when the childzen of Israel sawe ỹ B they fled, they folowed vpon the, & wet downe with trompettes, blowyng & making a great crie after them. As for the Assyrians, they had no ordre, and kept not them selues together, but fled, euery waye. Neuertheless the children of Israel fel vpon them with one company and ordre/ and discomfetede as many as they myght get. And Oseas sét messagers/ vnto al the cities and countres of Israel.

C So al the regions and euery cytie sent out their best men after them in harnesse/ and smote them with the swerde, tyll they came to the vttermost part of their borders. And the other that were in Bethulya came into ỹ rentes of the Assirias and toke al that they which were fledde had left behynd them, and so they foũde great good. And they that came agayne to Bethulya from the battel, toke wt thẽ soche thinges as had bẽ thers, ther was no nombre of the cattel, and of all costly Jewels/ so that from the lowest vnto thee hyest they were al made ryche of the spoiles of them. And Joachim the hye preest at Jerusalem, came to Bethulya with al the elders, that they myght se Judyth.

D Now when she came out vnto thẽ they begane al to praise her with one voyse, sayenge: thou worshyppe of thee cyte of Jerusalem/ thou ioye of Israel/ ỹ honoure of oure people, thou hast done manly and thy hert is comforted/ because thou hast loued clenlynes and chastytee, and hast knowẽ no man but thine owne husband: therfor hath the hand of the Lord comforted the, and blessed shalt thou be for euer. And all the people sayd: so be it so be it.

In thyrtie dayes couide the people of Israel scarce gather vp the spoyles of the Assirians. But al that belonged vnto holofernes, and had bene hys specially (whether it were of golde, of syluer, precious stones, clothinge and all ornaments) they gaue it vnto Judith. And al the people reioysed, both wome, maydens/ and yong people wyth pypes and harpes.

The songe of Judith for the victorye: After the victory obtayned, the people commeth to Jerusalem to worshyppe and prayse god.

The .xvi. Chapter.

THen songe Judith thys songe vnto the Lorde: Begyn vnto the Lorde vpon the tabrettes, synge vnto the lord vpon the cymbales. O singe vnto hym a newe songe of thankesgeuinge, be ioyfull and call vppon hys name. It is the Lorde that destroyeth the warres, euen the Lorde is his name. Which hath pitched hys Tentes in the myddeste of his People, that he myghte delyuer vs from the hande of al oure enemyes. Assur came out of the mountaynes, in the multitud of hys strenght. His people stopped the water brookes, and theyr horses coured the valleis. He purposed to haue brent vp my lande, and to sleye my yonge wen with the swerde, He wolde haue caryed awaye my childeren and virgyns into captiuitee, but the almightie Lorde hurte hym, and deliuered hym into the handes of a woman, whych brought hym to confusyon. For theyr mightie was not destroyed of ỹ yonge men. It was not the sonnes of titan that slewe hym, nether haue the greate gyauntes set them selues agaynst hi but Judith the doughter of Merari wher fayr beutye hath discomfyted hym and brought hym to naughte. For she layed away her widdowes garment and put on the apparell of gladnes in the reioysinge of the childeren of Israell: she anointed her face, and bound vp her here in an hoode, to begyle hym. Her slippers rauished hys eyes/ her beutye captiuated hys mynde, wt the swerde smote she of hys neck. The persians were astonied at her stedfastnes, & ỹ medes at her boldnes. Thẽ houled ỹ armis of ỹ assirias/ whẽ myne syple appeared dyz of thirst

The

B The sonnes of the daughters haue perced them thorow, and slayne them as fugityue chyldren: they perysched in the battayll, for the very feare of the Lord my God. Let vs synge a songe of thanksgeuynge vnto the Lorde, a newe songe of prayse wyl we syng vnto our god. Lorde, Lorde, thou arte a great God, myghtye in power, whom noma may ouercome. All the creatures shuld serue the: for thou spakest but the word, and they were made: thou sentest the spryte, and they were created, and no man can withstande thy voyce. The mountaynes shall moue from the foundacyons with the waters, the stony rockes shall melt before the lyke wax. But they that feare the: shalbe greate withe thee in all thinges. Woo vnto the people that ryse vp agaynst my generacyon, for the Almyghtye Lorde wyll auenge hym selfe of them, and in the daye of iudgement C wyll he vysyt them. For he shall geue fyre and wormes in to ther flesh, that they may burne and fele it for euermore. After this it happned, that after the victori all the people came to Jerusalem, to geue prayse and thankes vnto the Lorde. And when they were purysyed, they offred all their brent sacrifices and ther promysed offrings. And Judith offred all Holofernes, Weapens, and all the Jewels, that the people had geuen her, and the canappe that she toke from his bed, and hanged them vp vnto the Lorde. The people was ioyfull, as the vse is: and this ioy by reason of the victory wyth Judith, endured three monethes, So after these dayes euery man went home agayne, and Judith was in great reputacyon at Bethulia, and right honorably taken in all the lãd of Israell. D Unto her vertue also was chastitee ioyned, so that after her husbande Manasses dyed, she neuer knew man al the dayes of her lyfe. Upon the hye solempne dayes she went out wythe greate worship. She dwelt in her husbands house an hundreth and fyue year/ and left her handmayde free/ and dyed, and was buryed besyde her husband in Bethulia. And all the people mourned for her seuen dayes. So longe as she lyued, ther was none that troubled Israell, and many yeares also after her deathe.

The daye wherin this victory was gotten, was solempnely holden, and reckened of the Jewes in the nombre of the holy dayes, and it is yet greatly holden of the Jewes euer sence, vnto thys day

The dreame of Mardocheus.

The .xi. Chapter after the latyne.

A MArdocheus the sonne of Jair the sonne of Semei/ the sonne of Cisei of the trybe of bẽiamyn a Jewe: whych had hys dwellinge in Susis, a man of greate reputacion, and excellent amonge all them that were in the kynges court. (Neuertheless he was one of the presoners whom Nabuchodonosor the King of Babylon had caried awaye from Jerusalem vnto Babylon wyth Jechonias the kynge of Juda) In the second yeare of the raygne of great Artaxerses in the fyrst day of the Moneth Nisan, had this mardocheus such a dreame: He thought he herde a great tempest, horrible thonder clappes, erthquakes, and great vproare in the lande: and that he sawe two greate dragons ready to fyght one agaynst an other. Their cry was great at the wyche roaringe/ and crye all the heathen were vp, to fight against the rightuous people. And the same Daye was full of Darckenes and verye vncleare, full of trouble and anguysh/ yea a greate fearefulnesse was there in the lande. The rightuous were amased for they feared the plage & euell, that was deuysed ouer thẽ and were at apointe wyth them selues to dye, so they cryed vnto god: and whyle they were cryeng, the lytell well greawe into a great ryuer and into many waters And wt that it was day, & the sunne rose vp agayne. And the lowly were exalted and deuoured the glorious & proud

Now whē Mardocheus had sene thys dreame, he awoke, and mused stedfastly in his herte, what god wolde do: ād so he desired to know al the matter, ād his mind was therupon vntil the nyght.

Mardocheus vttereth the treason deuised agaynst the king, and is therfore rewarded of hym.

The.xii. Chapter.

A Ā ẏ same time dwelt Mardocheus w̄ bagatha & tares ẏ kiges chāberlaines & porters of ẏ palace. But whē he herd their deuice, & had diligētly cōsidred ther imaginatiōs, he preued ẏ they wēt about to late ther cruel hādes vpō ẏ kig Artaxerses: ād so he certified the kinge therof. Thē caused ẏ kig to examē ẏ.ii. gelded w̄ tormētes. And whē they had graūted it, they were put to deth. This ẏ kig caused to be put i ẏ cronicles for ā euerlastig remēbrāce & mardocheus wrote vp ẏ same matter: so ẏ king cōmaūded ẏ mardocheus shuld do seruice i ẏ court, & for this faithfulnes of his, he gaue hi a reward. But Amā ẏ sōne of Amadathu ẏ Agagit which was holdē i grete honor & reputatiō i the kinges courte vndertoke to hurte Mardocheus & his people, because of ẏ two chamberlaines ẏ were put to death.

The.xiii. Chapter.

THe grete king Artaxerses which raigneth frō India vnto Ethiopia/ouer an. C & vii. & xx lādes, sēdeth his frēdly salutatiō vnto all the princes & debites of ẏ coūtres / which be subiect vnto his dominiō. Whē I was made lord ouer many people, & had subdued ẏ whole earth vnto my dominiō/ my mind was not w̄ cruelte & wrōg to exalt my self by ẏ resō of my power: but purposed w̄ equite alwat & gētlines, to gouerne those ẏ be vnder my iurisdicti on, & wholy to set thē i a peceable lefe, & therby to brig my kigdō vnto trāquilite, ẏ mē might safely go thorow on euery side & to kepe peace agaīne, which alme desire. Now whē I asked my coūcelers how these thigs might be brought to a good end/ther was one by vs (excelēt i wisdō, whose good wil turneth, ād faithfulnes hath oft bene shewed & proued) Amā by name: which certifyed vs/ how ẏ i al lādes there was crepte i a rebellious folke, ẏ made statutes & lawes agaīst al other peple, & haue alwaie despised ẏ proclaymed cōmaūdementes of kinges: & how ẏ for this cause it were not to be suffred, ẏ such rule shuld cōtinue by you & not to be put doune: seige now we perceue ẏ same, ẏ this people alone ar cōtrary vnto euery mā/ vsinge straūg & other maner of lawes & wtstād our statutes & doinges, & go about to stablish shrewd matters, ẏ our kigdō shulde come to good estate, ād stedfastnes: Therfore haue we cōmanded, ẏ al they ẏ are apointed i writing & shewed vnto you by Aman, shal w̄ their wiues & children be destroyed & roted out w̄ ẏ swerd of their enemies & aduersaries: & ẏther shalbe no mercy shewed, ād no mā spared. And this shalbe done ẏ xiiii. day of ẏ moneth (called Adar) of thys yeare ẏ they which of old & now also haue euer bene rebellious, mate i one date w̄ violēce be thrust doune into hel to ẏ itēty after this maner, our epīte mai haue pece & trāquilite. But Marcheus thought vpō al ẏ worthes & noble actes of ẏ lord & made his prater vnto hi, saīg O lord lord/ō valiaunt and almyghtye kyng Thou knowest at thinges, thou wotest Lorde, that it was nether of malyce/ner presumpcyon, ner for ennell desir of glori that I wold not bow downe my selfe ner worshyppe ponder proude presūptuous Aman (for I wolde haue bene content and that with good wyll, yf it myght haue don Israel eny good, to haue kist euē his foteppes) but that I dyd it, because I wolde not set the honoure of a man in ẏ stead of the glory of god, ād because I wold worshep non but only ẏ lord. And this haue I don i no pryde ner presūcio

And therfore O Lorde thou God & kyng/ haue mercy vpon thy people for they ymagene how they maye bring vs to naught, ye their mynd and desyre is to destroye and to ouerthrowe ẏ people that hathe euer bene Thine Enheryaunce of olde. O despyse not thy porcyon which thou hast deliuered & brought oute of Egypt for thyn owne selfe. Hear my prayer, and be mercifull vnto thi people, whom thou hast chosen for an heretage vnto thy selfe. Turne oure cōplaint and sorowe in to ioye, that we maye liue O Lorde, and prayse thy name. O Lord suffere not the mouthes of thē that prayse the, to be destroyed.

All the people of Israel in like māer cried as earnestly as they could vnto ẏ lord for ẏ death & destruccyō stod before their eies

The prayer of Esther for the deliuerāunce of hyr ād her people

The.xiiii. Chapter.

QVene Esther also beyng in the battayl of death, reioyced vnto the Lorde, layed a waye her glorious apperell and put on the garmentes ẏ serued for sighyng and morning. In ẏ steade of precyous oyntmēt, she strawed asshes & donge vpon her heade: and as for her body she humbled it, ād brought it very lowe. All ẏ places wher she was wōt to haue ioye after those filled she w̄ the hearre that she pluckt out her selfe. She prayed also vnto ẏ lord god of Israel w̄ these wordes. O my lord, ẏ only art our king help me desolate womā/ w̄ haue no helper but ẏ, for my misery & destructiō is hard at my hand. From my youth vp I haue herd out of ẏ kired of my father, ẏ ẏ tokest Israel frō amōg al people ẏ they shuld be thy perpetual inheritāce, & lokest what ẏ dydest promyse thē, ẏ hast made it good vnto thē. Now well lord, we haue sined before thee, therfore hast ẏ geue vs into the hādes of our enmyes, because we worshyped their gods Lord ẏ art righteous Neuerlheles it satisfyeth thē not ẏ we ar in bitter & heuy captiuitie & oppressed amōg thē, but ẏ hast layd their hādes vpō ẏ hādes of their gods to ẏ they begin to take awai the thing ẏ ẏ w̄ thy mouth hast ordened & apointed to destroy thin eheritāce, to shut ād to stoppe the mouthes of thē ẏ prayse ẏ to quēch ẏ glory ād worship of thy house & thine aulter, & to opē ẏ mouthes of the heathen ẏ they maye prayse the power ād vertu of ẏ goddes, and to magnifie the fleshly king for euer. O lorde geue not thy sceptre vnto thē ẏ be nothing, least they laugh vs to scorne in oure mysery and fall: but turne theyr deuices vpon them selues, & punish him ẏ hath begon the same ouer vs & set hi to an exāple. Thinck vpon vs O Lorde & shew thy self in the time of our distres and of oure trouble. Strength me O ẏ kinge of gods, ẏ lorde of all power: gyue me an eloquent ād plesāt speche in my mouth before the lyon. Turn his hert into ẏ hāde of our enemy/ to destroy hi and al such as cōsēt vnto hi, but delyuer vs w̄ thy hand: ād helpe me desolat womā whych haue no defence ner helper but ō ly ẏ. Lord ẏ knowest al thiges, ẏ wotest ẏ I loue not the glory and worshyp of ẏ vnrighteous & that I hate & abhorre ẏ bed of the vncircūcised & of all heathen. Thou knowest & wottest my necessite, ẏ I hate ẏ token of my preminence & worshyp which I beare vpō my head, what time as I must shew my self & be sene ād ẏ I abhorre it as an vncleane cloth, ād ẏ I weare it not whē I ā quiet & alone by my self. Thou knowest also ẏ I thy hād mayde haue not eaten at Amās table, & ẏ I haue had no pleasure nor delyte in the kiges feast, ẏ I haue not drōken ẏ drinck offringes ād ẏ I thy hādmaid haue had no ioye, sence ẏ day ẏ I was brought hether vnto this day, but only in ẏ o lord: o ẏ god of Abrahā, o ẏ might i god aboue al, here ẏ voice of thē/ ẏ haue non other hope ād deliuer vs out of ẏ hāde of the wicked ād deliuer me out of my feare.

Mardocheus moueth Esther to go in to the kyng and make intercession of her people and she perfourmeth his requeste.

The.xv. Chapter.

AND vpō ẏ third date it happened ẏ hester laid awaie ẏ mornig garmēts, ād put on her glorious apparel ād deckt her selfe goodly (after ẏ she had called vpō god, which is ẏ beholder ād sautour of al thiges) toke iii. maydes with her: vppon the one she leaned her self, as one that was tender: the other folowed her, and bare the traine of her vesture. The shyne of her bewtie made her face rose colored. The symilitude of her face was chearful ād amiable but her hert was sorowfull for grete feare: She went in thorow all the dores ād stod before ẏ king. The king sat vpō ẏ throne of his kingdōe & was clothed in his goodly aray, al of gold, ād set w̄ precius stones, ād he was very terrible. He lift vp his face, ẏ shon i ẏ clerues, ād looked grily vpō her. Thē fel ẏ Quene downe/ was pale & faint, lened her self vpon ẏ head of the maide ẏ went w̄ her. Neuerthelesse god turned ẏ kinges mind ẏ he was gentle, ẏ he leapt out of his sete therfor, & gat her in his armes ād held her vp till she came to her selfe agayne,

He gaue her louing wordes also, and sayde vnto her: Hester, what is ỹ matter? I am thy brother, be of good cheare, thou shalt not dye: for our commaundemente toucheth the commons, not the. Come nye. And with that he held vp his golden wande/ and layde it vpon her neck, and embraced her frendly, and sayde, talke with me. Then sayde she: I sawe the (O Lorde) as an Angel of God/ and my hert was troubled for feare of thy maiesty and clearnesse. For excellent and wonderful art thou (O lord) & thy face is full of amite, But as she was thus speakynge vnto him/ she fel down agayn for faintnes, for the whyche cause the Kynge was afrayed / and all hys seruauntes comforted her,

The. xvi. Chapter.

A THe greate kynge Artaxerses/ whiche raygneth from India vntoo Ethyoppya ouer an Hundrethe and. xxvii. landes/ sendeth vnto the Rulers, and Rulers of the same landes, suche as loue him, his frendely salutacion. There be many that for the sondrye frendshyppes and benefytes which are diuersly done vnto them for their worshyp, be euer the more proud and hye mynded, & vndertake not only to hurt our subiectes for plenteous benefites maye they not suffer, and beginne to imagin some thing agaist those that do them good, and take not only al vnthankfulnes away frō me) but in pryde and presumpcion (as they that be vnmyndful & vnthanckful for the good dedes) they go about to escape the iudgment of God, that seyth all thinges/ which (iudgment) hateth & punisheth al wickednes. It happeneth B ofte also, that they which be set in office by the hier power, and vnto whom the busines & causes of ỹ subiects ar cōmitted to be handled, waxe proud, and defile thē selues wt chedig of innocēt bloud which bringeth thē to intollerable hurt Which also wt false & dyscetfull wordes and wt lyeng tales, disceaue & betray the innocent goodnes of Pryces.

Now is it profitable & good, that we take hede, make searche thereafter/ and considre, not only what hath happened vnto vs of old: but the shamful vnhonest/ and noysome thynges, that the debtes haue now taken in handbe fore our eyes: and therby to be warre i tyme to come, ỹ we may make the kingdome quiet and peaceable for al men, and that we might sometyme drawe yt to a chaunge: and as for the thig that now is present before oure eyes, to withstand it, and to put it downe, after the moost frendly maner.

What tyme now as Aman ỹ sonne C of Amadathu the Macedonyan (a straunger verely of the Persians bloud, & farre from our goodnes, and com in among vs as an aleaunt, and had opened the frendshyp that we bere toward al people, so that he was called our father/ and had in hye honoure of euery man, as the next and principal vnto ỹ king/ he could not forbeare hi self frō his pryde, hath vndertakē not only to robbe vs of the kingdō, but of our lif. With manyfolde disceat also hath he deuised to destroy Mardocheus our helper and preseruer, which hath done vs good in all thinges: and innocente Hester the lyke partaker of our kingedome, with al her people. For his mind was (when he had taken theim out of the waye, and robbed vs of theym) by thys meanes to translate the kyngdō of the Persians vnto theim of Macedonia. But we finde, that the Iewes D (which were accused of the wicked, that they might be destroied) ar no euel doers, but they vse reasonable and ryght lawes: & that they be ỹ children of the most hye lyuynge God, by whome the kingdome of vs & our progenitours hath bene wel ordred hitherto. Wherfore, as for the Letters and cōmaundementes, that were put forth by Aman the sonne of Amadathu, ye shal do wel yf ye hold theim of none effecte: for he that set them vp and inuented theym, hangeth at Sulis before the porte, wt all his kynred, and God (which hathe all thynges in his power) hath rewarded him after his deseruyng.

And vpon this ye shall publiche and

and set vp the copy of thys letter in all places, that the Iewes maye freely and without disorder hold them selues after ther owne statutes, and that they maye be helped, and that vpon the xiii day of ỹ. xii. moneth Adar, they maye be auenged of them/ which in the tyme of their anguysh and trouble, would haue oppressed them. For the god that gouerneth al thynges hath turned to ioye the daye, wherein the chosen people should haue perished.

Moreouer, among the hye solempne dayes that ye haue, ye shall holde D thys daye also with al gladnes: ỹ now and in tyme to come, this daye may be a remembraunce to good, for all suche as loue the prosperite of the Persians: but a remembraunce of destruccyon to those that be seditycous vnto vs.

All cytyes and landes that do not this, shal horybly perysh and be destroyed with the swerde and fyre, & shal not only be nomore inhabited of men, but be abhoored also of the wylde beastes and foules.

¶ How we ought to searche & enquyre after God, and who be those that find him. Of the holy gost. We ought to flye frō backbiting & murmuring. &c

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

A SEt your affection vpon wysdome, ye that be iudges of the earth. Haue a good opinion of the lorde, and seke him in the synglenes of hert. For he wyl be found of thē that tempt him not, and apeareth vnto suche as put their trust in hym. As for frowarde thoughtes, they separate frō God, but vertue (if it be alowed) reproueth the vnwyse. And wyl wisdome shal not enter into a froward soule nor B dwel i ỹ body ỹ is subdued vnto sinne. For the holye goost abhorreth fayned nurtoure, and withdraweth hym selfe from the thoughtes that are without vnderstandinge: and wheare wyckednesse hathe the vpper hande, he flyeth from thence. For the spyrete of wysdōe is louynge, gentle and gracyous, and wyl haue no pleasure in him that speaketh euel wyth his lyppes. For god is a wytnes of his reynes, a true searcher out of hys hearte, and an herer of his tonge. For the spyrete of the lord filleth the rounde compasse of the world, and the same that vpholdeth al thiges hath knowledg also of the voyce.

Therfore he that speaketh vnrighteuous thynges, cannot be hyd, nether maye he escape the iudgment of reproof And why? inquysicion shalbe made for the thoughtes of the vngodly, and the C reporte of hys wordes shall come vnto god, so that his wyckednes shalbe punyshed. For the eare of gelowsy hereth al thynges, and the noyse of the grudginges, shal not be hyd. Therfore beware of murmuringe which is nothig worth, and refrayne youre tonge from sclaunder, for here is no word so darck and secret, ỹ it shal go for naught: and ỹ mouthỹ speaketh lyes, slayeth the soule.

O seke not your owne death in the errour of your lyfe, destroy not youre selues thorow the workes of your owne handes. For god hath not made death, nether hathe he pleasure vn the destruccion of the lyuinge. For he D created all thynges, that they myghte haue their beynge: yea al the people of the erth hathbe made ỹ they shuld haue helth, ỹ ther shuld be no destruccyon in thē & ỹ the kyngdom of hel shoulde not be vpon earth (for ryghtuousnesse is euer lastynge and ymmortall, but vnryghtuousnes bryngeth death).

Neuertheles/ the vngodlye call her vnto theym bothe wythe wordes and workes/ and whyle they thynck to haue a frende of her, they come to naughte: For the vngodlye that are conke detat wyth her and take her parte/ are worthy of death.

¶ The imaginacions and deuyses of the wycked, & their counsell against the rightfull.

The. ii. Chapter.

For

A FOr the vngodly talke ād ymagē thusamōg thē selues (but not right:) The tyme of oure life is but shorte and tedious, and when aman ys ones gone, he hath no more ioy ner pleasure, nether knowe we enymā ỹ turneth agai frō deth: for we ar born of naught & we shalbe hereafter as though we had neuer ben. For our breth is as a smoke in our nosetrels, & ỹ wordes as a sparke to moue oure hert. As for our body, it shal be very ashes that are quenched, & our sole shal vanish as the soft ayre. Oure lyfe shal passe away as ỹ trace of a clou de, and comme to naughte as the miste that is driuen away with the beames of the Sonne, and put down with ỹ heate therof. Oure name also shalbe forgotte by lytle and lytle, and noman shal haue oure worckes in remembraunce.

B For oure tyme is a very shadow that pas away, and after oure ende ther is no returnynge, for it is fast sealed, so that no mā cometh againe. Com on therfore, let vs enioye the pleasures that ther are, & let vs soone vse the creature lyke as in youth. We wyl fil ourselues with good wyne & ointment, ther shal no flouer of ỹ tyme go by vs. We wyl crowne our selues with roses afore they be wythered: There shalbe no layer medowe, but our lust shal goo thorow it. Let euery one of you be partaker of our voluptuousnes. Let vs leaue some token of our pleasur in euerye place, for that is oure porcyon, els greuewe nothinge. Let vs oppresse ỹ poore ryghtuous, let vs not spare thee C wyddow ner olde man, let vs not regard the headdes that are graye for age. Let the lawe of vnrygbtuousnesse beour aue corye, for the thinge that is feable is no thing worth. Therfore let vs defraude ỹ ryghtuous, and why? he is not for oure profyt, ye he is cleane contrary to our doinges. He checketh vs for offendig agaynst the law, and slaundreth vs as trāsgressours of al nurtour. He maketh his boost to haue the knowledge of God, ye he calleth him selfe Gods sonne. He is ỹ be wrayer of our thoughtes: It greueth vs also to loke vpon him, for his lyfe is not lyke other mens, his wayes are of a nother fashyon.

He counteth vs but vayne persones/ he wythdrawethe hym selfe from oure wayes as from fylthynesse: he commendeth streatly the latter ende of the iust & maketh his boost that god is his father. Let vs se then if hys wordes be tru, let vs proue what shal come vpon hym: so shal we knowe what ende he shall haue. For yf he be the true Sonne of God, he wyl receaue him and delyuer hym from the handes of hys enemyes. Let vs exa min hym wyth despitefull rebuke/ and torimenting, that we may know hys dignitie and proue hys pacience. Let vs cō dempne hym wyth the moost shamefull deth: for lyke as he hath spoken, so shal he be rewarded.

D Such thynges dō the vngodlye imagyne, and go astraye, for theyr owne wickednes hath blinded them. As for the misteries of God, they vnderstande them not: they nether hope for ỹ rewarde of rightuousnes, nor regard the worthyp that holy soules shall haue. For God created man to be vndestroyed, & after the ymage of hys owne lyknes, made he hym. Nevertheles thorow enuye of the Deuell came Death into the worlde, and they that holde of hys syde do as he doth.

The iii. Chapter.

A BUt the soules of the ryghtuos are in the hand of god and the paine of death shal not touche them. In the syght of the vnwyse they appeare to dye, and theyr ende is take for verie destruction. The waye of the ryghtuous is iudge to be bitter destruction but they are in rest. And though they suffre payne before menne, yet is theyr hope full of immortalyte. They are punished but in fewe thynges, neuertheles in manye thinges shall they be well rewarded. For God proueth them, and fideth them mete for hym selfe: yea as the golde in the fornace doth he trye them/ and receueth them as a brent offering & whē ỹ time cōmeth they shalbe loked vpon. The ryghtuous shal shine as the B sparkes ỹ renne thorow the rede busshe. They shal iudge ỹ nacions & haue dominion vpon ouer the people, and theyr Lorde shal raigne for euer. They that put their trust in him, shal vnderstand the truth, and suche as be faithfull, wil agre vnto him in loue: for his chosen shal haue gifte and peace. But the vngodly shalbe punished acordyng to their owne ymaginacyons, for they haue dyspysed the righteous, and forsaken the Lord.

Who so dyspiseth wysdome and nurtoure, he is vnhappy, and as for the hope of suche yt is but vayne, their laboure vnfruitfull/ and their worckes vnprofitable. Their wiues ar vndiscrete/ and their childzen most vngodly. Their creature is cursed. Blessed is rather the D baren and vndefiled, which hathe not knowen the sinfull bed: she shal haue frut in the reward of the holy soules. And blessed is the gelded, which with his hādes hath wrought no vnrighteousnes nor imagened wycked thiges against god. For vnto him shalbe geuen the special gyfte of faith, and moste acceptable porcyon in the temple of God. For glorious is the frut of good laboure, and the rote of wisdome shall neuer fade away. As for the childzē of aduoutrers, they shall come to an ende, and the sede of an vnrighteous bed shalbe roted out And though they liue long, yet shal they be nothing regarded/ and their last age shalbe without honoure. Yf they dye hastely/ they haue no hope, nether shall they be spoken to in that daye of knowledge. For horrible is the death & ende of the vnryghteous.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

A HOw fayre is a chast generacion with vertue? The memorial therof is immortall/ for yt is knowne wyth good men. When it is present, men take example therat: and yf it go awaye, yet they desyre it. It is al waye crowned and holden in honoure, and wynneth the rewarde of the, vnde fyled battayl. But the multytude of vngodly chidzē is vnprofitable and ỹ thinges that are planted with whordom shall take no depe rote nor laye any fast foundacion. Though they be grene in the braunches for a tyme yet shall they be shaken with the wynd: for they stād not fast, and thorow the vehemence B of the wynde they shalbe roted out. For the vnparfecte braunches shall be broken, their frute shal be vnprofitable ād sowre to eate, ye mete for nothyng. And why? all the chylderen that are born of the wycked, muste beare recorde of the wyckednesse againste their fathers and mothers, when they be asked. But though the righteous be ouertaken wyth deth, yet shall he be in rest.

Age is an honorable thinge: nevertheles it standeth not only in the legth of time: nether in the multitude of Yeares: but a mans wysdome is the grayhearre and an vndefyled lyfe is the olde Age. He pleased god, and was beloued of him: so that where as he lyued among synners/ he translated hym. Yea sodenly was he taken away, to thyntent that C wyckednesse shoulde not alter hys vnderstandinge and that Ipocrysye shoulde not begyle hys soule: For the craftye bewitchyng of lyes, make good thynges darcke, the vnited lustes also and wickednes of voluptous desyre turne aside the vnderstandinge of the symple. Though he was sone dead, yet full fylled he much time. For hys soule pleased god therfore hasted he to take hym awaye from among the wycked. Thys the people se/ & vnderstande it not, they laye not vp suche thinges in theyr hertes howe that the louinge fauoure and mercye of God is vpon his saintes and that he hathe respecte vnto his chosen.

Thus the righteous that is dead, condempne the vngodly whiche are lyuinge: and the youthe that is soone brought to an ende, the longe life of the vnrighteous, for they se the ende of the wyse, but they vnderstand not what god hath deuised for hym, and wherfore the Lord hath taken him away. And why? They see hym and despite hym, therfore shall G O D also laughed them to scoorne: So that they theym selues shall dye beare after (but wythout thout honour) yea in shame among the dede for euermore. For without any boyce shall he burste those that be pufte vp, and remoue them from the foundacions, so that they shalbe layde wast vnto the hiest. They shal morne and their memorial shal perishe. So they beyng afrayed shal remembre theyr synnes, & theyr owne wyckednesse shall bewraye them.

¶ The constantnes of ỹ ryghtwes before their persecuters. The hope of ỹ vnfaithfull is vnprofitable vayne. The blessednes and fortunatnes of ỹ saynctes and godly

The. v. Chaper.

A Then shal the ryghtuous stande in greate stedfastnes agaynst such as haue delt extremely with thē, and taken awaye theyr labours. When they se it, they shalbe vexed wt horrible feare, and shal wonder at the hastynes of the sodayn health: gronyng for very distresse of mynde, and shal saye within theym selues, haupnge inwarde sorow and mournynge for verye anguyshe of mynde):

These are they whom we somtyme, had in derysion, and iested vpon. We fooles thought their lyfe very madnes and theyr ende to be without honour. But lo, how they are counted among ỹ children of god/ād their porcion is amonge the saynctes. Therfore we haue erred from the waye of truth, the lyght of rightuousnesse hath not shined vnto vs and the sunne of vnderstandynge rose not vp vppon vs. We haue wetied oure selues in the waye of wyckednesse and destruccyon. Tedious wayes haue we gone: but as for the waye of the Lorde we haue not knowen it.

What good hath oure pryde done vn to vs: Or what profyt hath the pompe of ryches broughte vs: All those thynges are paſed awaye like a shadow, and as a messaunger rennyng before as a shippe that passethe ouer the waues of the water, which when it is gon by, the trace therof can not be founde, neyther the pathe of it in the floudes. Or as a byrde that flyeth thorow the ayre, and no man can se ony tokē where she is flowē, but only hereth ỹ noise of her wiges beatig ỹ light wind partige the ayre thorowe the vehemente of her goynge/ and flyeth on shaking her winges where as after warde no token of her waye can be founde. Or lyke as C when an arowe is shott at a marcke, yt parteth the ayre, which immediatly cōmeth together agayne, so that a mān cā not know where it wente thorow. Euen so we in lyke maner as soone as we were borne, begainne immediatly to drawe to oure ende/ and haue shewed no tokē of vertue, but are consumed in oure owne wyckednesse.

Suche wordes shal they that haue synned speake in the hel: For the hope of the vngodlye ys lyke a dyre thystell floure (or duste) that ys blowen awaye wyth the wynde: Lyke as thynne scomme that is scatered abrode wyth the stormes: lyke as the smoke which is dispersed here and ther wyth the wynd, ād as the remembraunce of a straunger that tarryeth for a daye, and then departeth. But the rightuous shall lyue for euermore: theyr reward also is wyth the lorde: and theyr remembraunce wyth ỹ the Hyest. Therfore shal they receaue a glorious kyngdome and a bewtyful crowne of the Lordes hande: for wyth hys ryght hande shall he couer them/ and wt hys owne arme shall he defende them. Hys gelousy also shall take awaye the harnesse, ād he shal weapon the creature to be aduenged of the ennemyes. He shal put vnrighteousnes for a brest plate, and take sure iudgement in steade of an helmet. The inuincyble shylde of equitie shal he take, hys cruel wrath shal he charpen for a speare and the whoole compasse of the world shall fyght wyth hym agaist the vnwyse.

Then shal the thōder bolte go out of the lyghteninges and come out of the rayne bowe of the cloudes to the place apoynted: out of the harde stony indygnacyon there shall fall thick hayles, E and the water of the see shalbe wroth agaynst them, and the floudes shal renne roughly together. Yea a myghty wynde shal stand vp agaynste thē and a storme shall scater them abrode. Thus the vnryghteouse dealynge of them shall bynge all the land to awil

dernes, and wyckednes shal ouerthrowe the dwellynges of the myghtye.

For callynge of kynges, Princes and Judges: wyth theare also exhorted to learche wysdome.

Chr. vi. Chapter.

A Wysdom is better thē strēgth, and a man of vnderstandyng is more worth thēon that is stronge. Heare therfore (O ye kinges) and vnderstand: O lerne ye that be Judges of the endes of the earth. Geue eare ye that rule the multytudes, and delyte in much people. For the power is geuen you of the Lorde, and the strength from the Hiest: which shal trye youre workes ād search out your ymagynacyons: How that yee beyng officers of his kingdome / haue not executed true iudgemente, haue not kepte the law of rightuousnes, nor walked after his wil. Horribly ād that right soone shal he appeare vnto you: for an hard iudgemēt shal they haue that bear rule. Mercy is graūted vnto the simple, B but they that be in auctoryte shalbe sore punyshed. For God which is Lord ouer al, shall excepte no mans personne, neyther shal he stād in awe of any mans greatnes: for he hath made ỹ smale & great and careth for all alyke. But the myghty shal haue the sorer punyshment.

Unto you therfore (O ye kynges) do I speake, ỹ ye may lerne wisdō & not go amysse: for they that kepe rightuousnes shalbe rightuously iudged: ād they ỹ are lerned in rightuous thinges, shal fynde to make answere. Wherfore lyst youre lust vpon my wordes, ād louethē, so shal ye come by nurtour. Wisdom is a noble thing, and neuer faydeth awaye: C ye she is easily sene of thē that loue her/ and founde of soch as seke her. She preuenteth thē that desyre her, that she maye fyrst shewe her selfe vnto them. Who so awaketh vnto her by tymes, shal haue no greate trauel, for he shal fynde her sittyng readi at his dores. To thincke vpon her, is parfect vnstanding: and who so watcheth for her shalbe sake, ād ỹ sone For she goeth about seekyng soch as are worthe for her, sheweth her selfe cherefully vnto them in their goinges, and meeteth them wyth al diligence.

For the vnfained desire of reformacīō is her beginninge: to care for nurtoure is loue, and loue is the kepyng of her lawes. Nowe the kepinge of the lawes is perfection ād an vncorrupt lyfe, and an vncorrupte lyfe maketh a man familier with god. And so the desyre of wysdom leadeth to the kingedome euerlastyng. If youre delite be then in royall seates and scepters (O ye kinges of the people) set your lust vpon wisdome, that ye mai raigne for euermore. O loue ỹ light D of wysdō, al ye ỹ be rulers of the people As for wisdome what she is, and how she came vp I wyl tel you, and wil not hide the mysterye of God from you: but wyl seke her oute from the begynnynge of the natuyte, and bryngе the knowledg of her into lyght/ and wyl not kepe back the trueth: nether wyll I haue to do with consumyng enuy, for suche a manne shal not be partaker of wysdome. But the multitude of ỹ wise is the welfare of the worlde, and a wise kyng is the vpholder of the people. O receaue nurtoure then thorowe my wordes, and it shal do you good.

Wisdome ought to be preferred before all thynges

I My selfe also am a mortall man lyke as all other, and am come of the earthy generacion of hym that was fyrst made, and in my mothers wombe was I fashyoned to be fleth: In the tyme of ten monethes was I brought together in bloude thorow the sede of man, and the commodyous appetyte of sleape. When I was borne, I receaued lyke ayre as other men, and fell vppon the erth (which is my natur) crying and weppynge at the fyrst, as all other do. I was wrapped in swadlynge clothes, ād broughte vp wythe greate cares. For ther is no kyng that hath had eny other begynnyng of byrth. All men then haue one entraunce vnto lyfe, and one goynge out in lyke maner. Wherfore I desyred, and vnderstandyng was geuen me: I called, and the spirite of wysdome came in to me. I sett more by her, then by kyngdomes and royall seates, and counted ryches nothig in comparisō of her

As for precyous stonne I compared it not vnto her: for all gold is but grauell vnto her, and siluer shalbe counted but claye before her syght. I loued her aboue welfare and beutye, and purposed to take her for my syght, for her shyne can not be quenched. All good thynges came to me with her, and innumerable riches thorowe her handes. I was glad in them all, for thys wysdome wente before me, and I knewe not that she is the mother of al good thynges. Now as I my selfe lerned vnfaynedly, so do I make other men partakers of her, and hyde her ryches from noo man: for she is an infynite treasure vnto men, which who so vse, be come partakers of the loue and frendshyp of God, and are accepted vnto hym for the gyftes of wysdome.

God hath graunted me to talke wysely and conuenyently to handle the thynges that he hath gracyously lent me. For it is he, that leadeth vnto wysedomme, and directeth to vse wisdõe aryght. In his hãd are we & our wordes: ye al our wisdom, our vnderstãding & knowledge of al our workes. For he hath geuẽ me ỹ true science of tyese thigs: so ỹ I know how ỹ world was made & ỹ powers of ỹ elements: ỹ beginning, ending & middest of ỹ times: how the time alter, how one goeth after another, & how they are fulfilled in the course of ỹ yere: ỹ ordinaunces of the starres: the natures & kindnes of bestes: ỹ furiousnes of bestes: ỹ power of ỹ winds: the immaginatiõs of mẽ: the diuersities of yõg plãtes: the vertues of rotes, & al such thiges as are secret & not loked for, haue I learned. For ỹ workmaster of al thigs hath taght me wysdõ. Inher is ỹ spyrit of vnderstãding, which is holy, manifold, one only subtil, curteous, discrete, quick, vndefyled playne, swete, louing the thyng that is good, sharpe, which forbiddeth not to do well, gentle, kynde, stedfast, sure, free: hauing al vertues, circumspect in al thinges: receauing al spyrites of vnderstanding being clean and sharp. For wysdõ is nimbler then all nimble thynges: she goeth thorowe and attayneth to all thynges, because of her clennes.

For she is the breth of the power of God and a pure cleane expressing of ỹ clarnes of almightie God. Therfore can no vndefyled thinge come vnto her, for she is the brightnes of the euerlasting lyght & the vndefyled myrrowre of the magestie of god, and the ymage of hys goodnes. And for so much as she is one, she maye do al thinges: and beinge stedfast her selfe renueth al, and amounge the people conueyth she her selfe into the holye soules. She maketh goos frendes and prophetes: for god loueth no man, but him in whome wysdome dwelleth. For she is more bewtyfull then the sunne, and gueth more light then the starres, and the daye is not to be compared vnto her: for vpon the daye commeth night. But wickednes can not ouercome wysdome, and folyshnes maye not be with her.

The effectes of wysdome.

The. viii. Chapter.

WYsdome reacheth from one ende to another mightyly & louingly dothe she ordre al thynges. I haue loued her and laboured for her euen from my youth vp: I dis my diligence to marry my selfe wild her, such loue had I vnto her bewtye. Who so hathe company of God, commendeth her nobilitie, ye the Lorde of all thynges hym selfe loueth her. For she is the scholemastres of the nurtoure of god, and the choser oute of hys workes: yf man woulde desyre ryches in thys lyfe, what is richer then wisdome, that worketh all thinges? Thou wylte saye: vnderstandinge worketh. What is it among all thynges ỹ worketh more then wisdome? if a man loue vertue and rightuousnes, let hi labour for wysdom, for she hath great vertues. And whyle she teacheth sobernes & prudence, rightuousnes and strength, which are such thinges as men can haue no thynge more profytable in theyr lyfe. If a man desyre much knowledge, she can tell the thynges that are past, & discerne thinges for to come: she knoweth the subtilties of wordes and can expound darke sentences. She can tell of tokens & wonderos thynges, or euer they come to passe, & the endes of al tymes & ages: so I purposed after this mãer: I wyl take her vnto my company, and counsel me louingly with her: no doute she shal geue me good councel, and speake comfortablye vntoo me in my carefulnesse and greefe. For her sake shall I be well and honestly taken amõge the comens and Lordes of the councell. Though I be yonge, yet shall I haue sharpe vnderstandynge, so that I shalbe maruelous in the sight of greate men, and the faces of Prynces shall wonder at me. When I holde my tounge, they shall byde my leasure: when I speake, they shall loke vpon me: and yf I talke moch, they shal laye their handes vppon their mouthe. Moreouer, by the meanes of her I shall obtayne immortalyte, and leaue behynde me an euerlastynge memoryal amonge them that comme after me. I shal set the people in order, and the Nacyons shalbe subdued vnto me. Horryble tyrauntes shalbe afrayed, when they do but heare of me amounge the Multytude, I shalbe counted good, and myghty in battayll. Whe I com home, I shal finde rest wyth her: for her cõpany hath no bitternes, and her felochyp hath no tedyousnesse, but myrth & ioye.

Now when I consydered these thynges by myne selfe, & pondered them in my herte, how that to be ioyned vnto wisdome is immortalyte, and greate pleasure to haue her frendshyp: how that in the workes of her handes are infynyte riches: how that who so kepeth company with her shalbe wise: and that he whiche talketh with her, shall come to honoure: I went about seking to get her vnto me. For I was a ladd of a ryght wytt, and had a good vnderstãdinge.

But when I grew to more vnderstãding, I came to an vndefiled body. Neuertheles when I parceaued ỹ I could not kepe my selfe chast, except God gaue it me (and that was a point of wysdome also, to know whose gyft it was) I stepte vnto the Lorde, & besought him, and with my whole herte I sayde after this maner:

A prayer of Salomon to obtayne wysdome.

The. ix. Chapter.

O God of my fathers, & lord of mercyes (thou that hast made al thinges with thy worde, and ordened man thorow thy wysdome ỹ he shuld haue dominion ouer ỹ creature which ỹ hast made: that he shuld order ỹ world according to equite and rygh-teousnes, and execut iudgment with a true herte) geue me wysdome, which is euer about thy seate: and put me not out from amonge thy children: for I thy seruaunt and sonne of thy handmayden, am a feble person, of a short tyme and to punge to the vnderstandyng of iudgment and the lawes. And, though a man be neuer so perfecte amonge the children of men, yet yf thy wysdome be not with him, he shalbe nothing regarded. But thou hast chosen me, to be a kynge vnto the people, and the iudge of thy sonnes and daughters.

Thou hast commaunded me to bylde a temple vpon thy holy mount, & an aulter in the cite wherin thou dwellest: a lycknes of thy holye tabernacle which thou hast prepared from the beginning, and thy wysdome with ỹ, which knoweth thy workes: which also was wyth the when thou madeste the worlde, and knowe what was acceptable in thy syght, and right in thy commaundementes. O send her out of thy holy heauens from the trone of thy mastey, that she maye be with me, and laboure with me: ỹ I maye knowe, what is acceptable in thy sight. For she knoweth and vnderstandeth al thynges: and she shal lede me soberly in my workes, and preserue me in her power.

So shal my workes be acceptable, & then shal I gouerne thy people rygh-teously, and be worthy to syt in my fathers seate. For what man is he, that maye know the councel of God? Or, who can thynke what the will of God is? For the thoughtes of mortall men are miserable, & our forecastes are but vncerten. And why? a mortal & corrupt ible body is heuy vnto the soule and the earthy mansiõ keepeth downe ỹ vnderstanding ỹ museth vpon many thinges. Very hardly can we discerne ỹ thinges ỹ are vpon earth, and grete labur haue we, or we can find ỹ thinges which are before our eyes: Who wil then seke out the grounde of the thynges ỹ are done in heauen? Oh Lord, who can haue knowledg of thy vnderstãding and meanyng, excepte thou geue wysdo

me and sende the holy goost from aboue: that the ways of them whych are vp on earth maye be reformed: that men
maye learne the thinges that are pleasa unt vnto the, and be preserued thorow wysdome.

The deliuerance of the righteowes commeth thorowghe wisdome.

The. x. Chapter

A VYsdome preserued the fyrst man, whome God made a father of the world, whe he was created alone brought him out of his offence, to-ke him out of the mould of the erth, and gaue him power to rule all thynges.
When the vnryghtuous wente awaye in hys wrath from thys wysdomme the brotherhed perysshed thorow the wrath of murthur. Agayne, whe the water de stroyed the whole worlde, wysdome preserued the righteous thorow a poore tre wherof she was gouerner her selfe. Mo reouer when wyckednes had gotten the vpper hande, so that the nacyons were pukt vp w pryd, she knew the righteous preserued hym faultles vnto God, and layd vp sure mercy for his children.
B She preserued the ryghtuous, when he fled from the vngodly ỹ perysshed, what tyme as the fyre fell downe vpon the .v.
cyties: Lyke as yet thys day the vnfru
tefull, waste, and smokyng land geueth testimonye of their wyckednesse: yet the vnrype and vntymely frutes that grew vpon the trees.
And for a token of a remembraūce of the vnfaythful soule there standeth a pi ler of salt. For al soch as regarded not wysdome/ gat not only this hurt, that they knowe not the thinges whych wer goode, but also left be hynde them vnto men, a memorial of their foolishnes: so ỹ in the thynges wherin they sinned, they could not be hidd. But as for soch as take hede vnto wisdome, she shal deliuer them from sorowe.
C When the righteous fled because of his brothers wrath/ wisdome led hiṁ right waye, shewed him the Kyngdome of God/ gaue hym knowlege of holy thinges, made hi rych, in his laboures, and brought to passe the thynges that he wente aboute. In the deceatfulnes of soch as defrauded hi, she stod bi him,
and made him rithe. She saued hym
from his enemies, and defended hifrō ỹ disceuers. She made him strōg in bat tayl and gaue hym the victory, that he myght knowe, how that wisdom is strō ger then al thinges. When the righteu-ous was solde, she forsoke him not, but deliuered him from sinners. She went downe with him in to the dongeon/ and fayled him not in the bādes: tyl she had brought him the scepter of the realme/ a power agaynst those that oppressed hi.
As for them that had accused hym, shee declared them to be lyers, and brought hym to perpetual worshyppe.
D She delyured the ryghtuous people and fautlesse sede, frome the nacyons ỹ oppressed them. She entred in to ỹ soul of the seruaunt of God, and stod by hi
in wonders and tokēs agaynst the hor rible kyng. She gaue the righteous ỹ rewarde of their labours, and led them forth amaruelus waye: on ỹ daye tyme
she was a shadow vnto them/ & alight of starres in ỹ night seasō. She brought them thorow the red see and caryed thē thorow the great water. She drowned their enemyes in the see, and broughte them out of ỹ depe. So the ryghteous toke the spoyles of the vngodly, & prai sed thy holy name/ O lord, & magnified thy victorious hād w one accorde. For wisdom openeth the mouth of the dōme ād maketh the tōges of babes to speke.

Neuertheles thou sparedst them also (as men) and sendedst the forrunners of thyne hoolte euen hornettes to destroye them out by lytle a lytle. Not that thou wast vnable to subdue the vngodly vn-
to the ryghtuous in battel or with cruell beastes, or wyth one rough worde to destroy them together: But thy mynd was to dryue them out by lytle and lytle, ge-

uing them time and place to amēd knowing wel, that it was an vnrighteous nacyon and wicked of nature and that their thought myght neuer be altered: for it was a cursed sede from the beginnyng, and feared no man: Yet hast thou pardoned their sinnes. For who wil say vnto the: why hast thou done that? Or who wyll stand agaynst thy iudgment? Or who wil come before thy face? Ā auenger of vnrighteous men? Or who wyll blame the, yf the people perish, whom ꝯ hast made? For there is none other god but thou, that carest for al thinges: that thou mayest declare how that thy iudgmēt is not vnright. Ther darre nether kyng, ner tyraunt in thy syght require accoptes of thē whom ꝯ hast destroied.

For so moch then as thou art righteous thy selfe, ꝯ ordrest al thinges righteously/and punishest euen hi that hath not deserued to be punished/and takest him for a straunger and an aleaunt in the laude of thy power. For thy power is the beginning of rightousnes: and because thou arte Lorde of all thynges, therfore art ꝯ gracyous vnto al. Or thē men thinke ꝯ not to be of a ful stregth, thou declarest thy power: boldly delyuerest thon them ouer that knowe the not. But thou lorde of power iudgeste quyetly, and ordrest vs wt greate worshype, for thou mayest do as thou wylte.

By soch workes now hast ꝯ taught thy people, that a man also shuld be iust and louinge: and hast made thy childrē to be of a good hope: for euē when thou iudgest, thou geuest rowme to amend from sinnes. For in so moch as ꝯ hastē punished, and with soch dilygence delyuered thee enemyes of thy seruauntes, whiche were worthy to die (where thorow thou gauest them tyme and place of amendement, that they myght tuzne from their wickednes (with how great dilygence thē ponishest thou thine owne chyldren, vnto whose fathers thou hast sworne and made couenaūtes of good promises. So wher as thou doest but chasten vs, thou punishest our ēmies diuerse wayes to ꝯ intēt ꝯ whē we punishe we shuld remēbre thi goodnesse: & when we oure selues are punished, to put our trust i thy mercy. Wherfore wher as men haue liued ignorauntly & vnrighteously ꝯ hast punished thē sore euen thorow the same thynges that they worshypped. For they went astraye verye longe in ꝯ waye of errour, and helde the beastes (whiche euen theyr ennemyes dispysed) for goddes, lyuinge as Chylderen of no vnderstandinge. Therfore hast thou set a scornefull punishement among them, as amonge the chylderen of ignorauncē. As for soch as wolde not be reformed by those scornes and rebukes, they felt the worthy punishementes of God. For the thynges that they suffred they bare them vnpacientlye, beinge not contente in them, but vnwyllynge. And whē they perisshe by the same thynges that they toke for goddes, they knowledged then, that there was but one true God, whom afore they wold not know: therfore came ꝯ end of theyr dānation vpō thē

All thinges be vayne, except the knowledg of God
Idolaters and Idolesarmocked.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

Vayne are all men, which haue not the knoledg of God: & as wer they that out of the good thinges which are sene, knewe not hym that of hym selfe is euerlastinge: Neyther toke they so muche regarde of the worckes ꝯ are made, as to know, who was the craftesman of theym: but some toke the fyre, some the wynde or ayer, some the course of the starres, som the water, some to be Sunne and Moone, or the lyghtes of heauē wheych rule the earth, for gods. But though they had suche pleasure in their brutie, ꝯ they thought thē to haue ben goddes: yet shuld they haue knowē/ how much more fayrer he is ꝯ made thē. For ꝯ maker of beuty hath ordeyned all these thiges: for if they merueled at ꝯ power & workes of thē, thei shuld haue perceiued therby, ꝯ he which made these thinges is mightier than they. For by ꝯ greatnes & beuti of ꝯ creature, ꝯ maker therof may playnely be knowē. Notwtstādig they are ꝯ les to be blamed ꝯ sought god, & wold haue fond hi, & yet missed. & why? for so much as they wer about in his workes & sought after thē, it is a token, ꝯ they regard & hold moch of his workes ꝯ are seen: howbeit they are not wholi to be excused. For yf their vnderstādig and knowledge was so greate, that they coulde discerne the worlde and the creatures, why dyd they not rather finde out the Lorde therof?

But vnhappye are they/and among the deed is their hope, that call them god the deed is their hope, that call them god the deedes which are but ꝯ workes of mens hādes: golde, syluer, and the thyng that is founde out by coppyng, the symylitude of beastes, or any vayn stō ꝯ hath ben made by hand of olde. Or as when a carpenter cutteth down a tree out of the wodd, and pareth of the backe of it coppyngly: and so with the one parte maketh a vessel to be vsed: and dighteth meat with the residue. As for the other part that is left, whiche is profytable for nothyng (for it is a croked pece of wod and ful of knobbes) he carueth it dyligently thorow his vanite, and (according to the knowledg of his cōnyng) he geueth it some proportion, fashioneth it after the similytude of a man, or maketh it lyke some beaste, streaketh it ouer with redd, and painteth it, and loke what foul spot is in it, he casteth some coloure vpon it.

Thē maketh he a conuenient tabernacle for it, setteth it in the wall, and maketh it fast with yrō, prouidyng so for it, lest it happen to fal: for it is wel knowne, that it can not help it self: And why? it is but ā ymag, & must of necessite be helped. Then goeth he and offreth of his Goodes vnto it for his children and for hys wife: he seketh helpe at it, he asketh counsel at it: he is not ashamed to speake vnto it that hath no soule: for health, he maketh his peticyon vnto him that is sycke: for lyfe, he prayeth vnto him that is dede: he calleth vnto him for helpe, that is not able to helpe him selfe: and to lende hym a goodionrneye, he prayeth him that mai not go. And in al the thinges that he taketh in hande (whether it be to optayne any thing or to worck) he prayeth vnto him that can do no maner of good.

¶ The detestacyō and abhompnacyon of ymages. A curse of them that maketh them: The euelles that come of idolatry.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter

Agayne/another man purposyng to sayle, and beginning to take his iourneye thorow the raging sea, calleth for helpe vnto a stocke/ that is farre weaker, then the tre that bereth him. For as for it/ couetousnes of money hath found it out/and ꝯ craftesman made it with his connynge. But thy prouidence/O father gouerneth al thinges from the beginnynge: for thou hast made a waie in the sea, & ād a sure path in the middest of the waues: declaring therby, that thou haste power to helpe in al thinges, ye thoughe a man went to ꝯ sea without ship. Neuerthles, that the worke of wysdō should not be vayne, thou hast caused an arke to be made: And therfore do men commit their lyues to a smal pece of wodd, passing ouer the sea in a shyppe and are saued.

For in the olde tyme when ꝯ proude grauntes perished, he (whome the hope was left to increse the world) went into the shippe/which was grounded thorow thy hande/and so lefte sede be hynde him vnto the world. For happy is the tre where thorow righteousnes commeth: but cursed ys the ymage of wodd, that is made with handes, yea both it ād he that made it. He/because he made it: and it, beause it was called god, wher as it is but a fraile thynge. For the vngodly and hys vngodlines are both lyke abhominable vnto god. Euen so the worke and he that made it also shalbe punished together. Therfore shall there a plage come vpon the images of the Heathen: for out of the creature of god they are become an abhompnacyon, a temptacyon vnto the soules of mē, and a snare for the fete of the vnwyse. And why? the sekynge out of ymmages is the beginninge of whordome, & the byngyng vp of them is the destruccion of lyfe. For they were not from the beginninge, neither shal they contynue for etter. The welthy pdelnes of men hath founde them out vpō earth, therfore shal they come shortly to an ende. Whē a father mourned for his sōne ꝯ was take awai frō hi/he made hi an ymag (i al ꝯ haste) of his ded sōne: & so he begā to worshyp hi as god, which was but a deed mā/& ordened his seruaūts to offer vnto hi.

Thus

Thus by proces of tyme and thorowe longe custome, this errour was kepte as a law, and tyrauntes compelled me by violence to honour ymages. As for those that were so farre of, that menne myght not worshipp thē presently, their pycture was brought from farre (like the ymage of a kyng whom they wold honoure) to the intent that with great dylygence they myght worshippe hym which was farre of/as though he had bene present. Agayne/the synguler cōning of ỹ craftesman gaue ỹ ignorauńt also a greate occasion to worshipp ymages. For the workman willinge to do him a pleasure that set hym a worke, laboureth with al his cōning to make ỹ ymage of the best fashion. And so/the rowe the bewty of the worke) the comen people was disceaued, in so much that they toke him now for a god, whych a litle afore was but honored as a man. And this was the errour of mans like, when men (either for to serue their own affection / or to do some pleasure vnto kynges) ascribed vnto stones and stockes the name of god/which ought to be geuen vnto men.

Worouer, this was not ynough for them that they erred in the knowledge of god: but where as they lyued in the greate warres of ignorauńce, those many and grete plages called they peace. For ether they slue their owne childrē, and offred them, or dyd sacrifice in the nyght season, or els helde vnreasonable watches: so that they kepte nether lyfe nor mariage cleane: but ether one slue another to deathe malycyously, or els greued his neyghboure wyth aduoutrye. And thus were al thinges myxte together: bloude, manslaughter/theft, dissimulacion, corruptiō/vnfaithfulnes, sedicion, periury, disquyeting of good men, vnthankfulnes, deflyg of soules chaungyng of byrth, vnstedfastnes of of mariage, myschefe of aduoutry and vnclenes. And why? the honouring of abhominable ymages is the cause, the begynning and ende of al euel. For they that worshipp Idoles, either they are mad whē they be merry, or prophecy lyes, or lyue vngodly/or els lyghtly for swear them selues.

For in somoch as their trust is in the Idols (which haue nether soule ner vnderstandyng) though they swere falsely yet they thynke it shall not hurte them.

Therfore commeth a greate plage vpon them, and that worthe iy: for they haue an euel opynion of God, geuyng hede vnto Idols, swearing vntrustyly to deceaue, and despising rightuousnes. For their swearing is no vertue, but a plage of them that sinne, and goeth euer wt ỹ offence of the vngodly.

The voyce of the faythful prayinge the mercy of God for whose graces sake they serue not Idols.

The.xv. Chapter.

BUt thou (O oure God) art swete, long sufferinge and true, and in mercy ordrest thou al thinges. Though we synne/yet are we thyne, for we know thy strength. If we sinne not/thē ar we sure, that thou regardest vs. For to knowe the, is parfecte rightuousnes: Yee to knowe thy ryghteousnes & power, is the rote of imortalyte. As for the thing that men haue founde out thorow their euell scyence, it hathe not deceaued vs: as the paynting of ỹ pictur: (an vnprofytable laboure) and carued ymag, wt diuerse colours, whose syght entyseth the ygnorauńt: so ỹ hee honoureth and loueth the picture of a deed ymage that hath no soule.

Neuerthelesse/they that loue suche euel thinges, are worthy of death: they that trust in them, they that make them, they that loue them, and they that honoure them. The potter also taketh and tēpereth soft earth, laboureth it, & geueth it the fashyō of a vessel. whatsoeuer seruyth for oure vse, and so of one pece of claye he maketh some clene vessell for seruyce, and some contrary. But where to euery vessel seruyth, that knowethỹ potter him selfe. So with his vayne laboure he maketh a God of ỹ same clay: this doth euē he, which a lytle afore was made of earth him selfe, and wythin a lytle while after (whē he dyeth) turneth to earth agayne.

Notwithstandynge, he careth not ỹ more because he shal labour, ner because hys his lyfe is shorte: but striueth to excel gold smythes, syluer smythes, the copper smythes, and taketh it for an honoure to make vayne thynges. For hys hert is ashes hys hope is but vayne earth, and his lyfe is no more worth thē clay: for so much as he knoweth not hys owne maker, that gaue hym his soule to worke, and breathed in hym the breth of lyfe.

They counte our lyfe but a passtime, and our conuersacion to be but a market, ād that men shulde euer be getting, and ỹ by euell meanes. Nowe he that of erth maketh fraple vessels and ymages, knoweth hi selfe to offende aboue all other. All the enemyes of thy people and that holde them in subiection, ar vnwyse, vnhappy, and exceading proude vnto ther owne soules: for they iudge all ỹ ydoles of the heathen to be goddes, whiche nether haue eye syghte to see, nor noses to smell, nor eares to heare, nor fyngers of handes for to grope: and as for ỹ theyr fete they are to slowe to go. For mā made them, and he that hath but a borowed spryte, fashioned them. But no man can make a God lyke vnto him: for seinge he is but mortal him selfe, it is but mortall that he maketh wyth vnrightuous handes. He him selfe is better then they whō he worshippeth, for he lyued though he was mortall, but so dyd neuer they.

Yet they worshipp beastes also, which are most miserable: for cōpare thinges that can not fele vnto them, and they ar worse then those. Yet is there not one of the se beastes, that with his syght can behold any good thing, nether haue they geuen praise nor thanckes vnto god.

The punishement of Idolaters and the benefits done vnto the faythfull.

The.xvi. Chapter.

FOr these & such other thynges haue they suffred worthy punishemēt, & thorow ỹ multitude of beastes ar they roted out. In stead of ỹ which punishementes thou hast graciously ordred thyne owne People, and geuen them their desyre that they longed for: a newe straunge taist, prepaynge theym quayles to be theyr meate: to the intente that (by the the thynges whych were shewed and sent vnto them) they that were so gredy of meate, myght be withdrawen euen from the desire that was necessary. But these within shorte tyme were brought vnto poudet, and tasted a newe meate. For it was requysyte that (wythout any excuse) destruccyon should com vpon those which vsed tyranny, and to shew onlt vnto the other, how their enemies were destroyed. For when the cruel woodnes of the beastes came vpon them, they perished thorow the stinges of the euel serpentes.

Notwithstanding thy wrath endured not perpetually, but they were put in feare for a lytle season, that they myght be reformed, hauinge a token of saluacion/to remembre the cōmaundement of thy lawe. For he that conuerted, was not holed by the thing that he sawe, but by the, O sauiour of al. So in this thou shewest thyne enemyes, ỹ it is thou, which delyuerest from al euel. As for they when they were bitten wt grashopers and flies, they died/for they were worthy to perish by such: but nether the teeth of dragons nor of venemus wormes ouercam thi children, for thy mercy was euer by them, and the helped them. Therfore were they punished to remembre thy wordes/ but hastely were they healed agayne: lest they shuld fal into so depe forgetfulnesse/ ỹ they might not vse thy helpe.

It was nether herbe nor playster ỹ restored them to health, but thy worde (O Lord) which healeth al thinges. For is thou (O Lord) that hast the power of lyfe and death: thou leadest vnto dethes dore/and bringest vp agayne. But man thorowe wyckednes slayeth hys owne soule, and whē his spryte goeth forth, it turneth not agayne, nether may he cal agayne ỹ soule that is take away: It is not possible to escape thy hand. For the vngodly that wolde not know the, wer punished by the strēgth of thine arme: wt straung waters/hayles and raynes were they persecuted, & thorow fire were they consumed. For it was a wōdrous thig ỹ fire might doo more thē water which quēcheth al thinges: but ỹ world is ỹ auēger of ỹ righteous. Some time was ỹ fire so tame ỹ ỹ beastes which were sent to worship ỹ vngodly,

And sommetime bzente the fyeze in the water on euery syde, that it myght destroy the vnrighteous nacion of the erth.
Agayne, thou hast fed thyne owne people with aungels fode. & sent them bzed ready from heauen (without theyze labour) being very pleasaunt and wel gu-

nesse vnto thy chyldren, thou gatherest
euery one theyz desire/so that euery mā myght take what lyked hym beste. But the snow and yce abode the violence of the fire and melted not: that they might knowe that, the fyze burning in the hal and raine destroied the frute of the enemies: the fire also forgat his strength/a gaine, that the ryghtuous might be no rished. For the creatur that seruyth the (which arte the maker) is fearce in punishing the vnrighteous, but is ey & a gētle to do good, vnto such as put ther trust in thee. Therfore dyd all thinges alter at the same tyme/and were al obedient vnto thy grace, which is the norse of all thynges according to the desyre of them that had ned other: that thy chil dren, O Lorde whome ꝑ louest, might knowe that it is not nature and the gro wing of frutes that feedeth men, but th at it is thy word, which preserueth them that put ther trust in the. For loke what myght not be destroid with the fire as sone as it was warmed with a litle sun ne beame, it melted: that all men, might knowe, that thanckes ought to be geuen vnto thee before the sunne rise, and that ꝑ oughtest to be worshipped before the day spring. For the hope of the vnthā kful shal melte awaie as ꝑ winter yce, & perish as water, ꝑ is not necessary.

This iudgementes of god vpon the Egiptians.

The .xviii. Chapter.

GReate are thy iudgementes
(O Lord) and thy counsels can not be expressed, therfore men do erre, that will not be reformed with thy wisdō
For when the vnrighteous thought to haue thy holy people in subiection, they were bound with the bandes of darken nes and long night, shut vnder ꝑ rofe/
ti sinking to escape ꝑ euerlasting wisdō.
And while they thought to be hyd in the darcknesse of their sinnes/they were sca tered abrode in the very myddest of the darck couering of forgetfulnes, put to horrible feare & wonderously vexed for the corner where they myghte not kepe them from feare: because the sounde ca me downe and vexed them: ye maniter rible and straunge visions made them afrayd.

No power of the fyre myghte geue
them lyght, nether myght ꝑ clear flā
mes of the starres lyghten that horryb le nyght. For there appered vnto them a sodein fyre, very terrefyed: At ꝑ which (when they sawe nothyng) they were so a frayed, that they thought ꝑ thig whych they sawe to be the more fearful. As for the sorcery and enchauntemente ꝑ they vsed, it came to derision, and the prayd wysdome was broughte to shame. For they that promised to driue awaye the fearfulnes and drede from thee weake
soules/were syck for feare them selues, and that with scorne. And though nere
of the wonders feared them, yet were thei afraid at the beastes which came vpō the and at the hissyng of the serpentes. In so moch that with trembling they sow ned and sayde they sawe not thee ayre, whiche no man yet maye escape.

For it is an heuy thing, when a mās owne conscience, beareth recorde of his wickednes and condemneth him. And why: abered and wounded conscyence, taketh euer cruel thinges in hande. Fe-arfulnes is nothing els but a declarig that a man seketh helpe and defence, to āswer for him self. And loke how moch lesse the hope is within, the more is the vncertentye of the matter, for the which he is punished. But they that came in myghty nyght: slepte the slepe that fell vpō them from vnder and from aboue sometyme were they afrayed thorow the feare of the wonders, and somtyme they were so weake that they swowned wha
for an hastye and sodayn fearfulnes ca me vpon the. After warde, yf eny of the had fallen, he was kept and shutt in pri son but wyth out chaynes. But yf eny dwelt in a villag, yf he had bene a herd or husband man he suffred intollerable necessite: for they were al bounde wyth
one chayne of darcknesse.

whether it were a blaspheming wind, or a swete song of ꝑ birdes amōge the thicke braūches of ꝑ trees, or the vehe mence of hasty rūning water, or greate noyse of the fallig downe of stones, or ꝑ plaieng & rūning of beastes whōthei
sawe not, or the mighty noyse of rorig beastes, or ꝑ lound ꝑ answereth againe
i the hie mountaines: it made the sow nde for very feare. For all ꝑ earth shy ned w̄ clere light, & no mā was hidred in his labour. Only vpō thē there fell a heuy night, an imag of darknes ꝑ was to com vpō the. Yee they were vnto the selues ꝑ moste heuye and horrible darcknesse.

¶ The .xviii. Chapter.

¶ The syxe lyght ꝑ the Israelites had in Egypte
The perfe quucion of the faithful: The Lord smot all the first borne of Egypt. The sonne of ꝑ people in the wildernes. Aaron stode betwyxt the lyue and the deed wyth his censoure.

NEuertheles thy saītes had a very greate light (& the enemies herd their voice,
but they saw not ꝑ figure of the.) And because thei su fered not ꝑ same thinges/they magni fied hir a they ꝑ were vexed afore (beca use they were not hurt now) thancked
the, & besought the (O god) ꝑ ther mig ht be a difference. Therfore had they a burning pilet of fire to lede the i ꝑ vn knowne wate & ꝑ gaueste the ꝑ Sunn for a fre gift w̄out any hurt. Reason is was/ꝑ they shuld want light & be put in the prison of darcknes, which kepte thy children i captyuite, by whō the vn corupt light of ꝑ lawe of ꝑ world was for to be geue. Whē thei thoght to slai the babes of ꝑ righteous (one being laid out/& preserued to be leder vnto the o ther) ꝑ broughtest out the whole multi tud of ꝑ children/ & destroiedst these i ꝑ mighty water. Of ꝑ night were our fa thers certifyed afore ꝑ, they knowyng vnto what oths they had geue credēce might be of good chere. Thus thy peo ple receued the health of the righteous but ꝑ vngodly were destroied. For like as ꝑ hast hurte our enemies, so haste ꝑ promoted vs whō thou calledest afore.
For the righteous children of the good men offred secretly ād ordred the law of righteousnes vnto vnite: that the iuste shoulde receaue good and euell in lyke maner, singing prayses vnto ꝑ fatherof al men. Agayne, there was herd an vn conuenyent voyce of the enemyes, and a pyteous crye for chyldren that were bewayled. The master and the seruaūt were punished in lyke maner. For theye al together had innumerable that died
one death.

Nether were the lyuing sufficient to bury the deed, for in the twinckling of an eye, ꝑ noblest nacyon of them was destroyed. As ofte as God helped them afore, yet wold it not make them beleue:
but in the destruccyon of the first borne
they knowleged, that it was the people of God. For while al thinges were styl, and when the nyght was in ꝑ myddest of her course/thy Allmyghtie worde (O Lorde) leapte downe from heauen oute
of the royal trone as a rough mā of war re, in the middest of the lande that was destroyed: and ꝑ sharpe swerde perfour med their straite commaundement, stād
ding & killyng al thinges w̄ death: yee
it stode vpon the earth & reached vnto ꝑ heauen. Thē the sight of ꝑ euel dre-mes vexed them sodenly, & fearfulnesse came vpon them vnawares.

Then laye there one here/ anothere
there, half deed half quick, and shewed
the cause of his death. For the visyons that vexed them, shewed them these thi
ges afore: so ꝑ they were not ignoraūt, wherfore they perysshed.

The tēptacyon of deathe touched ꝑ righteous also, and among the multy-tude in the wildernesse there was insur
reccion, but thy wrath endured not lōg.
For the faultlesse man went in al ꝑ hast,
and toke the battayl vpō him/brought forth the wepon of his mynystracyon:
euen prayer and the censours of reconci
linge: sette him selfe agaynst the wrath
and so brought the mysery to an ende:
declaring therby, that he was thy ser-uaunt. For he ouercame not the multy-tude with bodely power, ner with wea-pens of myght: but with the worde hee subdued him that vexed him, puttinge
the in remembraunce of the othe and co uenaunt made vnto the fathers.

For when the deed were fallen downe by heapes one vpon another, he stode in the middest, pacified the wrath, and parted the waye vnto the liuing. And why? his long garment was al the beautye, and in the foure rowes of the stones was the glory of the fathers graued, and thy maiestye was wrytten in the crowne of his head. Upon these the destroyer gaue place, and was afraide of them: for it was only a temptacion worthy of wrath.

The death of the Egyptians, and the great ioye of the hebrues. The meat that was geuen at the desyr of the people. The elementes serue not only, to ye will of God, but also to ye wyll of man.

The.xix. Chapter.

A SO for the vngodly, ye wrath came vpon them wythout mercy vnto ye end. For he knew before what shold happen vnto them: how ye (when they had consented to let theym go/and had sent them out wyth greate diligence) they wold repent, and folow vppon them. For when they were yet mourning and makinge lamentacyon by the graues of the deade, they decysed another folysshnes: so that they persecuted them in their flieng, whom they had cast out afore with prayer. Worthi necessite also brought them vnto this ende/for they had cleane forgotten the thinges that happened vnto the afore. But the thing that was wantynge of their punishment, was requysyte so to be fulfilled vpon theym with tormentes: that thy people might haue a marueluous passing thorow/and that these might fynd a straunge death.

B Then was euery creature fashioned agayne of newe accordinge to the wyl of their maker, obeyeng thy commaundementes ye thy children might be kepte without hurt, for the cloud ouershadowed their tentes, and the drie earth appeared, where after was water so that in the red sea there was a waye wythoute impedymente, and the grete depe became a playne felde: where thorow al the people wente that were defyled wyth thy hande seynge thy wonderous and marueluous workes. For as the horses, so were they fed, and lepe lyke lambes, prayling the (O Lord) which hadest deliuered the. And why? they were yet myndefull of the thinges, that happened whyle they dwelt in the land: how the ground brought forthe flyes in stede of catel, and how the ryuer strauled vp the multitude of frogges in stede of fyshes.

But at the last they sawe a new creacion of byrdes, what tyme as they were desceaued wyth lust, and wyth delycate meates. For when they were speaking of theyr appetite, the quailes came vpp vnto them from the see, and punishemētes cam vpon the synners, not without the tokens whyche came to passe afore by ye vehemēce of the streames: for they suffred worthely, accordinge to theyr wickednesses, they dealt so abhominablye and churlishly/with straūgers. Some receaued no vnknowen geastes, some brought the straungers into bondage that dyd them good. Besyde all these thynges there were some that not onely receaued no straungers vp theyr wylles, but persecuted those also ād did them much euell that receaued them gladly.

C Therfore were they punished with blindnes, lyke as they that wer couered wyth sodayne darcknes at the dores of the righteous, so that euery one sought the entraunce of hys dore.

D Thus the elementes turned into them selues, lyke as when one tyme is chaunged vpon an instrumēt of Musike, and yet all the residue kepe theyr melodye: whych maye easely be perceaued/by the syght of the thynges that are com to passe. The drye lande was turned into a waterye/and the thynge that afore swamme in the water/went now vpon the drie grounde. The fyer hath power in the water (contrary to hys owne vertue) ād the water forgat hys owne kind to quench. Agayne, the flammes of the noysome beastes hurte not the fleshe of them that wente wyth them neither melted they the yse wyche els melteth lyghtely. In al thinges hast thou promoted thi people (O Lord) and brought them to honur: thou hast not despised them, but alwaye and in all places hast thou stande by them.

The ende of the boke of wysdome.

¶ The boke of * Jesus the sonne of Syrach/which is called in latin Ecclesiasticus. *Or Jesus

The Prologe of Jesus the sonne of Syrach vnto hys boke.

MAny and greate men haue declared wysdome vnto vs out of the lawe, out of the prophetes and out of other that folowed the. In the which thynges Israell ought to be commended, by the reason of doctryne & wysdome: Therfore they that haue it and reade it, shoulde not onelye them selues be wyse there thorow, but serue other also wyth teaching and wrytinge.

After that my graundfather Jesus had geuen diligent labour to reade the lawe, the prophetes and other bokes that were left vs of oure fathers, and had well exercised hym selfe there in: he purposed also to wryte some thinge of wysdome and good maners, to the intent that they which were wylling to learne and to be wise myght haue the more vnderstandinge, and be the more apte to leade a good conuersacyon.

Wherfore I exhorte you to receaue it louynglye, to reade it wyth dylygence, ād to take it in good worthe, though oure wordes be not so eloquente as the ramous Diatours. For the thynge that is wrytten in the Hebrewe tounge, soundeth not so well when it is translated into an other speache. Not only this boke of myne, but also the lawe, the Prophetes and other bokes sounde farre otherwyse, when they do, when they are spoken in theyr owne language.

Now in the.xxxviii. yeare when I came into Egipte in the tyme of Ptolomy Euerges, and continued there all my lyfe/I gat lyberte to reade and wrytte many good thinges Wherfore I thought it good ād necessary, to bestow my dylygence and trauayl to interprete this boke. And consyderinge that I had tyme, I labored and dyd my best to perfourme thys boke, and to bringe it vnto lyght: that the straungers also whych are disposed to lerne, myghte apply them selues vnto good maners, and lyue accordinge to the lawe of the Lorde.

S S.

Wysdom proceadeth and commeth of god. A prayse of ye fere of God. Right wesnes is a degree to come by wysdome.

The fyrst Chapter.

ALl wisdom commeth of god the Lord, and hath ben euer with him, and is before all tyme. Who hath nombred the sande of the see, the drop pes of the rayne and the daye s of tyme? Who hath measured the heyght of the auen ye bredth of the earth & the depnes of the see? Who hath sought out the grou de of gods wisdō which hath be before al thinges. Wisdom hath bene before al thinges: and the vnderstanding of prudence from euerlastyng (Gods word in the heygth is the well of wisdome, and his euer lastyng commandementes are the entraunce of her.) Vnto whome hath ye rote of wisdom bene declared? Or who hath knowne her wit? Vnto whom hath the doctryne of wisdom bene discouered and shewed? and who hath vnderstāde the many folde entraunce of her?

There is one: euen the Hiest thee maker of al thinges, the Almy ghtye, ye kyng of power (of whom men ought to stande greatly in awe) which sitteth vp on hys trone being a god of dominion: He hath created her there ow ye holy goost: he hath sene her: & numbred her, & measured her: & he hath poured her out vpon al his workes, and vpon al flesche accordynge to his gift: he geueth her richelye vnto them that loue him. The feare of ye lord is worshipp and triumphe, gladnesse & a ioyful crowne. The feare of the Lord maketh a merye hart, geueth gladnesse, ioye and long lyfe. Who so feareth the lorde, it shal go wel with him at the last and in the daye of hys deathe he shalbe blessed.

The loue of God is honorable wysdome: loke vnto whome it apereth, them loue it, for they se what wonderous thi ges it doth. The feare of the lorde ys ye beginninge of wisdome, and was made with the faythfull in the mothers wōbe: it shal go with the chosen women, & shal be knowe of the righteous āsō faythfull. The feare of ye lord is ye right Gods ser vice ye preferreth ād iustifieth the heert, and geueth myrth and gladnes. Who so feareth the Lord shalbe happye: and when he hath nede of comfort, he shall be blessed. To feare god is the wisdōe that maketh ryche, and bryngethe all good with her. She fylleth the whole houle with her gyftes, and the garners with her treasure. The feare of the Lorde is the crowne of wisdome, and geueth plenteous peace and health. He hath sene her and nombred her: knowledge and vnderstanding, of wysdome hath he poured out as rayne: ād them that holde her fast, hath he brought vnto honoure.

The feare of the Lord is the rote of wisdome, and her braunches are lōg lyke. In the treasures of wisdom, is vnderstanding and deuision of knowleg but wisdome is abhorred of sinners.) The feare of the lorde dryueth out sinne / for he that is without feare / cānot be made righteous, and his wilful bodnes is his owne destruccion. A pacyent man wyl suffer vnto the tyme, and then shal he haue the rewarde of ioye. A good vnderstanding wyll hyde hys wordes for a tyme, and many mēs lyppes shal speake of his wysdom. In ye treasures of wisdome is the declaracyon of doctryne, but the synner abhoreth the worshyp of god. My sonne / yf thou despyse wisdome, kepe the cōmaūdement, and God shal geue her vnto you for the feare of the Lord is wysdomes nurtoure, he hath pleasure in fayth ād louynge meknes / and he shall fyl the treasures therof. Be not obstynate and vnfaythfull to the feare of the Lorde, and come not vnto hym with a double herte. Be not an ypocrite in the syghte of men, and take good heede what thou speakeste.

Marcke wel these thynges, lest thou happen to fault and bryng thy soule to dyshonoure, and so GOD discouer thy secretes / and caste thee downe in the myddeste of the Congregacyon: Because thou wouldeste not receaue the feare of GOD, and because thy herte ys full of faynednes and dysceate.

Che exhorteth the seruantes of god to righteousnes, loue, vnderstandig & patience, and exhorteth hi that feareth God, to beleue, to hope, and to loue: because God neither confoundeth nor forsaketh them, that trust in hym. A curse vpon the subtil, feare ād impacient of herte:

The .ii. Chapter.

MY sonne, yf thou wilt come in to the seruyce of god, stā de fast in rightousnes and feare, and arme thy soule to tentacyon: settle thine hert and be pacyent: bow downe thine eare / receaue the wordes of vnderstandyng, and chrynche not awaye, when thou ar te entysed. Holde the fast vpon God, ioyne thy self vnto hym and suffre, that thy lyfe maye encreace at the last. Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto thee, receaue it: suffre in humylnesse, and be patiente in thy trouble. For lyke as gold and syluer are tryed in the fyre, euen so are acceptable men in the fornace of aduersyte. Beleue in God, and he shall healpe the: ordre thy waye a ryght, and put thy trust in him. Holde fast his feare, and growe therin. O ye that feare the lord, take sure holde of his mercy: chrynche not awaye from him, that ye fall not. O ye that feare the Lord, beleue hym, and your rewarde shal not be emptie. O ye that feare the Lorde put your trust in him, and mercye shall come vnto you for pleasure. O ye that feare the Lorde set your loue vppon him, and youre hertes shal be lyghtened. Consyder the olde generacions of men (O ye chyldren) and marke them wel: was there euer eny one confounded, ye put his trust in ye Lord? Who euer continued in his feare and was forsaken? Or whom dyd he euer despyse, that called faythfully vpon him? For God is gracious and mercyful, he forgeueth synnes in the tyme of trouble, and is a defender for all them that seke hym in the truethe. Wo be vnto him ye hath a double hert, wycked lyppes and euell occupied handes, and to the synner that goeth two maner of ways. Wo be vnto them that are loose of herte, which put not their trust in God, and therfore shall they not be defended of him. Wo be vnto them that haue lost pacience, for saken the ryght wayes, and are turned back in to frowarde ways. What wyll they do, when the Lorde shall begynne to vysite them?

They that feare the Lorde, wil not mistrust his worde: and they that loue hym / wyl kepe his commaundemente. They that feare the Lord wyl seke out the thynges / that are pleasaunt vnto him: and they that loue hym / shal fulfyl his lawe. They that feare the lord wyl prepare their hertes, and humble their soules in his syght. They that feare the Lorde kepe his commaundementes, and wyl be pacient tyl they se him selfe, sayinge: better it is for vs to fall into the handes of the Lorde, then into the handes of men: for his mercye is as greate as him selfe.

To our father and mother ought we to geue double honoure. Of ye blessing and curse of ye fathers & mother. No man ought ouer curyosly to searche out the secretes of god.

The .iii. Chapter.

THe chyldren of wysdome are a congregacō of the ryghtuous and their exercyse is obedience and loue. Here me your father (O my deare children) and do thereafter, that ye maye be safe. For the Lord wyl haue the father honoured of the children, and loke what a mother commaūdeth her children to do / he wyl haue it kept. Who so hurteth his father, his sines shalbe forgeuen him: and he that honoreth his mother is lyke one that gathereth treasure together. Who so honoureth his father, shall haue ioye of hys owne children: and whē he maketh his praier, he shalbe herde. He that honoureth hys Father, shal haue a longe lyfe: & he that is obedyent for the lordes sake / hys mother shal haue ioye of ih.

He that feareth the lorde, honoureth his father and mother, and doeth them seruyce, as it were vnto the lord hym selfe. Honoure thy father in dede, in worde, and and in al pacyence, that thou maye haue hys blessynge: for the blessinge of the father buyldeth vp the houses of the chyldren, but the mothers curse roteth oute the foundacyons. Retoyse not when thy father is reproued, for it is no honour vnto the but a shame. For the worshyppe of a mans father is hys owne worshypp, & where the father is without honoure, it is the dishonesty of the sonne.

My sonne/ make muche of thy father in his age, and greue him not as longe as he lyueth. And yf his vnderstädig
B fayle, haue patience with him, and dyspise him not in thy strength. For the good dede that thou shewest vnto thy father, shal not be forgotten: and when thou thy selfe wantest/ it shal be rewarded thee (and for thy mothers offence ꝑ shalt be recompenced with good, yea it shall be founde for thee in righteousnes) & in ꝑ daye of trouble ꝑ shalt be remẽbred: Thy sines also shall melte awaye, like as the yce in ꝑ fayre warme wether

He that forsaketh his father, shall come to shame: and he that defieth his mother, is cursed of god. My sonne, perfourme thy worckes with louynge mekenes, so shalt thou be loued aboue other men. The greater thou art/ the more humble thy selfe (in al thynges) & ꝑ shalt find fauour in ꝑ sight of god. For greate power belongeth only vnto god/ & he is honoured of the lowly.

Seke not out the thyngs that are aboue thy capacite, & searche not out ꝑ grou
C nd of such thiges as ar to mightye for ꝑ: but loke what god hath cõmaũded ꝑ, thinck vpõ ꝑ al wate, & be not curious i many of his worckes. For it is not nedful for ꝑ to se with thine eies ꝑ thiges ꝑ are secret. Make not ꝑ to much searche i superfluous thiges, & be not curyous in many of his worckes: for many thiges are shewed vnto ꝑ already, which be aboue ꝑ capacite of men. The medlyng with such hath begiled many a mã, & tãgled their wittes i vayne. Nowe he ꝑ loueth parel, shal perish therin. An hard hert shal fare euell at ꝑ last (ã hert ꝑ goeth two wates, shal not prosperer: & he ꝑ is frowad of hert, will euer be ꝑ worse ãd worse.) A wicked hert shalbe ladẽ with sorowes, & ꝑ vngodly siner wil kepe one sine vpõ another. The coũcel of ꝑ proud hath no helth, for ꝑ plãt of sine shal
D be roted out i thé. The hert of hi ꝑ hath vnderstãdig shal perceue hye thiges/ & a good eare wil gladly herkẽ vnto wisdõ. An hert that is wise & hath vnderstãdynge/ wyll absteyne from synnes/ and encrease in the woorckes of righteousnes. Water quencheth burning fyre, ãd mercy reconsileth synnes. God hath respect vnto hym that is thanckefull: hee thyncketh vpon hym againste the tyme to come/ so that when he falleth he shall fynde a stronge holde.

Almes must be done with all mekenes. The study of wisdome and her feute. A iudge ought to be mercifull. An exhortacion to eschue euell & to do good.

The. iiii. Chapter. A

My sonne, defraude not thee poore of hys almes, ãd turne not away thyn eyes frõ hym that hath nede. Despyse not an hongry soule, and defye not the poore in hys necessite, greue not the herte of him that is helpelesse/ and wythdraw not the gyft frõ the nedefull. Refuse not the prayer of one that is in trouble/ and turne not away thy face from the nedy. Cast not thyne eyes aside from the poore that ꝑ geue hi not occasion to speake euel of ꝑ. For yf he complayne of thee in the bytternes of hys soule, his prayer shalbe herde: Euen he that made hym, shal hear hym. Be curteous vnto the company of the poore, humble thy soule vnto the elder and bowe downe thy heade to a man of worshippe. Let it not greue ꝑ B to bowe downe thyne eare vnto the poore, but paye thy debte/ and geue hym a frendlye answere/ and that with meakenes.

Delyuer hym that suffreth wronge frõ the hande of the oppressour and be not fayntherted when thou sittest in iudgemẽt. Be mercyfull vnto the fatherles as a father, and be in steade of an husband vnto theyr mother: so shalt ꝑ be as an obedient sonne of the hyest, & he shal loue thee more then thy mother dothe. Wisdome bryngeth hye into her childeren, receaueth them that seke her, and wyll go before them in the way of righ tuousnes. He ꝑ loueth her loueth lyfe: & they that seke her diligentlye/ shal haue greate ioye. They that kepe her, shal haue the heritage of lyfe: for where she entreth in/ there is the blessinge of god. They ꝑ honor her, shalbe ꝑ seruãts of ꝑ holy one: & they ꝑ loue her: ar beloued of god. who so geueth ear vnto her, shal

he that beleueth her, shal haue her in possession and his generacion/ shal endure: for when he falleth, she shal go with him, before all. Feare, drede & temptacyõ shal she bringe vpon him, and trye him in her doctrine: tyll she haue so proued him in his thoughtes, that he committ his soule vnto her. Then shal she stablyshe him, bring the right way vnto him/ make him a glad man/ shew him her secretes and helpe vpon the treasures of knowledg, vnderstanding and righteousnes. But if he go wrong, she shal forsake him, and geue him ouer in to the hãdes of his enemie.

My sonne make moche of the tyme, eschue the thinge that is euell/ and for thi life shame not to saye the truth. For there is a shame that bringeth synne, ãd there is a shame ꝑ bringeth worshippe and fauour. Accepte no person after thi owne wyl, that thou be not confoũded to thyne owne decaye. Be not ashamed of thy neyghbour in his aduersite, and kepe not back thy councel when it may do good: neither hide thy wysdome i her beauty. For in the tonge is wisdom knowne, so is vnderstanding, knowledg & lerninge in the talkynge of the wyse. ãd
D stedfastnesse in the worckes of righteousnes. In no wise speke agaynst ꝑ worde of treuth but be ashamed of the lyes of thyne owne ignorãunce. Shame not to confesse thyne errroure, and submitte not thy selfe vnto euery man because of sinne. Withstãd not ꝑ face of ꝑ mighty, and stryue not agaynst the streame. But for the trueth stryue thou vnto death, & God shal fight for the agaynst thyne enemies. Be not hastye in thy tõg, neither slacke & negligẽt in thy worckes. Be not as a lyon in thyne own house, destroying thy houshold folckes, and oppressyng them that are vnder the/ Let not thyne handebe stretched out to receaue, & shut when thou shuldest geue.

In riches may we not put any confidence. The vengeaunce of God ought to be feared ãd to repẽt sauns: maye we not be slowe.

The. v. Chapter

A Trust not vnto thy riches, ãd sai not: tush, I haue ynough for mi lyfe. (For it shall not helpe in the time of vengeaunce and temptacion) For lowe not the luste of thyne owne herte in thy strength, and saye not, tush, how haue I had strength/ for who wil bringe me vnder because of my workes? For doutles God shall auenge it. And saye not: I haue committed no iynes, but what euell hath happened me? For the Almightye is a patyent rewarder. Because thy sinnes be forgeuen the, benot therfore without feare/ neyther heape one synne vppon another. And saye not: tush/ the mercy of the lorde is grete, he shal forgeue me my sines, be they neuer so manye. For lyke as he is mercyful/ so goeth wrath from him also/ & his indignacion commeth downe vpõ synners.

Make no tarrynge to turn vnto the Lorde, and put not of from daye to B daye: For sodenlye shall hys wrathe come, and in tyme of vengaũce he shal destroi thee. Trust not i wicked riches for thei shal not help i ꝑ daie of punishmẽt & wrath. Be not carried aboute to euery wynde, and goo not into euerye waye: for so doth the sinner that hath a double tonge. Stands fast in the wate of the Lord, be stedfast in the vnderstãding, abyde by thy worde, and folow ꝑ worde of peace and righteousnes. Be gentle to heare the worde of god, that ꝑ maieste vnderstande it, and make a true answere with wisdome. Be swift to heare, but slowe and patiente in geuynge answere: If thou hast vnderstandynge/ shappe thy neyghboure an answeare. If no, laie thyne hand
C vpon thi mouth: lest thou be trapped i an vndiscrete worde, and so confounded. Honour and worshyp is in a mãs wyse talkinge, but the tonge of the vndiscret is his own destruction. Be not a preuy accuser as long as thou liuest and vse no sclaunder wyth thy tonge. For shame and sorowe goeth ouer the theke, and an euel name ouer hym that is double tonged: but he that is a preuy accuser of other men, shal be hated, enuyed and confounded. Se that thou iustifye the small and greate alyke.

It is ꝑ proper te of a synner to be euel tonged. The doctrine of good councel of the wise ys to be embraced, Wyrdõ should be learyhed for. The profer thereof.

The. vi. Chapter.

BE not thy neyghbours enemy for thy frendes sake: for who so is euel shalbe ye heyre of rebuke & dyshonoure/and whosoeuer beareth envy and a double tonge offendeth. Be not proude in the deuice of thyne owne vnderstandinge, lest thy leaues wether/& thy frute be destroyed, & so thou be lefte as a dyre tree. For a wicked soule destroyeth hym that hath it, maketh hym to be laughed to scorne, of his ennemyes, (and bringeth him to the portion of the vngodli.) A swete word multiplieth frendes, & pacifieth the ye be at variaunce, & a thanckfull tonge wylbe plenteous in a good man. Hold frendshyp w many, neuerthelesse haue but one counceler of a thousand. Yf thou getteste a frend/ prone hym fyrst, and be not hastie to geue hi credence. For some man is a frende, but for a time/and wyl not abyde in the day of trouble. And ther is som frend that turneth to enemyte/ād taketh parte against the: and if he know eny hurt by thee, he telleth it out. Agayne/some frende is but a companion at the table and in the daye of neade he continueth not. But a sure frende wylbe vnto the euenas thine owne self, and deale faithfully with thy houshold folcke. If thou suffre trouble and aduersitie, be is w thee, and hydeth not hym selfe. Depart from thyne ennemies, yea & beware of thy frendes.

A faithfull frende is a strong defence: who so findeth such one, findeth a noble treasure. A faythfull frende hath no peare, the weyght of gold ād syluer is not to be compared to the goodnes of hys fayth. A faythfull frende/is a medicin of lyfe, and they ye feare the Lorde, find hym. Who so feareth the Lord, shal prosperare with frendes: and as he is hym selfe, so shall hys frende be also. My sonne, receaue doctrine from thy youth vp, so shalt thou fynd wysdom tyl ye be old. Go to her as one ye ploweth, & sowyth, & wait pacietly for her good frutes. For thou shalt haue but lytle labour in her worcke, but thou shalt eate of her frute ryghtsone. O how exceadinge sharp is wyl domme to vnlearned men. An vnstedfast body wyll not remayne in her. Vnto such she is as it were a touchstone, and he casteth her from him to al ye hast: for wisdome is wyth hym but in tyme/there be but few that haue knowledge of her. (But with them that know her, she abideth euen vnto the appering of god.)

Geue eare (my sonne) receaue my doctryne, and refuse not my councel. Put thy fote in her fyrncknes, and take her yocke vpon thy necke: bowe downe thy shoulder vnder her, beare her pacyently, and be not wery of her bandes. Come vnto her with thy whole hert, & kepe her waies w al thy power. Seke after her, and she shalbe shewed the: & when thou hast her/forsake her not. For at the last thou shalt find rest in her & that shalbe turned to thy greate ioye. Then shal her fetters be a stronge defence for the, and her yocke a glorious rayment. For the bewtye of lyfe is in her/and her bandes are the couplinge together of saluacion. Yea a glorious raiment is it/thou shalt putt on, & the same crowne of ioye shalt thou weare.

My sonne, yf thou wylt/take hede/ thou shalt haue vnderstanding: and if thou wylt applye thy mind, thou shalte be wyse. If thou wilt bow doune thine eare thou shalt receaue doctryne: and yf thou delyt in hearinge, thou shalte be wise. Stand with the multitude of suche elders as haue vnderstandyng/ & consent vnto their wisdome w thine hert: that thou mayest heare all godly sermons, & ye the worthy sentences elkape the not. And if ye fest a man of discrete vnderstanding/get the soone vnto hi, and let thy fote tread vpon the steppes of his dores. Let thy minde be vpon ye cōmaundementes of god, and be earnestly occupied in his lawes: so shal he stablishe thy herte/ and geue the wisdome at thine owne desire.

¶ We must forsake euel, & yet not iustify our selues. The behauiour of ye wise toward his wyfe, his frende, hys chyldre his seruauntes, hys father & mother, the priestes &c.

¶ The.vi. Chapter

DO no euel/ so shal ther no harme happen vnto the. Depart awaie frō ye thinge ye is wycked, and no mischefe shal medle w the. My sonne, sow no euel thinges i ye forowes of vnrighteousnes, so shalt ye not reape them seuen folde. Labour not vnto man for any lordshyp, nether vnto the kyng for the seate of honour. Iustifye not thy self before God (for he knoweth thy hert (and desyre not to be reputed wyse in ye presence of the king. Make no labour to be made a iudge, except it so were, that thou couldest myghtely put downe wyckednes: for yf ye shuldest stand in awe of the presence of the mightye, thou shuldest fayle in geuyng sentence. Offend not in the multitude of the cite, ād put not thy self amonge the People. Bynde not two synnes together, for in one synne shalt thou not be vnpunyshed. Saye not: Much, God wyl loke vpon the multitud of my oblacyons, and when I offre to the hyeste God, he wyll accepte it.

Be not faynt harted when thou makest thy prayer, nether slack in geuing of almes. Laugh no man to scorne in ye heynesse of his soule, for God (which seyth all thinges (is he that can bringe downe, and set vp agayne. Accepte no lesyng agaynst thy brother, nether do ye same agaynst thy frend. Vse not to make any maner of lye, for the custome therof is not good. Make not many wordes, when thou art amonge the elders: & when thou prayest, make not moch babynge. Let no laborius worcke be tedious vnto the, nether the husbandry which the Almyghtie hath created. Make not thy boaste in the Multytude of thy wickednes, but humble thy self euen frō thyne herte: and remembre that the wrath shall not be longe in tarying, and ye the vengeaunce of the flesh of the vngodly is a very fyre and worme. Geue not ouer thy frende for enye good, nether thy faythful brother for the best golde. Departe not from a discrete and good woman, that is fallen vnto the, for thy portion in the feare of the Lord, for the gyft of her honestly is aboue golde. Wher as thy seruaunt worketh truly, intreate him not euell, nether the hyrelynge that is faythful vnto the. Loue a discret seruaunte as thyne owne soule, defraude hym not of his libertie, neyther leaue him a poore mā.

If thou haue catell, loke wel to them: & they be for thy profit kepe them. If ye haue sonnes, bring them vp in nourture and lerning, and hold them in awe frō their youth vp. If ye haue daughters, kepe their body, and shewe not thy face chereful towardes them. Mary thi daughter, & so shalt ye perfourme a weighty matter: but geue her to a man of vnderstanding. If thou haue a wife after thi owne minde, for sake her not: (but committe not thi selfe to the hateful.)

Honoure thi father from thi hole hert, and forget not the sorowful trauaile that thi mother had with the: remembre that thou wast borne thorow them, ād how canst thou recompence the the thinges that they haue done for the? Feare the lord with al thi soule, and honoure his ministres. Loue thy maker with all thy strengthe, and forsake not his Seruauntes. Feare ye lord with al thi soul, & honoure his Prestes. Geue the their portion of the first frutes and increase of the earth, like as it is commaunded the: geue them the shoulders, and their appointed offrynges and fyrstlynges. Reache thine hād vnto the poore, that God maye blesse the w plentuousnes. Be liberal vnto all men lyuinge: yet let not but do good, euen to them that are deed.

Let not them that wepe be without cōforte, but mourne w sorowe as mourners. let it not greue ye to visit the sicke: for by that make the to be beloued. Whatsoeuer thou takest in hād, remembre ye end and thou shalt neuer do amisse.

Agaynst thi better is no stryuing. Of ye deeth of thyne enmy mayst ye not reporte, nor dispys thy neyghbours, nor ye wordes of ye wyse.

The.viii. Chapter

STriue not with a mightye man, lest thou chaūse to fall in to his handes. Make no variaunce with a rich man lest he happen to bringe vp an harde quarel agaynst ye. For gold & siluer hath vndone many a man, yea euen the hartes of kinges hath it made to fall. Striue not w a man ye is full of wordes, & laye no stykes vpō his fire:

kepe

Kepe no company with the vnlearned, leaſt he geue thy kinred an euel report. Deſpice not a man that turnethe hym ſelfe awaye from ſinne, and caſte hym not in the teeth withall: but remembre that we are frayle euerichone. Thincke ſcorne of no man in his olde age, for we waxe olde alſo. Be not gladd of the death of thyne ennemy, but remembre that we muſt dye all the ſorte of vs (&d ſayne wolde we come into lope.) Deſpyſe not the ſermons of ſuch elders as haue vnderſtanding, but acquaynt thy ſelfe with the wyſe ſentences of them: for of them thou ſhalt learne wyſdom, and the doctryne of vnderſtandynge/ and how to lerne great men wythoute complaynte.

Go not from the doctrine of the elders, for they haue lerned it of theyre fathers, for of them thou ſhalt learne vnderſtanding, ſo that thou mayeſt make anſwer in the tyme of nede. Kindle not the coales of ſynners, leſt thou be brẽt in the fyre flammes of theyr ſinnes. Reſiſte not the face of the blaſphemer, ẏ he laye not wayte for thy mouth. Lend not vnto hym that is myghtier thẽ thy ſelfe: If thou lendeſt hym, count it but loſt. Be not ſuertye aboue thy power: yf thou be, then thynke ſurely to pay it. Go not to lawe with the iudge, for he wyll iudge accordynge to hys own honoure. Trauayle not by the waye with hym that is braynleſs, leſt he doo the euell: for he folowith hys owne wylfulnes/ and ſo ſhalte thou periſhe thorowe hys folye.

Stryue not wyth hym that is angrye and cruell, and go not wyth hym in the wyldernes: for bloude is nothig in hys ſyght/ and where there is noo helpe, he ſhall murther thee. Take no counſell at fooles, for they loue nothinge but the thinges that pleaſe them ſelues. Make no counſell before a ſtraunger, for thou canſt not tell what wyll come of it. Open not thyne herte vnto euery man, leſt he be vnthanckfull of ẏ, and put the to reproſe.

¶ The ieopardies of chaſtenes are to beeſchued. An olde frende is to be preferred before a new. The glory and riches of ſynners. Righteouſnes ſhuld be bydden to geſt. Labor is ẏ beſt thing in a worke man, and wyſdome in a prince.

The .xii. Chapter.

BE not gelous ouer the wyfe of thy boſome, that ſhe we not ſome fayned poynt of wycked doctryne vppon the. Geue not the power of thy lyfe vnto a woman, leſt ſhe come in thy ſtrength, and ſo thou be confoũded. Loke not vpon a woman that is deſyrous of many men, leſt thou fall in to her ſnares. Vſe not the company of a woman that is a plaier and daunſer, and heare her not, leſt thou peryſh thorow her entyſyng. Beholde not a mayde, that ẏ be not hurt in her bewtie. Caſt not thy mynde vpon harlottes in eny maner of thynge, leſt thou deſtroye both thy ſelfe and thyne heritage. Go not aboute gaſynge in euery lane of the cytye, neither wandre thou abrode in the ſtretes ther of. Turne awaye thy face from a beutyfull woman, and loke not vpon the fayrneſſe of other.

Many a man hath peryſhed thorow the bewty of women, for thorow it the deſyre is kyndled as it were a fyre. (An aduouterous woman ſhalbe trodden vnder fote as myre, of euery one that goth by the waye. Many a mã wondereth at the bewtye of a ſtraũge woman, hathe bene caſt out, for her wordes kyndle as a fyre. (Syt not ẏ another mãs wyfe by e nye meanes, lye not wythe her vpon the bedd, make no wordes with her at the wyne: leſt thine hert conſent vnto her, & ſo thou ẏ thy bloude fal in deſtruccyõ. Forſake not an olde frende, for the new ſhall not be lyke him.

A new frẽde is new wyne: let him be old and thou ſhalt drink him with pleaſur. Deſpyſe not the honoure and riches of a ſynner, for thou knoweſt not what deſtruccyon is for to come vpon him. Delyte not thou in the thynge that the vngodly haue pleaſure in, beinge ſure that the vngodly ſhall not be accepted vntyll their graue. Kepe the from the man that hath power to ſlaye, ſo nedeſt thou not to be afrayed of death. And yf thou commeſt vnto him, make no fawt, leſt he hap ẏ en to take awaye thy lyfe. Remembre that thou goeſt in the middeſt of ſnares, and vpon the bul warkes of the cytye.

Be warre of thy neghboure as nye as ẏ canſt, and medle with ſoch as be wyſe & haue vnderſtandynge. Lett iuſt men be thy geſtes, lett thy myrth be in the feare of God, let the remẽbraunce of God be in thy mynde and let all thy talkynge be in the commaundementes of the Hyeſt. In the hãdes of craftes men ſhal the workes be commended, ſo ſhall the prynces of the people in the wyſdom of their talkynge. A mã full of wordes is perlous in his cytie: and he that is temerarious and paſt ſhame in his talkynge, is to be abhorred.

Of kynges/ and Judges. Pryde, and couetouſnes are to be abhorred. Labour is prayſed.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

A Wyſe iudge will ordre hys people with diſcrecion, and wher a man of vnderſtandinge beareth rule, there goeth it well. As the iudge of the people is him ſelfe, euen ſo are his officers: and loke what maner of mã the ruler of the cytye is, ſoch are they that dwell therin alſo. An vnwyſe kyng deſtroyeth his people, but where they that be in auctoryte are men of vnderſtandyng there the cytye proſpereth. The power of the earth is in the hande of God, ãd when his time is, he ſhall ſet a profyt able ruler vpon it. In the hande of God is the power of man, & vpon the Scribes ſhall he laye his honoure. Remembre no wrong of thy neyghboure, and medle thou with no vnrightuous workes. Pryde is hatefull before God and man, and all wickednes of the Heathen is to be abhorred. Becauſe of vnrighteous dealyng, wronge blaſphemies, & dyuerſe diſceate, a realme ſhall be tranſlated from one people to another.

¶ There is nothyng worſe then a couetous man. Why art thou proud, O thou earth and aſſhes? There is not a more wicked thing, then to loue monẽye. And why? ſoch one hath his ſoule to ſell: yet is he but fylthy dounge whyle he lyueth. And though the phiſician drawe his helpe neuer ſo long, yet in concluſion it goeth after this maner, to daye a kynge, to morowe deed. For when a man dieth/ he is the heyre of ſerpentes, beaſtes ãd wormes. The beginnyng of mãs pryde, is to fal away from God: & whyſe hys hert is gõe from his maker, for pryde is the originall of al ſinne. Who ſo taketh holde therof ſhalbe fylled wyth curſinges and at the laſte it ſhall ouerthrow hi. Therfor hath ẏ lord brought the congregacions of the wycked to diſhonoure, and deſtroyed them vnto the ende.

God hath deſtroyed thee ſeates of proude princes, and ſet vp the meke in their ſtede. God hath withered the rotes of the proude heathen and plantede the lowly among them. God hath ouerthrowen the landes of the heathen, ãd deſtroyed them out of the grounde. He hath cauſed them to wythere awaye, he hath brought them to naught, and made the memorial of them to ceaſſe from oute of the earth. (God hath deſtroyede the name of the proude, and left the name of the humble of mind.) Pryde was not made for man, nether wrothfulnes for mens children. The ſede of men that feareth god, ſhalbe brought to honoure: but the ſede which tranſgreſſeth the cõmaundementes of the lorde ſhalbe ſhamed. He that is the ruler amõg brethrẽ is houlden in honoure among them ãd he regardeth ſochas fere the lord. The glory of the riche of the honorable and of the poore is the feare of god.

Deſpiſe not thou the poore man, & magnifie not the rich vngodly. Greate is ẏ iuge and mightye in honour, yet is there none greater, then he that feareth God. Vnto the ſeruaũt that is diſcrete ſhall the free do ſeruyce. He that is wiſe and wel norſtured wil not grudg when he is reſourmed, and an inuoraũtbo dye ſhall not come to honoure. Be not proude to do thy work, and deſpear not in the tyme of aduerſite. Better is he ẏ laboureth, ãd hath plentcouſnes of all thinges, then he that is gorgeous and wanteth brede.

My ſonne, kepe thy ſoule in meekenes & geue her her due honour. Who ſhal iuſtify him that ſinneth agaynſt hi ſel. who wil honoure him, ẏ diſhoureth his owne lyfe? The poore is honoured for his faythfulnes & truth, but ẏ riche is had in reputaciõ becauſe of his goodes

He

he that ordreth him selfe honestly in po uerte, how moche more shal he behaue him selfe honestly in riches? And who so ordreth hym selfe vnhonestlye in riches, how moch more shal he behaue him selfe vnhonestly in pouertie.

The prayse of humilitee. After the outwarde appearaunce ought we not to iudge. Of ready ād rashe iudgement. The eyche is not without offence. All thinges come of God. All men are not to be broughte in to thine house.

The.xi. Chapter

A THe wisdom of hym that is brought lowe, shall lyft vp his head, ād shal make him to sit among great men. Cōmende not a man in his beautye, neither despyse a man in his vttermost apparaunce. The Bee is but a small beast among ye foules, yet is her frute exceding swete. Be not proude of thy raiment, ne exalte not thy selfe in the daye of thy honoure: for the workes of the Lorde are wonderfull: ye glorious, secrete and vnknowne are his worckes. Many tyrauntes haue bene fayne to sytt downe vpon the erth, and the vnlyckly hath worne the crowne. Many myghtie men haue bene brought lowe, and the honorable haue ben deliuered in to other mēs hādes. Condemne no man, before thou haue tryed out the matter: and when ye haste made enquisycion, then rebourne rightuously. Geue no sentence before ye hast herd ye cause but fyrst let mē tel out their tales.

B Strriue not for a matter ye toucheth not thy selfe, and stand not in the iudgment of sinners. My son, medle not with many matters: and if thou wilt be rich, thou shalt not get it: and though thou rennest thy way afore, yet shalt thou not escape. There is some man that laboureth, and the more that he wretteth him selfe, the lesse he hathe. Agayne, some man is slothful, hath nede of helpe, wāteth strength, and hath great pouerte, and Gods eye loketh vpō hi to good, setteth him vp from hys lowe estate, and lyfteth vp his head: so that many men maruel at him, and geue honoure vnto God.

Prosperite and aduersyte, lyfe and death, pouerte and riches, comeal of the Lorde. (Wisdomme, Nourture and knowledge of the lawe are with God: loue and the wayes of good are whym.

Errour and darknes are made synners: and they that exalte them selues in euel, waxe olde in euell. (The wyll of God C remayneth for the righteous, and hys good wyl shall geue prosperyte for euer. Some man is rich by lyuynge vngardly, and that is the portyon of hys rewarde, in that he sayeth: now haue I gotten rest, and nowwyll I eate and drink of my goodes my self alone. And yet he consyderyth not, that ye tyme draweth nye, that he must leaue all these thinges vnto other men, and dye him selfe. Stande thou fast in thy couenaunt, and exercyse thy selfe therein / and remayne in the worcke vnto thy age. Continue not in the workes of synners, but put thy trust in god, and byde in thyne estate: for it is but a ealy thyng in the sighe of God / to make a poore man riche, and that sodenly: The blessinge of God hasteth to the rewarde of the righteous, and maketh hys frutes sone to florysh and prosperare, say not: what helpeth it me? and what shall I haue the whyle? Agayne, say not: I haue ynough, howe can I waute? When thou art in welfare / forget not aduersitie: and when it goeth not well wyth thee, haue a good hope, that it shalbe better. For it is but a small thyng vnto God, in the daye of death to rewarde euery man accordyng to his wayes, the aduersitie of an whore maketh one to forget all pleasure: when a man dyeth, hys workes are discouered. Prayse no body before hys death for a man shalbe knowen in hys childeren.

Bringe not euerye man into thyne house, for the disceatfull layeth wayte dyuerslye. Lyke as a partrych in a mande / so is the hert of the proude: and lyke as a spye, that loketh vpō the fall of hys neyghbour. For he turneth good vnto euell / and sclaundereth the chosen. Of one sparck is made a gret fyer and an vngodly man layeth wayte for bloude. Beware of the disceatful, for he ymagineth wicked thynges to bring ye into a perpetual shame. If ye takest an aleāt vnto ye, he shal destroy ye in vnquietnes, and dryue ye frō thyne owne wales.

Vnto whom we ought to do good. Enmies ought to be eschued.

The.xii. Chapter.

A WHen thou wilt do good, knowe to whom thou doest it, and so shalt thou be greatly thanked for thy benefites. Do good vnto ye righteous and thou shalt fynd great rewarde: thoughe not of him, yet (no doute) the Lord him self shall rewarde the. He standeth not in a good case ye is alwaye occupied in euel, and geueth no almes: for the Hyest hateth the synners, and hath mercy vpon them that shewe the workes of repentaunce. Geue thou vnto soch as feare God, and receaue not a synner. As for the vngodlye and synners, he shall recompense vengeaunce vnto them, ād kepe them to the daye of wrath. Geue thou vnto the good, and receaue not the synner: do well vnto him that is lowly, but geue not to the vngodly. Let not the bred be geuē him, that he be not myghtyer then thy selfe therin. For so shalt thou receaue twyse as moch euell, in all the good that thou dost vnto hym: And why? the Hyeste hateth synners, and shal rewarde vengeaunce to the vngodly.

B In prosperite, a frynd shal not be knowne, and in aduersyte an enemie shall not be hyd. For when a man is in wealth, it greueth his enemies: but in heuines and trouble a man shall know hys frynde. Trust neuer thine enemy, for lyke as an yron rusteth, so doth his wyckednes. And though he make moch crouchyng and knelyng, yet kepe well thy minde, and bewarre of him. Set him not by the nether let him syt at thy right hand: lest he turne hym, gett in to thy place, take thy rowme and seke thy seate, and so ye at the laste remembre my wordes, and be pycked at my sayinges. Bynde not two synnes together, for there shall not one be vnpunisshed. C Who will haue pytye of the charmer, that is stynged of the serpent, or of all soch as comme the beastes: Euē so is it whiy kepeth cōpanie w a wicked mā, and lappeth hi selfe in hys synnes. For a season wyll he byde with the, but yf thou stomble, he tarieth not. An enemy is swete in his lippes, he can make many wordes and speake ma ny good thinges: Yee he can wepe wyth hys eyes, but in his herte he ymagineth how to throw thee in to the pytt: and yf he maye fynde opportunitie he wyl not be satisfyed wyth bloude. If aduersite come vpon thee, thou shalte fynde hym there fyrst and though he pretend to do the helpe, yet shal he vndermine the. He shall shake his head and clappe hys hādes ouer the for very gladnes and whyle he maketh many wordes, he shal disguyse hys countenaunce.

The companyes of the proude and of the eyche are to be eschued. The loue of god lyke do company w their lyke.

The.xiii. Chapter,

WHo so toucheth pitch, shal be fyled withall: and he that is familiar wyth the proude, shall clothe hym selfe with pryd. He taketh a burthen vpon hym, that accompanieth a mor honorable man then hiselfe. Therfore kepe no familarite with one that is richer then thy selfe. Howe agreethe the kettell and the pot together? for if the one be smytten against the other, it shalbe broken. The rich dealeth vnrighteously and threatneth with all: but the poore inge oppressed and wrongeously dealte with all, suffreth scarcenes, and geueth fayre wordes. If thou be for hys profit he vseth thee: but if thou haue nothinge he shal forsake the. As lounge as ye hast eny thing of thyne own he shalbe a good felow wyth thee: ye he shall make thee a bare man: and not be sory for the. If he haue nede of thee, he shal defraude the B and (with a priuie mocke) shal he put ye in an hope and geue thee all good wordes and saye: what wantest thou: Thus shal he shame the in his meate, vntyll he haue supte thee cleane vp twyse or thryse / ād at the last he laugheth the to scorne. After warde when he seth that thou hast nothing, he shal forsake the, and shake his heade at the,

Blessed is the man, that hath not fallen with the word of hys mouthe, and is not pricked with the conscience of synne. Happy is he that had no heuynes in his minde, and is not fallen from his hope. It becometh not a couetous man and a nygarde/to be ryche: and what shoulde a nygarde do with golde? He that with al his carfulnes hepeth together vnrighteously, gathereth for other folckes/and another mā shal make good chere with his goodes. He that is wycked vnto hym selfe, howe shoulde he be good vnto other men? How can suche one haue any pleasure of his goodes? There is nothyng worse, then when one dyssauoureth him selfe, and this is a rewarde of his wyckednes. If he do any good, he doth it not knowyng therof, & against his wyl, and at the last he declareth his vngraciousnes. God hope man of ye earth/ and turned him vnto erth againe. He gaue hym the nombre of dayes and certayne tyme, yea and gaue hym power of the thynges ye are vpon earth. he clothed hym with strength, ād made hym after hys awne lyckenes. He made all flesh to stande in awe of hym, so that he had the dompynyon of all beastes and foules. He made out of hym a helper lyke vnto hym self, and gaue thē dyscrecyon and tonge, eyes and eares, and a herte to vnderstande, and fylled them with instruccyon and vnderstandynge. He created for them also the knowledge of the spyrete, fylled their hertes wt vnderstandyng, and shewed them good and euell. He set hys eye vpon their hertes, to declarynge vnto them hys greate and noble workes: that they shulde prayse hys holy name together, reioise of hys wonders, and be tellynge of hys noble actes. Besyde thys, he gaue them instruccyon/ and the lawe of lyfe for an herytage. He made hym an euerlastyng couenaunt with them, and shewed the his ryghtuousnes and iudgements. Their eyes sawe hys glory wyth their eyes, & their eares heard the maiesty of hys voyce. And he saide vnto them: beware of all vnrygh tuous thinges. He gaue euery man also a commaūdement cōcerninge his neighboure.

Their waies are euer before him, and are not hid from his eies. He hath set a ruler vpon euery people, but Israel is the Lordes portion. All their workes are as the Sunne in the sight of God, and hys eies are alwaye lokinge vpon their waies. All their vnrighteousnesses are manyfest vnto him, and all their wickednesses are open in hys syght.

The mercye that a man shewethe is as it were a purse wyth hym, and a mans good deade preserueth hym as the apple of an eye. At the last shal he awake, and reward euery man vpon hys head as he hath deserued, and shall turne them together into the nethermost partes of the earth/ but vnto them that wil repente, he hath geuen the waye of righteousnes. As for suche as be weake, he comforteth them, sufferyth them and sendeth them the porcion of the verite O turn then vnto the lord/ forsake thy synnes, make thy prayer before the lord, do the lesse offence, turne a gayne vnto ye Lord/ forsake thyne vnrighteousnes, be āber enmy to abhominaciō/ learn to know the righteousnes and iudgemen tes of God, stande in the porcion that is set for thee, and in the prayer of the moost hye god. Go into the porcion of the holy world: wyth such as be lyuig/ and geue thankes vnto god.

Who wyll prayse the Lorde in the hell? Abyde not thou in the erroure of the vngodly, but geue him thankes before death. As for the dead/ thanckfulnes perisheth from hym as nothynge. Geue thou thankes in thy lyfe, ye whyle thou arte lyuing and whole shalt thou geue thankes and prayse god and reioyce in hys mercy. O how greate is ye louing kyndnesse, of the lorde, and his mercyfull goodnes vnto suche as turne vnto hym? For al thinges maye not be in mā, and wyy? the sonne of man is not immortal, & he hath pleasur in ye barite of wickednes. What is more clere the the sōne? yet shal it fayle. Or what is more wicked then the thing that flesche and bloude hath imagined? and the same shalbe reproued. The lorde seyth the power of the hye heauen, and all ar but earth and ashes.

Who shalbe able to expresse the workes of him? Who hath sought out the grounde of his noble actes? Who shal declare ye power of his greatnes? Or, who wil take vpon him to tel oute his mercy? As for the wonderous workes of the Lorde, there mate nothing betaken from them/ nothyng maye be put vnto them, nether mate the grouñd of them be founde out. But when a man hath done his best, he must begin agayne: and when he thinketh to com to an ende, he muste go agayne to hys labour. What is man? Wherto is he worthy? what good or euell can he do? If the nōbre of a mās dates be almost an hundreth yeare/ it is muche.

Lyke as the droppes of rayne are vnto the sea, and as a grauell stone is in comparyson of the sande: so ar these few yeares to the date euerlastinge. Therfore is the Lorde pacyent with thē and poureth out his mercy vpō them. He sawe and perceaued the thoughtes and ymaginacyons of their hertes/ ye they were euell: Therfore heaped he vp his mercyful goodnes vpon thē, and shewed them the waye of righteousnes. The mercy that a mā hath reacheth to his neighbour: but the mercy of god is vpon al flesh. He chasteneth, he teacheth and nourtoureth: yea euen as a shepard turneth againe his flock, so doth he all them that receaue chastenyng, nurtoure and doctryn. Merciful is he vnto them, that stande in awe of hys iudgements. My sonne, whē thou doest good make no grudging at it: & what soeuer thou geuest, speke no discomforlable wordes. Shall not the dewe coule the heate? Euen so is a word better then a gyfte. Is not a frendly worde a good honest gyfte but a gracious mā geueth them bothe.

A foole shall cast a man in the teeth, and that roughly, and a gyft of the nygarde putteth out the eyes. Get the righteousnes before thou come to iudgement. Learne before thou speakest & go to physyke or euer thou be sycke: examen and iudge thy selfe, before the iudgement come, and so shalt thou fynd grace in the sight of God.

Humble thy selfe afore thou be sycke, &

in tyme of thy dysease shew thy conuersacion. Let not to prayse alway, and stande not in feare to be reformed vnto deth/for the reward of God endureth for euer. Before thou prayest prepare thy soule, and be not as one that tempteth God. Thincke vppon the wrathfull indignacion, that shalbe at the ende, and the houre of vengeaunce, when he shal turne awaye his face. When thou hast ynough, remembre the time of honger, and when thou art rych thinck vppon the tyme of pouertie and scarcenesse.

D From the morninge vntyll the euening the time is chaunged, and al such thinges are sone donne in the syghte of God. A wise man feareth God in all thynges, and in the dayes of transgression he kepeth hym selfe from synne.

A discrete man hath pleasure in wisdome/and he that kyndethe her, maketh much of her. They that haue had vnderstandinge/haue dealt wysely in wordes, haue vnderstande the truethe and righteousnes, and haue sought out wyse sentences and iudgementes. Folow not thy lustes, but turne from thyne owne wyll. For yf thou geuest thy soule her desyres, it shall make thyne enemyes to laugh thee to scorne.

The. xix. Chapter.

A A Labouring man that is geuen vnto dronckenes, shall not be rych: and he that maketh not muche of smal thinges, shall fall by lytle and lytle. Wyne and women make wyse men rennagates, ad put men of vnderstanding to reprofe: and he that accompanyeth aduouterers shal becom a wicked man.

Mothes and wormes shall haue hyre to herytage, ye he shalbe set vp to a greter ensample, and his soule shalbe soo ted out of the nomber. He that is hasty to geue credence is lyght mynded/and doth against hym selfe. Who so reioyceth in wyckednes, shalbe punished: he that hateth to be reformed, hys lyfe shalbe shortened: and he that abhorreth babelynge of wordes, quencheth wyckednes. He that offendeth against his owne soule, shal repente it: and he that reioyceth in wyckednes, shalbe punyshed.

Rehearce not a wicked and churlysh worde twyse, & ỹ shalt not be hindered. Shew thy secretes neyther to frende nor foo, and yf thou hast offended, tel it not oute. For he shal herken vnto the, and whē he lyeth opportunitie/he shal hate the. If thou hast herde a word agaynst thy neyghbour, let it be deed within the: and be sure, thou shalt haue no harme therby. A fole trauayleth with a worde, lyke as a woman that is payned with bearing of chylde. Like as an arow shot in a dogges thyghe, so is a worde in a foles hert. Tel thy frend hys faute, lest he be ignorant, and saye: I haue not done it, or yf he haue done it, that he do it nomore. Reproue thy neyghboure, that he kepe his tōg & if he haue spoke, that he saye it nomore. Tell thy neyghboure his faute, for oft tymes an offence is made, & geue not credence to euery worde. A man falleth sometyme wit his tonge, but not with hys wyll. For what is he, ỹ hath not offended in hys tonge? Geue thy neyghbour warning, before thou threaten him, & geue place vnto ỹ lawe of the Lorde. The feare of God is all wysdome, and he that is a ryght wyse man, kepeth the lawe. As for the doctryne of wyckednesse, it is no wysdome, and the prudence of synners is no good vnderstandyng: it is but wyckednesse & abhominacio and a blaspheming of wisdome. A symple man of small vnderstandyng that feareth God, is better then one that hath moch wysdom, and transgresseth the lawe of the Hyest. A crafty sotrell man can be wyse, but he is vnrighteous, and with gyftes he walketh the open and manyfest lawe.

The. xx. Chapter

A Some man reproueth hys neyghboure oft times, but not in due season: Againe some man holdeth his tonge/and he is wyse and discrete. It is muche better to geue warninge & to reproue, then to beare euell wyll: for he that knowledgeth hi self openly, shalbe preserued from hurt and destruccion. Like as whē a gelded mā thorow delyte & lust desyreth a maiden, euen so is it wt hi ỹ vseth violence and vnrighteousnes in ỹ lawe. O how good a thig is it, a man ỹ is reproued/ to shew openly his repentaunce: for so shalt thou escape wylful synne.

A Eccli. xvii. d

Some man kepeth sylence, and ys soūd: but he ỹ is not ashamed what he saieth/is hateful. Some man holdeth his tong/ because that he hath not the vnderstandyng of ỹ language: & some man kepeth sylence, waityng a conuenient tyme. A wise man wyl holde hys tonge tyl he se opportunite/but a wantō and vndiscret body shal regard no tyme. He ỹ vseth many wordes, shal hurt his owne soule: and he ỹ taketh auctorite vpon him vnryght eously/shalbe hated. Some man hath oft time prosperte i wicked thiges. Ageyne, some man getteth much/ & hath harme and losse. There is some gift ỹ is nothig worth: & gaine there is som gift, whose reward is double. Some mā getteth a fall for beig to proud & some cōmeth to worth vp frō low estate. Som mā bieth moch for a litle price & must paye for it seuenfold. A wise mā wt hys wordes maketh him self to be loued, but the fauours of foles shalbe poured out. The gifte of ỹ vnwyse shall do the no good, for hys eyes are seuen folde. He shall geue lytle, & saye he gaue moch: he openeth his mouth & crieth out, as it were one that crieth out wine. To date helendeth, to morow he asketh it againe, & soch a man is to be hated. The foole saieth: I haue no frende, I haue no thanke for all mi good dedes: yee euen thei that eate mi bred, speake no good of me. O how oft, and of how many shall he be laughed to scorne? He taketh a more perilous fall bi soch wordes then if he fell vpon the grounde: euen so shal the falles of wicked men come hastely. In the mouth of hym that is vntaught, are many vnconuenyent and vnmete wordes. A wyse sentence shall not be alowed at the mouth of the fole, for he speketh it not i due season. Som man synneth not, because he hath not wherwithall, & i hys rest he shalbe synned. Some man there is th at destroyeth hys awne soule wyth shame, & for an vnwyse bodyes sake destroyeth he it, and wyth acceptynge of persones shal he vndoo hym selfe. Some man pronosticateth his frende a gyft for very shame, & getteth an enemye of hym for naught. A lye is a wycked shame in a man, yet shall it be euer in the mouth of the vnwyse. A theefe is better, then a man that is accustomed to lye, but they bothe shall haue destruccyon to herytage. The condycions of lyers are vnhonest, and their shame is euer wyth them. A wyse man shall bringe him selfe to honoure with his wordes, and he that hath vnderstandynge shall be set by among greate men. He that tilleth hys lād shal encrease hys heape of corne: he ỹ worcketh righteousnes/shall be exalted/ and he that pleaseth greate men, shall escape muche euell.

C Eccli. xxxii. a

Rewardes and gyftes blynde the eyes of the wyse/and make him dōme, that he cā not tel men their faultes. Wisdō that is hyd/and treasure that is hoorded vp, what profyte is in them both? Better is he that kepeth his ignorance secrete, then a man that hideth hys wysdome.

¶ Of the repentaunce of sin. We may not heape sinne vpon synne. The boldnesse of an heretyke. The end of sinners. Of ỹ foole and of the wise man. Of hym that cursseth ỹ deuell.

The.xxi.Chapter.

a Eccli.v.a. viii.a.xiiic.

MY sonne if thou hast sinned, do it nomore: but praye for thy fore sinnes, ỹ they maye be forgeuen thee. Flee frō sinne, euen as from a serpente: for yf thou commest to nie her, the wyll byte the. The teeth therof are as the teeth of a lyon, to slay the soules of men. The wickednes of man is as a sharpe two edged swerde, which maketh such woundes that they can not be healed.

Stryfe & wrongeous dealing, shall waste awaye a mans goodes, & thy frow pride a riche house shalbe brought to naught: so the riches of ỹ proude shal be roted out. The prayer of the poore goeth out of the mouth, and commeth vnto the eares/and his vēgeaunce (or defence) shal come, & that hastely. Who so hateth to be reprouued, it is a token of an vngodly parsonne: but he that feareth God, wyl remembre him selfe. A mightye man is knowne a farre of by his tonge, but he that hath vnderstanding, perceueth that he shal haue a fal.

B Who so buyldeth his house wyth other mens cost, is lyke one that gathereth stones in winter. The congregacyon of the vngodly is like stubble gathered together their ende is a flame of fier. The waye of the vngodly is set with stones, but in their end is hel, darknes and payne. He that kepeth the law, wil holde fast the vnderstandyng thereof/ and the ende of the feare of God is wisdome. He that is not wyse, wyll not be taught in good: but the vnwise man abundeth in wicked nesse: and where bitternes is, there is no vnderstandynge. The knowledg of ỹ wise shal flow like water that renneth ouer, and his counsel is like a fountayne of lyfe.

C The harte of a foole is lyke a broke vessel, he can kepe no wisdome. Whē a man of vnderstanding heareth a wyse worde, hee shall commende it and make much of it. But if a voluptuous man heare it, he shall haue no pleasure therin but cast it behynde ỹ bacte.

The talkyng of a foole is like an heuy burthen by ỹ waye: but to heare a wise man speake, it is a pleasure. Where a dout is in the congregacyon, yt is asked in the mouth of the wyse/ād they shal pōder his wordes in their hertes. Lyke as a house that is destroyd, euen so is wisdom vnto a foole: As for the knowledg of the vnwise, it is but darke wordes. Doctrine is vnto him ỹ hath noo vnderstandinge, euen as fetters about hys fete/and lyke mannyckles vpon his right hande. A foole lifteth vp hys voyce vñ laughter/ but a wyse man shal scarse laugh secretly.

D Lernynge is vnto a wyse man a Jewel of gold, and lyke an armlet vpon his right arme. A foolish mans fote is soone in his neighbours house, but one that hath experience, shalbe ashamed at the personne of the myghtye. A foole wyl pepe in at the window into ỹ house/but he that is wel nurtoured, wil stande wout. A foolysche man standeth herkenynge at the doze/but he that is wyse/wil be ashamed.

The lyppes of the vnwyse wyl be telling foolish thinges, but the wordes of suche as haue vnderstanding, shall be weyed in the balaunce. The hert of fooles is i their mouth, but the mouth of the wise is in their hert. When the vngodly curseth ỹ blasphemer/he curseth his owne soule. A preuy accurser of other mē, shal defile his owne soule, and be hated of euery man: (but he that kepeth his tong & is discrete, shal come to honoure.

Ecclus.xxi.

¶ The purgacon of ỹ slouthfull. Of the folysh sonne & daughter, we must haue discretion how ād to whom we ought to preache, of forgyuyng vpō ỹ deed. A fole is not to be much talked withal. Inuenyes and wrōges do breake frendshipād amite.

The.xxii.Chapter.

A Slouthfull body is moulded of a stone of clape. He ỹ toucheth hym must chew his handes agayne. A nurtoured sonne is ỹ dyshonoure of the father. A foolysh daughter shalbe lytle regarded. A wyse daughter is an heretage vnto her husband, But she that commeth to dyshonestye/ bryngeth her father in heuines. A daughter ỹ is past shame, dishonoureth both her father & her husbād: ỹ vndiscreet shal regarde her, but they both shal despise her, the playege of Musick is not mete where heuynes is, euen so is the correccyon and doctryne of wysdome euer vnpleasaunt vnto fooles. Who so teacheth a foole, is euen as one that gleweth a potherde together: as one ỹ telleth a tayle to hym that heareth hym not, and as one that rayseth a man out of an heuy slepe. Who so telleth a foole of wysdome, is euen as a man, whych speaketh to one ỹ is a slepe. When he hath tolde his tayle, he saieth: what is the matter? When one dyeth, lamentacion is made for hym, because the lyght fayleth hym: euen so let men mourne ouer a foole: for he wanteth vnderstandyng. Make but lytle weyyng because of the deed: for he is come to rest, but the lyfe of the fole is worse then the deeth. Seuen dayes do men mourne for hym that is deed, but the lamentacyon ouer the vnwyse and vngodly shuld endure all the dayes of their lyfe. Talke not moch with a foole/& go not with hym that hath no vnderstandyng. Bewarre of him, lest he turne the to trauayle, and thou shalt not be defiled with his sinne. Departe from him, & thou shalt fynd rest, & shalt not be droue back into his folyshnes. What is heuyer then leade? And what shuld a foole be called els but leade. Sande, salt, and a lumpe of yrō is easier to beare, then an vnwyse, folysh, and vngodly man. Like as the band of wod bōd together i the foundacō of the house can not be lowsed, euen so is it wt the hert ỹ is stablyshed in the thought of councell. The thought of the wyse, shall neither feare ner be offended at any tyme.

Ecclus.xxi.

Like as a fayre playstred wall in a wynter house, and an hye buyldig, may not abyde the wynde and storme, euē so is a foley herte afrayde in hys ymagynacion: he feareth at euery thyng/& can not endure. He ỹ nippeth a mās eye/bringeth forth ỹ teares, & he ỹ pricketh the hert/bringeth forth ỹ menig & thought. Who so casteth a stone at the byrdes/ fraieth thē away: & he ỹ blasphmeth his frende: breaketh the frendshyppe: though ỹ drawest a sweard at thy frend, yet dispayre not, for thou mayest come

E lagayn to thy frend. If he speake lowet ỹ, feare not, for if ye maye be agreed to gether agayne: except it be that thowe blaspheame hym/ disdayne hym, open hys secretes, and wounde hym traytertoutlye: for all suche thinges shall dryue away a frende.

Be faythfull vnto thy neighboure in hys powerte/that thou mayest reioyce with hym also in hys prosperite, Abide stedfast vnto hym in the tyme of hys trouble/that thou mayest be heyre with hym in his heretage. Lyke as the vapour and smoke goeth oute at the ouen before the fyre, euen so euell wordes, rebukes & threatenyngs go before bloudeshedding. Be not ashamed to defend thy frende: as for me/I wyll not hyde my face from hym though he should do me harme. Who soeuer heareth it, shall bewarre of him. Who shall set a watch before my mouth, and a sure seale vpon my lyppes/that I fall not wyth them, and that my tonge destroy me not.

Psalm.xxxix.

¶ A prayer against pryde, lecherye, and glotony. Of othes, blasphemy, and of wyse communicacion. Of the thre kyndes of synnes. Many synnes proceed of aduoutery. Of the fere of God.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

O Lorde, father and gouernour of my lyfe/ leaue me not in theyr generacion, & good councell. Oh let me not fall into suche reproue. Who wyll kepe my thoughte with the scourge/and the doctrine of wysdōme in myne herte: that he spare not myne ignoraunce, that I fall not wyth them, lest myne ignoraunces increase/that myne offences be not many in nombre, ād that my synnes preuayle not, least I fall before myne enemyes, and so my aduersary reioyce. O Lorde, thou father and God of my lyfe, leaue me not in theyr y maginacyon. O let me not haue a proude loke/but turne away all voluptousnes fro me. Take fro me the lustes of the body/ let not the delyres of vnclennes take holde vpon me/and geue me not ouer into an vnshamefaste and abhominable myynde. Heare me (O ye chylderen) I wyll geue you a doctryne/how ye shal order your mouth: who so kepeth it/shall not perysh throw his lyps, nor be hurt throw wicked workes as

As for the synner/he shalbe taken in his owne vanitie: the that is proud and cursed, shall fall therin.) Let not thy mouth be accustomed with swearinge/for in it there are many falles. Let not the namynge of god be continually in thy mouth: for ofte a seruaunt which is ofte punished can not be without some sore, seuen so what soeuer he be that sweretheand nameth god, shall not be clean purged from sinne. A man that vseth much swearinge / shall be fylled wythe wickednes, and the plage shal neuer go fro his house. If he begyle hys brother/hys faulte shalbe vpon hi: if he knoledg not hys synne, he maketh a double offence/and if he sweare in vain, he shal not be founde righteous/for hys house shal be full of plages.

The wordes of the swearer bringeth death (God graunte that it be not tolde in the house of Jacob.) But they that feare god/eschue al suche, and lye not wel certinge in synne. Vse not thy mouth to vnhoneste & filthy talking for in it is the worde of synne. Remembre thy father & thy mother, whē ye art set amōg great mē, lest god forget the in theyr syght, ād lest thou doting in the custom suffre rebuke, and wysh not to haue ben borne/and so curse the daye of thy natyuite. The mā that is accustomed with the wordes of blasphemye, wyll neuer be reformed al the dayes of his lyfe. To synne twyse is to muche/but the thyrd bringeth wrath and destruction. An hote stomnake can not be quenched (euen lyke a burninge fyre) tyll it haue folowed vp somthing: euen so an vnchast man hath no rest in hys flesche, tyll he haue kindled a fyre.

All breade is swete to an whoremonger/he wyll not leaue of, tyl he haue his purpose. A man that beareth wedlocke, and regardeth not his soule, but saieth: Tush, who seith me? I am compassed about with darkenes, the walles couer me, nobody seeth me: whom nede I to fere? The hyest wyll not remembre my sinnes. He vnderstandeth not that hys eyes se al thinges/for al such feare of men dryueth away the feare of god fro him: for he feareth onely the eyes of mē, & cōsydereth not ye the eyes of the lorde are clearer then the Sunne, beholdinge all the wayes of men and thee grounde of the depe, and lokyng euen to mens hertes in secrete places. The Lorde God knoweth al thinges or euer they were made & after they be brought to passe also he loketh vpon them al. The same man shalbe openly punyshed in the stretes of the citie, and shalbe chased abrode lyke a ponge horse foale: and when he thynketh leest vpō it, he shalbe take. Thus shal he be put to shame of euery man because he wolde not vnderstand the feare of the Lorde. And thus shall it go also with euery wife that leaueth her husband, ād getteth an heretaūce bi a strāge mariag. First she hath bene vnfaithful vnto the lawe of the Hyest: Secondly, she hath forsaken her own housbād: Thirdly, she hath playd the whore in adultry, and gotten her children by another man. She shalbe brought out of the congregacion, and her children shal not take rote: and as for frute, her braunches shal bring forth none. A shamful reporte shal she leaue behind her, and her dishonoure shall not be put out. And they yt remayne, yt al knowe that there is nothing better then the feare of God: ād that there is nothing swete then to take hede vnto the cōmaundementes of the Lorde. A greate worshippe is yt to folowe the Lorde, for longe lyfe shal be receyued of him.

A prayse of wysdom proceading forth of the mouth of god. Of her workes & place where she resteth.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

Wysdome shal prayse her selfe, and be honoured in god and reioyce in the myddest of hys people: In the congregations of the hyest shal she ope her mouth, and triūphe in the beholding of hys power: In the myddest of her people shal she be exaltedde, and wōdred at in yt holy fulnes: In the multytude of the chosē she shalbe cōmended & among suche as be blessed & she shalbe praysed & shal say: I ā cō out of ye mouth of ye hyest, fyrst borne before al creatures. I caused the light yt fayleth not to aryse in the heauen and couered al the earth as a cloude. My dwellinge is aboue in the heyghth, and my seate is in the pyller of

I haue walked in the floudes of ye sea, and haue stand in al landes: my dominion is in euery people & in euery nacion, & wt my power haue I trodē doune the hertes of al/both hie and lowe.

In all these thinges also I soughte rest, and a dwellinge in some enheryta unce. So the creator [illegible] liges gaue me a commaundement. [illegible] he yt made me, appointed me a tabernacle/& saide vnto me: Let thy dwelling be i Jacob, and thine enheritaunce in Israel, and rote thy selfe among thy chosen. I was created from the beginning ād before the worlde, and shal not leaue of vnto yt world to come. In the holy habitacyon haue I serued before him, & so was I stablished in Sion. In the holy citie rested I in lyke manner: and in Jerusalem was my power. I toke roote in an honorable people, euen in the porcyon of the Lorde and in hys heretage, and kept me in the fulnes of the saintes. I am set vp an hie lyke a Ceder vpon Libanus, and as a Cypres tree vppon the mount Hermon: I am exalted lyke a palme tree in Cades/and as a rose plāt in Jericho: As a fayre olyue tree in the feld/and am exalted lyke as a platane tree by ye water side. The.xxv. Chapter

Thre

A Gene.xl.ii.b Roma.xii.a.

THre thinges there are, ỹ my spirete fauoureth, which be also alowed before God ād men: The vnite of brethren the loue of neyghbours, ā men and wife that agree well together.

Three thinges ther be which my soul hateth ād I vtterly abhorre the lyfe of them: A pore man that is proud. A rych man that is a lyar, and ā olde bodi that doteth and is vnchaste. Eccl.xl.b.

If thou hast gathered nothing i thy youthe/what wylte thou finde then yn thin age? O how pleasant a thing is it, when gray headed men are discrete, ā when the elders can geue good counsel! O how comely a thing is wisdom vnto aged men? ye vnderstanding ā counsel is a glorious thing. The crowne of olde men is to haue moch experience and the fere of god is their worshippe.

B There be.iii. thinges whiche I haue iugged in my harte to be happye, and the tenthe, will I tell forthe vnto men with my tonge. A man that while he liueth, hath ioye of his children/ād seith the fall of his enemyes.

Well is him that dwelleth with an huslwyfe of vnderstandynge, and ỹ hathe not fallen with his tong, and that hath not bene fayne to serue soch as are vnmete for him. Wel is him, that fyndeth a faythfull frende: ā wel is him, whiche talketh of wisdome to an hert that heareth hi. O how great is he ỹ fideth wisdō ā knowlege? yet is he not aboue hi that feareth the Lord. The fear of god hath set it selfe aboue al thinges. Blessed is the man, vnto whome it is graūted to haue ỹ feare of god. Vnto whom shal he be lyckened that kepeth it fast? The feare of god is the beginyng of his loue, and the beginninge of fayth is to cleue fast vnto it. The heuines of ỹ hert is al the punishment, ād the wickednes of a woman goeth aboue al. Al punishment and plage is no thing in comparison of the plage of the herte, euen so al wykednes is nothing to the wickednes of a woman.

C Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto amā, is noothinge in comparison of it, that his euel willers do vnto hym. And all vengeance is no thynge to the vengeaunce of the enemye. There is not a more wicked heade then the head of the serpent, and there is no wrath aboue the wrath of a woman. I ỹ will rather dwell wt a lyon and dragon, then to kepe house wt a wicked wyfe. The wyckednesse of a woman chaungeth her face, she shall moffell her countenaunce as it were a Beer, and as a sack shal she shewe it among the neyghbours. Her husbande is brought to shame amonge his neyghbours, ād whē he heareth it, it maketh him to syghe. All wyckednes is but lyle to the wyckednes of a woman, ỹ pore vpon of the vngodly shal fall vpon her. D Eccl.xlii. ii.Reg.xii. Like as to clymme vp a sandy waye is to ỹ fete of the aged, euen so is a wyf full of wordes to a styll quiete man. Lo ke not to narowly vpon the bewtye of a woman, lest ỹ be prouoked in desyre toward her. The wrath of a woman is di honoure and greate confusyon. If a woman get the maistrie, then is she contrary to her housbande. ā wycked wyfe maketh a sory herte, an heuy countenaunce and a deed wounde. Of the woman came the begynnyng of synne, and thorow her we al are ded. Geue thy water no passage, no not a lytle, neither geue a wicked woman her wyll. If she walcke not after thy hande, she shall confounde the in the syght of thy enemies. Cut her of then from thy flesh, lest she do not al waye abuse the.

C The praise of a good womā. Of the fere of thy thynges ā of the fourth. Of ỹ Jelouse ā dronken womā. Of two thinges ỹ cause sore of the third which mouth wrath. It is hard to fynde a marchaunt without dyscet, or a lauerner wythout synne in his tong.

C The.xxvi. Chapter

HAppye is the man that hathe a vertuous wife, for the nombre of his yeares shalbe dubble. An honest woman maketh her husband a ioyful man/and she shall fyl ỹ yeares of his lyfe in peace. A vertuous womā is a noble gift/which shalbe geuen for a good porcyon vnto such as fere god. Whether a man be ryche or poore, he maye haue euer a mery hert, and a cheareful countenaunce, there be thre thynges that my herte feareth/and my face is a frayde of the fourth.

C Treason ina citie, a seditious people, and notsome tonges, al these are heuyer then the death. But when one is gelous ouer his wife, it bringeth paine ā sorowe vnto the harte: and a womanly scolde out al thinges, is a scourge of ỹ tong. When one hath an euel wife, it is cue as when ā vnlyke pare of oxē must draw together/he that getteth her, getteth a scorpion. A dronken woman is a great plage, for she can not couer her owne shame.

B The whordom of a woman may be knowen in the pride of her eyes and eie lidds. Jf thy daughter be note shame fast, holde her straytly, lest she abuse her selfe throw ouermoch liberte. Beware of al the dishonestie of her eyes, ā marcuel not if she do against the. Like as one that goth bi the waye and is thirstie, so shal she open her mouth, and drincke of euery next water that she maye get. Bi euery hedge shal she set her downe, ād open her cuiuer agaynst euery arowe. A louing wyfe reioyseth her husband, and fedeth his bones with her wisdom. A womā, of few wordes is a gift of god and to a well nourturede mynde maye nothing be compared. Ecclesiasti. Sapie.iiii.a i.Pet.iii.b.

An honest and manerly woman is A gift aboue other gyftes, and ther is no C weight to be compared, vnto a mynd that can rule it selfe. Like as the sunne when it ariseth, is an ornament in thee hye heaue of the Lord, so is a vertuous wife the bewty of al her house. Like as the cleare syght is vpon the holy cādelsticke, so is the beuty of the face vpō ā honest body. Like as the golden pyllers are vpon the sockettes of siluer, so are thee fayre legges vpon a woman that hath a constant minde. Perpetual faze ỹ foundations that be layed vpon a whol stony rocke, so are the commaundementes of God vpon an holy woman. Ecclesiasti.v.d

There be two thiges that greue mi hert, and in the thirde is a displeasure come vpon me. When an experte man of warre suffrethe scarnesse and pouertee. When me of vnderstādinge and wisdome are not sette by: ā when one departeth frome ryghtousnes vnto sinne. D

Who so doth suche, the lorde hath prepared hym vnto the swerde. There be two maner of thyngs, which me thinck to be herde and perilous. A marchaunt can not lyghtely kepe hym from wrongnes neyther a cau. kepe hym selfe from synne.

C Of the poore that wolde be ryche, the probacō of the man that feareth god. The vncōstantnes of a fole, the secretes of a frende aze not to be vttred. The wycked imaginyth euell which retorneth vpon himselfe.

The.xxvii. Chapter

A BEcause of pouertt haue many one offended, and he that seketh to be rych, turneth his eyes a syde. Like as a nayle in the wall sticketh faste betwyxte two stones, euen so doth synne stick betwixt the byer and the seller If he holde hym not diligently in the feaze of the lordhys house shal sone be ouerthrowē. Lyke as whē one sifteth the fylthynes remayneth in the syue: So remayneth ther some vncleane thinge in the thought of mā. The ouen proueth the potters vessel/so doth temptacion of trouble trye righteous men. Ecclesiasti.xxxi.b

The tree of the felde is knowen by his frute, so is the thoughte of mans herte knowen by his wordes. Prayse no mā excepte thou haue herd hym, for a man is knowen by hys woordes. B

If thou folowest rightousnes, thowe shalt get her/and put her vpon thee as a fayre garment. And thou shalt dwell with her, and she shall defende thee for euer, and in the day of knowledg thou shalt fynde her fastnes. The byrdes resorte vnto their lyke, so doth the truth turne vnto them that be occupyed with all. The lyon waytheth for the praye: so do the synnes lurke vpon the workers of wickednes: The talkynge of hym ỹ feareth god, is nothyng but wisdome: as for a foole/he chaungeth as the Mone. If thou be amonge vndiscret/kepe thy worde to a conuenient tyme, but amonge such as be wyse, speake on hastely. The talkinge of fooles is abhomination, and their sporte is volupteousnes and mistnurture: Muche swearig maketh the heare to stand vp/and to stryue with such, stoppeth the eares.

The strife of the proud is bloudshe dig, ā their blaspemig is heuy to heare.

Who

Eccle.xvi.b, xviii.b.

Who so discouereth secretes, leseth his credence, and fyndeth no frende after hys wyll. Loue thy frende, and bide thy selfe in kyndfulnes wyth hi, but if thou bewrayest his secretes, thou shalt not get him agayne: For lyke as the mā is that destroyeth hys ennemye, so is he also that dealeth falsely in the frende shippe of his neyghboure.

D Like as one that letteth a byrde go out of his hand, can not take her agayne: Euen so thou, if thou geue ouer thy frēd, thou canst not get hym agayne: Yea thou canst not com by him, for he is to farre of. He is vnto the as a Roo escaped out of ỹ snare, for his soule is woūded: As for woūdes, they may be bound vp agayne, and an euell worde may be reconciled: but who so bewrayeth the secretes of a frende, there is nomore hope to be had vnto hym.

Pro.r.b. He that winketh with his eyes, imagineth some euel, and no man shal take hym from it. Whē they are present, hee shall hastely commende and prayse thy wordes: but at ỹ last he shall euene his tayle, and sclaunder thy saiyng. Many thinges haue I hated, but nothyng so euell: for the Lord him selfe abhorreth such one.

Who so casteth a ston on hye, it shal fall vpon hys owne heade: and he that smyteth with gyle, woundeth him selfe. C Exod.xxi.b. Who so diggeth a pyt, shal fal therin: & he that layeth a snare, shalbe taken in it hym selfe: whoo so geueth a wycked noysome councell, it shall come vpon hi selfe/and he shall not knowe from whēce. The proude blaspheme and are scornefull/but vengeaunce lurketh for thē as a lyon. They that reioyce at the fal of the righteous, shall be taken in the snare/anguish of hert shal consume thē before they dy. Anger and rygorousnes are two abhominable thynges, and the vngodly hath them both vpon hym.

We ought not to despyse vengeaunce, but to forgeue the offence. Of the vices of the toung, and of the daungers therof

The. xxviii. Chapter.

A Deu.xxxii.c. Rom.xii. C Mat.v.b.vi b.xviii.b. He that seketh vengeaunce/shal fynde vengeaunce of the Lorde/ whyche he shall surely kepe hym hys synne.

Forgeue thy neyghboure the hurt that he hath done thee, and so shal thy synnes be forgeuen the also/ when ỹ prayest. A man that beareth hatred one agaynst another, howe darre he desyre the forgeuenes of god? He that sheweth no mercy to a man whiche is lyke him selfe, how darre he aske forgeuenes of his synnes? If he that is but flesh, beareth hatred and kepeth it, who wyll entreate for hys sinnes? Remembre the end, and let enmite passe, which seketh deth and destruccion / and abyde thou in ỹ commaundementes. Remembre the cōmaundement, so shalt thou not be rigorous ouer thy neyghboure. Thynck vpon the couenaunt of the hiest, and forgeue thy neyghboures ignorauce. Bewarre of strife, and thou shalte make thy sinnes fewer. For an angry mā kyndleth barfaunce and the vngodlye Eccle.viii.c. dyssqupeteth frendes /and putteth discorde amonge them that be at peace The more wodd there is/the more vehement is the fyre: and the mightier ỹ men be, the greater is the wrath: and ỹ longer the stryfe endureth/ the more yt burneth. Prou.xvi.c. Eccle.viii.c.

An hasty brawlynge kyndleth a fire, and an hasty stryfe sheddeth bloud. C If thou blow the sparke: it shal burne: If thou spyt vpon it it shal go forth, & both these go out of thy mouthe. The Euelitus sclaūderer and dubble tunged is cursed/for many one that be frendes seeketh be at variaunce. The thirde tong hath disquieted many one, and dryuē them from one lande to another. Strong cyties hath it broken downe, and ouer throwne the houses of greate mē. The thyrde tonge hath cast out many an honest woman, and robbed them of their laboure. Who so herkeneth vnto suche, shal neuer fynde rest/and neuer dwel safely. The stroke of the rodd maketh pedders/but the stroke of the tong, smyteth the bones in sunder.

There be many that haue perished wt the swerd, but many mo thorow the tonge.

Well is him that is kepte frō an euell tounge, and commeth not in the anger therof, whyche drayweth not the yocke of suche / and is not bounde in the B bandes of it. For ỹ yock therof is yron, and the bande of it of stele. The deathe therof is a very euel death: hell were better for one, then suche a tonge. But the eye of it, maye not oppresse theim that feare God, and the flamme therof, maie not burne them. Suche as forsake the Lord, shal fal therin: and it shal burne them, and no man shal be able to quech it: It shal fal vpon them as a lyon, & deuoure them as a leopard. Thou hedgest thy goodes with thornes: why dost thou not rather make dores ād barres for thi mouth: Thou weyest thi golde and siluer: why doest thou not weye thy wordes also vppon the balaunce? Be ware that thou slyde not in thy tonge, and so fall before thyne enemyes/ ỹ laye wayte for the.

How we ought to lend our money, & do almes. Of a faythful man and weyyng for his frende. Of lyberalytye and hospytalytye.

The. xxix. Chapter.

A Who so wil shewe mercy, let hi lēd vnto his neyghbour: and he that is able, lett him kepe the cōmaūdmēt. Lende vnto thy neghbour in time of his nede, and paye thou thy neyghbour agayne in due season. Kepe thy word and deale faithfully with hi & thou shalt alwaye finde the thinge ỹ is necessary for the. There haue bene many, ỹ whē a thing was lent thē, rekened it to be found, & made them trauayle & labour, that had helped them. Whyle they receaue eny thinge, they kysse the handes of suche as geue them, and for their neyghbours good they humble their voyce. But whēn they should paye agayne they kepe it backe, and geue euel wordes, and make many excuses, by reason of the time: and though he be able, yet geueth he scarse the halfe agayne, & rekeneth the other to be foūd. And if he wolde not his money, yet hath he ā enemie of him, and that vndeserued.

B He payeth him with cursing & rebuke & geueth hi euel wordes for his good dede. Ther be many oē which are not glad for to lende / not because of euell, but they feare to lese the thinge that they lende. Yet haue thou pacience with the symple, and withholde not mercy from him. Helpe the poore for the commaundementes sake, and let hym not go empty frō thee, because of his necessitie. Lese thy money for thy brother and neyghbours sake/and bury it not vnder a stone wher it rusteth and corrupteth. Gather thy treasure after the commaundementes of the hyest, and so shall it bringe ỹ more profyt then golde. Lay vp thy almes in the hand of the poore/and it shal kepe the from all euell. Matth.vi.c. Luk.xii.d. 1.Timo.vi.d

A mans almes is a purse wyth hym, and shall kepe a mans fauour as the apple of an eye: and afterwarde shall it aryse, and paye euery man his rewarde vpon hys heade. It shall fyght for thee agaynste thyne enemyes, better then the shyld of a glaunce, or speare of the myghtye. A C good honest man is suertie for hys neybour, but a wicked parsone letteth him com to shame. Forget not the frendshyp of thy suertie, for he hath geuē hys soule for thee. The vngodly despysethe the good deade of hys suertye, and the vnthanckfull and ignorant leaueth hys suertye in daunger. Some man promiseth for hys neyghboure: and when he hath lost hys honestie, he shal forsake hi. Suertieshyp hathe destroyed manye a richman/and remoued them as the waues in the se. Mighti people hath it driuen awaye, and caused them to wandre in straunge countres. An vngodly mā trasgressing the commaundement of ỹ Lord/ shall fall into an euell suertieshipe: and though he force hym selfe to get oute, yet shall he fal, into iudgemente. Dan.xiiii.de Luke.xi.d. Acts.x.b. Tob.iiiii.b

Helpe thy neyghbour out after thy power, and beware, that thou thy selfe fal not in suche dett. The cheake thynge ỹ kepeth in the lyfe, is water and breade, clothyng and lodgynge, to couer the shame. Eccl.xxxix.c.

D Better is it to haue a poore lyuinge in a mans owne house, then delycate fare amoug the straunge. Be it lyttle or much that thou hast, holde thee content wt all, and thou shalt not be blaymed as a vacabounde, for a myserable lyfe is it, to goo from House to House / and where a man is a stembe/he darre not open hys mouth. thy, and heare many bitter rough wordes, namely thus: Go thy waie thou straunger, and prepare a table for thi selfe, and fede me also of that thou hast. Awaie thou straunge (so, ꝑ he regardeth hys honoure no more) mi brother cõme to in to mi house, and so he telleth hi the necessite of his house. These thinges are heuie to a man that hath vnderstãding: namely, the forbyddynge of the house, and that the Lender calleth him in the teth.

¶ Of ꝑ correction of children. Of the commodite of health. Death is better thẽ a sorowfull lyfe. Of hyd wysdom. Of the ioye and sorow of the hert.

The. xxx. Chapter.

Pro. xiii. c and. xxiii. b

WHo so loueth hys childe, holdeth him still vnder correction, that he maye haue ioye of him afterward, and ꝑ he grope not after hys neyghbours dores. He that teacheth his sonne, shall haue ioye in him, and nede not to be ashamed of him amonge his aquauntaunce. Who so enstructeth & teacheth his sonne, greueth ꝑ enemye: and before hys frendes he maye haue ioye of him. Though the father dye, yet is he as though he were not dead: for he hath left one behynde him that is lyke him. In his lyfe he sawe him, & had ioye in him, and was not sory in his death, nether was he ashamed before the enemyes. For he left behynd hym an auenger agaynste his enemyes, and a good doer vnto the frendes. For the lyfe of chyldren he shall bynde the woundes together, and his herte is greued at euery crye. An vntamed horse wilbe hardened, and a wanton childe will be wylfull. If thou bryngest vp thy sonne delicately, he shall make the afrayed: and yf thou play with him, he shal bryng the to heuynes. Laugh not wt hi, lest thou wepe wt hym also, and lest thy teth be sett on edge at the last.

Geue him no lyberte in hys youth and ercuse not hys folye. Bowe downe hys necke whyle he is younge, and bynde him vppon the sydes whyle he is yet but a chylde, least he ware stubberne, and geue no more force of thee and so shalt ꝑ haue heuines of soule. Teach thi child de, and be diligẽt therin, lest it be to thy shame. Better is the poore beinge whole and stronge, then a man to be riche, and not to haue his health.

Health and welfare is aboue all golde, ād a hole bodi aboue al treasure. Ther is no riches aboue a sounde body, and no ioy aboue the ioie of ꝑ hert. Deth is better then a wretched lyfe, or continual sickines. The good thinges ꝑ are put in a close mouth, are like as when meate is laide vpon the graue.

What good doth the offering vnto ā Idole? For ner̄ā nether eat, tast, ner smel. Euen so is he ꝑ is chased of the Lorde, and beareth the rewardes of iniquitie. He seeth with his eyes, and groneth lyke a gelded man, that lyeth wyth abyrgin and sygheth. & eue not ouer thi mide into her̄ynes, and bere not thy selfe in thine owne counsel. The ioye and cherfulnes of the herte is the life of man, & a mans gladnes is the prolonginge of his dayes. Loue thyne owne soule, & cõforte thine hert: as for sorow and heuines, driue it fare frõ the, for heuines hath slayne many a man, and bringeth no profit, zele and anger shorte ꝑdaies of the life: carfulnes and sorow bringe age before the time. Unto a mery herte euery thinge hath a goode tast, & that he eateth.

¶ We ought to geue diligẽt hede to hospytye. Of the that take payne to gather riches. The prayse of a ryche man wythout a faute. We ought to flie dis̄ kennesse and folowe soberneſſe.

The. xxxi. Chapter.

Eccle. v. c

RAuayle ād carefulnes for riches taketh awaie ꝑ sleps and maketh the flesh to consume. When one lyeth and taketh rest, he waketh euer by, like as greate sickenes breaketh the slepe. The rich hath great labour in gathering his riches together, and the wt the pleasure of his riches he taketh his rest, and is refreshed. But who so laboureth and prospereth not, he is poore: ād though he leaue of, yet is he a begger. He ꝑ loueth riches shal not be iustified: & whoso folowerh corruptiõ, shal haue inough therof. Many one are come in greate misfortune by the reason of gold, ād haue found their destruccio before the.

Terence. It is a tree of fall vnge vnto them that offre it vp, and all such as be foolysh/ fall therin. Blessed is the rich/ which is founde wythout blemysh/ and hath not gone after golde/ nor hoped in moneye ād treasures. Where is there suche? and we shall commende hym: and call hym blessed / for greate thynges dothe he among his people. Who so is tryed, and founde perfecte in suche thynges, shalbe commended and praysed. Who myght offende and hath not offended? Who coulde do euell and hath not done it? Therfore shall hys good be stablysshed, and the whole congregation shal declare hys almesses. If thou sytte at a great mans table/ open not thy mouth wyde vpõ it, and make not many wordes. Remembre, that an euell eye, is a shrewe.

What thynge created is worse thẽ a wycked eye? therfore wepeth it before euery mans face? Laye not thyne hand vpon euery thyng that thyne eye seeth, and stryue not with hym in the dishe.

Ecclesi. viii. a

Ponder by thy selfe what thy neyghbor wolde layne haue/ and be discrete in euery poynte. Eate thy thyng that is set before thee manerly/ as it becommeth a man: and eate not to much, lest thou be abhorred. Leaue thou of fyrst of all because of nurture, lest thou be he, who no man maye satysfye, which maye cure ne to thy decay. When ꝑ sytteſt among many men/ reache not thyne hand first of all. O howe well content is a wyse man with a lytle wyne & so that in slepe thou shalt not be sycke therof, nor, fele payne. A swete wholsome slepe shall suche one haue, and fele no inward greefe. He ryseth vp betimes in the mornyng, and is well at ease in hym selfe. But a vnsaciable eater slepeth vnquietly, and hath ache & payne of the body. If thou feleſt that thou haſt eaten to much/ a lyle, go thy waye/ cast it of thy stomack, and take thy reste.

Terence. hi.

My sonne, heare me, and despise me not/ and at the last thou shalt fynde as I haue tolde the: In al thy workes be diligent and quicke so shal there no sickenes happe vnto the. Who so is lyberall in dealing out of his meat, many men shall blesse hym, and prayse his lyberalite:

Rom. xii. d. Prou. xxii. a and the same is a sure token of his loue and faithfulnes. But he that is vnfaithful in meate, the whole citie shal cõplaine of him: and that is a sure experience of his infidelite & wyckednes. Be not thou a wine bibber, for wine hathe destroyed many a mã. The fire proueth the hard iron, even so doth wine proue the hertes of the proude, when they be dronken.

Wine soberly dronken, quickeneth the life of mã. If thou drinckeſt it measurably thou shalt be temperate. What life is it, that maie continue without wine? Wyne was made frõ the beginning, to make men glad (and not for drõkennes) wine measurably dronke is a refoylinge of the soule and body. But if it be dronken with excesse, it maketh bytternes and sorowe vnto the mynde. Drõkenes filleth the mind of ꝑ foliſh wt shame & ruine, mynisheth the strength & maketh woundes. Rebuke not thy neyghboure at the wyne/ and despyse him not in his mirth. Geue hi no despytful wordes, ād prease not vppõ him wt contrary sayenges.

Of the discretion & prayse of a preacher. & of ꝑ hert. Of the feare, fayth, & confidence of God.

The. xxxii Chapter.

Deut. xvii. a

IF ꝑ be made a ruler, prayse not thy selfe therin, but be thou as one of the people. Take diligẽt care for the, and loke wel therto: & when thou hast done al thy dewtye, sette thee downe, that thou mayst be mery wt the/ ād receaue a croune of honoure. Talke wisely and honestly/ for wisdome be cõmeth the right wel. Hinder not musyck.

Speake not, where ther is no audience: and poure not forth wysdome out of tyme at an importunyte. Like as the Carbuncle stone shyneth that is set in golde, so doth a songe gaynyth ꝑ wine feaſt: and as the Smaragde that is set in golde, so is ꝑ swetnes of Musick by the mirth of wine.

Thou yonge man, speake that becõmeth the and that is profytable, ād yet scarſe when thou art twyse asked. Comprehende moch with fewe wordes. In manye thynges, bee as one that is Ignoraunt, geue eare, & holde thy tonge withal. If thou be amonge men of hyer auctorite, desier not to compare thy selfe vnto them: and when á elder speaketh, make not thou many wordes therin. Before ỹ thonder goeth lightnyng/ and before nurtour ād shamefastnesse, goeth loue and fauoure. Stand vp by times, and be not the last: but get ỹ hōre soone, and there take thy passime, and do what thou wylt: so that thou do no euell, and defye no maune. But for all thinges geue thanckes, vnto him that hath made the, and replenished the with his goodes.

C Who so feareth the Lorde, wil receaue his doctrine: and thei that gett them to him by times, shal find grace. He that seketh the lawe, shall be filled wyth all: As for him that is but fayned, he wyll be offended therat. They that feare ỹ Lorde, shal finde the iudgment, & righteousnes shalbe kindled as a light. An vngodly mā wil not be reformed, but can helpe him sele with the example of other in his purpose. A mā of vnderstā ding, despiseth no good counceil: but a wilde and proude body hath no feare. My sone, do nothing with out aduisement/ so shal it not repent the after the dede. Goo not in the waye where thou maiest fal/ ner wher thou mayest stomble agaynst the stone. Geue not thi selfe into a laborious slipperye waye, ād beware of thine owne childzen. In al thy workes put thi trust i god frō thi whole hert, for that is the keppnge of the commaūdemētes. Who so beleueth Gods worde, taketh hede to the comuaunde mentes: and he that putteth his trust in the Lord, shal want nothinge.

C The deliuraunce of him that feareth God. The answere of ỹ wise. The litteall discreption of a fole. Man is in the hāde of God, as ỹ earth is in hād of ỹ potter. We ought not to dyspose oure selues, to be come subiect to other.

The.xxiii. Chapter.

A Her shal no euel happe vnto him that feareth God: but when he is in temtatiō, the Lord shal deliuer him. A wise man hateth not the lawe, but an ypocrite is as a shippe in a raginge water.

A man of vnderstandynge geueth credence vnto the lawe of god, & the lawe is faythful vnto him. Be sure of the mater, then talke therof the first wel in structe/ then mayest thou geue answer. The herte of the foolishe is lyke a carte whele, ād hys thoughtes rēne about lyke the earell tre. Lyke as a wylde hoorse that neyethe vnder euerye one ỹ syteth vpon him, so is it wyth a scornefull frende. Why doth one daye excell another, seynge all the dayes of the yeare come of the Sunne? The wysdome of ỹ Lorde hath so parted them a sunder, & so hath he ordened the tymes and solempne feastes. Some of them hath he chosen and halowd before other dayes. And all men are made of the grounde, and out of the earth of Adam.

In the multitude of scyence hath the Lorde sundered them, and made their wayes of dyuerse fashyons. Some of thē hath he blessed, made moch of thē, halowed them, and claymed them to hi selfe. But some of them hath he cursed, brought them lowe, and put them out of their estate. * Like as the clay is in the potters hande, and all the ordynge therof at his pleasure: so are men also in the hande of him that made them, so ỹ he may geue them as it liketh him best. Agaynst euell is good, & agaynst death is lyke: so is the vngodly agaynst soch as feare God. Beholde thus all the workes of the Hyest, and there are euer two agaynst two, and one sect agaynst another. I am a waked vp last of al, as one that gathereth after in harueste. In the gyftes of God and in hys blessynge I am increased, and haue fylled my wyne presse, like a grape gatherer. Beholde, how I haue not laboured only for my selfe but for all soche as loue nurtoure and wysdome.

Heare me, O ye greate men of the people, and herken with yont eares ye rulers of the congregacyon. Geue not thi sone and wife/ thi brother and frende power ouer the/ whyle thou lyuest: and geue not awaie thi substaunce and good to a nother/ lest it repent the/ and thou be fayne to begge therfore thi self. As longe as thou lyuest and hast breth/ let no mā chaunge the: For better it is thy childe to praye ỹ, then that thou shuldest be fayne to loke in their hādes. In al thy workes be excellente, that thy honoure be neuer stayned. At the time whē thou shalt ende thy dayes, and finysh thy life, destrybute thine inheretaunce. The fodder, the whippe, and ỹ burden, belongeth vnto the Asse: Meate, correccyon, and worke vnto the seruaunte.

If thou set thy seruaunt to labour thou shalt fynde rest. But if thou let him go ydel, he shal seke lyberty. The yocke and the whippe bowe downe the neck, but tame thou thy euel seruaunt wt bōdes & correccion. Sende him to labour, that he go not ydle: For ydilnesse bringeth moch euel. Set him to worke, for that belongethe vnto him and becometh him wel. If he be not obedient, bide hys fere: but do not to much vnto hi in any wyse, and without discretion do nothyng. If thou haue a faythful) seruaunt, let him be vnto the as thine owne soule, for in blonde hast thou gotten him. If thou haue a seruaunte, hold hi as thy selfe, for thou hast nede of him as of thi self. If thou intreatest him euel & and kepest him harde, ād makest him to be proud, and to renne awaye from the thou canst not tel what waye thou shalt seke him.

Of dremes, dyuinacions, & enchauntementes. We ought to confute vayne hope, and lyinge. The practise of thē ỹ fere god. Of diuers workes of men. God dothe not alowe the worcke of an vnfaythfull man.

The.xxxiii. Chapter.

VN wise people begile themselues with vayne and deceatful hope, ād foles trust in dreames. Who so regardeth dreames/ is like him ỹ wil take holde of a shadowe, & folowe after the winde: Euen so is it wyth the appearings of dreames. Before the face is the likenes of a face. Who cā be clensed of the vnclene? Or what truth can be spoken of a liar? Soothsayinge, witchcraft, sorcery and dreamige, is but vanite: like as whē a womā trauayleth with childe, and hath many fantasyes in her herte. Where as soch visions cōe not of God, set not thine hert vpō the: For dremes hath disceued many a mā, & they fayled, ād put their trust therin.

The lawe shalbe fulfilled without lyes, and wisdom is sufficiēt to a fayth full mouth. A wyse man that is well instructe, vnderstandeth moch: and he that hath good experience, can talke in wysdome. He that hath no experience, knoweth lytle: and he that erreth, cause th moch wickednes.

When I was yet in erroure, I lerned moch alsoone I was so lerned, that I coulde not expresse it all, and came oft in parell of death therouer, tyll I was delyuered from it. Now I se, that they which feare god, haue the right practise: for their hope stādeth in him, that can helpe them. Who so feareth the Lorde, standeth in awe of no man, and is not afrayed, for the Lorde is his hope and comforte. Blessed is the soule of hym ỹ feareth the Lorde: In whom putteth he hys trust? who is his strength? For the eyes of ỹ Lorde haue respecte vnto them, that loue hym. He is their mightie protection and stronge grounde: A defence for the heate, a refuge for ỹ hote none daye, a succore for stomblyng, & an helpe for fallynge. He setteth vp the soule, and lyghteneth the eyes: He geueth health lyfe and blessynge. He that geueth an offering of vnrighteous good, his offeryng is refused: and the scornefull dealynges of the vnryghteous please not God. God hath no delyte in the offeryngs of the vngodlye, nether may he synne be reconcyled in the multitude of oblacyons. Who so bryngeth an offerynge out of the goodes of the poore, doth euen as one that kylleth the sonne before the fathers eyes. The bred of the nedefull is the lyfe of the poore: he that defraudeth him therof, is a man of blode. Who so robbeth hys neyghboure of hys lyuing/ doth as great synne as though he slewe hym to deathe. Deut. xxiiii. c Eccle. xxi. c

He that defraudeth the labourer of hys hyre is a bloudsheder. When one buyldeth ād another breaketh doune/ what profyt haue they then but labour? When one prayeth ād another curseth whose voyce the lord will here? He that washeth him self because of a dead body, and then toucheth the ded agayne, what doth his washing? So is it with a mā that fasteth for his sinnes, & doth them agayne: who wil heare his prayer? Or what doth his fasting help hi?

Ther is som cõpanyon which en Ecclesi. b. ioyeth prosperite reioyceth wyth hys frende: but in the tyme of trouble, he taketh the parte agaynst hym. Ther is some companyon, that mourneth with his frend for the bellyes sake: but when trouble cometh, he taketh holde of the shylde. Forget not thy frende in thy mynde/& thynke vpon hi in thy ryches. Euery counseler bryngeth forth hys counsel: Neuertheles there is some that counseleth but for hys own profyt. Beware of the counseler/ and be aduised afore wherto thowe wylte vse hym, for he wyll counsell for hym self: Lest he cast the lot vpon thee, and say vnto thee: Thy waye and purpose is good/ and afterward he stande agaynst thee/and loke what shall become of thee. B

Aske no councel at hym, that suspecteth thee for an enemye/and hyde thy counsel from suche as hate thee. Aske no councell at a woman concerning ỹ thinges that she longeth for: nor at a fearefull and vnpacyent body in maters of warre: or at a marchaunt/ how dearе he wyl cheape thy warres, towarde hys: or at a byer, of sellynge: Or at an envious mã, of thankelygening: Or at a vnmercyful/of louing kindnes Or at the slouthful, of worcking: Or at a hirelyng which hath no house, of pro fite or wealth. (An idle body wold not gladly here speake of muche labourе.) Take no such folkes to councel, but be dilygente to seke councell at a vertuous man that feareth god, such one as thou knowest to be a keper of the commaundementes, which hath a mind after thine owne mynde, & is sory for thee when thou stomblest.

And holde thy councel fast i thyne C hert: for there is no man more faithful to kepe it, thẽ thou thy self. For a mãs mynde is sometime more disposed to tel out, then seuen watchmẽ ỹ sit aboue i ã hye place loking about thẽ. And aboue al this, praye the Hyest, ỹ he wyll leade thy waie in faithfulnes and truth. Before al thy workes aske cõsel first: and or euer thou doest any thing, be wel aduysed. Ther be four thinges ỹ declare a chaunged hert, whereout there springeth euel & good, death & life, & a mas Eccl. xxi. b terfull tong ỹ babieth much. Som mã is apte & wel instruct i many thinges/

and yet verye profytable vnto hym selfe. Some man there is, that can geue wyse and prudent counsel, and yet is he hated/and continueth a begger: for that grace is not geuen him of god, to be accepted. An other is robbed of all wysdome, yet is he wyse vnto hym selfe, & the frute of vnderstanding is faythfull in hys mouth.

A wyse man maketh hys people wyse/and the frutes of hys wysdome fayl not. A wyse man shalbe plenteously blessed of God/. and all they that see hym, shal speake good of hym. The lyfe of man, standeth in the nombre of the dayes/but the dayes of Israel are innumerable. A wyse man shall optayne faythfulnes and credence amonge hys people/and hys name shalbe perpetuall.

My sonne proue thy soule in thy lyfe, & yf thou see any euell thynge/geue it not vnto her. For all thynges are not profytable for all men, nether hath euery soule pleasure in euery thynge. Be not gredy in euery eating, and be not to hasty vpon all meates. For excesse of meates bryngeth sycknes, & glotony commeth at the last to an vnmeasurable heate.

Thorowe glotonye haue many one perysshed: but he that dyeteth hym selfe temperatly, prolongeth hys lyfe.

¶ A Physicien In sicknes ought we to praye, & not to a Physicien whych healeth by prayer. The weping of the dead. Sadnes. Wisdome. Artificers or craftesmen.

¶ The.xxxviii. Chapter.

Honoure the Physicien: honoure hym because of necessite. God hath created him (for of the hyest cōmeth medicyne) and he shall receaue gyftes of the kynge. The wysdome of the Physicien bryngeth hym to great worshyp, and in the syght of the great men of thys worlde, he shalbe honorably taken. The lorde hath created medecyne of the earth/and he that is wise will not abhorre it. Was not the bitter water made swete wyth a tree, that men might learne to knowe, the vertu therof. The Lorde hath geuen men wisdome and vnderstanding/that he might be honoured in hys wonderous workes. With suche doth he heale men, & takyth away ther paines: Of such doth the Apotecary make a confeccyon/ yet can no man perfourme al his workes. For of the Lord commeth prosperous wealth ouer al the earth.

My sonne, despyse not thys in thy sickenes, but praye vnto the Lord, and he shal make the whole. Leaue of from synne, and order thy handes a right: clense thine hert from al wickednes. Geue a swete sauoured offring, and the fine floure for a token of remembraunce: make the offeryng fat, as one that geueth the fyrst frutes, and geue rowme to the Physicien. For the Lorde hath created hym: let him not go from the/ for thou hast nede of him. The houre maye come/that the syck maye be helped thorow them, when they praye vn to the lorde, that he maye receaue, and get health to lyue longer. He that synneth before hys maker, shall fal into ye handes of the Physicyon.

My sonne, bryng forth the teares ouer the dead: and beginne to mourne, as yf thou haddest suffred grete harme thy selfe: and then couer his bodye after a conuenyent maner, & dyspise not his burial. Enforce thy selfe to wepe/ and prouoke thy selfe to mourne and make lamentacion expedyently, and ye a daye or two, lest thou be euel spoken of: and then comforte thy selfe because of the heupnes. For of heupnes commeth death/the heuines of the hert breaketh strength. Heupnes and powertie greueth the hert in temptacion and offence. Take no heupnes to hert, dryue it awaye, and remembre the last thinges. Forget yt not, for there is no turnige agayne. Thou shalte do no good, but hurt thy self. Remembre his iudgmēt, thyne also shalbe lyke wyse: vnto me yester daye/vnto the to daye. Let the remembraunce of the dead ceasse in hys rest, & cōfort thy self agayne ouer him, seyng hys spyrete is departed from hi.

The wildome of the scrybe is at cōuenyent time of rest: and he that ceaseth from exercyse and labour/shalbe wise. He that holdeth the ploughe, and hath pleasure i proddyng and dryuinge the oxen, and goeth about wyth suche workes, he can speake of oxen.

He

He setteth his hert to make forowes/& is dylygent to geue the kyne fodder.

So is euery carpenter also and worke maister, that laboureth styl nighte and daye: he carueth, graueth and cutteth out, and his delite is in sondry cōning thinges, and his hert ymageneth/how he make conyngly caste an image, hys dilygence also and watching perfourmeth the worcke. The pyon smith i like maner bydeth by his stithye, and doth his dyligence to labour the pyon. The vapoure of the fyre bzenneth hys flesh, and he must fyght wyth the heate of ye fornace. The noyse of the Hammer soūdeth euer in his eares, & his eyes loke styl vppon the thinge that he maketh. He hath set his mynde therupon, that he wil make out his worcke, and therfore he watcheth/ howe he maye set yt out/and bryng it to an ende.

So doth the potter syt by his worcke, he turneth the whele aboute wyth his fete/he is dilygent and carefull in al doinges, and his labour and worke is wout nombre. He fashioneth ye clate wt his arme/and wt hys fete he tempereth it. His hert ymageneth howe he may make it pleasant, and his diligēce is to clense the ouen. All these hope in their handes/& euerye one thinketh to be cōning i his worke. Without these maye not the cytes be maintened, inhabited ner occupied: yet com thei not nie in the congregacion: they vnderstand not the couenaunt of the lawe: they cā not declare equyte and iudgment: thei can not fynd out the darke sentences: But thorow them shal the creature of the worlde be manyteined: their praier conterneth onely the worke and labour of connynge.

Twyse man. The workes of god. Vnto the good, good thynges do profyte: but vnto the euell euen good thinges are euyll.

¶ The.xxix. Chapter.

He that applyeth his mind to vnderstād ye law of god, doth dylygently seke oute the wysdō of the of the olde tyme, & exercyseth him selfe in Prophetes. He kepeth ye sayinges of famous mē, & preasseth to ye vnderstanding of darke sētences of wysdome. He seketh out the mystery of secrete sayinges, and exercyseth hym selfe therin continually. He dothe seruice amonge great men, and apeareth before the prince. He goeth into a straunge contre and traueleth thorowe it: loke what good or euell is amonge men, he prouith it and seketh it oute. He purposeth in his hert, to resorte early vnto the lorde that made hym, and to praye before the Hyeste God. He openeth his mouth in prayer, and prayeth for hys synnes. When the greate Lorde wyl, he shalbe fylled with the spyret of vnderstanding, that he may then poure out wyse sentences, and geue thanckes vnto the Lorde in hys prayer. He shall order hys deuice, and leade hys knoweledge aryght/and geue him vnderstandinge of secrete thynges. He shall shewe forth the science of hys learnynge/and reioyce in the couenaunt of the lawe of the lord. The whole congregatyon shall commende hys wysdome, and it shall neuer be put out. The remembraunce of hym shall neuer be forgotte/ & hys name shal cōtynue frō one generacio to an other. His wysdō shal be spoken of & the whole congregatyon shal openly declare hys prayse whyle he lyueth he hath a greater name the a thousand beside and after hys death the same name remayneth vnto hym. Yet wyll he speake of mo men of vnderstandinge, for I am ful as the Moone.

Herken vnto me (ye holy vertuous children) bryng forth frute, as the rose ye is plāted by the brokes of the feld, and geue ye a swete smel as Libanus. Florysh as the rose garden, singe a songe of prayse. O geue thankes vnto god ouer all hys workes. Geue glory āde honour vnto the lord, shewe his prayse wt your lyppes. Ye euē wt the song of your lippes, wt harpes & playing, & in geuig thākes vnto hi/saye after thys maner: All ye workes of the lorde are exceding good/& al hys commaundementes are mete & conuenient in due season. And nede not to saye: what is ye/ whatis ye/ for at tyme conuenient they shall be sought. At hys commaundment ye water was as a wall/& at the word of his mouth the waters stode styl. At hys commaūdment is euery thyng acceptable & maūdment is euery thyng acceptable & cōtrolled, & his helth cā not be minished

The workes of all flesh are before him, and there is nothing hyd from his eyes. He seyth from euerlastyng to euerlastyng, and there is nothing to wōderful or hye vnto hym. A man nede not to saye then, what is this, or that? For he hath made al thinges to do good vnto mā. His blessing shall renne ouer as the streame, and moisture the erth like a flode of water. Like as he maketh ỹ water for drouth, so shal his wrath fall vpon the Heathen.

E His wayes are playne and vpright vnto the iust, but the vngodly stomble at them. For the good, are good thinges created from the begynnyng, and euel thinges for the vngodly. Al thinges necessary for the lyfe of man, are created from the begynnyng: water, fyre, yron & salt, meel, wheate and hony, milke & wyne, oyle & clothinge. All these thinges are created for the best to be faythfull: But to the vngodly shal all these thinges be turned to the hurte and harme.

Here be spretes that are created for vengeaunce, and in their rygorousnes haue they fastened their tormentes. In the tyme of ỹ ende they shall poure oute their strength, & pacify the wrath of him that made them. Fyre, hayle, hōger and death: all these thinges are created for vengeance.

The teeth of wylde noysome beastes, the scorpions, serpentes, and the swerde are created also for vengeaunce, to the destruccyon of the vngodly. They shall be glad to do his cōmaundementes: and when nede is, they shal be ready vpon earth: and when their houre is come, they shall not ouerpasse the commaundement of the Lorde.

F Therfore haue I take a good corage vnto me from the begynnynge, and thought to put these thynges in wryting, & to leaue them behynde me. Al the workes of the Lorde are good, & he geueth euery one in due season, & whā nede is, so that a mā nede not to say: this is worse then that. For in due season they are all pleasaūt and good: And therfore prayse the Lorde with whole herte and mouth, and geue thankes vnto his name.

C Many miseries ligh in a mās lyfe. Al things passe away, but a fyrme & stable faith remayneth. Of the blessyng of the righteous, & prerogatyue of the feare of God.

The.xl. Chapter.

A Greate trauaile is created for al men, and an heuy yocke vpon al mens childzen/ from the daye that they go out of their mothers wombe/tyl they be buried in (the earth) the mother of all thynges: namelye, their thoughtes and imaginacyons/feare of the hert, councell, meditacyons, longinge and delyre/the daye of deth: for the Hyest that sytteth vpon the glorious seate, vnto the lowest and most symple vppon the earth: from him that ys gorgeously arated, and wereth a croune, vntyl him ỹ is but homely and symply clothed. There is nothing, but wrath, zele, fearefulnes, vnquietnes/ and feare of death, rigorous anger and strife. And in the nyght when one should rest and slepe vpon his bed/the slepe chaūgethe his vnderstanding and knowe-ledge. A lyke as nothing is his rest, in the slepe as well as in thee daye of labour.

B He feareth & is disquieted in ỹ vysyon of his hert, as one that reseth out of a batell: and in the tyme of health he awaketh/ and marueleth that the fere was nothinge. Such thinges happen vnto al flesh, both man and beast: but seuē fold to the vngodly. Moreouer, death/bloudshedinge, strife and swerd/oppression, honger, destruccion & punishment: these thiges ar al created againe the vngodly, & for their sakes came ỹ floude also. Al that is of the earth, shal turne to earth againe: & al waters ebbe & gaie into ỹ sea. Al bribes & vnrighteousnes shalbe put awaie/but faith sulnes & treuth shal endure for euer. The substaunce ād goodes of ỹ vngodly shall be dried vp and synck away as a water floude/and they shal make a soūde lyke a greate thunder in the rayne. Lyke as the rightuous reioyseth whē he openeth hys hande/so shall the trāsgressours be fanyte, when their goodes vanysh and consume awaye. The childzen of the vngodly shal not obtayne many braunches: and the vnclene rotes rotes vpon the hie rockes shalbe rotted out before the gras by the water syde, & vpon the ryuer bankes.

Frendlynes and liberalitie in the encrease and blessing of God, is lyke a paradice and garden of pleasure: such mercye also and kyndnes endureth for ever. To labour and to be content wyth that a man hath, is a swete pleasaunte lyfe: and that is to fynde a treasure aboue all treasures. To beget childzen and to repayre the cyte, maketh a perpetual name/but an honest woman is more worth then they both. Wyne and musyke reioyce the hert, but the loue of wyldome is aboue them both.

D Peping and harpinge maketh a swete noyse/but a frendly tonge goeth beyond them both. Thyne eye delyzeth fayre and bewtie, but a grene sede tyme rather then they both. A frende and companyon, come together at opportunitie/but aboue them both, is a wyfe that agreeth wyth her husbande. One brother helpeth an other in the tyme of trouble/ but almes shall delyuer more then they bothe. Gold and syluer fasteth the fete, but a good counsel is more pleasaunte then they bothe. Temporall substaunce and strengthe lyfte vp the mynde: but the feare of the Lord, more then they both. The feare of the Lorde wanteth nothinge, and nedeth no helpe. The feare of the Lorde is as a pleasaunte garden, of blessinge, and nothing so bewtifull as it is. My sonne, leade not a beggers lyfe/for better it were to dye then to begge. Who so loketh to ān other mans table/take the no thoughte for hys owne lyuinge, howe to vpholde hys lyfe, for he fedeth hym selfe with other mens meate. But a wyse and well nurtured man, wyl beware therof. Begging is swete in ỹ mouth of ỹ vnchaūfast, but in his belye there burneth a fyre.

C Of the remembraunce of deeth. Death is not to be feared. A curse vpon them that forsake the law of god. Good name and fame. An exhortacyon to seue hede vnto wyldom. Of what thynges a man ought to be ashamed.

C The.xli. Chapter.

O Deth how bitter is the remembrāce of ỹ, to a mā ỹ liueth rest & cōfort/ in hys substaūce ād ryches, vnto ỹ mā ỹ hath nothig, to hym hi, & ỹ hath prosperite in al thinges, yea vnto hi ỹ yet is able to receaue meate.

O death, howe acceptable and good is thy iudgment vnto the nedefull, ād vnto him whose strength fayleth, and that is now in his last age, and that in al thinges is ful of care & tearfulnes: vnto him also that is in dispayre, and hath no hope nor pacyence. Be not ỹ afraide of death: remembre then that I haue bene before the: and that come after the: this is the iudgment of ỹ lorde ouer al flesh. And whi wouldest thou be agaīst this pleasure of the Hyest? Whether yt be ten / an hundreth/ or a thousand yeare: death alloweth not how long one hath lyued. Gene.viii.

D The childzen of the vngodly are abhominable childzen, and to are theye ỹ kepe company with the vngodly. The inheritaunce of vngodly childzē shal com to naught, and ther posterite shal haue perpetual shame and confusion. The childzen complaine of an vngodly father: and why? for his sake theye are rebuked and dyspyysed. Woo be vnto you (O ye vngodly) which haue forsaken the lawe of the hyest God: yf ye be borne, ye shal be borne to curssyng/ yf ye dye, ỹ curse shal be your portyō. Eccle.xl.c

All that is of the earth, shal turne to earth agayne: so goo the vngodly also out of the curse vnto destruccion. The sorow of men is in their bodye: but the name of the vngodly shal be put out/ for it is nothing worth. Labour to get the a good name, for that shal continu lāger by the, thē a thousād grete treasures of gold. A good lyfe hath a nōber of daies, but a good name ēdureth for euer. My childzē, kepe wisdom & peace: for wysdom ỹ is hyd, & a treasure ỹ ys not lene/what profyt is in them both? Eccle.xli.d

C A man that hideth his folishnes, is better thē a mā ỹ hideth his wisdō. Therfore be ye turned at my wordes: for it is not good, al thiges & alwaye to be ashamed. True faith must proue & mesure it. Be ashamed of whordō before father & mother: Be ashamed of lesynge before ỹ prince & mē of auctorite: Of sinne, before ỹ iudge & ruler: Of offēce, before ỹ cōgregacion ād people: of vnrighteousnes, before a cōpanyō & frēd:

Of

Of theft, before the neyghboures. As for the treuth of god & his couenaũt, be not ashamed therof.

Roma.i.b.

Be ashamed to lye with thine elbowes vpon the bred: Be ashamed to loke vpon harlottes: Be ashamed to turne awaye thy face from thy frende. Be ashamed to take and not to geue: Be ashamed also to loke vpõ another mãs wyfe, and to make many tryflyng wordes with her mayden, to stande by her bedsyde. Be ashamed to vpbrayde thy frende: When thou geuest ayne thyng/cast hym not in the teth withal.

¶ Secretes maie not be opened. The lawe of god must be taught. A daughter. A womã. God knoweth al thinges, ye euen ỹ secretes of the hert.

¶ The.xlii. Chapter.

A Reherse not a thing twyse, ỹ disclose not ỹ wordes/ that thou hast herde in secrete. Be shamefast & well manered in dede, so shall euery man fauoure the. Of these thinges be not thou ashamed, and accepte no persõ to offend. Namely, of these thiges be not ashamed: Of ỹ lawe of god, of the couenaunt/of iudgmẽt: to bring the vngodly from his vngodlynes to righteousnes, and to make him a good man: to deale faythfully with thy neyghboure and companion: to distribute the heritage vnto the frendes: to be diligent to kepe treue measure & weight, to be content, whether ỹ getteste much or lytle: to deale truly with tẽporal goodes, in byenge and sellynge: to bringe vp children wyth dylygence: to correcte an euel seruaunt: to kepe that thine is from an euell wyfe: to sett a locke where many handes are: what thou delyuerest and geuest out to be kept, to tell it/and to wepe it: to write vp al ỹ out geuig & receuige: to enfourme the vnlerned and vnwyse: Of the aged, that are iudged of the yonge. Yf thou be dylygente in these thynges, thulye thou shalt be lerned and wyse and accepted

B of all men.

The daughter maketh the father to watch secretly: and the carefulnes that he hath for her/taketh away his slepe: yea in the youth, lest she shoulde ouergrow hym: And when she hath an husbande, lest she shoulde be hated: lest she shoulde be defyled or rauisshed in her virginite/or gotten with chylde in her fathers house: Or (when she commeth to the man) leaste she behaue her selfe not ryght or cõtynue vnfrutefull. If thy daughter be wanton, kepe her straytely, leaũ she cause thyne enemyes to laugh thee to scorne, & the whole cytie to geue the an euel reporte/& so ỹ be faine to heare thy shame of euery man/ãde confounded before all the people. Behold not euery bodyes bewtye, and haue not moch dwellynge amonge wemen. For lyke as ỹ worme and moth commeth oute of clothynge, so doth wicked nes come of women.

It is better to be with an euell man, then w a frendly wyfe ỹ putteth one to shame and rebuke. I will remembre the workes of the Lorde, & declare the thyng that I haue sene. In the wordes of the Lord are his workes. The Sunne ouerlooketh all thynges with his shyne, and all his workes are full of the clearenes therof. Hath not the Lord brought to passe, that his sayntes shuld tell out all his wonderous workes, which the Almightye Lorde hath stablyshed? All thynges endure in his glory. He seketh out the grounde of the depe and the hert, and he knoweth all their ymaginacyon and wysdome. For the Lorde knowe

D th all science, and he loketh in to the token of the tyme. He declareth the thynges that are past and for to com, & dyscloseth thynges ỹ are secret. No thought maye escape hym, nether maye eny worde be hyd from hym. He hath garnyshed the hye excellent workes of hys wysdome, and he is from euerlastyng to euerlastynge. Vnto him maye nothyng be added, nether cã he be minysshed, he hath no nede also of eny counsel. O how amiable are all his workes, and as a sparke to loke vpon? They lyue al, and endure for euer; and when soeuer nede is, they are al obedient vnto him. They are al dubble, one against another: he hath made nothyng ỹ hath fawt or blemysh. He hath stablyshed ỹ goodes of euery chone: and who may be satysfyed wyth his glory, when he seeth it?

¶ The summe of ỹ creatiõ of ỹ workes of God.

The. xliii. Chapter.

THe glory of the heygth, is ỹ fayre and cleare firmament, the bewtye of the heauẽ yn his glorious clearenes. The sunne when it appeareth, declareth ỹ daye in the goinge out of it, a marueilous worke of ỹ hieit. At noone it burneth ỹ earth, and who maye abyde for ỹ heate therof? Who so kepethe an ouen when it is hoote, thre times more doth ỹ Sunne burne vpon ỹ mountaynes, whe it bretheth oute ỹ fyrie beames and shinethe: with the brightenes of it, blindeth the eyes. Greate is the Lorde that made it, and in his cõmaundemẽt, he causeth it to renne hastely.

The Moone also is in al, and at cõuenient season it sheweth the times, & is a token of the time. The token of the solempne feast is taken of the Moone, A lyght that minysheth and increaseth agayne. The Moneth is called after ỹ, B Moone, it groweth wonderously in her chaungynge.

The armie of heuen also is in the heygth, in the firmament of heauen, ỹ geueth acleare & glorious shine: This is the clearnes of the starres, the bewtifull apparel of heauen, the apparel ỹ ỹ Lorde lyghtneth in the heygth. In his holy worke they continue in theyr ordre, ãd not one of them fayleth in his watch. Loke vpon the rayne bowe, & prayse him that made it: very bewtifull is it in his shyne. He compaseth the heauen aboue with his clearnes and glory, the handes of the Hyest haue bente it. Thorow the cõmaundement he maketh the snow to fal, and the wonder of hys iudgment to smyte hastily. Thorow his commaundemente the treasures are opened, and the cloudes flee as the fowles. In his power hath he strengthened ỹ cloudes, and broken the hayle stones.

The mountaynes melt at the sight of him, the winde blowethe accordinge to his wil. The sounde of his thonderbeateth the earth, and so doth the stozme of

¶ the nozthe: the whyrle winde also lighteth downe as a fethered foule, casteth oute and spredeth the snow abrode: & as the grashoppers that destroye al, so falleth it downe, the eye marueleth at the bewtye of the whytnesse therof, & the herte is afrayed at the rayne of it.

He poureth out the frost vpon earth, lyke salt, and when it is frosen, it is as sharpe as ỹ pricke of a thistle. When ỹ coulde Nozthwynde bloweth, harde Chrystall cõmeth of the water. He lyghteth downe vpon al ỹ gatherynges together of water, and puttethe on the waters as a brest plate. He deuoureth the mountaynes, and burneth the wyldernesses: and loke what is grene, he putteth it out like fyre. The medycine of al these is, when a cloude cõmeth hastely: and when a dew commeth vpon the heate, it shalbe refreshed agayne.

In his wozde he stilleth the wynde. In his councell he setteth the depe, & ỹ Lorde) Jesus plantede it. They that sayle ouer the see, tell of his perils and harmes: & when we heare it with our eares, we marueil therat. For there be straunge wonderous wozkes, dyuerse maner of vyce beastes & whalfyshes. Thorow him are all thynges sette in good ordre and perfourmed, and in hys worde all thynges endure.

I speake moch, but I can not sufficiently attayne vnto it, for he him selfe onely is the perfeccyon of all wordes. We shulde prayse the Lord after al our power, for he is greate in al his workes. The Lord is to be feared, yee very greate is he, and marueilous is hys power. Prayse the Lord, and magnifye him as moch as ye may, yet doth he far excreade all prayse. O magnifie him with all youre power, and laboure earnestly, yet are ye in no wyse able sufficiently to prayse him who hath sene him, that he myght tell vs? Who can magnifye him so greatly as he is? For there are hyd yet greater thynges then these be: as for vs, we haue sene but few of his workes. For the Lorde hath made all thinges, and geue wysdome to soche as feare God.

¶ The prayse of certen holy men, Henoch, Noe, Abraham, Isaack and Jacob.

The. xliiii. Chapter.

LEt vs commend the noble famous men, and the generacyõ of our fore elders. ãd fathers. Many moze glorious actes hath the lorde done, and shewed hys greate power

ruer sins the beginning. The noble famous mē rayned in theyr kingdomes, and bare excellent rule. In theyr wysdome āo vnderstanding/they folowed the counsel shewed in the prophecyes. They led the folcke thzow the counsell and wysdome of the scribes of the people. Wyse sentences are found in their
B instruction. They soughte the sweetenes and melody of Musick/& brought forth the pleasaunt songes in scripture They were rich also, and couldе comforte and pacify thole that dwelt with them. All these were very noble and honorable men in theyr generacions, and were well reported of in theyr tymes. These haue left a name behynde them so that theyr prayse shall alway be spoken of. Afterwarde there were some/ whose remembraunce is gone. They came to naught & perished, as though they had neuer bene: and became as though they had neuer bene borne, yea and theyr children also with them.

C Neuertheles these are louyng men, whose righteousnes shall neuer be forgotten, but continu by theyr posterite. Theyr children are an holy good heritage: Theyr sede endureth fast in the couenaunt. For theyr sakes shall their children and kde continue for euer, and theyre prayse shall neuer be putt downe. Theyr bodies are buryed in peace, but theyr name liueth for euermore. The people can speake of theyre wysdome, and the congregation can talke of theyr prayse. Enoch walked right and acceptably before the lord: therfore was he translated for an exāple of amendement to the generacyons. Noe was a stedfaste and righteous man: and in the tyme of wrath he became a reconcilynge. Therfore was he left a remnaunt vnto the earth, whē the floude came. An euerlasting couenaunte was made with hym, that all flesh shoulde perysh no more with the D water. Abraham was a great father of many people, in glorye was there none lyke vnto hym. He kepte the lawe of the hyest, and cam into a couenaunt with hym. He set the couenaunt in hys flesh and when he was tēpted/he was found faythful, therfore swore god vnto him with an othe, that he wolde bleſſe all people in hys sede, ỹ he wold multiply and increse him as the dust of ỹ earth/ and to exalt his sede as the starres ỹ sea and that his sede shulde haue the possessyon and inheritaunce of the lande from sea to sea, and from the ryuer vnto the bozders of the lande.

With Isaac dyd he stablish ỹ same couenaūt, for Abrahā his fathers sake. Yea that gracious blessig and healthy of al men/& couenaunt did he stablish with Jsacke, and made it to rest vpō ỹ head of Jacob. He knew him, in that he prospered himselo wel and tryely, and gaue him an heritage, & sundred hys portion by it self/and parted it amōg ỹ twelue tribes. Merciful mē brought he out of him, which founde fauour before all flesh.

C The prayse of Moses/Aron & Phinehes.

The. xlv. Chapter.

MOses beloued of god and mā/ whose remembraunce is i Hye prayse: hym that ỹ Lord made like in the glory of the saintes and magnified him so that the enemies stode in awe of hi, thzow his wordes he dyd greate wonders. He made hym greate in the sight of kynges, gaue hi comm aundement before hys people, & shewed him his glorious power. He stablished hym with faythfulnes and meknes, and chose him out of all men. For he herde hys voyce, and led him in the darck cloude/and there he gaue hi the commaundementes/yea the law of lyfe and wysdome that he myght teache Jacob the couenaunt/and Jsrael his lawes.

He chose Aaron hys brother also out of the tribe of Leui, exalted him, & made him suche lyke. An euerlastynge couenaunt made he with hym/& gaue hi the prestehod i the people. He made hi glorious in bewtifull araye, & clothed him wt the garment of honoure. He put perfect ioye vpon him, and girded him wt strengthe. He dede hym wt lyde clothes/and a tunycle, wt an ouer body cote also and a girdel. Rounde a boute made he hym belles of golde/& that many: ỹ when he wente in/ ỹ sownd myght be herd, that they myght make a noyse in the sanctuary, and geue the people warninge. The holy garmente was wrought and brodered with gold, palow sylcke and purple. And in the brestlappe there was a goodly worcke wherin was kasten ed lyght & perfectnes. Vpon the same also there was a worcke fastened, and set wyth costly precious stones, all bound wyth golde: and thus he brought in hys ministracion, The stones wer kastened for a remembraunce, after the twelue tribes of Jsrael. Vpon his myter there was a plate of pure gold, a grauen Jmage of holy stones, a famous & noble worke, garnish d and pleasaunt to loke vpon. Before hym were there sene no suche kayre ornamentes, and thele it behoued hym alwaye to vse: There myght none other put them on, but only hys childre perpetually. Daily perfourmed he hys brotofferings, ii. times. Moses fylled his handes, & anoynted hi wt holy oyle.

This was now confyrmed to him wt an euerlastynge couenaunt, and to his sede, as the dayes of heauen/namely: ỹ his children should alwaye minister before hi, and performe the Office of the prestehod, & with the people good in his name. Before al men ly ting chose he him, that he shoulde offer before the lord/and make odoures for a swete sauour and remembraūce/ ỹ he should reconcyle the people of the lord wt hym a gayne. He gaue him auctozite also in his cōmaūdementes ād i the couenaūe, that he shold teach Jacob the statutes and testymonies, ād to enfourme Jsrael i his lawe. Therfore there stode vp certayne against hi, ād had enuy at hi i the wylderne: namely, ỹ they were of dathē/ād Abirams kinde, & the furious cōgregatyō of Chore. This the lord saw, & it displeased hi, ād in his wrothful i dygnacō were they cōsumed. A great wonder dyd he vpon thē/ād cōsumed them wt the fyre. Beside thys, he made Aaron yet more honorable and glorious. He gaue him an heritage, and parted the first frutes vnto him. Vnto hi specially he appointed the bred of fulle naunce (for ỹ Prestes did eat of ỹ offeringes of the lord) this gaue he vnto hi & hys sede, Els had he no heritage nor portyon i the land and wt the people. For the Lord him selfe is his portyon and inheritaunce.

The third noble and excellent mā is Phinehes the Sonne of Eleazer/ which pleased ỹ god of Jsrael, because he had the zele and feare of the Lorde. For when the people were turned back he put him selfe forth tryght soone, ād that wt a good wyl, to pacify ỹ wrath of the lord toward Jsrael. Therfore was there a couenaunt of peace made wt him/that he should be the prynce pal among the righteous and the people, that he and his posteritee shoulde haue the Office of the prestehode for euer (lyke as there was made a couenaunt wt Dauid of the tribe of Juda/ that from among his sōnes only ther should be a kyng: And that Aaron also and his sede shold be the heritage, to geue vs wisdome in our hert, to iudge hys people in tryghtuousnes: that his goodes should not come into forgetfulnes, and ỹ their honoure might endure for euer.

The prayse of Josue, Caleb, and Samuel.

The. xlvi. Chapter.

MAny and strong in battel was Jesus the sonne of Naue/wht che in stede of Moses the prophet was geuen to be captayn of the peple which accordyng vnto his name was a greate sauoure vnto the electe of god, to punish ỹ enemyes that rose vp against Jsrael, that Jsrael myght optayne their inheritaunce. O how greate, noble and exellent was he, whē he lyft vp his hande, and drewe out his swerde against the cytees? Who stode so manly before him? For ỹ lord him selfe brought in the enemyes.

Stode not the Sunne stil at his commaūdement/& one daye was as longe as two? He called vpon the Hyest and most myghty, when the enemies preased vppon him on euery syde: and the lorde herde him with the hayle stones. They smot the Hethenish peple mighte ly, & i falling downe they slew al the aduersaries/so ỹ the heathē knew his hoost, & al his defence, ỹ the Lord him selfe fought against them, for he loked vpon the myghty men of them.

In the tyme of Moses also he and Caleb the sone of Jephune, did a good worke, which stode against the enemies, withelde the people from sinne, & stilled the wicked murmuringe. And of sire hundreth .M. people of foote, they two wer preserued, whe they were brought into the heritage, namelye a lād ꝑ floweth w̄ milk & hony. The lord geueth strength also vnto Caleb which remayneth with him vnto his age: so that he went vp into the hye places of the lande, and hys sede conquered the same for an heritage: ꝑ al the children of Israel myght se/how good a thige it is, to be obedient vnto the lord. And the iudges or rulers (euerye one after his name) whose hert went not a whorying, nor departed from the lorde, and that forsake not the lord vnfaithfully, whose remembraunce hath a good reporte: Yea their bones florish oute of their place, and their name shal neuer be chaunged.

Samuel the prophet beloued of the lorde, ordeyned a king/and anoynted the princes ouer the people. In ꝑ lawe of the lorde ruled he, and iudged ꝑ cōgregatiō, ād the lord had respect vnto Jacob. The prophet was found diligent in his faithfulnes: yea i his faithfulnes was the faithfulnes of the vision knowne. He called vpon the lord the myghty, when the enemies preslid vpō hi on euery syde/what tyme as he offred the sucking lābes. And the lorde thōdred frō heue, & made his voyce to be herd w̄ a grete noise. He discōforted ꝑ princes of Tire, al ꝑ rulers of ꝑ philistines. Before his laste ende he made protestaciō i ꝑ sight of ꝑ lord, & hys anoynted, ꝑ he toke nother substaūce nor good of any mā/no not so moche as a shue: ād no mā might accuse hi. After this he tolde/ꝑ his ende was at hād, & shewed ꝑ kige also his ende ād death: & frō ꝑ erth lift he vp his voice i ꝑ prophecy, ꝑ ꝑ vngodly people shuld perish

The .xlviii. Chapter.

After warde in the time of kinge Dauid, there rose vp a prophet called Nathā: For lyke as ꝑ fat is taken awaye frō the offeringe/so was Dauid chosen out of the children of Israel. He toke his pastyme with the lions and with kydds and with beres like as with lambes. Slew he not a giaunte when he was yet but younge, and toke away the rebuke from his people what time as he toke the stone in his hāde, and sir ot downe proude goliath w̄ the slinge? For he called vpō the heiest Lorde, which gaue him strength in his right hand, so that he ouerthrew ꝑ myghtey gyaunt in the battel that he myghte set vp the horne of his people agayne. Thus brought he him to worshype aboue all princes and made him to haue a good reporte in the prayse of the Lorde that he shulde weare a crowne of glory For he destroyed the enemies on euery side roted out the Philistines his aduersaries, and brake their horne in sunder like as it is broken yet this daye. In al his workes, he praysed the heyest and holiest, and alwyb d the honoure vnto him. With his whole hert did he prais and loue i him that made him He set singers also before the aulter, & in their tune he made swete songes. He ordeyned to kepe the holy dayes worshipfully, and that the solempne feastes throwe the whole yeare should be honorably holden, w̄ praysing the name of the lorde and with his synging by tymes in the morning in the Sanctuary.

This Salomō reigned w̄ peace in hys tyme (for god gaue him rest from hys enemyes on euery syde, that he myghte buylde hym a howse in hys name/and prepare the Sanctuary for euer) lyke as he was well instructe in hys youthe and fylled w̄ wysdome and vnderstandynge, as it were with a water floude. He stayned his honoure and worshyp/yea hys posterytye defiled he also, in bryngyng the wrath of the lord vpon his children, & sorowe after his foye: so that his kyngdō was deuyded, and Ephraim became an vnfaithful, and an vnconstant kyngdom. For all this, the people amended not nether departed they from ther sinnes: till thei were caried awaye prisoners oute of the land, ād were scatred abrode in al countrees, so that of theym there remained but a very litle people, & a prince vnto the house of Dauid. A xliii. Reuel. 8. and xxiii. 1. Par. xxiii.

THe remẽbraunce of Josiah is like as whan the Apotecari maketh many precious swete smellinge thinges together. Hys remẽbraunce shalbe swete as hony in all mouthes, & as the playenge of Musyck by the wine. He was appoynted to turne the people agayne, and to take awaye all abhominacyons of the vngodly. He dyrected hys hert vnto the Lorde, and in the tyme of the vngodly he sett vp the worshipp of God a gayne. Therfore was the electe cytie of the Sanctuary brent with fire, and the stretes therof laie de desolate and waste: for they intreated Jeremi euel, which neuertheles was a Prophete ordeined from his mothers womb, that he might rote oute, breake of, and destroie: and ẏ he might builde vp, and plante againe. Ezechiell sawe the glori of the Lorde in a vision which was shewed him vpon ẏ C charett of the Cherubins. For he thought vpon the enemies in the raine, to do good vnto such as had ordred their waies aright. And the bones of the twelue prophetes florishe from out of their place: for thei gaue comforte and consolacion vntoo Jacob, and deliuered thẽ faithfull. How shal we praise zorobabel, which was as a ringe in ẏ right hãde? So was Jesus also the sonne of Josedec: these men in their tymes buildid the house and set vp the Sanctuarye of ẏ Lorde againe, whiche was prepared for an euerlasting worshipp.

D And Nehemyah is all waye to be cõmended, which set vp for vs the walles that were broken downe, made the portes and barres agayne/and buylded our houses of the new. But vpon earth is there no man created lyke Enoch/for he was taken vp from the earth. And Joseph/which was lord of his brethre, and the vpholder of his peple: his bones were couered and kept. The, l. Chapter. A li. Reuel.

SYmon the sonne of Onyas the hie preest, whiche in his lyfe set vp the house a gayne, and in hys dayes made fast the temple. The heyghte of the temple also was founded of him, the double buylding/and ẏ hye walles of the temple. In his dayes the welles of water flowed out, & were exceading ful of the sea. He tooke care for his people, and deliuered thẽ from destruccion. He kept his cytie ãd made it stronge, that it shoulde not be besieged. He dwelt in honoure ãd worshipp among his people, and enlarged ẏ intraunce of the house, and the court. He geueth light as the mournig star in the myddest of the cloudes, and as the moone whan it is full. He shyneth as the sonne in the temple of god. He is as bryghte as the rayne bow in the fayre cloudes, and florisheth as ẏ flowers and roses in the spryngs of ẏ yere, ãd as the lylies by the riuers of water. And the people in their prayer besought the lorde the hyest that he wolde bee mercyfull, tyll the honoure of the lorde were performed. Thus ended they their myntstracõ and seruice. Then wente he downe and streched out his handes ouer the whole multitude of the People of Israel, ãd that they shoulde geue prayse and thãkes out of their lyppes vnto the lorde and to reioyce in hys name. He begaune yet ones also to prayse that he myght openlye shewe the thankesgeuinge before the hyest, namely thus: O geue prayse and thankes (yea all) vnto the lord our god which hath euer done noble & greate thynges, whych hath encreased oure dayes from our mothers wombe and dealte wyth vs accordinge to hys mercye: That he (wyll geue vs the ioyfulnes of hert, & peace for oure time in Israell, which faythfullye kepethe hys mercy for vs euermore, and alway deliuereth vs in due season.

¶ Baruch wrote a boke, during the captiuitee of Babilon which he redde before Jeconiah ād all the people. The Jewes send the boke with money vnto Jerusalem, to their other brethren to thintent that they shulde praye for them.

The first Chapter.

AND baruch dyd rede ỹ wordes of this boke, that Jechoniah ỹ sonne of Joacim kyng of Juda might here and in the presence of all ỹ people, that were come to heare ỹ boke: yea and before all the noble kinges sonnes, before the lordes of the counsell & elders: and before the whole people, frō ỹ lowest vnto the hiest: before al thē ỹ dwelt at Babilō, by ỹ water of Sody Which whē they herd it/wept, fasted/ & prated before the lord. They made a collection also of money, according to euery mans power, and sent it to Jerusalē vnto Joacym the sonne of Helchyah ỹ sōne of Salon ỹ preste wt ỹ other prestes: And to al the people which were wt hi at Jerusalem what tyme as they had gotten ỹ ornamētes of ỹ tēple of the lord (ỹ were taken awaye out of the tēple) ỹ they might bring thē agayne i to ỹ lāde of Juda/the x. date of the moneth Sibā: namely/siluer vessels (which Sedechiah the sōne of Josiah king of Juda had made) After ỹ Nabuchodonosor king of Babilon had take Jechoniah, wt al his prices, lordes/& all ỹ people, & led thē captiue frō Jerusalē vnto Babilō. And they said: beholde/ we haue sent you money, to bye you burnt offeringes & incense wall: make you vnlearned bred, & offer for sinne vpon the aulter of the lord our god. The.ii. Chapter.

FOr the which cause ỹ Lord oure God hath perfourmed his deuyce, wherof he certifyed vs/and oure heades that ruled i Jerusalē: yee and oure kynges, princes, wt al Israell and Juda. And soch plages hath ỹ lord brought vpon vs, as neuer came to passe vnder the heaue like as it is ful filled in Jerusalem, accordinge as it is writtē in the law of Moses: ỹ a man shulde eate ỹ flesh of his owne sonne, & the flesh of his owne daughter. Moreouer, he hath delyuered them in to the handes of all the kynges, ỹ are round aboute vs (to be confounded and desolate (and scatred them abrode in all landes and nacyons. Thus are we brought beneth and not abue, for we haue sinned against the Lorde oure God, and not bene obedient vnto his voice. Therfore the Lord our God is rightuous & we wt our fathers (as reason is) are brought to open shame, as it is to fe thys daye. And as for these plages that are come vpon vs allready, the Lorde had deuysed them for vs: yet wolde we not praye vnto the Lorde oure God, ỹ we myght euery man turne from his vngodly wayes. So ỹ Lord hath caused soch plages to come vpon vs: for he is rightuous in al his workes. which he hath comaunded vs: whych we also haue not done, ner harkened vnto his voice, for to walke i the comaundementes of the Lorde, that he had geuen vntoo vs.

And now O Lorde God of Israell thou that hast brought thy people out of the lande of Egypte wyth a mightie hande, with tokens and wondres, with thy greate power and out stretched arme: and hast gotten thi self a name, as it is com to passe this day. O Lord our God, we haue sinned, we haue done wickedly, we haue behaued oure selues vngodly in all thi rightēousnesses.

¶ Turne thy wrath from vs (we beseche thee) for we are but a fewe lefte among the heathen, where thou hast scatred vs Heare oure prayers (O Lorde) and our petitions, bringe vs out of captiuitie, for thyne owne sake: get vs fauoure in the syghte of them, whyche haue ledde vs awaye, that all landes maye knowe that thou arte the Lorde oure God and that Israell and hys generacion calleth vpon thy name.

But they wolde not herken vnto thy voyce, to the kyng of Babylon I compare: and therfore hast thou performed the wordes, that thou spakeste by thy seruaūtes, ỹ prophets: namely, ỹ the bones of our kinges & the bones of our fathers shuld be trāslated out of their place

And lo, now are they layde out i the heate of the Sonne, and in the colde of the nyght, and dead in greate myserie: with hūger, with swearde, with pestilence and are clene cast forth. Ye ye will not herken vnto my voyce, then shall thys great multitude be turned into a very smal people, for I will scatter them abroade. But in the land of their captiuitie, they shal remembre them selues and learne to knowe/ that I am the lorde their god when I geue the an hert to vnderstād & eares to heare. Then shal they praise me, in the lande of their captiuitie, ād thincke vpon my name. Ther shall they turne them from their hard backes, and from their vngodlynes: The shall they remembre the thynges that happened vnto their forefathers: which sinned against me. So will I bringe them againe into the land, which I promised wt ā oth vnto their fathers: Abraham, Isac, and Jacob and they shalbe lordes of it, & I will increase them/ & not mynish them. And I will make a nother couenaunt wyth them: suche one as shall indure for euer: namely/ ỹ I wylbe their god, and they shalbe my people: and I wyll nomore driue my people/ the chylderen of Israell, out of the lande that I haue geuen them.

The iii. Chapter.

AND now O Lorde almighty / thou God of Israell: our soul that is in trouble, and our spyrite that is vexed cryeth vnto thee: heare vs (O Lord) and haue pytie vpon vs, for thou arte a mercyfull god/ be gracious vnto vs for we haue synned before thee, thou endurest for euer/ shold we then vtterly perysche? O Lorde almyghtie, thou God of Israell, heare now the prayer of the dead Israelytes and of their chylderen whych haue sinned before thee and not harkened vnto the voyce of the lord their God, for the whyche cause/ these plagues hange now vpon vs. O lord, remēbre not the wickednesse of oure forefathers / but thynche vpon thy power ād name now at this time: for thou art the Lord our God, ād thee (O Lorde) wyl we prayse For thou hast put thy feare in our hertes, to the intent that we shuld cal vpon thy name, and prayse thee in oure captyuytee: and that we myght turne from the wickednes of our forefathers that sinned before thee.

Prouer.i.a Psal.xxxiii.a

Where are the princes of the heathen become and suche as ruled the beastes vpon the earth? They ỹ had their paistime with the foules of the ayr, their ỹ hoorded vp siluer & gold: (wherin mē trust so moche) & made no ende of their gathering? Baruch.d

D The Agarenes sought after wysdom, but that which is erthly, like as ỹ marchauntes of the lande do. They of Theman are conynge also, and they laboure for wysdome and vnderstanding: but ỹ way of true wysdō they knowe not, nether do they thinke vpō ỹ pathes therof. O Israel, how greate is ỹ house of God: and how large is the place of his possessiō: Greate is he, and hath non end: high & vnmeasurable. What is become of those famouse giaūtes, ỹ were so great of bodies, and so worthy mē of warre? Those had not ỹ Lord chosen neither haue they founde the waye of reformacyon, therfore were they destroyed: and for so moch as they had no wysdome, they perished because of their foolishnesse.

Deuter.viii.d Jere.xxiii.d Psal.cxlv.a.

E Who hath gone vp in to heauen, to take wysdome there, and brought her down frō the cloudes? Who hath gone ouer the see to finde her, and hath chose her aboue golde, and so brought her hyther? No man knoweth the wayes of wysdome, nether is there eny that can seke out her pathes. But he that woteth al thynges, knoweth her, and he hath founde her out with his fore knowledge. This same is he which prepared the earth at the begynnyng, and fylled it with all maner of foules and beastes. When he sendeth out ỹ light, it goeth: and when he calleth it agayne, it obeyeth him wt feare. The starres, kepe their watch, and geue their lyght, yee and that gladly. When he calleth them, they saye: here we be. And so wt chearfulnes they shewe lyght vnto him that made them. This is oure God, & there shall none other be compared vnto hym: It is he, that hath found oute all wysdome/ and hath geuen her vnto Jacob his seruaūt, and to Israel his beloued. Afterward dyd he shewe him self vpon earth, and dwelt amonge men.

Geue not thine honoure to another / and thy worshyp to a straunge people.
Psal.xxxiiii.d O Israel, how happy are we, seynge ꝑ God hath shewed vs such thinges as are pleasaunt vnto hi. Be of good chere, thou people of god, O thou auncient Israel. Now are ye solde amonge the heathen / howbeit, not for verye vtter destruccyon: but because ye prouoked god the Lord to wrath and displesure, therfore were ye delyuerd vnto youre enemies: for ye displesed the euerlastig god that made you, offeringe vnto deuels and not to god. Ye haue forgotten him that brought you vp / & your nurse haue ye greued / O Jerusalem.

B Whan she sawe that the wrathe of god was comming vppon you: she sayde: harken, O ye that dwell about Sion / for god hath brought me into greate heupnes: and whye I se the captiuyte of my people / of my sonnes and daughters, which the euerlasting god wyl bringe vpon them. Wyth ioye do I nourish them, but now muste I leaue them with weppynge and sorow.

Let no man reioyce ouer me wyddowe and forsaken: which for my chyldren am desolate of euery man. For whye they departed from the lawe of God: they wolde not knowe his righteousnes, nor walke in the waie of his commaundmentes: and as for the pathes of the treuthe and godlynes, they had no lust to go in them.

O ye dwellers about Sion: com, C and let vs call to remembraunce ꝑ captyuite, that the euerlasting God hathe brought vppon my sonnes and daughters. For he hath brought a people, vpon

Be of good cheare, O my children / crye vnto the lorde, and he shal delyuer you from the power of the prynces your enmyes.

For verely, I haue euer a good hope of your prosperous helthye: a very gladnes is come vpon me, from the holy one, because of the mercy that ye shal haue of our euerlastynge sauiour.

Wyth mourning and weppyng dyd I let you go fro me, but wyth ioye and D perpetuall gladnes, shal the Lord bringe you agayne vnto me. Lyke as the neyghbours of Sion sawe your captiuite from god. Euen so shall they also se shortely your health in God / whyche shall come on you, with greate honour and euerlasting worshyp.

O my children, suffre patiently the wrath that shall come vpon you. For ꝑ enemye hath persecuted the / but shortly thou shalt se hys destruction, & shalt treade vpon hys necke. My derlinges haue gone rough hard wayes, for they are led awaye as a flocke that is scattered abroade from the enmyes. But be of good comfort (O my children) and crye vnto the Lorde: For he that led you awaye, hath you yet in remembraunce: and lyke as ye haue bene minded to swarue from your god, so shall Esa. lxi. ye now ten dayes more, to turne agayne, and to seke him. For he that hath brought these plages vpon you, shall bryng you euerlasting ioye agayne, wyth youre health. Take a good herte vnto thee, O Jeru Jerusalem salem: for he whych gaue thee that name, wyl reioyce the so to do.

The vngodly doers that now put the to trouble, shal perysshe: and suche as haue reioyced at thy fall, shalbe punished. The cuttes a home thy children serue, and that haue caried awaye thy sonnes / shalbe gotten. For lyke as they be now glad of thy decaye, so shal they mourne in theyr owne destruccyō. The ioye of theyr multitude, shalbe taken awaye, and theyr cheare shalbe turned to sorowe. For a fyre shall fal vpon them from the euerlastinge god / longe to endure: and it shalbe inhabyted of deuelles for a greate season.

Jerusalem is moued vnto gladnes for the restoringe of her people, and vnder the figure thereof, the church.

The.v. Chapter

Jerusalem / loke aboute toward the east, and behold the ioye that commethe vnto the from god. For lo, thy sonnes (whome thou hast forsaken / and that were scattered abrode) come gathered together from the east and west, reioicing in the worde of the holye one / vnto the honoure of God.

Put of thy mourninge clothes (O Jerusalem) and thy sorowe, and decke thee wyth the worshyppe and honoure that commeth vnto thee from god, w euerlasting glory. God shal put the cloke of rightuousnes vpon the, and set a crowne of euerlasting worldom vpō thyne heade: for vpon the wyll god declare hys brightnes, that is vnder the heauen: Ye an euerlastinge name shall be geuen thee of god / wyth peace of rightuousnes / and the honoure of Goddes feare.

B Aryse O Jerusalem, stande vp on hye / loke aboute thee toward the easte and beholde thy children gathered frō the east, vnto the west, which reioyce in the holy worde, hauing god in remembraunce. They departed from the one fote / and were led away of theyr ennemyes, but now shall the lorde bring thē caryed wyth honoure, as children of the kyngdome. For God is purposed to bryng downe al stouke mountaynes pea and all hye rockes / to fyll the valleyes, and so to make them equen with the grounde / that Israell maye be diligent to lyue vnto the honoure of God. The woddes and all pleasaunte trees, shal ouershadowe Israell at the commaundemente of God. For bether shal God bryng Israel wyth ioyfull mirth and in the light of hys magesty, wyth the mercy and rightuousnes, that commeth of hym selfe.

The copy of the epistle that Jeremy sent vnto ꝑ Jewes, which were led awaye prysoners by the kynge of Babylon: where in he certifieth them of the thig that was commaunded him of God.

The.vi. Chapter

Because of the synnes that ye haue done against God B Jere. xxv. ab ye shal be led awaie captiue vnto Babylon, euen of Nabuchodonosor the kinge of Babylon. So whan ye be come in to Babilon, ye shall remaine there many yeares, and for a longe season: namely. vii. generacyons: and after that wyll I bringe you awaie peaceably from thence. Now shal ye se in Babylon, goddes of golde, of siluer, of wod & of stone: borne vpon mens shoulders, to cast out a fearfulnes before the heathen. But loke ye do not as the other: be not ye afraid, B and let not the feare of them ouercome you.

Therfore whē ye se the multitude of people, worshipinge them behinde & before, say ye in your hertes: O Lord, it is thou, that oughtest onlye to be worshipped. Myne Angel also shal be with you, and I my selfe wil care for your soules. Deut. vi. c.
As for the tymbre of those goddes, the carpēter hath polyshed them: ouergilted be they, and layed ouer wyth siluer / yet are they but vaine thinges, and can not speke. Like as a wenche that loueth paramours is trimly decked, euen so are these made and hanged with golde. Crownes of gold verely haue they vpon their heades: so the preestes them selues take the golde and syluer from them, and put it to their owne vses: yea they geue of the same vnto harlottes, & trymme their whores withall: agayne, they take it from the whores, and decke their goddes therwith. Yet can not these Goddes delyuer themselues from Jerem. x. rust and mothes. When they haue co C uerd them with clothing of purple, they wipe their faces for the dust of the temple, wherof ther is moch amonge them. One hath a sceptre in his hand, as though he were iudge of the countre: yet can he not slaie such as offende him. Another hath a sweard or an axe in his hande, for all that, is he neither able to defende him selfe from battayll, nor from murtherers.

By this ye maye vnderstande, that they be no goddes: therfore se that ye nether worshipe them, nor feare them.

For lyke as a vessel that a man vseth, is nothing worth when it is broke, euē so is it with their goddes. When they be set vp in the temple, their eyes be full of duste thorowe the fete of those that com in. And lyke as the doores are shut in rounde about vpon him, that hathe offended the kynge: Or as it were a deed body kepte beside the graue: Euē so the prestes kepe the doores vp barres and lockes, lest their goddes be spoiled with robbers. They set vp candels before them (yea verely and that manye) wherof they can not se one, but euen as blockes, so stande they in the temple. It is sayde, that the serpentes ād wormes which com of the earth, gnaw out their hertes, eatyng them and their clothes also, and yet they fele it not. Their faces are black thorow the smoke that is in the temple. The owles, swalowes, and birdes fly vpon them, yea and the cattes runne ouer their heades.

D By this ye maye be sure, that they are not goddes, therfore feare them not. The gold that they haue, is to make them bewtiful: for al that, except some bodye dyghte of their rustie, they will geue no shine: and when they were caste into a fourme, they felt it not. They are bought for money, and haue no breth of life vp in them. They must be borne vpon mennes shulders, as those that haue no fete whereby they declare vnto mē, that they be nothing worth. Confounded be they then, that worship them. For if they fal to the grounde, they can not rise vp a-gaine of them selues.

Yea thoughe one heape them vp and set them tighte, yet are they not able to stande alone: But muste haue proppes set vnder them like deed men

As for the thinge that is offered vnto them, their preistes sell it, and abuse it: Yea the wyues take therof, but of it the women with childe and the menstruous laie handes of their offringes. By this ye maie be sure, that they are no Goddes, therfore be not a-frayde of them. From whence commeth it then, that they be called goddes? The women sytt before the Goddes of syluer, golde, and wodde, and the Preistes syt in their tēples, hauing open clothes, whose heades and berdes are shaue, and haue nothing vpō their heades: roaringe and cryeng vpō their goddes, as menne do at the feast, when one is dead.

C The preistes also take awaie the garmentes of ỹ images, & decke their wyues & children withall. Whether it be good or euel that any man doth vnto them, they are not able to recompence it: they can neyther sett vp a kynge nor putt hym downe. In lyke maner they maie neyther geue ryches, nor reward euell.

Though a man make a vowe vnto Eccles them and kepe it not, they will not require it. They can not restore a blind man to his syghte, nor helpe any man at hys nede. They can shew no mercye to the wyddowe, nor do good to the fatherles. Their goddes of wodde/stone, gold, & syluer, ar but euē as other stones, that be hewen of the mountaine. They that worshippe them, shalbe confounded. How shoulde they then be taken for goddes? yea how darre men cal them goddes?

And though the Caldees worshipped them not, hearinge that they were but domme and coulde not speake. Yet thei them selues offre vnto Bell, and wolde fayne haue made hym to speke, as who saye, they coulde fele that maye not moue. But whan these men come to vnder standinge, they shall forsake them for their goddes haue no helping. A greate sort of women, gyrde with coardes, syt in the streetes, and burne olyue berynes. Now if one of them be conueyed away, and lye with anye suche as comme by: thē casteth she her Neighbourisse in the teethe, because she was not soo worthe lye reputed, nor her coarde broken.

What soeuer is done for them, it is but in vayne, and losse, howe maye it then be thought or sayde that they are goddes? Carpenters and goldesmythes make them, neither be they anye other thynge, but euen what the worke men wyll make of them. Yea the golde smythes them selues that make them, are of no longe continuaunce, how shulde then ỹ thinges ỹ are made of the, be goddes? Warne therfore are the thynges yee very shame is it (ỹ thei leaue behinde them for their posterite. For as soone as there cōmeth envye warre or plage vpon them, then the prestes ymagyn, where they maye hide them selues with the. How cā men thynk then ỹ they be goddes/whych neither maye defend them selues from warre, ner deliuer them fro myserie: For seyng they be but of wod, of stone, of syluer and of golde: all people and kynges shall knowe hereafter, ỹ they be but vayn thinges: yee it shalbe openly declared, that they be no goddes: but euen the very workes of mens handes/and that God hathe noo thing to do with them. They can set no kynge in the lande ner, geue rayne vnto men. They cā geue no sentēce of a matter, nether defende the lande from wronge: For they are not able to do so moch as a crowe/that flyeth betwixte heauen and earth.

G When there happeneth a fyre in to ỹ house of those goddes of wodde, of siluer and of golde, the preistes wyl escape and saue them selues, but the goddes burne as ỹ balkes therin. They can not withstande eny kynge or batel: how maye it then be thought or graūted, ỹ thei be goddes? Moreouer, these goddes of wodde, of stone, of gold and syluer, maye nether defend them selues from theues ner robbers: yee ỹ very wicked are stronger then they. These stripe them out of their apparell, ỹ thei be clothed wal, these take their gold & siluer from them, and so get thē awaie: yet can thei not helpe them selues. Therfore it is moch better for a man, to be a kinge and to so shewe his power: or els a profitable vessel in a house, wherin he that oweth it, might haue pleasure: yee or to be a doore in a house, to kepe soch thinges safe as be therin, then to be soch a vain god. The Sunne, the Mone and all ỹ starres whan thei geue their shine and light, are obedient, & do me good: whā the lightninge glistreth, all is cleare, the wid bloweth i euery countre & whā God cōmaunded the cloudes to go roūd about the whole worlde they do as thei are bydden: whā the fire is sēt down frō aboue & cōmanded, it burneth vp hylles and woddes: But as for those goddes they are not lyke one of these thinges, nether in beawtye nor in strenght. Wherfore men shoulde not thincke, nor saye, that they be goddes, seing they can nether geue sentence in iudgement, ner do men good. For so much as now ye are sure that they be no goddes, then feare them not: For they can nether speake euell nor good of kynges. They can H shewe no tokens in heauen for the heythen, nether shyne as the sunne/nor geue lyght as the moone: yea the vnreson able beastes are better then they, for they can get them vnder the rofe, & do them selues good, So can ye be certified by no maner of meanes: therfore feare them not, For lyke as a frayebogarde in a garden of Cucūbers kepeth nothinge, euen so are theyr Goddes of wood, of syluer and gold: and lyke as a whyte hoode in an orcharde, that euerye byrde sytteth vpon, ye lyke as a deedbody that is cast in the darcke. Euen so is it with those goddes of wodde, syluer and golde. By the purple and scarlette which they haue vppon them, and sone fadeth away, ye maye vnderstand, that they be no goddes: ye they them selues shal be consumed at the last, whyche shalbe a greate confusion of the lande. Blessed is the godlye man, that hath no ymages, and worshippeth none, for he shal be farre from reproche.

the thzee childzen, whych were put into the hote burning ouen. The commen translacion readeth this songe in the .iii. Chap. of Daniel.

AND they walked in the mid dest of the flamme, pzaisig God and magnifienge the Lord. Asariah stode vp, & pzayde on this maner. Euē in the middest of the fyze opened he his mouth, and saide: Blessed be thou (O Lozde God of our fathers) ryght woz thy to be pzayed ād honoured is that name of thyne foz euermoze: foz thou art righteous in all the thynges that ỹ hast done to vs: Yea faithful are all thy wozkes, thy waies are ryght, & thy iudgementes treu. In all the thynges that thou hast bzought vpon vs, ād vp on the holy cyties of our fathers (euen Jerusalē) thou hast executed true iudgment: yea accozdinge to right and equitie hast thou bzought these thynges vp on vs, because of our synnes.

Foz why? we haue offended, and done wickedly, departing from thee: In all thynges haue we trespassed, and not obeyed thy cōmaundementes, noz kept them, nether done as thou hast bydden vs, that we might prospeare. Wherfoz all that thou hast done to vs, thou hast done them in true iudgement: as in deliuerige vs into the handes of oure enemyes amonge vngodlye, and wicked abhominations, ād to an vnrighteous kinge, ye the most froward vpon earth and now we may not opē our mouthes, we are become a shame and repzote vnto thy seruauntes, and to them that woz shippe thee. Yet foz thy names sake (we beseech the) geuevs not vp foz euer, bzeke not thy couenauut, and take not awaye thy mercy from vs, foz thy beloued Abzahams sake, foz thy sernants Israels sake, and foz thy holye Israels sake: to whom thou hast spoken and promysed that thou wouldest multiplye theyr sede as the starres of heauen, and as the sande that lyeth vpon the see shoze.

Foz we (O Lozd) are become lesse then any people, ād be kept vnder this daie in al the worlde, because of oure sinnes So that now we haue neyther pzynce, duke, pzophet, burnt offering, sacrifice, oblacion, incence, noz Sanctuarye before thee.

Neuertheles, in a contrite hert and an humble spzete lett vs be receaued ỹ we maie optayne thy mercy. Like as ỹ burntoffering of rammes ād bullokes, and lyke as the thousande of fat lambes: so let our offrig be in thy sight this daye, that it maye please thee, foz there is no confusyon vnto them, ỹ put theyr trust in the. And now we folow the with al our herte, we feare the, and seke thy face. Put vs not to shame, but deale wt vs after thy loving kyndnes, and accozdyng to the multitude of thy mercyes. Deliuer vs by thy miracles (O Lozd) get thy name an honoure: that all they which do thy seruauntes euel, maye be confounded. Let them be ashamed thorow thy almyghtye power, and let their strength be broke: that they mai know, how ỹ thou only art the Lozd god, and honoure woztby thozowe oute all the worlde.

And the kynges seruauntes that put them in, ceassed not to make the ouen hote wyth wylde fyre, dyre strawe, pitche and fagottes: so that the flamme went out of the ouen vpon a. xlix. cubites: yea it toke awaye, and bzente vp these Caldees, that it gat hold vpon be syde the ouen. But the angel of ỹ lozde came downe into the ouen to Asaryah and hys felows, and smote the flamme of the fyze out of the ouen, and made ỹ myddest of the ouen, as yt were a cold wynd blowing: so ỹ the fyze nether touched them, greued them, noz dyd them hurte. Then these thze (as out of one mouth) pzayed, honoured, and blessed God in ỹ foznace, sayinge.

Blessed be thou, O lozd God of our fathers: foz thou art pzaise and honour woztby, yea & to be magnified foz euer moze. ¶ The story of Susanna which is the xiii. Chapter of Daniel, after the laten.

There dwelt a man in Babilon, called Joachi, that toke a wife, whose name was Susãna, the daughter of helkiah, a very fayre woman, and fuche one as feared God. Her Father & her Mother allower godly people, & taught their daughter accordig to ỹ law of Moses. Now Joachi (her husband) was a greate rich man, and had a fayre orcharde ioyning vnto hys house, And to hym resorted the Jewes comenly, because he was a mã of reputation amõg them. The same yeare were there made two iudges, such as the Lord speaketh of: All the wickednes of babylon, commeth from the elders (that is from the iudges, which seme to rule the people, these came oft to Joachyms house ãd all such as had eny thynge to do in the lawe came thether vnto them.

Now whe the people came agayne at after none, Susanna went into her husbandes orcharde, to walke. The elders seing thys that she wente dayly, ãd walked: they burned for lust to her, yea they were almoste oute of theyr wyttes, and they cast downe theyer eyes, that theye shoulde not se heauen, nor remembre / ỹ god is a righteous iudg. For they were both wounded wyth the loue of her / neither durst one shewe another hys grefe And for shame, they durst not tel her theyr inordinat luste, ỹ they wolde fayne haue had to do with her.

Yet they layed wayte for her earnestly from daye to daye, that they myght (at the leest) haue a syght of her. And ỹ one sayde to ỹ other Up, lett vs goo home, for it is dyner time. So they went their waye from her.

When they returned agayne, they came together, enquiryng out the matter betwixt them selues: yet the one tolde the other of hys wicked lust. Then appoynted they a tyme / when they might take Susanna alone.

It happened also, that they spyed oute a conuenient tyme, when she went forth to walke (as her maner was) and no body with her, but two maides, and thought to wash her selfe in the garden / for it was an hote season: And there was not one person ther, except ỹ two elders that had hyd theym selues, to beholde her. So she sayde to her maydens: go & fet me oyl and sope, and shut the orcharde doze, that I may wash me. And they dyd as she bad them / and shut the orcharde doze, and went out them selues at a back doze, to fet the thing that she had comaunded: but Susanna knewe not, that the elders laye there hyd within.

Now whe the maydes wer gone forth, the two elders gat them vp: and ranne vppon her, sayinge now the orcharde dozes are shut, that no mã can se vs: we haue a lust vnto ỹ, therfore consent vnto vs, and lye wyth vs.

If thou wylt not, we shall bynge a testemoniall agaynst the: that there was a ponge felowe with the, and that thou hast sent awaye thy maydes from ỹ for the same cause. Susanna syghed, and sayde: Alas, I am in trouble on euery side. Thoughe I folowe youre mynde, it will be my death: and yf I consente, not vnto you, I can not escape youre hãdes. Well, it is better for me, to fall in to your handes without the dede doynge / then cõ synne in the syght of the Lorde: and with ỹ, she cryed out: with a loude voyce: ỹ elders also cryed out agaynst her.

Then ranne there one to ỹ orcharde doze, & smote it open. Now when ỹ seruauntes of the house herde the crye in the orcharde, they rushed in at ỹ backe doze, to se what ỹ matter was. So when the elders tolde thẽ ỹ seruauntes were greatlye ashamed, for why, there was neuer soch a reporte made of Susãna. On the morow after came the people to Joachim her husbande, and the two elders came also / full of Myschieuous imaginacions agaynst Susanna, to brig her vnto death, and spake thus before the people: Send for Susãna the doughter of Helchyah Joachims wyfe. And immediatlye they seme for her. So she came with her father and mother, her childeren and all her kyndred.

Now Susanna was a tender person and maruelous fayre of face, Therfore the wycked men commaunded to take of ỹ Clothes from her Face (for she was couered) that at the least they might be satisfyed in her beawty. Then her frendes pe a and all they that knewe her, began to wepe.

These two elders stode vp in the middest of the people, and layed theyr hãdes vpon the heade of Susanna: whych wepte, and loked vp towarde heauen, for her hert had a sure trust in the Lord.

And the elders sayde: As we were walkyng in the orchard alone, this woman came in wyth her two maydens: whome she set awaie from her / and spared the orchard dozes. With that, a yong felow (which there was hyd) came vnto her, and laye with her. As for vs, we stode i the corner of the orchard. And whẽ we sawe this wyckednes, we ranne to her: and perceaued, that they had medled together. But we coulde not holde him for he was stronger then we: thus he opened the doze, and gat hi awaie. Now when we had take this womã, we asked her, what ponge felow this was: but she wolde not tel vs. This is the mater, & we be witnesses of the same. The comẽ sorte beleued them, as those that were ẽ elders and iudges of the people & they condemned her to death. Susanna cryed out with a lowde voice, and sayd: O euerlasting God, thou cercher of secrets thou that knoweste all thinges afore they comme to passe: thou wotteste that they haue borne false wytnes agaynst me: & behold, I muste die, wher as I neuer dyd any such thinges, as these men haue maliciously inuented against me. And the Lord herd her voice. For when she was led forth to death, ỹ lord rayled vp the spyrete of a yong child whose name was Daniel, which cryed w a loude voice: I am cleane frõ this bloude. Then all the people turned thẽ toward him, and saide: what mene these wordes ỹ ỹ hast pose Daniel stode i ỹ middest of thẽ, & saide. Are ye such fooles, O ye childzen of Israel, that ye can not discerne: ye haue here cõdempned a daughter of Israel vnto death / and know not the treuth wherfore: Go ỹt on iudgment againe, for they haue spoken falle wytnes against her.

Wherfore the people turned againe in al the haste. And the elders (that is, the principal heades) sayde vnto him: come sit downe here among vs, & shew vs this matter, seyng God hath geuen the as greate honour as an elder. And Daniel said vnto them: Put these two aspyde one from another, and then shall I heare the. When they were put asũder one from another, he called one of them, and saide vnto him: O thou olde canckerde carle, that hast vsed this wickednes so long: thine vngracyous dedes which ỹ hast done afore, are nowe come to light. For thou hast geuẽ false iudgmentes, thou hast oppressed the innocent, and letten ỹ guilty go fre: where as yet the Lorde sayeth: The innocẽt and righteous se thou slate not. Wel than, yf thou hast sene her, tel me vnder what tre thou sawest thẽ talkig together. He answered: vnder a molbe rye tree. And Daniel saide: very wel, now thou lyest euen vpon thine head. Lo now the messanger of the Lord hath receaued the sentence of him / & shal cut the in two. Thã put he him aspyde, and called for the other, and saide vnto hym: O thou sede of Canaan, but not of Juda: Fairenes hath dysceaued thee, and luste hath subuerted thyne herte.

Thus dealt ye afore wyth the daughters of Israell, and they (for feare) consented vnto you: But the daughter of Juda woulde not abyde youre wyckednesse.

Nowe tell me than vnder what tree dyddeste thou take them, speakynge together. He answered: Vnder a Pomgranate tree,

With that all the whole Multitude gaue a great shoute,and praysed god, whych alway delyuereth them that put theyr truste in him.And they came vpon the two elders (whome Daniell hadde conuicte wᵗ theyr own mouth: that they had geuen false witnes)and dealt wᵗ the cuell lykewyse as they wolde haue don wyth their neighbour vnto:yea, they did accordyng to the lawe of Moses,ād put them to deth.Thus the innocent blould was saued the same daye.

THere was at Babylon an image,called Bel:and there were spente vpon hym, euery day.xii.cakes xl.shepe,and vi great pottes of wine.

Him dyd the kyng worshyp himselfe and went daily to honour him:but Daniell worshypped his owne God.And the kyng sayde vnto hi Why doest not thou worshippe Bell? He answered and sayd:Because I may not worshippe thynges that be made wᵗ handes,but the lyuinge god which made heauen and earthe,⁊ hath power vpon all flesh.

Dan,xiii,c.v. Exod,xx.a Wisd.xiii,e

The kyng sayde vnto him:thinckest ꝑ not,that Bell is a lyuyng God? Or seest thou not howe muche he eateth and drynketh euery day?Daniel smyled,⁊ sayde:O kyng disceaue not ꝑ selfe:this is but made of clay within,and of metal without,neither eateth he euer any thynge.

Then the kynge was wroth,and called for his prestes,and sayd vnto them: Ye tell me not whoo is this,that eateth vp these expenses,ie shal die:but yf ye can certifie me,that Bel eateth them, then Daniel shall die,for he hath spoken blasphemi against Bel. And Daniel said vnto the kyng:iet it so be,according as thou hast saide.The Prestes of Bel were.lxx.beside their wyues and childzen.And the kinge wente with Daniel in to ꝑ temple of Bel.So Bels prestes sayd:Lo,we wil go out,and set ꝑ meate there (O king)and poure in the wine:then shutt ꝑ doze fast,and seale it with thine owne signet:and to morow when ꝑ comest in,yf thou findest not,ꝑ Bel hath eaten vp all,we will suffre death:or els Daniel,that hath lyed vpon vs.The prestes thought them selfes sure inough,for vnder the altar thei had made a preuy entraunce,and there went they in euer,and ate vp what there was.

So when thei were gone forth,ꝑ kyng set meates before Bel. Now Daniel had commaunded his seruaūtes to bringe asshes and these he sifted thorow out al the temple,that ꝑ kinge might see. Then wente thei out,and barred the doze,sealing it with the kinges signet,and so departed.In the night came the prestes with their wiues and childre (as thei were wonte to do)and ate and droncke vp all.In ꝑ morning be times at ꝑ breake of ꝑ daie,ꝑ kinge arose/ād Daniel wᵗ him.And the king said:Daniel are ꝑ seales whole yet?He answered:Ye,O king,thei be whole.Now as soone as he had opened the doze,the king loked vnto the aultare,⁊ cryed with a loude voyce:Great art thou.O Bel, and with the is no disceate.

Then laughed Daniel/⁊ helde ꝑ kyng that he shulde not go in and sayde: Behold the pauement,marcke wel,whose fotesteppes are these?The kyng saide: I se the fotesteppes of men,women and chyldzen.

D

Therfore the kynge was angrye,⁊ toke the prestes,with their wyues and chyldzen,and they shewed him the preuy doores,where they came in,and ate vp soch thynges as were vpon the aultar.

Jeremy.li.Baruch,vi.a. Ezechiel,xiiii.a

For the which cause the king slew them, and delyuered Bel in to Daniels power,which destroyed him and his temple And in that same place ther was a great Dragon,which they of Babylon worshypped.And the kyng sayde vnto Daniel:sayest thou,that this is but a God of metall also?lo,he lyueth,he eateth ⁊ drynketh:so that thou canst not saye, ꝑ he is no lyuynge God,therfore worshyp him. Daniel sayde vnto the kyng: I wyll worshype the Lorde my God,he is the true lyuynge God:as for thys,he is not the God of lyfe.But geue me leaue(O kyng)and I shall destroye this dragon with out swearde or staf. The kynge sayde,I geue ꝑ leaue.Then Daniel toke pitch,fatte and heartye woll,⁊ dyd seth them together,and made lompes therof:this he put in the Dragons mouth,and so the dragon barst in sonder:and Daniell sayde:lo,there is he whom ye worshiped.Whē they of Babilon herde that,they toke greate indignacion/and gathered them together agaynst the kyng,saying: The kynge is become a Jewe also,he hath destroyed Bel,he hath slayne the dragon,and put the prestes to death.So they came to ꝑ kyng,and sayde:let vs haue Daniel,or els we wyll destroye the & thyne house.

Now when the kyng sawe,that thei rushed in so sore vpon him/and ꝑ nede sore constrayned him,he delyuered Daniel vnto them:which cast him i to the lyons denne/where he was syxe daies.In ꝑ denne there were seuen lyons/ and they had geuen them euery: daie two bodies ⁊ two shepe:which then were not geuen them,that they might deuour Daniel.

There was in Jewry a prophet called Habacuch.which had made potage/and broken bred in a deepe platter,and was goinge into the felde/ for to bring it to the mowers.But the aungel of the lord sayde vnto Habacuch:go carry the meate that thou hast into Babylon vnto Daniell,whiche is in the lions denne. Habacuch sayde:Lord, I neuer sawe babylon/and as for the denne,I knowe it not.Then the aungell of the lorde toke him by the toppe,ād bare hym by the heare of the head,and (throw a myghtye wynde)set hym in Babylon vppon the denne.And Habacuch cryed,saynge: O Daniell thou seruaunt of god,haue take thee breakefast,that God hath sente thee.And Daniell sayde:O God,haste thou thought vpon me?well: thou neuer fayledst them ꝑ loue the:So Daniel arose and dyd eat:and the angel of the lorde,set Habacuch in hys owne place a gayne,immediatly.

Upon the seuenth daye the kynge went to bewepe Daniel,and when he came to the denne/he looked in.And behold,Daniel sate in the myddest of the lyons.Then cryed the kinge wyth a lowd voyce,saying:Great art thou O Lord god of Daniell,and he drewe him oute of the denne.As for those that were the cause of his destruction,he dyd cast the into the denne,and they were deuoured in a moment before his face.

After this,wrote ꝑ kynge vnto all peple,kynreds and tunges,that dwelt in all countrees saynge:peace be multiplyed wyth you,My commaundment is in al the dominion of hys reime: that men feare and stande in awe of Daniels god,for he is the lyuing god,which endureth for euer: hys kingdome abydeth vncorrupte,and hys power is euer lastinge.It is he that can delyuere and saue:he doth wonders and meruelous workes in heeuen and in earth for he hath saued Daniel frō the power of the Lions.

Antiochus setteth vp an Idole ouer the aulter of God.

The.fyrst Chapter.

AFter that Alexander the sõne of Philyp, kynge of Macedonia wente forth of the lãd of Cethim ãd slew, Darius kynge of the persians & Medes: It happened ỹ he toke great warres in hand, wan very many stroge cyties, and slewe manye kynges of the earth: going thorowe to the endes of ỹ worlde and gettynge many spoiles of ỹ people: In so moch that the worlde stode in grete awe of him and therfore was he proude in his herte.

Now when he had gathered a myghty strong host and subdued the landes, ãd people with their princes, so that they became tributarious vnto him he fell sick. And when he perceaued that he must nedes dye, he called for his nobul estates (which had bene brought vp with him of children) and parted his kingdom amõge them while he was yet alyue. So Alexander raygned .xii. yeare/ and then dyede.

After hys death fell the kyngedom vnto hys princes, and they optayned it euerye one in hys rowme, and caused theim selues to be crowned as kynges and so did their children after them many yeares, and muche wickednes increased in the worlde. Oute of these came the vngracious rote, noble Antiochus the sonne of Antiochus the kinge (which he had ben a pledge at Rome) & he raygned in the .cxxxvii. yeare of the raygne of the Grekes.

In those dayes went there out of Israel wiked men/which moued much people in their counsell, saieng: Let vs go and make a couenaunt with the hethen, that are rounde about vs: for sens we departed from them, we haue had much sorow. So ỹ

So thys deuise pleased them well, and certayne of the people toke vpon them for to go vnto the king, which gaue the licence to do after the ordinaunce of the heathen. Then set they vp an open sale (at Jerusalem) of the lawes of the heathen, and were nomore circumcised: but forsoke the holy testament, and ioyned them selues to the heathen, & were cleane solde to do mischefe. So when Antiochus beganne to be myghti in his kingdome, he wente about to optaine the lande of Egypte also, that he might haue the dominion of two realmes.

Upon this entred he in to Egipte, wt a stronge hoost with charrettes, elephantes, horsmen and a greate nombre of shippes, and beganne to warre against Ptolomi the kinge of Egipte. But Ptolomi was afraied of him, and fled: and many of his people were wounded to death. Thus Antiochus wãne many strong cities, and toke awai grete good out of the lande of Egypte.

And after that Antyochus had smitten Egipt, he turned again in the xcliii year, and wente towarde Israel, and came vp to Jerusalem withe a mighty people: & entred proudli in to the Sanctuarie, and toke awaie ỹ golden altare, ỹ candilsticke and all ỹ ornaments therof, ỹ table of the shewebred, the pouring vessel, the chargers, ỹ golden spones the vale, ỹ crownes and golden apparell of the temple, and brake downe all. He toke also the siluer and golde, ỹ precious Jewels and ỹ secrete treasures that he founde. And when he had taken awaye all together, caused a great murthur of men, & so fulfilled his malicious pryde. He departed in to his owne lande.

Thus there arose greate heuynesse and misery in al ỹ lande of Israel, The princes and ỹ elders of ỹ people mourned, ỹ ponge men and the maydens were defyled, and ỹ fayre beutye of wemen was chaunged: ỹ bridegrom and ỹ bryde toke them to mournynge: the lande and those that dwelte therein was moued: for all the House of Jacob was brought to confusion.

After two yeares ỹ king sent his cheefe tresurer vnto ỹ cite of Juda which came to Jerusalem with a great multitude of people speking peaceable wordes vnto them, but all was disceate: for whan they had geuen him credence, he fell so deuly vpon the citie, and smote it sore: and destroied much people of Israell. And when he had spoyled the cite he set fyre on it, caslinge downe houses and walles on euery syde. The wemen and their chylderen toke they captiue, and led awaye their cattel. Then buylded they the castell of Dauid with a greate and thick wal, and with mighty toures/ and made it a stronge holde for them. Besyde all thys, they set wicked people and vngodly men to kepe it, floared it with weapens and victayles: gathered the goods of Jerusalem, and laid them vp ther: thus became it a theuish castel

And this was done to laye wait for the people that wente into the Sanctuary, and for the cruell destruction of Israell. Thus they shed innocent blonde/ on euery syde of the sanctuary, and defiled it: In so much, that the citesyns were fayne to departe, and the citie became an habytacion of straungers, being desolat of her owne sede, for her owne natyues were faine to leaue her. Her sanctuary was cleane waste/ her holi dayes were turned into mourninge her sabbathes were had in derision, and her honoure brought to naught. Loke howe great her glory was afore, so gret was her confusion, and her ioye turned into sorow.

Antiochus also the king sent out a cõmission vnto all his kingdome, ỹ al the people shulde be one. Then they lefte euery man hys lawe and all the heathe agreed to king Antiochus: Yea many of the Israelytes consented ther vnto, offering vnto Idoles, and defyling the Sabath. So the kinge Antiochus sent hys messaungers with his commyssion vnto Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Juda, that they shoulde folowe the lawes of the heathen, and forbad eyther burntoffering, meateoffring, or peace offringe to be made in the Temple of god: and that there should no Sabath nor hye feall daye be kept: But commaũded, that the sanctuary and the holy people of Israell shoulde be defyled.

1. Mac vii. a

He

He commanded also that there should bese vp other aulters/temples, and Idoles: to offre vp swynes flesh and other vncleane beastes, that men should leaue theyr childere vncyrcumcised, to defyle theyr soules wyth al maner of vnclenesse and abhominacions: That they myght so forget the lawe, and chaunge all the holy ordinaunces of god: and yͤ whosoeuer wolde not do accordinge to the commaundment of king Antiochus should suffre death. In lyke maner cõmaunded he thorowe all hys realme, and set rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do these thynges/commaundinge the cyties of Juda, to do sacrifice vnto Idoles.

Then wente the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the Lord/and committed much euell in yͤ lande: yea and chased our the secrete Iracliytes, which had hyd them selues in corners, and pryuy places. The xv. day of the moneth Casleu, in the cxlv. yere, sett kinge Antiochus an abhominable Idol of desolacion vpon the altar of God, they buylded altars thorowoute al the cytyes of Juda on euery syde, before the doores of the houses, and in the stretes: where they brente incence, and hyd sacrifyce. And as for the bokes of the lawe of God/they brent them in yͤ fyre/and rent them in peces. What so euer he was that had the booke of the testament of the Lord founde by hym, yea whosoeuer endeuored him selfe to kepe the lawe of the lorde, the kynges commaundement was, that they should put him to deth. And thorow his auctorite he executed these thinges euery moneth, vpõ the people of Israel that were found in the cyties.

The fyue and twentye daye of the moneth what time as they did sacrifice vpon the altare (which stode in the stede of the altare of the lorde) accordyng to the commaundement of kinge Antyochus/they put certen women to death, which had caused her children to be circumcyled: Not onely that, but they hãged vp the children by the neckes thorow out al theyr houses, and slewe the circumsisers of them.

Yet were there many of the people of Israel/which determed in them selues, that they wolde not eate vncleane thinges: but chose rather to suffer death, then to be defyled wyth vncleane meates. So because they colde not breake the blessed law of god, they were cruelly slain. And this great tyrranny increased more and more vpon the people of Israel.

The mournyng of Mathathiah & his sõnes, for the destruccyon of the holy cite. They refuse to doo sacrifice vnto Idoles. The rule of Mathathiah for the lawe of god. They are slayne & wil not fighte again, because of the Sabboth daye. Mathathiah dyinge commãdeth his sonnes to stryue by yͤ word of God after the example of the fathers.

The.ii. Chapter.

IN those dayes there dyd stande vp one Mathathyah, the sonne of Symon the preest (out of the kinred of Joaris) from Jerusalem, and dwelt vpon the mount of Modin, and had .v. sonnes: Jhon called Goddis: Simeon, called Thasy: Judas, other wise called Machabeus: Eleazar, other wise called Abaron: & Jonathas/whose surname was Apphus. These sawe the euell, that was done among the people of Juda and Jerusalẽ. And Mathathiah had sayd. Wo is me, alas that euer I was borne, to see this misery of my people, and the piteous destruccion of the holy cyty: and thus to syt so styll, it beynge delyuered into the handes of the enemyes. Her Sanctuary is come into the power of straungers, her temple is/as it were a man that hath lost his good name. Her precyous ornamentes are carped awaye captiue, her oldemen slayne in the stretes/and Her yonge menne are fallen thorowe the swearde of her enemyes.

What people is it, that hath not some percyon in her kyngdome? Or who hath not gotten some of her spoiles? Al her glory is taken awaye. She was a Quene, and now she is become an handmaide. Behold our Sanctuary, our bewty and honoure is wasted awaye, and defyled by the Gẽtils: what helpeth it vs then to liue? Mathathyah rent hys clothes, he and hys sonnes/and put sacke cloth vpon thẽ, and mourned very sore.

Then

Then came the men thether whiche were sent of king antiochus, to compell suche as were fled in the citye of Modin, for to do sacrifice and to burne incence vnto Idoles, and to forsake the lawes of God. So, many of the people of Israell consented and enclyned vnto them/but Mathathiah and his sonnes remayned stedfast. Then spake the commissioners of king Anthiochus/& sayde vnto Mathathiah: thou art a noble man, of hye reputacion, and greate in thys citie, hauing fayre children ãd bretheren. Come thou therfore fyrst/ãd fulfyll the kinges commaundemente, like as all the heathen haue done, ye and the men of Juda, and such as remayne at Jerusalem: so shalt thou and thy children be in the kinges fauoure, and enriched wyth golde, syluer and greate rewardes.

Mathathiah answered, and spake with a loud voice: Though al nacions obeye the kinge Antiochus, and fall awaye euery man from kepinge the lawe of theyr fathers: though they consente to hys commaundementes, yet wyll I and my sonnes and my Bretheren not fall from the law of our fathers. God for bid we shuld, yͤ were not good for vs, yͤ we shuld forsake yͤ law & ordinances of God, and to agree vnto the commaundement of kinge Antiochus. Therfore we wyll do no suche sacrifice, nether breke the statutes of oure lawe, to go another way. And when he had spoken these wordes, there came one of the Jewes which openly in the sighte of all dyd sacrifice vnto the Idols vpon the aultar in the citie of Modin, accordyng to the kinges commaundement.

When Mathathiah sawe thys, it greued hym at the herte, so that hys raines shoke withal, and hys wrath kindled for very zeale of the lawe. With that he gaue a skippe forth, and kylled the Jewe beside the aultare: ye and eke we the kinges commissioner, that compelled hym to do sacrifice, and destroyed the aulter at the same tyme/such a zele had he vnto the law of god, lyke as Phinehes did vnto zambry the sonne of Salomi. And Mathathiah cryed with a loude voyce thorow the citie, saiynge: Who so is feruent in the lawe and wil kepe yͤ couenaunt, let hi folowe me. So he and hys sonnes fled in to the mountaynes and left all that euer they had i yͤ citye. Many other godly men also departed in to the wildernesse wyth their chyldren, their wyues and their catel, & remayned there: for the tyrãny increased so sore vpon them.

Nowe when the kynges seruauntes, and the hoost, whych was at Jerusalem in the cytie of Dauid herde/that certeyne men had broken yͤ kynges commaundement and were gone their waie to the wyldernesse in to secrete places, & yͤ ther wer many departed after thẽ, they folowed them to fyghte agaynste thẽ in the Sabbath daye and sayde: Wyll ye yet rebell? Get you hence and do the cõmaundement of kynge Antiochus, and ye shal liue. Thei answered. We wil no go forth, nether wyll we do the kynges commaundement, to defile the Sabbath daie. Then begãne thei to fight agaynst them, neuertheless thei gaue them none other answere, nether cast thei one stone at them nether made fast their preuie places, but saide. We will die al in oure innocency, heauen ãd earth shall testifie with vs, that ye put vs to deth wronge ously. Thus they fought against thẽ vpon the Sabboth, and slewe both men and catell, their wiues and their children, to the nombre of a thousand people.

When Mathathiah and his frendes herde this, thei mourned for them right sore, and saide one to another: If so be that we all do as our bretheren haue done/& fight not for our liues & for our lawes against yͤ hethẽ then shal thei the soner rote vs out of the erth. So they concluded amonge them selues at the same, saienge: Whatsoeuer he be that cõmeth to make battaille with vs vpon the Sabbath daie, we will fight against him, and not die al, as our bretheren that wer murthred so haynously. Vpon this came the Synagoge of the Jewes vnto thẽ strong men of Israel, all soch as were feruent in yͤ lawe. And all they that were fled for persecucyon, came to help them ãd to stand by them: In so moch yͤ they gathered an hooste of men, and slewe the wicked doers in their gelousi, and the vngodly men in their wrath. Some of the wicked fled vnto the Heathen, & escaped.

Thus Mathathias and his frends went about, and destroyed the aulters and Circumcysed the Chyldren, that had not yet receaued circumcisiō: as many as they founde within the costes of Israel: and folowed mightely vpon the chyldren of pryde, and this acte prospered in their handes: In so moche, that they kept the law agaynst the power of the Gentiles and the kynges/ and gaue not ouer their domynyon vnto wycked doers.

After this when ỹ tyme drewe on fast that Mathathias shulde dye, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Now is pryde & perlecucyon increased, now is ỹ tyme of destruccyon & wrathful displeasure: wherfore (O my sonnes) be ye feruent in the lawe/ & iooparde your lyues for ỹ Testamēt of the fathers: call to remembraunce what actes oure fathers dyd in their tyme, so shall ye receaue greate honour and an euerlastinge name. Remembre Abraham, was not he founde fayth full in tentacyon, and it was reckened vnto him for righteousnes? Joseph in tyme of his trouble kepte the commaundement, and was made a Lorde of Egypte. Phinehes our father was so feruent for the honoure of God, that he optayned ỹ couenaunt of an euerlastynge prestehode. Josue for fulfillinge ỹ worde of God, was made the captayne of Israel. Caleb bare recorde before the congregacion, and receaued an heretage. Dauid also in his mercyfull kyndnesse, optayned the trone of an euerlastynge kyngdom. Eliah being gelous and feruent in the lawe, was taken vp into heauen. Hananias, Azarias and Misael remayned stedfast in fayth, & were deliuered out of ỹ fyre. In lyke maner Daniel beynge vngiltie, was saued from the mouth of the Lyons.

And thus ie mate considre thorow out all ages sence the worlde beganne that who soeuer put their trust i God, were not ouer come. Feare not ye then the wordes of an vngodli man, for his glorye is but dounge and wormes: to daye is he set vp, and to morowe is he gone: for he is turned into earth and his memorial is come to naught. Wherfore (O my sonnes) take good herte vnto you, and quite youre selues lyke men in the lawe: for if ye do the thynges that are commaunded you in the lawe of the lorde your god, ye shall optayne greate honour herin.

And beholde, I knowe that your brother Simon is a manne of wisdome: se that ye geue care vnto hym alwaye, hee shalbe a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus, he hath ben euer bene myghtye and stronge from his youthe vp: let hym be your captayne, and ordre the battell of your people: thus shal ye bringe vnto you all those that fauoure the lawe, and se that ye auenge the wōge of youre people, and recompence the heathen agayne, and apply your selues inwhole to the comaundement of the law So he gaue thē his blessinge, and was layd by his fathers & died in the C. and xlvi. yeare at Modin, where his sonnes buried him in his fathers sepulcre, and all Israel made great lamentacion for hym.

¶ Judas is made ruler ouer the Jewes. He killeth Apollonius Seron the prince of Syria. The confidence of Judas towarde God. Judas determeneth to fight agaynst Lisias whome Antiochus had made captayne ouer his host. The prayer of thes Abstynens.

The .iii. Chapter

Then stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers stede, and all his brethren helped hym: and so dyd all thei that helde with his father/ and fought wyth cheerfulnes for Israell. So Judas gat his people greatte honour: He put on a brest plate as a gyaunte, and arayde hym selfe wyth his harnes, and defended his hoste wyth his swearde. In his actes he was lyke a lyon, and as a lyons whelpe roaringe after his praye.

He was an enempe to the wicked & hunted thē out: and brent vp those that vexed his people: so that his enempes fled for feare of him, and all the workes of vngodlynes wer put to trouble. Such lucke & prosperitie was in his hande. Thys grened diuerse kynges/ but Jacob was greatlye reioyced thorowe his actes, and he gat him selfe a great name for for euer.

He wente thorow ỹ cytyes of Juda, destroyenge the vngodly out of them/ turnyng awaye ỹ wrath from Israell, and receauyng soch as were oppressed: and the fame of him went vnto ỹ vtter most parte of the earth. Then Appollonius (a prince of Syria) gathered a mighty greate hoste of the Heathen & oute of Samaria, to fyght agaynst Israell.

Whych when Judas perceaued, he wente forth to mete him, fought wt him: slewe him, and a great multitude with hym, the remnaunte fled, & he toke their substaunce. Judas also toke Appollonius owne swearde, and foughte with it all his lyke longe.

Now when Seron (another prince of Syria) herde saye/ ỹ Judas had gathered vnto hym the congregacyon & church of the faythfull, he saide: I will get me a name and a praise thorow out ỹ realme: for I will go fight with Judas, and them that are with him, as many as haue despised the kinges commaundemēt.

So he made him ready, and there wente with him a greate myghtie hoost of the vngodly, to stande by hym, and to be auenged of ỹ children of Israel. And when thei came nie vnto Bethoron, Judas went forth against thē with a small compani. And when his people sawe soch a great hoste before them, thei sayde vnto Judas: How are we able (beynge so fewe) to fyghte againste so greate a multitud and so stronge: seing we be so werry/ and haue fasted all this daie.

But Judas sayde: It is a small matter for many to be ouercome wt fewe: ye there is no difference to the God of heauen, to deliuer by a great multitude or by a small compani: for the victori of ỹ battel standeth not in the multitude of the hoost, but the strength cōmeth from heauen. Beholde, thei come against vs withe a presumptuous, and proude multitude, to destroie vs, oure wiues & oure children, and to robbe vs. But we wyll fight for oure lyues, and for oure lawes, and the Lorde him selfe shall destroie them before our face: therfore be not ye afrayed of them.

As soone as he had spoken these wordes he leapte fordenly vpon them. Then was Seron smiten and his hoste put to flyght and Judas folowed vpon them beyonde Bethoron vntoo the plain felde, where ther were slayne, viii hundred men of them, and the residue fled into the lande of the philistines.

Then all the heythen on curry syde were afrayd for Judas and his brethere: so that the rumoure of hym came vnto the kings eares, for al ỹ gentyles could tell of the warres of Judas.

So when kinge Antiochus hearde these tydinges, he was angry in his minde: wherfore he sent forth and gathered an host of hys whole realme very stōg armies, and opened hys treasurye, and gaue his hoost a yeares wages in hād commaundinge them to be redye at all times.

Neuertheles when he saw that thre was not money enough in hys treasuries/ and that thorow the misorde ād persecution, which he made in the land (to put downe the lawes that had bene of olde times) his customes and tributes of the lande were minished: he feared that he was not able for to beare ỹ costes and charges any longer/ nor to haue suche giftes to geue so liberallye as he dyd afore, more then the kinges that were before hym.

Wherfore he was beuy in his minde, and thoughte to go into Perssydes/ for to take tributes of the lande, and so to gather much moneye. So he left Lisias (a noble man of the kynges bloud) to ouerlee the kinges businesses, from the water Euphrates, vnto the borders of Egipte: and to keepe well his sonne Antiochus tyll he came agayne.

Moreouer, he gaue hym half of his hoolte and Elephantes committed vn to him euery thynge of hys mynde, concerninge those whych dwelt i Juda ād Jerusalem: that he shoulde set oute an armye against them to rote out and destroye and to rote out the power of Israell, and the remnaunt of Jerusalem, to put out theyr memorial from that place, to set strangers for to inhabit al theyr quarters, and to part theyr land amonge them. Thus the king toke the other parte of the hoost, and departed from Antioch (a citie of his realme) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hundreth and. xlvii. yeare, and went thrōw the hye contrees.

1. Ma. vii. a

And Lisias chose vnto hym Ptolomy the sonne of Dozimimus, Nicanor and Gorgias myghtie men, and the kinges kreendes. These he sent with. xl. thousand fote men, and. vii. thousand horsmen, for to go into the lande of Juda, & to destroye it, as the kinge commaunded. So they went forth with all theyr powez, and came to Emmaus into the playne felde. When the marchauntes herd the rumour of them, they and their seruauntes toke very muche syluer and golde, for to bye the childeren of Israell to be theyr bondmen. Ther came vnto them also yet mo men of warre out euery syde, out of Siria and from the Palestines.

Now when Judas and hys brethren sawe that troubble encreased, and the hoost drew nye vnto theyr borders, considering the kinges wordes whych he commaunded vnto the people: name lye, that they shoulde vtterly wast and destroye them: They sayde one to an other: Let vs redresse the decaye of oure people/let vs fighte for oure folcke, and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congregation were sone ready gathered together to fyght, to praye and to make supplication vnto God for mercye & grace.

1. Ma. i. b

As for Jerusalem, it laye voyde, and was as it had bene a wyldernes. Ther went no man in nor oute at it, and the sanctuary was troden down. The aleauntes kepte the castell, where was the habitacion of the heathen. The mirthe of Jacob was taken awaye, the pype & the harpe was gone from amonge the.

The Israelytes gathered them together and came to Maspha, before Jerusalem: for in Maspha was the place wher they praied afore time. So they fasted y day, & put on saccloth cast asshes vpon their heads: rent theyr clothes, and leyde forth the bokes of the lawe (Wherout the heathen sought the lykenesse of their ymages) and brought the prestes ornamentes, the fyrstlynges and the tithes. They sette there also the abstaynyers whyche had fulfylled theyr dayes) before god, and cryed with a loude voice towarde heauen saying: what shall we do wyth these? and whether shal we cary them awaye? for y Sanctuary is troden downe and defyled, thy prestes are come to heuynesse and dyshonour: and beholde, the Heathen are come together for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thinges they ymagin agaynst vs. How may we stande before theim, excepte thou (O GOD) be oure helpe?

They blewe out the trompette also wyth a loude voyce. Then Judas ordened captaynes ouer the people: ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes / ouer fyftye, and ouer ten. But as for soch as buylded them houses, maryed wyues, planted them vyneyardes, and those that were fearfull: he commaunded them euery man to go home, accordynge to y lawe. So y hoost remoued, and pytched vpō y southsyde of Emmaus.

Dan. vi. a

And Judas sayde: Arme youre selues, be stronge (O my childrem) make you ready agaynst to morow i the morynge, that ye may fyght wyth these people, whych ar agreed together to destroy vs and oure sanctuarye. Better is it for vs to dye in battayll, than to se our people & our sanctuary in soch a mysserable case. Neuertheless, as the wyll is i heuen, so be it.

Math. xi. Luc. xii.

¶ Judas goeth agaynst Gorgias whych lyethe in wayte. He putteth Gorgias and his hoost to flyght. Lisias inuadeth Iewrye, but Judas driueth hym out. Judas purifieth y temple and dedicateth y aulter.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

Then toke Gorgias fyue thousand men of fote, and a thousande of the beste horsmen: and remoued by night, to come nye where y Jewes hoost laye, and so to slaye them sodenly. Now the men that kepte the castell, were the conueyers of them. Then arose Judas to smyte the chefe and pryncipall of the kynges Hoost at Emmaus, for the army was not yet come together. In the meane season came Gorgias by nyght in to Judas tentes: and when he founde no man there he sought them in the mountaynes, and thought they had bene fled awaye because of him.

But when it was daye, Judas shewed hym selfe in the feld wyth thre thousand men only, whyche hath neither harnesse ner weardes to their myndes.

But on the other syde, they sawe that y Heathen were myghtie and wel harnesshed, and their horsmen aboute them/& all these well experte in fettes of warre. Then sayde Judas to the men y were with him: Feare not ye the multitude of them, be not afrayed of their violente rumynge: remembre how oure fathers were delyuered in y reed see, when Pharao threatened them with a great hoost. Euen so lette vs also crye now towarde heauen: and the Lorde shall haue mercy vpon vs, and remembre the couenaunt of oure fathers, yee and destroye this Hoost before oure face this daye: And all the heathen shal know, that it is God hym selfe, which delyuereth and sauyeth Israel.

1. Ma. iii. a

Then the Heathen lyft vp their eyes and when they sawe that they were comynge agaynst the, they went out of their tentes in to the battayll: and they that were wyth Judas, blewe vp the trompets. So they buckled together, and y Heathen were discomfyted and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hynmost of them were slayne. For they folowed vp o them vnto Allaremoth, and in to y feldes of Joumea towarde Azot & Jamnin: so that ther were slayne of them vpon a thre thousande men. So Judas turned agayne wyth his Hoste, & saide vnto the people: Be not gredy of spoyles, we haue yet a battayll to fyght: for Gorgias and his hoost are here by vs i the mountaynes, but stande ye fast agaynst oure enemyes, and ouer come them then maye ye safely take the spoyles.

As Judas was speaking these wordes there apeared one parte of them vpon the mount. But whan Gorgyas sawe that they of his partye were fled/& the tentes brente vp (for by the smoke they might understand what was done (they perceaupnge this, were very sore afrayed: and when they sawe also y Judas and hys hoost were in the felde ready to stricke batayll, they fled euery chone in to the lande of the Heathen.

So Judas turned agayne to spoyle

the tentes where they gat muche golde and syluer, precious stones, purple and greate riches. Thus they went home and songe a Psalme of thanke geuing and prayse vnto god in heuen: for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer. And so Israell had a great victorye in that daye.

Now all the heathen that escaped, came and told Lisias euery thig as it is apoited. Wherfor Lisias was sore afrayde and grieued in his mynde, because Israel had not gotten such misfortune as he woulde they shoulde. nether as y kinge commaunded. The nexte yeare folowing: gathered Lisias three score thousande, chosen Yenne of fote, and fyue thousand horsmen, to fyght agaynst them.

So they came into Jewry, and pytched theyr tents at Bethzoron wher Judas came against them with ten thousande men. And when he sawe so greate myghtie an hoost, he made hys prayer & sayde: Blessed be thou (O sauioure of Israell) which diddest destroye the vyolent power of the giaunte/in the hande of thy seruaunt Dauid, and gauest the hoost of the hethen into the hande of Jonathas (the sonne of Saul) and of hys weapen bearer.

1. Reg. xvii. a

1. Ma. xiiii.

But this hoost nowe into the hande of thy people of Israel, and let them be confounded in theyr multitude of horsemen. Make them afrayde and discomfort the boldnes of theyr strength that they may be moued thrōw their destruction. Cast them downe thorow the swerde of thy louers, then shall all they that knowe thy name, praise the with thanke kesgeuinge.

So they stroke the battell, and there were slayne of Lisias hoost fyue thousand men. Then Lisias seinge the discomfeting of hys men, and the manlynes of the Jewes, howe they were redi ether to lyue or to dye lyke men: He went vnto Antioche and chose out men of warre: that when they were gathered together they might comme agayne into Jewry.

Then sayde Judas and hys brethren: beholde, our enemyes are discomfited:

Let vs now go vp/to clense and to repayre the Sanctuary.

Upon this,al the hoost gathered the together,and wente vp vnto mount Sion. Now when they sawe the Sanctuary layed waste,the alter defiled ye dores brent vp,& the shrubbes growinge in ye courtes,like as in a wode or vpo mountaynes,yee and that the prestes Celles were broken downe: They rente theire clothes,made greate lamentacion cast asshes vpō their heades,fell downe flat to the grounde,made a greate noyse w the trompetes, and cryed towarde heauen.

Then Judas apoynted certayne me, to fyght agaynst those,which were in ye castell til they had clensed ye Sanctuary. So he chose prestes that were vndefiled: such as had pleasure in the lawe of god/ and they clensed the Sanctuarye/ and bare out ye defyled stones into an vncleane place. And for so much as the aulter of burntofferings was vnhalowed,he toke aduisement,what he might do with al: so he thought it best to destroye it (lest it shoulde happen to do theym any shame)for the heathen had defiled it,& therfore they brake it downe. As for the stones they layde theym vp vpon the mountain by ye house in a conuenient place til there came a prophet to shewe, what shulde be done with them.

So they toke whole stones accordig to the lawe,and buylded a newe aulter such one as was before,and made vp ye Sanctuary wyn and wout,and halowed the courtes. They made new ornamētes,and brought the candelstick the aulter of incence,and the table into the temple. The incence laied they vpō ye alter, and lyghted the lampes which were vpon the candlestycke ,that they myghte burne in the temple. They set the shewbread vpon the table and hanged vp ye vaile,and set vp the temple,as it was afore and vpon the xxv day of the ix moneth,which is called the moneth of casleu in the clxbiii. yeare they rose vp by times in the mornynge for to do sacrifyce accordyng to the lawe vpon the new burnt offeringaulter that they had made: after the tyme and season that the Heathen had defyled it.

The same daye was it set vp againe w songes,pypes,harpes and cymbales.

And al the people fel vpon their faces,worshipping and thanckyng ye god of heauen ,which had geuen the the vpper. So they kept the dedicatiō of the aulter viii.dayes offring burnt sacrifyces and thankes geuynge w gladnes. They dect the temple also with crownes and shyldes of golde, and halowed the portes and celles and hāged dores vpon them. Thus ther was very greate gladnes among the people,because the blasphemy of the Heathen was put awaye. So Judas and his brethren w the whole congregation of Israel,ordened,that the tyme of the dedicacyon of the aulter shulde be kepte in his season from yeare to yeare,by the space of viii dayes from the xxv.daye of the moneth Casleu:yea and that wyth myrthe and gladnes.

And at the same time buylded they vp the mount Sion with hie walles ād stronge towres rounde about: lest the Gentils shoulde come & treade it doune as they did afore. Therfore Judas set men of warre in it,to kepe it:and made it strong,for to defend Bethsura: that the people might haue a refuge against the Edomites.

¶ Judas vanquisheth ye Heathen that go about to destroye Israel and is holped of his brethren Simō and Jonathas he ouerthroweth the kynge of Ephrō. because they denied him passage thorow it.

¶ The.v.Chapter.

IT happened also that whe the heathen rounde about herd how that the aulter & the Sanctuary were set vp in their olde estate: it displesed them very sore,wherfore they thought to destroy the generacion of Jacob that was amonge them: In so much that they began to slaye and to persecute certayne of the people.

Then Judas fought agaynst thee chyldren of Esauin Idumea , and agaynst these whiche were at Arabathane(for they dwelt rounde about the Israelytes where he slew & spoyled a great multitude of them. He thought also vpon the malyce and vnthanckfulnesse of the chyldren of Beon,how they were a snare & stopp vnto ye people & how they layd wayt for the in ye hye way: wherfore he shut the vp into towers & came vnto them,condempned them,and brent vp theyr towres ,with all that were in them

Afterwarde went he agaynst the chyldren of Ammon , whereof he founde a mighty power ,and a greate multitude of people,with Timothye theyr captaine. So he stroke many batels with the whiche were destroyed before hym. And when he had slayne them,he wan Gazer the citie withe the townes belongynge therto,and so turned agayne into Jewrye. The heathen also in galaad gathered them together against the Israelytes that were in theyr quarters to slaye them: but they fled to the castell of Dathema,and sent letters vnto Judas & his brethren,saying: The heathen are gathered against vs on euerye syde,to destroye vs,and now they make theym for to come,and laye sege to the castell, whervnto we are fled : And Tymothi is the captayn of theyr hoost: come therfore,and delyuer vs out of theyr hands for there is a greate Multitude of vs slayn already. yea our brethern that were lefte at Tubin,are slayn and destroid (well nye a thousand men) and theyre wyues,theyr childrē,& theyr goodes haue the ennemyes led away captyue.

Whyle these letters were yet a redig, beholde,there came other messengers from Galilee,with rente clothes: which tolde euen the same tidynges,and sayd that they of Ptolomaus,of Tirus and of Sidon were gathered against them; and that all galyle,was fylled with enemyes to destroy Israel. When Judas and the people herde thys,they came together (a great congregacion)to deuise,what they might do for their brethern /that were in troubble and besieged of theyr enemyes. And Judas saye vnto Simon his brother: chose the out certayne men, and goo delyuer thy brethren in Galile: As for me and my brother Jonathas,we wyll go into galaadithim. So he left Josephus the sonne of zachary, ād Azarias to be captaynes of the people and to kepe the remaunt of the hoost in Jewry,and cōmaūded the sayig: take ye ouersight of thys people & se ye make no war against ye Heathen,vntyll the tyme that we come agayne,And vnto Simō he gaue thre thousande men for to goo in to Galilee,but Judas hym self had eyght thousande in Galaadithim.

Then went Symon in to Galile,& stroke diuerse batelles with the Heathen whom he discomfyted and followed vpon them vnto the porte of Ptolemais. And there were slayne of the Heathen allmost.iii. thousande men. So he toke the spoyles of them,and caried awaye ye Israelites,that were in Galilee & Arbatis,wyth their wyues,their childrē & all that they had,and brought them in to Jewry with greate gladnesse, Judas Machabeus also and his brother Jonathas,wente ouer Jordane,and trauailed.iii dayes iourney i the wyldernesse: where the Nebuthees met them,and receaued them louyngly,and tolde the euery thynge that had happened vnto their brethren in Galaadithim,& how ye many of the were beseged i barasa Bosor, Alimis,Casphor,Mageth & Carnaim (al these are strong walled and myghtie greate cyties(and that they were kept in other cytyes of Galaad also: and to morow they are apoynted to bringe their hoost vnto these cities,to take them & to winne them i one daye.

So Judas and his hoost turned i all the haste in ye wyldernesse towarde Bosor,and wonne the cytie,sleweal ye males with the sweard,toke all their goodes/and sett fyre vpon the cytie And in ye nyght they toke their iourneye from thence,and came to the castell. And by tymes i the morynyng whe they loked vp, beholde,there was an innumerable people bearynge laders and other instrumētes of warre, to take ye castell and to ouercome them.

When Judas sawe that ye battaill beganne,and that the noyse therof went vp and range in to the heauen and ye there was so greate a cryc in the cytie: He sayd vnto his hoost: fyght this daye for your brethren. And so came behinde their enemyes in thre companyes,and blewe vp the trompettes, and cryed in their prayer to God.

i.Reg.vii.g.

i.Esdre.viii.

But as soone as Timotheus hooste perceaued that Machabeus was there they fled from him, and the other slewe them doune right sore: so that there were killed of them that same daye, al moste eyght thousande men. Then departed Judas vnto Masipha, laied sege vnto it, wanne it, slewe al the males in it, spoiled it, and set fyre vpon it. From thence went he & toke Casbon, Mageth Boser and the other cyties in Galaad.

After thes gathered Timothy another hoost, which pitched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas sent to spy the hoost, and they brought him worde agayne, sayenge: All the heathen that be round abboute vs are gathered vnto him, and the hoost is very greate: Yea they haue hyred the Arabians to helpe theym, and haue pytched their tentes beyonde the water, and are readye to come and fighte agaynste thee. So Judas went on to mete them.

And Timothy sayde vnto ỹ captaynes of hys hoost: when Judas and hys hoost come vpe the riuer: yf he goo ouer fyrste, we shal not be able to wythstande him: for why, he wyl be to strōg for vs. But yf he tarye not come ouer so that he pytche hys tente beyonde the water: then wyll we goo ouer, for we shalbe stronge ynough agaynste hym.

Now as soone as Judas came to the ryuer, he appoynted certayn scrybes of the people, and commaunded them, sayenge: se that ye leaue none behynd vpon thys syde of the ryuer, but let euerye man come to the battayll. So he went first ouer vnto them, and his people after him.

And all the heathen were discomfited before him, and let their weapons fal, and ranne into the temple that was at Carnai. Which cytie Judas wanne, and brent the temple with al that were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, and myght not withstande Judas. Then Judas gathered al the Israelytes that were in Galaad ythym, from the least vnto the most, with their wyues and their children (a very greate hoost) for to cō into the land of Israel.

So they came vnto Ephron, which was a myghtye greate and stronge cytie, and laye in their way. For they could not go by it, neither of the ryghte hande nor of the lyfte, but must go thorowe yt. Neuertheles they that were in the citie, wolde not let them go thorowe, but had vp the portes with stones. And Judas sent vnto them w peacible wordes, saying. Let vs passe thrōw your land, that we maie go into our own countre: ther shal no body do you harme, we wil but only go thorow. But they wolde not let them in.

Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclemacion to be made thrōw out the hoost, that euerye man shulde kepe his ordre: and so they did their best lyke valiaunte men.

And Judas beseged the cytie al that daie and al that nighte, and so wan it: where they slewe as many as were males, and destroyed the citie, and spoyled it, and wente thorowe all the cytie ouer them that were slayne. Then went they ouer Jordan in the playn felde, before Bethsā. And Judas helped those forwarde that came behinde, and gaue the people good exhortacyon al the way thorowe tyll they were come into the lande of Juda.

Thus they wente vp vnto the mounte Sion, where they offred with mirth ād thankesgeuinge: because there were none of them slayne, but came howe again peaceably.

Now what tyme as Judas and Jonathas were in the lande of Galaad ād Simon theyr brother in Galylee before Ptolomays. Then Joseph hus the sōne of Zacharyas and Azariah the captaynes hearinge of the actes that were done & of the battels that were stroken, sayde: Let vs get vs a name also and go fight agaynst the hethen that ly round about vs.

So they gaue theyr hoost a commaūdement, and wente toward Jamniah. then came Gorgiah and hys men oute of the citie to fyghte agaynste them, Joseph us also & Azariah were chased vnto the borders of Iewry and there were slayne that daye of the people of Israel ii. M. men so that there was a great misery amonge the people, and al because they were not obedyente vnto Judas and his brethren but thoughte they wolde quite them selues manfully. Neuertheles they came not of the sede of these men, by whom Israel was helped. But the men that were with Judas, were gretly cōmended in the sight of all Israel and al heathen, wheresoeuer their name was herde vpon, and the people came vnto theym byddynge them welcome.

After this went Judas forth wyth hys brethren, and foughte againste the children of Esau, in the land that lieth towarde the south, where he wanne the citie of Hebron and the townes that lie beside it: and as for the walles and towers round aboute it, he brente them vp. Then remoued he to go into the lande of the Philistines, and went thorow Samaria. At the same time were many preestes slaine in the battail, which wilfully and without aduisement, went out for to fight, to get them honoure. And whē Judas came to Azot in the Philistines lande, he brake downe theyr aulters / brent the images of their Idoles, spoyled the cities, and came agayne into the land of Juda.

¶ Antiochus wyllig to take the citie of Elimais for a prayes is driuen away of the Cretezins. He falleth into sickenes and dyeth. His sonne Antiochus is made kynge. The besege of the tower of Sion, Eupator commeth in to Jewry with a great army. The boke of the tenesse of Eleazar.

The vi. Chapter.

Nowe when Kinge Antiochus trauailed thorow the hie countrees, he herd that Elymais in Persia was a noble and plenteous citye in siluer and golde and ỹ there was in it a very rich temple: where as were clothes, cote armours and shildes of gold, which Alexander the sonne of Philippe king of Macedonia had left behynd hi. Wherfore he went about to take the cytie and to spoile it, but he was not able: for ỹ citizens were warned of it, & fought whi. And so he fled & departed w̄ greate beuines, & cā again into Babilō. Mo recouer, there cā one which broughte hi tydinges i Perside, ỹ his hostes whyche were i ỹ lād of Juda, were driuē awaie and how ỹ Lisias wente forth firste w̄ a greate power, & was driuē awaie of ỹ Jewes: how ỹ they had wonne the victory / & gotten greate goodes out of the hoostes that perished: howe they had broken downe the abhominacion, which he set vp vppon the aultar at Jerusale, and fenced the sanctuary with hye walles, lyke as it was afore: ye and Bethsura hys cytie also.

So it chanced that when the kinge had herde these wordes, he was afraid ād greued very sore. Wherfor he layd hym downe vpon his bedde, and fel sycke for very sorowe and al because it had not happened as he had deuysed. And there continued he longe, for his greefe was euer more and more, so that he sawe, he must nedes dye. Therfore he set for hys frendes and sayde vnto theym: the slepe is gone fro myne eyes, for the very sorow and vexation of herte that I haue: for when I consydered in my mynde / the greate aduersitie that I am come in, where as afore tyme I was so mery, and so gretly set by (by reason of my power) Againe considering the euel that I haue donne at Jerusalem, from whence I toke all the riches of golde & siluer that were in it, and sent to fetch awaie the inhabiters of Jewry without any reasō why: I know, that these troubles are com vpon me for ỹ same cause And beholde, I must dye w̄ greate sorow in a straūge lande. Then called he for one Philyppe a frende of his, whō he made ruler of al his realme, ād gaue him the croune, his robe and his ring: that he shuld take his sonne Antiochus vnto him, and bringe hi vp, til he might raigne him selfe. So the king Antiochus died ther, in the. clxix. yeare. Wher Lisias knewe that the kinge was deed, he ordened Antiochus his sonne (whō he had brought vp) to raigne in his fathers sted, & called him Eupator. Now they that were in the castel (at Jerusale kepte in the Jewes rounde about the Sanctuary, and sought euer still to do them harme / for the strenthening of the Heathen.

Wherfore Judas thought to destroy the, and called al the people to gether, ỹ they might laie sege vnto them. So they came together in the. cl. yeare, ād beseged them, layinge, forth their ordynaunce and instrumentes of warre.

Then certayne of them that were besieged wente forth (vnto whom some vngodly men of Israell ioyned them selues also) and went vnto the king, sayenge: How longe wyll it be, or thou punyshe and auenge our brethren? We haue euer bene minded to do thy father scrupce, to walke in his statutes, & to obei his cõmaundements: Therfore our people fell from vs, and whersoeuer they founde any of vs, they slew them: ād they haue not only medled with vs/ but with al our countrees: and beholde thys daie are they besegeng the castell at Jerusalem, and haue made vp the stronge hold in Bethsura: And if thou Mach.iiiig doest not preuēt them right soone, they wyl do more then these, and thou shalte not be able to ouercome them.

When the king herde thys he was
D Mach.xiii.c very angry, and called al his frendes, the captaines of his fote men and of al his horse men together. He hyred men of warre also out of other realmes, ād out of the Iles of the sea, whyche came vnto him, and the nombre of his hooste Mach.iiii.g was an hundreth thousand fote men, & twentie thousande horsemen, and .xxxii. Elephantes wel exercised to battayll. These came thorow Idumea vnto Bethsura, and besieged it a long season, ād made diuers instrumentes of warre agaynste it. But the Iewes came out ād brent them, and fought lyke men. Thē departed Judas from the castell at Jerusalem, and remoued the host toward Bethzacaran ouer against the kynges armye.

So the kynge arose before ỹ daye, and brought the power of his host into ỹ waie to Bethzacaran, where ỹ hostes
E made them to the batyll, blowynge the trōpettes. And to prouoke the Elephātes to fyght, they shewed them the reed grapes and mulberies. And deuyded the Elephantes amonge the hooste so that by euery Elephant there stode a. M. men wel harnessed, and helmets of stele vppon their heades: Yea vnto euerye one of ỹ Elephātes also were ordened .v. hundred horse men of the beste/ whiche wayted of the Elephantes, goynge where so euer he wente, and departed not from hym.

Euery Elephante was couered wyth a stronge Tower of wodde, where vppon were .xxxii. valyaunte men wyth wepōs to fyghte, and within yt was a man of Inde to rule the beaste.

As for the remnaunte of the horsemen, he set them vppon bothe the sydes in two partes wyth trompettes, to prouoke the hoost, and to stere vp such as were slowe in the armye. And when the sonne shone vppon their shyldes of golde and stele/ the mountaynes glytered agayne at them, and were as bright as the creasettes of fyre. The kinges host also was diuided one part vpō the hye mountaynes, ỹ other low beneth: so they went on, takīg good hede, & kepig their ordre, & al they that dwelt in ỹ lād were afrayed at the noyse of their host when the multitude wente forth, and when the weapens smot together, for ỹ host was both great & myghti. Judas also, & his host entred into ỹ battel, and slew .vi.C. men of ỹ kinges armye. Now when Eleatar, the sonne of Saura did se one of the Elephāts decked wyth ỹ kings badge, and was a more goodlye beaste then the other: he thoughte the kynge shulde be vpon him, and ieoparde hym selfe to deliuer his people, and to get hi a perpetuall name.

Wherfore he ranne with a corage vnto the Elephante in the middest of ỹ hoost, smytynge theym downe of both the sydes, and slew many aboute hym. So went he to the Elephantes fete, & gat hi vnder him, and slew him: then fel the Elephant doune vpon him, ād there he dyed. Judas also and his men seing the power of the king and the myghtye violence of his host, departed from thē. And the kinges armye went vp against theym towarde Jerusalem, and pytched their tentes in Jewrye besyde the mounte Syon. Moreouer, the kyng toke truce wyth them that were in Bethsura.

But when they came out of the citie (because they had no vytayles wythin, and the lande laye vntilled) the kynge toke Bethsura, and set men to kepe it, and turned his hoost to the place of the Sanctuary/ & layde sege to it a greate while.

whyle. Where he made all maner ordynaunce: handbowes, fyrie dartes, sackettes to cast stones, scorpyons to shute arowes, and slinges. The Iewes also made ordinaūce against theirs, & fought a longe season.

But in the cytie there were no vytayles, for it was the seuenthe yeare of the warres, and those Heathen that remayned in Jewry had eaten vp al our store And in the sanctuary were few mē lefte for the hunger came so vpon them, that they were scatered abrode euery man to his owne place.

So when Lysias herde that Philippe (whom Antiochus the king while Mach.vi.b he was yet liuing, had ordened to bring vp Antiochus his sonne, that he might be kyng) was come againe out of Persia and Medea with the kynges hoost, and thought to optaine the kyngdome: He gat him to the kynge in al the haste and to the captaynes of the hoost, and saide: we decrease daylye, and oure vytayles are but small: Agayne, the place
G that we laye sege vnto, is very strong, & it were our parte to se for the realme. Let vs agree wyth these men and take truth with them, and wyth al their people and graunt them to lyue after their lawe as they dyd afore. For they be greued and do al these thinges against vs because we haue dispysed their lawe. So the king and the prynces were content, ād set vnto thē to make peace/ and they receaued it. Now when the kynge and the princes had made ā ende vnto them, they came oute of the castell, and the kyng went vp to mounte Syon. But when he sawe ỹ the place was wel fenced, he brake the othe that he made, and commaunded to destroie the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the haste, and returned vnto Antioch where he founde Philippe haupng dominion of the cytyes. So he fought against him, and toke the cytie agayne into hys hande.

Demetrius raygneth after he had kille de Antyochus & Lysias he troubleth the childrē of Israel thorow the counsel of certen wicked persons. The prayer of the prestes agaynst Nicanor. Judas killeth Nicanor, after he had made his prayer.

The vii Chapter.

In the .Cli. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Seleucus frō the cyte of Rome with a small companye of me, vnto a cytie of ỹ se coost and there he bare rule. And it chaūced that when he came to Antioch the citye of hys Progenetours, his host toke Antiochus and Lysis, to bryng them vnto him. But when it was told him, he said: let me not se their faces. So the hoost put them to death: Nowe when Demetrius was set vpon the trone of his kingdome, there came vnto him wicked and vngodly menne of Israell: whole captayne was Alcimus, that woulde haue bene made hye preste.

These men accused ỹ people of Israel vnto the kynge, sayinge: Judas & his brethren haue slayne thi frendes, & dryuen vs out of oure owne lande. Wherfore sende now some man (to whom ỹ geuest credence) that he may go and se all the destruccion, which he hath done vnto vs and to the kinges lande, and lett him be punished with all his frendes and fauourers.

Then the kinge chose Bachides a frend
B of hys, which was a man of greate power in the realme (beyond the great water) and faythful vnto the king and sete hym to se the destruction that Judas had done and as for that wycked Alcymus he made him hye preest, and commaunded hym to bee aduenged of the chylderen of Israell. So they stode vp and came with a greate hooste into the lande of Juda, sending messaungers to Judas and his brethren, and speakīge vnto them with peacible wordes: but vnder disceate. Therfore Judas and hys people beleued not theyre sayinge, for they sawe that they were com wyth a great hoost.

After thys came the scribes together vnto Alcimus and Bachides, trusting the best vnto them: And fyrst the Assideans required peace of them, saiynge Alcimus the preest is come of the sede of Aaron, howe can he disceaue vs: so they gaue theym louinge wordes, and swoore vnto theym, and sayde: we wyll Bla.lxxiv.a do you no harme, neither your frendes,

and

and they beleued them. But the very same daye toke they xl. men of them, and slewe them accordinge to the wordes þ are written: They haue cast the flesh of thy sainctes, and shed their bloud rounde about Jerusalem, and there was noo man that wolde bury them. So there came a greate feare and drede amonge the people, seing: ther was nether truth nor righteousnes in thē, for they haue broken the appointment of other that they made. And Bachides remoued his hoost from Jerusalem, and pytched his tēt at Bethzecha: wher he set forth and toke many of them that had forsaken him: he slew many of the people al so, and cast them into a greate pyt.

Thē committed he the lande vnto Alcimus, and lefte men of warre with hym to helpe hym, and Bachydes hym selfe went vnto the kynge. And thus Alcymus defended hys hye prestlhod, and al such as vexed Israel, resorted vnto hi: In so muche that they optayned þ land of Juda, and dyd muche euell vnto the Israelites.

Nowe when Judas sawe al the mischefe þ Alcimus and his companye had done (yea more then the heathen theym selues) vnto the Israelites: He went forth round aboute the borders of Jewrye, and punished those vnfaithful runnagates, so þ they cam nomore out into the countre. So whē alcimus saw, that Judas and hys people had gotten the vpperhande, and that he was not able to abyde theym: he went againe to the kynge, and laide al the worst of them þ he coulde. Then the king sent Nicanor one of his chefe princes (which bare euell will vnto Israell) and commaunded him, that he should vtterly destroie the people.

So Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a greate hoost, and sent vnto Judas his brethren with frendlye wordes (but vnder dissceate) sayenge: there shal be no warre betwyxte me and you: I wyl come wt a fewe men, to se how ye do with frendship. Upon thys he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but the enemies were apointed to take Judas by violence. Neuertheles it was told Judas, that he came vnto hym but vnder dyssceate: wherefore he gat hym awaye from hym, and wolde se hys face no more. When Nicanor perceaued that his councell was bewraied, he went out to fight against Judas, besyde Caparsalama: Where there were slayne of Nicanors hoost, v. M. men: the residue fled vnto þ castell of Dauid.

After thys came Nicanor vp vnto þ mount Sion: and the prestes with the elders of the people wente forth to salute him peaceably and to shew hym the burnt sacrifices that were offered vnto the kyng. But he laughed thē to scorne mocked them, defiled their offeringes, and spake disdaynedlye, yea and sore in his wrath, sayenge: If Judas and his hoost be not delyuered now into my hādes, as soone as euer I came againe (I wil fayre wel) I shal burne vp thys house. Wyth þ, went he out in a greate anger. Then the prestes came in, and stode before the aulter of the temple/ weppyng and sayenge: For so muche as thou (O Lorde) hast chosen thys house, that thy name myght be called vpon theri, and that it shoulde be an house of prayer and petition, vnto thy people. Be auenged of thys man and hys hoost and let them be slayne with the swerd, remembre the blasphemies of them and suffre them not to continue eny longer.

When Nicanor was goue from Jerusalem, he pitched his tent at Bethoron and there an hoost met him out of Syria. And Judas came to Adersa with iii. M. men and made hys prayer vnto God saieng: O Lorde because thei messaungers of king Sennaherib blasphemed the, the aungel went fourth & slewe an C.lxxv. thousannd of them: Euen so destroy thou this hooste before vs thys daye, that other people may know, how that he hath blasphemed thy sanctuari and punish him, accordyng to his malycyousnes.

And so the hoostes stroke the felde þ thirtenthe daye of the Moneth Adar and Nicanors hoost was discomfited and he him selfe, was fyrst slayn in the battell. When Nicanors men of warre saw þ he was killed, thei cast awai their weapons and fled, but the Jewes folowed

wed vppon them an whole dayes iourney, from Adazer vnto Gazara, blowynge with the trompettes, and making tokens after them. So the Jewes came forth of al the townes there about, and blew out their hornes vpon them, and turned against them: Thus were they al slaine, and not one of them left.

Then they toke their substaūce for a praie and smote of Nicanors heade & hys right hand (whiche he helde vp so proudly) and brought it with them, and hanged it afore Jerusalem. Wherfore the people were exceadynglye reioysed, And passed ouer that daye in greate gladnesse. And Judas ordeyned, that the same daye (namelye, the .xiii. daye of the moneth Adar) should be kepte in myrth euery yeare. Thus the lande of Juda was in rest a lytle whyle.

¶ Judas considring the power & goodly policy of the romaines maketh peace with thē. The rescript of the romaynes sent vnto the Jewes.

¶ The.viii. Chapter.

Judas hearde also the fame of the Romaynes, that thei were mightye and valeant menne, and agreable to all thynges that are required of them, and make peace with all men, which come vnto them, and howe they were doughtie men of strength. Besides that it was tolde hym of theyr battels and noble actes which they did in Galatia, how he conquered them, and brought them vnder trybute: and what greate thinges, they had doue in Spaine, how that wyth theyr wysdome and sober behaueoure, they had wonne the Mines of siluer and gold that are ther, and optayned all the land, withe other places farre from them: how they hadde discomfited and slayne downe the kynges that came vpon them, from the vtter moost parte of the earth, and how other people gaue them trybute euerye yeare: How they had slayne and ouercome Philyppe and Perses kinge of Cethi, & other more (in battel) whiche had brought their ordinance against thē: how they discomfited great Antiochus kig of Asie (þ would ne des fight wyth thē) hauing an hundred & xx. Elephantes, with horsmen/ charettes, & a very greate hoost: how they toke hi selfe alyue, & ordeined hym (with such as shulde raigne after him) to paye them a greate trybute, yee and to fynde them good suertyes and pledge. besydes all thys, how they had taken from him Judia, Media, and Lydia (his best landes) & geuen them to kynge Eumenus. Agayne, how they perceauyng that Ezekes were comminge to vexe them: sent agaynst them a capitayne of an hoost, which gaue the battayl, slew many of them, led away their wyues and Children captyue, spoyled them, toke possession of their lande, destroied their strong holdes, and subdued them to be their bonde men, vnto this daye: Moreouer, how what as for other kyngdomes and Iles, whych sometyme with stode them, they destroyed them, & brought thē vnder their dominyō: But helped euer their owne frendes and those that were confederate with them, & conquered kyngdomes both farre and nye: and that who so euer herde of their renowne, was afrayed of them: for whō they wolde helpe to their kingdomes, those raigned: and whom it lyked not them to raigne, thei put him down: And howthei were come to great preeminēce, hauinge no kinge amonge them, nether eni man clothed in purple, to be magnified there thorow but had ordened them selues a perlament/ where i there sat iiii. C. and xx. Senatours daylie vpon the councel, to dispatch euer the businesse of the people, and to kepe good ordre: And how that euery yeare they chose a Waize, to haue the gouernaunce of al their lande: to whome euerye man was obediente, and that there was nether euell wil ner discencion amonge them.

Then Judas chose Eupolemus the sonne of Jhon the sonne of Jacob, and Jason the sonne of Eleazar, & sent thē vnto Rome for to make frendshype ād a bonde of loue withe theym: that they might take from thē the bondage of the Ezekes, for the Jewes sawe that the Ezekes wolde subdue the kingdom of Israell. So they went vnto Rome (a very great iourney, and camein to the Perlament, and sayde: Judas Machabeus with his brethren & the people of þ any of theyr frendes throw out all their dominion, the people of the Jewes shal help thē (as ye time requireth) & ye wt all their hertes. Also they shall nether geue nor send vnto their enemyes, vitayles, weapons, money nor shippes: but fulfil this charge at the Romains pleasure, & take nothing frō them therfore. Agai

if the people of the Jewes happen first to haue warre, the romaines shal stande

ge wout diceat. Accoding to the ar ticles, the romaynes made the bonde wt
the Jewes. Nowe after these articles (sayd they) if any of ye parties wil

After the death of Nicanor Demetrius sendeth his put in steade of his brother. The strife betwene Jo

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

In the meane season, when Demetrius herde that Nicanor and hys
hoost was slayn in the felde, he pro ceaded further to sende Bachydes and Alcimus agayne into Jewry, & those that were in ye right wynge of his hoost, with them. So they wente forth by the waye that leadeth vnto Galgala, & pitched their tentes before Mesaloth which is in Arbellis, and wanne the citie, &
slewe moch people. In the first moneth of ye C.lii. yeare, they brought their hoost
to Jerusalē / & rose vp & came to Berea, wt xx. M. fote men, and .ii. M. horsmen.

Now Judas had pitched his tente at Laisa, with thre thousand de cholen men.
And when they sawe the multytude of the other army that it was so great, thei were sooze afrayed, and manye conueieed them selues out of the hoost. In so moch that there abode no mo of thē but viii. C. men. When Judas sawe ye his hoost fayled him, and that he must ne-des fight: it brake his hert, that he had no tyme to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble.
Neuerthelesse he sayde vnto them, that remayned with hym: Up, let vs go agaynst our enemyes, paraduentur we shall be able to fighte wyth them. But they wolde haue stopped him, sayenge: we shal not be able, therfore let vs now saue oure lyues, and turne agayne to our brethren and then wyl we fight agaynst them, for we are here but fewe. And Ju das sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde
fle from them. & therfore yf oure tyme be come, lett vs dye manfully for oure brethren, and let vs not slayne our honeur. Then the hoost remoued out of ye tentes, & stode agaynst them. The horsmen were deuyded in two partes: the slyng casters and the archers wente be fore the hoost, and all the mightye men were formest in the feld. Bachides him self was in the right wyng of the batt-tel and the hoost drewe nye in two part es, and blew the trompettes. They of Judas syde blewe the trompettes also,
and the earth shoke at the noyse of the hostes, and they stroke a felde from ye morow vntil nyght. And when Judas sa we that Bachides hoost was strongest of the right syde, he toke with hym all the hardy me, and brake the right wynge of their ordre, and folowed vpō the vnto the mount Azot

Now when they whych were of the left wynge, sawe that the right side was discomfited, they persecuted Judas & them that were with hym. Then was there a sore battayll, for many were slayne and wounded of both the partyes / Judas also hi self was kylled, and ye remaunt fled: for Jonathas & Symon toke Judas their brother, and buried him i his fathers sepulcre in the cyte of Mo

din. And all the people of Israell made greate lamentacion for him, & mourned longe, sayenge: Alas, that thys worthy shulde be slayne, which delyuered ye people of Israel. As for other thinges perteyning to the batayles of Judas, the noble actes that he did ād of his worthy nesse: they are not written, for thei were very many.

¶ Josephus. cap. viii. li. xii. Ba 14.

And after ye deth of Judas, wicked men came vp in al the coastes of Israel, and there arose all soch as worke vngodlyne nesse. In those dayes was there a great dearth in the lande, and all the countre
gaue ouer them selues and theirs vnto Bachydes. So Bachydes chose wicked men and made thē lordes i ye land.
These sought out and made search for Judas frendes, and brought thē vnto Bachides: which auenged him self vpō thē with greate despite. And there came so great trouble in Israell, as was not sens the time that no prophet was sene
there.

Then came all Judas frendes toge ther, and sayde vnto Jonathas: For so moche as thy brother Judas is deade, ther is non lyke him to go forth against oure ennemies, agaynst Bachides / and soch as are aduersaries vnto our people.
Wherfore, thys daye we chose the for him, to be oure prynce and captayne to ordre oure battell. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon hym at ye same tyme, and ruled i steade of hys brother Judas. When Bachydes gatt knowlege therof, he sought for to lie hi: But Jonathas & Symon his brother, perceaupng that, fled in to ye wildernes of Thecua wyth all their compani, & pyt-ched their tentes by the water pole of Asphar.

Which when Bachydes vnderstode,
he came ouer Jordan wyth all hys hoost vpon the Sabbath daye. Now had Jo nathas sent his brother Johna captayng of ye people, to praie his frēdes ye Nabuthites, that they wolde sende thē
their ordynaunce, for they had moch.
So the chyldren of Jambry came out of Madaba, and toke Jhon and all that he had, and wente their waye wt
al. Then came worde vnto Jona thas / and Symon his brother, that ye childrē of Jambry made a greate maryage, and brought the bride fro Ma-daba with greate pompe: for the was daughter to one of the noble princes of Canaan. Wherfore they remenbred the bloude of Jhon their brother, and wente vp, and hyd them selues vnder
the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lyft vp theyr eyes, and loked: and beholde, ther was moch a do:
ād greate repayre: for the bryde groome
cam forth, & his frēdes & his brethren met them wt tympanes, instruments of musick, and many wepons. Then Jona thas and they that were with hym, rose out of their lurking places agaist them and slew many of them. As for the rem naunt, they fled into the mountaynes, & they toke al their substaunce. Thus the mariage was turned to mourning, and the noyse of their melody into lamenta cion. And so when they had auenged ye bloude of their brother / they turned againe into Jordan.

Bachydes hearinge this, came vnto
the very border of Jordan with a great power vpon the Sabboth daye. And Jonathas sayd to hys company: let vs
get vp, and fight agaynst our enemies:
for it standeth not wyth vs to daye, as in times past: Beholde, our enemyes ar
in oure waye, the water of Jordane vp on the one syde of vs, with bankes, fennes and wods on ye other syde, so that there is no place for vs to departe vn-
to. Wherfooze crye nowe vnto heauen, that ye maye be delyuered from the power of youre enemyes. So they stroke the battell. And Jonathas stretched out his hands to smite Bachides, but he fled backward. Then Jonathas and they that were with him lepte into Jordane, and swymmed ouer Jordane vnto him, and there were slaine of Ba chydes syde that daye, a thousāde men.

Therfor Bachides with his hoost turned agayn to Jerusalem/ & buylte vp the castels and stronge holdes ỹ were i Jewry, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bethel, Thamnata Phara and Topo/ whyche walles, wyth yates and with lockes and set men to kepe them, that they myghte vse their malice vpon Israell. He walled vp Bethsurah, Gazarah & ỹ castell at Jerusalem also, & prouyded them w men and vitales: He toke also, the chefelte mens sonnes in the countre for pledges, and put them in the castell at Jerusalem to be kepte.

After warde in the C.liii. yeare in ỹ second moneth/ Alcimus commaunded, that the walles of the inmost Sanctuary shulde be destroyd, & ỹ buyldinges of the prophetes also. And when he begane to destroy them the thinges ỹ he went about, were hyndred for he was smytten w a palsey, & hys mouth shut, so that he coulde nomore speake ner cõmaunde eny of his houle cõcerning his busyneſſe. Thus dyed Alcimus in great mysery at the same tyme. And when Bachides sawe ỹ Alcymus was dead, he turned agayne to the kinge, and so the lande was i rest ii. yeares. Then all the vngodly men helde a councell, sayeng: Beholde, Jonathas and his company ar at ease, and dwel without care. Wherefore lett vs brynge Bachides thither, And he shal take them al in one night.

So they went and gaue Bachides thys councel, which arose to come w a great hoost, and sent letters priuely to his adherentes which were in Jewry/ to take Jonathas and those that were wyth hym: but they myght not, for the other had gotten knoledge of theyr deuice. And Jonathas toke. L. men of the countre, (which were the ryngleaders of them (and slew them, Then Jonathas and Symon with their company departed vnto the cytye Bethbessen whiche lieth in the wildernes, and repaired ỹ decaye therof, and made it strong. When Bachydes knewe thys: he gathered all hys hoost, and sent worde to them that were of Jewry. Then came he and layed syege to Bethbessen & fought against it a long season, & made instruments of warre: now Jonathas left hys brother Simõ in ỹ cite, & wet forth hi selfe into the countree, and came with a certayne numbre, and slew Odarres and his brethren and the children of Phasseron in theyr tentes: so that he beganne to be stronge, and to increase in power.

As for Simon and his companye, they went out of the citie, and brent vp the instrumentes of warre, and fought against Bachides, ãd discomfited him. And bachides was sore vexed, because hys councell and trauayl was in vain. Wherfore he was wroth at the wicked men (that gaue hym councell to come in to theyre lande) and slew many of them Then purposed he with hys companye to go awaye vnto hys owne countree: wherof when Jonathas had knowledge, he sent embassadours vnto hym, for to make peace w him and that he shuld delyuer hym his prisoners againe. To the which Bachides consented gladlye/ and did accoding to hys desyre: yea and made an oth, that he should neuer do hi harme all the dayes of hys lyfe. So he restored vnto hym al the prisoners that he had taken out of the lande of Juda, and then turnede and wente hys waye into his owne lande, nether proceaded he any further to come vnto the borders of Juda. Thus Israel had no mor warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machmas, and beganne there to gouerne the people, and destroyed the vngodly men out of Israell.

¶ Demetrius desireth to haue peace w Jonathas Alexander moueth warre against Demetrius, Demetrius is slayne. The frendshyp, of Ptolomeus and Alexander.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

In the.c. xl. yeare came Alexander ỹ sonne of noble Antiochus, & toke Ptolomais whose citesens receaued hi and ther he raygned. Whe Demetrius herde therof, he gathered ã exceading greate hoost, and went forth agaynst him to fight. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas with louing wordes, and praysed him greatly. For he sayd, we wyl first make peace with hym, before he bynde hym selfe w Alexander against vs, els he shal remẽbre the euell that we haue done against hym

hym, his brother ãd his people. And so he gaue Jonathas leaue to gather an hoost, to make weapons and to be confederate wyth hym, and commaunded the pledges that were in the castel to be delyuered vnto hym.

Then came Jonathas to Jerusale, and red the letters in the audience of al the people, and of them that were in the castel and therfor were they sore a ferd, because they hearde, that the kinge had geuen hym lycence to gather an hoost. Thus were the pledges delyuered vnto Jonathas, whyche restored them to theyr elders. Jonathas also, dwelte at Jerusalem, and beganne to buylde vp and to repayre the citie: commaunding e the workemen, to wal it, and the mount Sion round aboute wyth free stone to be a stronge holde/ and so they dyd. As for the heathen that were in the castels, which Bachides had made vp, thei fled, so that euery man left the place, & went into hys owne countree. Only at Bethsura, remayned certayne of the Jewes, whych had forsaken the law and commaundementes of God: for Bethsura was theyr refuge.

Now when kinge Alexander hearde of ỹ promyses that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, & when it was told him of the battayles and noble Actes, whiche he and hys brethren had done, ãd of the great trauailes that they had taken: he sayd: where shal we fynd such a man? well, we wyl make him our frend and be confederate with him, vpon this he wrote a letter vnto hym, with these wordes: Kinge Alexander saluteth his brother Jonathas. We haue herde of thee, that thou art a valeaunt man, ãd mete to be our frend: wherfore this day we ordene thee to be the hye prest of thy people, and to be called the kinges frend. (Upon this, he sent hi a purple clothig & a crowne of golde) ỹ ỹ mayest cõsydre what is for oure profyt, & kepe frendship toward vs. So in ỹ. vii. moneth of ỹ C lx yeare vpon the solẽpne feast day of ỹ tabernacles, Jonathas put the holi raiment vpon hym. Then gathered he an hoost, and made many weapons. Which when Demetrius herde, he was meruelous sory, & sayd: alas, what haue we done, ỹ Alexander hathe preuented vs in geuynge the frendshyp of the Jewes, for his owne defence. Yet wyll I write louynglye vnto them also, yee & promyse them dyguftyes and rewardes, ỹ they maye be of mi syde. Whervpõ he wrote vnto them these wordes: Kyng Demetrius sendeth greting vnto the people of the Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte your couenaunt to ward vs, and cõtynued in our frendshyp, not enclyning to oure enemyes we were glad, when we herde therof, Wherfore remayne styl & be faythfull to vs: and we shall wel recompense you for the thinges, that ye haue done on oure partye: we shall release you of many charges, ãd geue you rewardes. And now I dyscharg you & all the Jewes from tributes, I for gene you the customes of salt, ãd release you of the crowne taxes, of the thirde parte of sede, and half of ỹ frute of trees, which is myne owne dewty. These I leaue for you/ from this daye forth: so ỹ they shall not be taken of the lande of Juda ner of the three cities whiche are added thervnto out of Samaria ãd Galilee/ from this day forth for euermore. Jerusalem also with all thinges belonging therto, shal be holy and fre, ye the tithes and tributes shall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of the castell which is at Jerusalem, I remitte and geue it vn to the hie prest, that he mai set in it such men, as he shall chose to kepe it. I freely deliuer all the Jewes that are prisoners thorow out all my realme: so that euery one of them shalbe fre from paying any tribut, yee euen of their catell. All the solẽpne festes, Sabbathes, newmones, the dayes appointed, ỹ thre dayes before and after the feast shalbe fre for all the Jewes in mi realme: so that in them no man shal haue power to do enithing, or to moue any busines against ani of thẽi ani maner of cause. There shall xxx. M. also of the Jewes be written vp in the kinges hoost, ãd haue their wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kinges shulde haue: and of them shalbe ordened certaine, to kepe ỹ kinges strong holdes: yee and some of thẽ shalbe set ouer the kinges busines ỹ they may faithfully deale with ỹ same,

The Jewes also shal haue princes of their awne, & walke in their owne lawes, as the king hath commaunded in ỹ lande of Juda.

And the thre cytyes that are fallen vnto Jewry from the countre of Samaria and Galilee: shalbe taken as Jewry/ād be vnder one: neither be subiect
E to anye straunge Lorde/ but to the hye preest. As for Ptolomais and the lande perteynynge therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Jerusalem, for the necessary expences of the holy thinges. Moreouer, I wyl geue euery yere xv. thousand Sycles of syluer out of the kynges checker (whych pertaineth vnto me) to the woorcke of the temple: yee & loke what remaynneth (which they that had our matters in hande in tymes past, haue not payed) that same shall they geue vnto them also. And besydes all thys, ỹ .v. M. sycles which they toke yearly of the rentes of the Sānctuary, shal belonge vnto the preastes that do seruice. Item, whosoeuer they be that fle vnto the temple at Jerusalem or with in the liberties therof, where as they are fallen into the kings daunger for eny maner of busynes, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they haue i my realme, shalbe fre. For the buyldynge also and repayrynge of the woorke of ỹ Sanctuari/ expenses shalbe geuen out of the kinges Checker.

1. Mac. viii. b But when Jonathas and the people herde these wordes, they gaue no credēce vnto thē, neyther receaued them: for they remembred the greate wyckednesse that he had done vnto Israel, and how sore he had vexed them. Wherfore thei agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prince that had dealt frendly wyth thē and so thei rode by him allwaie. Then gathered kyng Alexander a great host, and broughte his armie against Demetrius. So the two kinges stroke battaill together, but Demetrius host fled, and Alexander followed after & fell vpon them. A mightie sore feelde was it, continuing till the Sunne went downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same day.

Josephus cap. vi. lib. xiii. Ambassadours vnto Ptolomy the kinge of Egipte w these wordes, saying: For so much as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the trone of my progenitors, and haue gotten the dominion, ouercomed Demetrius, conquered the lande, and striken a felde with him, so that we haue discomfited both him and hys host, and syt in the trone of hys kingdome: Let vs nowe make frendshyp together, geue me thy daughter to wyfe, so shal I be thy sonne in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and her dignitie. Ptolomy ỹ the kinge gaue answere, saying: Happye be the daye wherin thou arte come agayne to the land of thy progenitours and set in the trone of theyr kingdome. As now wyll I fulfyl thy writting: but mete me at Ptolomais / that we maye se one an other, and that I maye marye my doughter vnto thee accordīg to thy desyre. So Ptolomy went out of Egipt, with his doughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptolomais in the. Clxii. yere: where the kinge Alexander mette hym, and he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and maried them at Ptolomais w greate worshippe, lyke as the maner of kinges is to be. Then wrote kinge Alexander vnto Jonathas that he shuld come and mete hym. So he went honorably vnto Ptolomais and ther he met the two kinges, and gaue them greate presentes of gold and syluer, and founde fauoure in theyr sight. And there came together agaīst Jonathas certayn wicked men and vngracious persons of Israell, making complaintes of hym but the kinge regarded them not.

As for Jonathas the kynge commaunded to take of his garments, & to cloth hym in purple: & so they dyd. The the kinge appointed hym to syt by hym and sayde vnto his princes: Go wythe hym into the myddest of the citie, & make a proclamacīō, that no mā complaine agaynst hym of any mater, and that no man trouble him for anye maner of cause.

So

So it happened that whē hys accusers saw the worshyp which was proclaimed of him: & that he was clothed in purple, they fledde euerichone. And the kynge made much of hym/ wrote him amonge his chefe frendes, made him a duke, & partaker of his dominion. Thus Jonathas wente agayne to Jerusalem with peace and gladnesse. In the C. lxv. yere came Demetrius the Sonne of Demetrius from Creta into hys fathers lande: wherof when Alexander herde tel he was vyght sorye/ and retourned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius chose Appollonius (which had ỹ gouernaūce of Celosyria) to be hys captayn.

1. Mac. xiii. a So he gathered a greate hooste and came into Jamnia, & sēt word vnto Jonathas the hye preest, sayeng: Art thō wilfull vs thy selfe alone? As for me/ I am but laughed to scorne ād shamed because thou prouoste thy strengthe against vs in the mountaines. Now ther fore yf ỹ trustest in thine owne stregth come downe to vs in the plaine feelde and there let vs proue our strength together: thou shalte fynde, that I haue
D halcaunte men of warre with me: and shalt know whom I am, and the other ỹ stand bie me. Which saie, ỹ your fote is not able to stāde before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twyse chased into their owne lād. And now, how wilt ỹ be able to abyde so great a hoste of horsmē and fotemen in the feld, wher as is neither rocke stone nor place to fle vnto?

When Jonathas herde the wordes of Appolonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherfore he chose .x. thousand mē and went oute of Jerusalem, and Symon hys brother met him for to help hi And they pitched theyr tentes at Joppa, but the citie kept hym forth, for Joppa was an holde of Apollonius. Then Jonathas layd sege to it, and they that were in the citie, for berye feare let them in: and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearing of thys brought thre thousād horsmen with a great hoste of fotemē, & went as though he wold go to Azotus and came immediatlye into the playne felde, because he had so manye horsmen, and put hys trust in them.

So Jonathas folowed vppon hym to Azotus, and ther they stroke a battaill. Now had Appollonius left a thousāde horsemen behinde thē, preuelye in their tentes. And when Jonathas knew that such waite was laied behinde thē, they went roūde aboute the enemies hoost, and shot dartes at the people from the morynge to the euenynge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte their order as he had cōmaunded thē, ād the enemies horses were euer labouring.

Then brought Simō forth his host & set them against the fotemen. For the horsemen were wery alredy. So he discomfited them, and they fled. And they that were scatered in the feelde, gat thē to Azotus, & came into the tēple of Dagon their Idol, ỹ they might ther saue their liues, but Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus, and al the cities round aboute it, and toke their goodes and brent vp the tēple of Dagon w al the that were fled into it.

1. Mach. xi. b Thus were slaine and brent welnie. viii. M. men. So Jonathas remoued ỹ hoste from thence, and brought them to Ascalon: where the men of the citie came forth, and met them w greate worshyp. After thys wente Jonathas and hys host againe to Jerusale, w greate substaunce of good. And when kinge Alexander herd these thinges, he thought to do Jonathas more worshyp/ and sente him a coler of golde, as the vse is to be geued vnto such as ar the kinges nere bloude. He gaue him also the cytie of Accaron (w the landes belonging therto) in possession.

The dyssencyon betwixt Ptolomeus & Alexander, his sonne in lawe, The death of Alexander. Demetrius raigneth after the death of Ptolomeus. Syō is beseged of Jonathas, Demetrius, seing ỹ no mā resisted him, sent his army againe, Triphō moueth Antiochus agaīst Demetrius, Demetrius is beate red by the succor of Jonathas. After his discomfeyture he breaketh his couenaunt ỹ he had made.

The. xi. Chater

Joseph. cap. vii. lib. xiii. AND the king of Egypt gather an hoost (like ỹ sand ỹ lieth vpon ỹ sea shore) w many shippes: & went a boute thorow out all create to optaine the kyngdomme of Alexander, and to ioyne it vnto hys owne realme.

Vppon thys he toke hys iourneye vnto Syrya, and was letten into the

the cytye

the cities, and men came forthe to mete him: for king Alexãder had cõmãnded yͤ so to do, because he was his father in lawe. Nowe when Ptolomy entred into eny citie, he left mẽ of warre to kepe it, and thys he did thorow all the Cities. And when he came to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon and Azotus that was brent vp, wͤ the other thynges, which were destroyed, the deed bodies caste abroade, and the graues yͤ they had made by the way side, for such as were slayn in yͤ feld: And told yͤ king that Jonathas had done all these thinges to the intente they might get hym euel wyl. But the king said not a word therto. And Jonathas met the kyng wͤ greate honoure at Joppa / where theye saluted one another, and toke ther rest. So when Jonathas had gone wyth yͤ kinge / vnto the water that was called Elutherus, he turned againe to Jerusalem. Now Ptolomy had gotten the dominion of yͤ cyties vnto Seleucia vpon the sea coast imagenig wicked counB cels against Alexander, and sent embassetours vnto Demetrius, saying cõ let vs make abond betwixt vs, so shal I gyue yͤ my daughter that Alexander hathe / and thou shalt raygne in thi fathers kynge dome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my daughter / for he goeth about to sle me. And thus he sclaundred Alexander, because he wold haue had his realme.

Thus he toke his daughter from him, gaue her vnto Demetrius, ād forsoke Alexander, so that his malice was openly knowē. And Ptolomy came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpon his owne hed yͤ crowne of Egypte and of Asia: In the meane season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled a gayns him. But when Alexander herde of this, he came to warre agaynst him. So kyng Ptolomi brought forth his host and met him with a myghtye power, and chased him away. Then fled Alexander in to Arabi, ther to be defended, and kynge Ptolomis honoure increased. And zabdiel the Arabian smote of Alexanders head, and sente it vnto Ptolomy.

But the thyrd daye after, dyed kynge Ptolomy him selfe: and they whome he had set in the strong holdes, wer slaine of those that were win the cyties. And Demetrius raigned in the hundreth & seuen and fyrtie yeare..

At the same time gathered Jonathas them that were in Jewry to laye siege vnto the castel which was at Jerusalem, and so they made many ingrumẽtes of warre against it. Then wente there certaine vngodly persons (which hated their owne people) vnto kyng Demetrius, and told him, that Jonathas besieged the castel. So when he herde it, he was angrie, and Immediatlye came vnto Ptolomais / ād wrote vnto Jonathas, that he shoulde not laie siege to yͤ Castel, but come and speke with hym in al the haste. Neuertheles when Jonathas herde this he commaunded to besege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and prestes of Israel, and put him selfe in the parel, and toke wͤ him gold, siluer, clothing and diuers presentes: & went to Ptolomais vnto the king, and fownde him gracious.

And though certain vngodly men of his owne people made complaintes vpon him, yet the kinge intreated hym, like as his predecessours had done before: & promoted hi i the sight of al his frendes, confirmed hi i the hye prestlhed with al the worship yͤ he had afore, and made him his chefe frende. Jonathas desired yͤ king also that he wold make Jewry free, wͤ the thre head cities of Samaria and the landes perteinyng therto: vpon this did Jonathas promise hi thre C talentes. Where vnto the kyng consented, and gaue Jonathas writig of the same, conteyninge these wordes.

King Demetrius sendeth greting vnto his brother Jonathas ād to the people of the Jewes. We sende you a copy of the letter which we did write vnto our elder Lasthenus, concernig you that ye shuld know it.

kyng Demetrius sendeth gretinge D vnto Lasthenus his elder. & for yͤ faithfulnes yͤ oure frendes the Jewes beare vnto vs, and for the louyng kyndnesse which they bare toward vs: we are determed to do them good.

Wherfore

Wherfore we ordeyne all the coastes of Jewry with the three cyties, Lyda and Romatha (whiche are added vnto Jewry and from Samaria) and al the landes pertaining ther vnto, to be frely separated for such as do sacrifice in Jerusalem: both concerninge the paimentes which yͤ king toke yearly afore time, and the frutes also of the earth and trees. As for other tithes ād tributes that belonged vnto vs, we discharge theym therof from this time forth. In like maner we graunt vnto them al the custões of salte croun tates which wer brought vnto vs. And this fredome shall they haue firme and stedfast, from this time forth for euermore. Therfore se that ye make a copy of our letters, and deliuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maie be kepte vpon the holy mounte in a conuenyent place.

After thys, when Demetrius the kynge sawe that his lande was in rest, and that no resistaunce was made him, E he sent awaye al his hoost euery man to his owne place, except an army of straũgers, whome he brought from the Iles of the Heathen, wherefore all his fathers hoost had euel will at him. Now was there one Triphon (that had bene (1.Mac.xii.a of Alexanders parte afore) whiche whe he sawe that all the hoost murmured against Demetrius: he went to Emalcuel the Arabiã (that brought vp antiochus the sonne of Alexandria) and late sore vpon him, to delyuer hym thys yonge Antiochus: that he might raigne in his fathers stede. He tolde him also what greate euel Demetrius had done, and how his men of warre loued him not: & so remained there a longe season.

And Jonathas sẽt vnto king Demetrius, to driue the out which were in yͤ castel at Jerusalē & in the other refugyes for they did Israel grete harme. So Demetrius sent word vnto Jonathas, saiyng: F I wil not only do these thinges for the & thy people, but at time conuenient I wil do both the & thy people great worship. But nowe yͤ shalt do me a pleasure, if yͤ wilt send me mẽ to help me: for al mine army is gone fro me. So Jonathas sent hi. iii. M. strong mẽ vnto Antioch, & they came vnto the kyng, wherfore yͤ kinge was very glad at their cõmynge But they yͤ were of yͤ citie (euen an. C. M. men) gathered them togeither / and wolde haue slaine yͤ king, which fled in to hys courte: & the cytyens kepte the stretes of the citie, & be ganne to fyght. Then the kynge called for the Jewes help / which came vnto hym altogether and wente abroade thorowe the cytye, and slewe the same daye an C. M. mẽ: set fire vpon the cytie, gat many spoples in that daye, and delyuered the kynge. So when the cytesins sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wil of the cytye, and they them selues dyslapointed of their purpose the made their supplicacion vnto the kyng sayeng, Graunte vs peace, and lette the Jewes ceasse from troublynge vs and the cytie, and vpon thys they cast awaye their weapens. Thus they made peace / and the Jewes gat great worship in yͤ sight of yͤ kig, & in yͤ sight of al yͤ wer in his realme, & wer spoke of thorow out the kyngdom: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem with greate goodes.

So the kynge Demetrius sat in the trone of his kyngdome, and had peace in his lande. Neuertheles her dissembled in al that euer he spake, and withG drewe him self from Jonathas, nether rewarded him accordynge to the benefites which he had don for him, but troubeled hym verie sore. After thys came Eryphon agayne wͤ yonge Antiochus whiche raygned and was Crowned de kynge. Then there gathered vnto hym all the men of warre whom me Demetrius had put awat, these fought against Demetrius, which fled and turned his backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, and wanne Antioche: And yong Antiochus wrot vnto Jonathas sayinge: I confirme the in thy prestlhod and make the ruler, ouer iiii. countrees, yͤ thou mayst be a frende of the kinges.

Upon thys he sent him golden vessels to be serued in, and gaue hym leaue to drinke in golde, to be clothed in purple and to weere a coller of golde. He made his brother Simon also captayne / frō the coastes of Tirus vnto yͤ borders of Egipt. Then Jonathas toke his iourney, and wente thorow the cities beyond the water (of Jordane) and all the men of warre of Syria gathered them vnto hym for to helpe hym. So he came vnto Ascalon, and they of the citye receaued hym honourably, and from thence went he vnto Gasa, but they would not let hym in: wherfore he layde syege vnto it burnynge vp and spoylynge the places that were about the cytie.

¶ And the citezins of Gaza, submitted them selues vnto Jonathas which made peace with them, but toke of theyre sonnes to pledge, sent them to Jerusalem, and wente thorowe the countree vnto Damascus. Now whē Jonathas herd that Demetrius princes were come into Cades (which is in Galyle) with a great host, purposinge to put Demetrius out from medling of the realme: he came agaynst them, and lefte Simon hys brother, in the lande which came to Bethsura, and layed syege to it a longe season, & discomfited them. So they desyred to haue peace with him, whiche he graunted them, and afterward put them out from thence, toke the citie, and set men to kepe it. And Jonathas vp hys hoste came to the water of Jeneſar, and bytimes in the mornynge gat them to the playn felde of Asor.

And behold, the hoostes of the heathen mette theym in the felde, and layde watche for them in the mountaynes: so that when Jonathas cam against them, the other (which were layde to watche) rose out of theyre places, and fought, & they that were of Jonathas syde, fled euery man, and there was not one of them left, excepte Mathathias the sonne of Absalomus, & Judas the sonne of Calphi the captayn of the hoost. Then Jonathas rente his clothes, layed earthe vpō his hed, made his prayer, & turned again to the in to the feld: wher they fought together, & he put them to flyght. Now whē his owne men that were fled, saw thys they turned againe vnto hi, & helped hi to folow vpō al ther enemies vnto ther tentes at Cades. So ther were slayn of the heathen the same daye. iii. M. men, & Jonathas turned again to Jerusalē.

¶ Jonathas sendeth imbassadors to rome to the people of Sparta to renuethe ye couenaunte of frendship. Jonathas putteth to flight the Princes of Demetrius, & typhon taketh Jonathas by decaite.

¶ The. xii. Chapter.

JOnathas seinge that ye tyme was mete for him, chose certē men ād sent them vnto Rome for to stablish and to renue the frendship with them. He sente letters also vnto Sparta, and to other places in lyke maner. So they wente vnto Rome, and entred into the cōcel and sayd: Jonathas the hye preste and the people of the Jewes sente vs vnto you, for to renue the olde frendship and bonde of loue: Upō this the Romaines gaue thē fre pasporres, that men shuld leade them home into the land of Juda peceably. And this is the copy of the letters that Jonathas wrot vnto ye Spartacians.

Jonathas the hie preest with the elders, preestes, and the other people of ye Jewes, sende greeting vnto the Spartaians their brethren. Ther were letters sent long ago vnto Onias the hye preest from Arius, which than raigned amōg you: that ye are our brethren, as ye wrytinge made therupon/specifieth. And Onias intreated the embassatour, that was sent, honorably, and receaued the letters: wherin there was mencion made of the bonde of loue ād frendship. But as for vs, we nede no such writynges: for why, we haue the holy bookes of scripture in our handes to oure comforte. Neuertheles we had rather sende vnto you, for the renuing of the brotherhode and frendship/leste we shoulde be straunge vnto you/for it is long, sence the tyme that ye sent wordes vnto vs.

Wherfore in the sacrifices that we offer & other ceremonies vpō ther solempne daies ād other, we alwaie remember you (wout ceasing (lyke as reason is/and as it becometh vs to thinke vpon our brethren) yea and are ryght glad of your prosperous honoure.

And thoughe we haue had greate troubles and warres, so that the kynges about vs haue foughten againste vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you nor vnto other of oure louers and frēdes i these warres. For we haue had help from heauen, so ye we are defiled, & oure enemies subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenyus the sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Jasō and sent them vnto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frendshyppe and loue with them. We commaūded the also to com vnto you, to salute you, and to deliuer you oure letters, concerninge the reputacō of our brotherhod. And now ye shal do right well, to geue vs answere therunto.

And this is the copy of the wryting, which Arius the kynge of Sparta sent vnto Onias: Arius king of the Spartians sendeth greeting vnto Onias the hye preest. It is founde in writinge, that the Spartians and Jewes are brethrē and come out of the generacion of Abraham. And now for so muche as thys is come to our knowlege, ye shal do wel, to write vnto vs of our prosperite. As for vs, we haue written our mīd vnto you: Oure cattell and Goodes are yours, and youres oures. These thynges haue we cōmaūded to be shewed vnto you. When Jonathas herde, that Demetrius princes were come forth to fight against hym wt a greater hoost then afore, he went from Jerusalem, and met them in the land of Hemath, for he gaue them not space to come into hys owne countre. And he sent spies vnto ther tentes, which came againe and tolde hym that they were appointed to come vpon him in the night season. Wherfore whē the sunne was gone downe, Jonathas commaunded his men to watch all the nyght, and to be ready wt weapons for to fyghte: and set watche men round about the hoost. But when the aduersaryes herd that Jonathas was ready wt his men in the battayl, they feated and were afraide in their hertes, and kindled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaie. Neuertheles Jonathas ād his company knew it not tyl ye morning, for they sawe the fyres burnig.

Then Jonathas folowed vpon thē but he myghte not ouertake them, for they wer gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto the Arabians (whiche were called Zabadei) slewe them, and toke their goodes. He proceded further also, & came into Damascus/and went thorow al that countre. But Simon his brother toke his tourney and came to Ascalon and to ye nexte stronge holdes: departing vnto Joppa, and wanne it. For he herd yt they wolde destroie Demetrius partie: wher fore he sent men of warre in the cyte to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home againe, and called the elders of the people together: ād deuised wt them for to builde vp the strōg holdes in Jewry, and the lawes of Jerusalem, to set vp an hye wal betwyxt the castel and the cytie, for to separate it from the cytie, that it myght be alone, and that men should nether bye nor sell in it.

Upon this they cam together for to buylde vp the citie: and for so muche as the wal vpon the brooke of the west syde (called caphethetah) was fallen down, they repayred it. And Symon set vp Adiadah in Sephilah, and made it strōg settinge portes and lockes vpon it.

Now when Triphon purposed to raigne in Asia, to be crowned, and to slaye ye kinge Antiochus: he was afrayede that Jonathas wold not suffre hi, but fight against him: wherfore he went about to take Jonathas, and to kyll hym.

So he departed, & came vnto Bethsan. Then went Jonathas forth against hym to the battell with fourty thousād chosen men, and came vnto Betsan also, but when Triphō sawe that Jonathas came wt so great an hoost to distroy him, he was afrayed. And therfor he receaued hym honorably, commended him vnto his frendes, and gaue hym rewardes, commaūded his mē of warre to be as obedient vnto him as to him selfe. And sayde vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused thys people to take soche trauayle/seyng there is no warre betwyxte vs? Therfore sende them home againe, and chose certayn men to wait vppon thee, and come thou wt me to Ptolomais: for I wyll geue it the, wt the other stronge holdes, men of warre and their officers: As for me, I must departe, thys is onlye the cause of my cōmynge. Jonathas beleued him/ād did as he sayde, puttinge away his hoost, which went in to the lande of Juda. He kepte but. iii. M. by him, whereof he sente. ii M. into Galilee, ād one M. wente with him selfe.

Josephus, lib. xiii. cap. xi.

Josephus, lib. xiii.

Nowe

Now as soone as Jonathas entred into Ptolomais, the cytisens sparred the gates of the cittie, and toke him, & slewe al them with the swerde, that came i wt him. Then sente Tryphon an hoost of fote men and horsmen into Galilee ād into the greate plaine felde, to destroie al Jonathas company. But whē they knewe that Jonathas was taken, & al they slaine that waited vponhym: they toke counsel together, and came forthe ready to the battaill. So when they whiche folowed vpon them, sawe that it was a mater of lyfe, they turned backe againe. As for the other/ they went into the land of Juda peaceably, ād bewayled Jonathas, and theym that were wt him ryghte sore. And Israell made greate lamentacion. Then all the Heathen that were round about thē sought to destroie them. For they saide: nowe haue they no captain, nor anye man to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote oute their name from amonge men.

¶ After Jonathas was taken Simon is chosen captayne, of whom Tryphon takyng hys children & monye for the redemcyon of Jonathas, kylleth him & his children. The grefe of Jonathas. Tryphō killeth Antiochus and possesseth the realme. Demetrius taketh truce wyth Simon. Simon winneth Gaza. He possesseth the tower of Syon. He maketh hys sonne John Captayne.

¶ The. xiii. Chapter.

A Now when Simon herde ỹ Tryphon gathered a great hoost to come into ỹ lande of Juda, and to destroy it: and sawe ỹ the people was in greate fearfulnes and care: he cam vp to Jerusalem, and gathered the people together, ād gaue them exhortacyō, saying: ye know what grete battailes I and my brethren & my fathers house haue stryken for the lawe of the Sanctuary, and what maner of troubles we haue sene, thorowe occasion wherof all my brethren are slaine for Israels sake, and I am lefte alone. And nowe let not me spare myne owne lyfe in any maner of trouble, for I am no beter then my brethren: but kyp saue ge my people & ỹ Sanctuary, our children and our wyues: for all the Heathen are gathered together, to destroye vs of very malice.

At these woordes the hertes of the people were kindeled together, so that they cryed with a loude voyce, saying: Thou shalt be oure captayne in steade of Judas and Jonathas thy brethere, ordre thou oure battel and what soeuer thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, making hest to finisshe all the walles of Jerusalē, which he made strong round aboute. Then sent he Jonathas the sōne of Absalomus with a fresshe hoost vnto Joppa, which droue thē out that were in the castell, and remayned there hym selfe.

Tryphon also remoued frō Ptolomais, wt a great army, to com into the land of Juda, and Jonathas with him inward: And Simon pitched hys tentes at addus before the playne felde.

But when Tryphon knewe that Simon stode vp in steade of his Brother Jonathas, and that he wolde warre against hym: he sente messengers vnto hym, saying: where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for monye that he is awyng in the kinges accōpte, concerninge the busynes that he had in hande. Therfore sende nowe an C. talentes of syluer/ād hys two sonnes for suertie, that when he is letten forthe he shall not forsake vs, and we shall sende hym agayne. Neuertheles Simon knewe, that he dissembled in hys woordes: yet commaunded he the money and children to be delyuered vnto him: least he shulde be the greater enemy against the chylderen of Israell/ and saye: because he sent him not the mony and the chylderen, therfore is Jonathas dead.

So Simon sent him the chylderen and an hundreth talētes, but he dissembled and wolde not let Jonathas goo. Afterward came Tryphon into ỹ lād to destroy it, & wētround about by ỹ way, ỹ leadeth vnto Ador, but whersoeuer they went thyther went Simō & hys host also. Now they that were in the castell sent messengers vnto Tryphon, ỹ he shoulo make hast to come by the wilde wesse/ and to sende them vitayles: & Tryphon made ready al hys horsmenne to come that same night, Neuertheless it was a verye greate snowe, so that he came not in Galaad thim. And when he drewe nye Baschama, he slewe Jonathas and his sonnes there, and then turned for to goo home in to his awne lande.

Then sent Symon for to fet his brothers deed coarse/ and buried it in Modin his fathers cytie. So all Israel bewayled hym wt greate lamentacyon, and mourned for hym very longe. And Symon made vpon the sepulcre of his father and his brethrē a buyldynge hye to loke vnto of free stone behynd and before: and sett vp seuen pyllers, one against another (for his father, hys mother and foure brethren (and set greate pillers round about, with armes vppon theym for a perpetuall memory, and carued shippes beside the armes: that they might be sene of men saylyng i the sea. This sepulcre which he made at Modin, standeth yet vnto this day. Now as Tryphon went forth to walke wt the yonge kyng Antiochus/ he slew him traytorously, & raigned in his stede, crowned him self kyng of Asia, and dyd moch euell in the lande. Symon also buylte vp the castels in Jewry, makynge them stronge wyth hye towres, great walles, portes and lockes, & layed vp vytales i the stronge holdes. And Symon chose certayne men, and sent them to kyng Demetrius: to desyre him, that he wolde discharg the land from all boundage, for Tryphon had spoiled it very sore. Wher vpon Demetrius the kinge answered him, & wrote vnto him after this maner, Demetrius the king sendeth gretinge vnto Simon the hie prest hys frende, with the elders and people of ỹ Jewes. The golde crowne and precious stone that ye sent vnto vs, haue we receued: & are ready to make a stedfast peace wt you, ye and to wryte vnto our officers, for to release you, concerning the thynges wherin we made you free: ād the appoyntmēt ỹ we make wt you, shalbe fixme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buylded, shal be youre awne. As for eny ouersyghte or fawte commytted vnto this daie, we for geue it, and the Crowne Tare that ye ought vs also. And where as was eny other tribute in Jerusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke who are mete among you to be in our courte, let them be written vp, that there maie be peace betwixte vs.

Thus the yocke of the Heathen was taken from Israel, in the hundreth and seuenti yeare. And the people of ỹ Jewes begaune to wryte in their letters and actes on thys maner. In the first yeare of Symon the prest, and prynce of the Jewes.

In those daies wente Symon vnto Gaza, and besieged it rounde about, where he set vp ordinaūce of warre. And wan a towre which he toke. So they ỹ gatt into the towre leapte in the cytie, which was in a greate feare: In so much that the people of the cittie rent their clothes, and clymmed vp vpon the walles wyth their wiues and children besechig Symon to be at one wt them: sayenge.

O rewarde vs not after our wyckednes, but be gracious vnto vs/ & we shal do the seruice. Then Symon for very pyte, wolde fight nomore against them, but put them out of the cittye: and caused the houses (wherin the Images were) to be clensed: and so entred the cytie wyth Psalmes of prayse, geuynge thanckes vnto the Lorde. So when he had cast al abhominacyons out of ỹ cytye, he set suche men in it as kepte the lawe of God and made the cyte strong, and buylded a dwellyng place for him selfe.

Now when they in the castel at Jerusalem were kepte so streatlye, that they could not come forth nor into the countre/ & might nether bie nor sel: they were very hongry, and many of them famished to death: In so muche that they besought Simon to be at one with them, which he graunted them. So he put them out from thence, & clensed ỹ castel from filthines. And vpon the xxiii. daie of the second moneth in the. C. lxxi. year they entred into it wt thākesgeuing ād braūches of palme trees, wharpes, crowdes, cimbales, & lutes syngig psalmes and sōges of praise vnto god, for that the greate enemye of Israel was ouercome.

And Symon ordened that the same daye shulde be kept euery yeare in gladnes, and made strong the hil of the tẽple that was beside ẏ̄ castel, wher he dwelt hym selfe with hys company. Symon also perceauinge that Jhon hys sonne was a mighty man of armes, made hi captaine of al the hostes, and caused hi to dwell at Gaza.

Demetrius is ouercome of Arsaces. Symon being captaine there is great quietnes in Israel. The couenaunt of frendshyp with the Romanes & with ẏ people of Sparta is renued.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

A IN the .Clxii. yeare, gathered kinge Demetrius hys hooste and departed vnto Media, to get hym helpe, for to fight against Typhon. Nowe when Arsaces the kinge of Persia and Media herd, that Demetrius was entred within hys borders, he sent one of his Princes to take hym alyue, and to bringe hym vnto hym. So he wẽt & slew Demetrius host, toke him selue, brought hym to Arsaces, which kepte hym in warde. And all the lande of Juda was in rest, so longe as Simon lyued for he sought the welthe of his people, therefore were they glad to haue hym for there ruler, and to do him worshippe all waye. Symon wãne the city of Joppa also for an haué toune, and made it an intraunce in to the Iles of ỹ̄sle. He enlarged the borders of his people, & conquered them more lande: He gathered vp many of theyr people that were prisoners: he had the dominion of Gasa, Bethsura and the castel, whych he clensed from fylthynes and there was no man that resisted hi: So that euery man tylled his grounde in peace, the lande of Juda and the trees gaue theyr frute and encrease. The elders sate all in iugement, & toke theyr deuise for the welthe of the lande: the yonge men put on worshyp and harnes vpon them. He prouided bitalles for the cities, and made goodly stroge holdis of thẽ: so that the fame of hys worshyp was spokẽ of vnto ỹ̄ ẽd of ỹ̄ world. For he made peace thorow out the lande, and Israell was full of myrth and ioye. Euery man sat vnder his vyne and fyge trees and ther was no man to fray thẽ awaye.

Lege 1. vbi. 8. iii. Me, fiii. b

There was none in the lande to fyght agaynst them, for then the kynges wer ouercome. He helped thosethat were in aduersyte amonge his people, he was diligent to se the law kepte: as for soch as were vngodly and wycked he toke them away. He set vp the Sanctuarye, and encreased the holy vessels of the temple.

When the Romaynes and Sparcians had gotten worde, that Jonathas was dced, thei were right sory. But whe they herde that Symon his brother was made hye prest in his stede/and howe he had wonne the lande agayne with the cyties in it: they wrote vnto hi in tables of latyn, to renue the frendshyppe, and bonde of loue/whiche they had made afore with Judas and Jonathas his brethren. Which wrytynge were redde before the cõgregacyon at Jerusalem.

And thys is the copy of the letters/ that the Sparcians sent: The Senatours and citeins of Sparta send greting vnto Simon the great prest w ỹ̄ elders, prestes/and the other people of ỹ̄ Jewes their brethren: When youre embassytours that were sent vnto oure people/certified vs of youre worshippe honoure & prosperous wealth: we were glad of their comynge, and haue wryten the earand which they spake before the counsell of the people: namely, ỹ̄ Numenius the sonne of Antiochus, & Antipater the sonne of Jason the Jewes embassitours are come vnto vs for to renue the old frendshyppe w vs: Wpon this the people consented, that the men shulde be honorably intreated, and that the copi of their earande shulde be writen in the special bokes of ỹ̄ people for a perpetuall memory vnto ỹ̄ Sparcians: yee and that we shulde sende a copi of the same vnto Symon ỹ̄ great prestе.

After this did Symon sẽd Numenius vnto Rome, with a golden shilde of a thousaund pounde weight to confirme the frendshyp with them: which when the Romaynes vnderstode, they saide: what thankes shall we recompence again vnto Simon and his children? For he hath stablished his brethren, & ouercome the enemies of Israel. wher-wherfore they graunted hym to be free And all this wrote the Jewes in tables of latine, and nayled it vnto the Pillers vpon the mounte Sion. The copy of ỹ̄ writinge is thys: The.xviii. daye of the moneth Elul in the Clxii. yeare in the thirde yeare of Simon the hyghe preast in the great congregation of the prestes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countree at Jsarame, were these wordes openly declared:

For so much as ther was much warre in our lande, therfore Simon the sõne of Mathathiah (come of the chyldren of Jared) and his brethren, put thẽselues in parel and resisted the enemies of theyr people, that theyr sanctuarye & lawe might be mainteyned & dyd theyr people greate worshyppe. Jonathas in lyke maner, after that he had gouerned hys people and bene theyr hye preste died, and lyeth buried besyde hys elders.

After that wold theyr enemyes haue troden theyr holy thynges vnder fote, destroyed theyr land ãd vterly wasted theyr sanctuary. Then Simon withstode them, and fought for his people, spẽt muche of hys owne moneye, weapened the valeaunte Menne of hys people, gaue them wages, made strong the cyties of Juda with Bethsurah that lieth vpon the borders of Jewry (wher the ordinaunce of theyr enemyes laye some tyme) and set Jewes there for to kepe it.

F He made fast Joppa also which lyeth vpon the se, & Gaza ỹ̄ bordreth vpon Azotus (where the enemyes dwelt afore) after he set Jewes to kepe it, ãd what soeuer was meate for the subduinge of the aduersarpes, that layed he therin.

Now when ỹ̄ people saw ỹ̄ noble actes of Simon, & what worshyp he purposed to do for thẽ, his godly behauiour, & faythfulnes which he kepte vnto thẽ/ & how he sought by al wayes ỹ̄ wealth of hys people, because he dyd all thys, therfore they chose hi to be theyr prince and hye prest: and in hys time they prospered well by hi, so ỹ̄ the heathen were take out of their land: & they also which were in the citie of Dauid at Jerusalẽ in the castel (wher they wente oute and defyled al the thynges ỹ̄ were aboute ỹ̄ Sanctuary, & dyd greate harme vnto clenlynes) and Symon put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of ỹ̄ lande and the cytie, and set vp the walles of Jerusalem.

And kynge Demetrius confirmed him in his hye prestlhode, made him his frende, and dyd him greate worshipe. For he herde that the Romayns called the Jewes their frendes, louers & brethren: how honorably they receued Simons embassytours: how the Jewes and prestes consented that he shulde be their prynce and hye prest perpetually (tyll God rayled vp the true prophet) & that he shuld be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to sett officers vpon ỹ̄ workes therof ouer the land, ouer the wepẽ/ouer the houses of defẽce to make prouision for the holy thinges, and to be obeyed of euery man, & all the wrytynges of ỹ̄ lande to be made in his name, that he shuld be clothed in purple and golde, and that it shulde be laufull for none of the people nor prestes to breke eny of these thynges/ to withstande hys wordes, nor to call eny congregacyon in the land without him: that he shuld be clothed i purple, and weare a colar of gold: And yf there were eny which disobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, that he shuld be punished.

So all the people consented to alow Simon, and to doo accordynge to these wordes. Symon also him selfe toke it vpon hym, and was contente to be ỹ̄ hye prest, the captayne and prynce of ỹ̄ Jewes and prestes, and to gouerne thẽ all. And they commaunded to make this wrytynge in tables of latyn, and fasten it vnto the compas of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vp a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symon ãd hys posterite migh haue it.

¶ Antiochus maketh a couenaunt of frendshyp w Simon. Typhõ is percequited. The Romaynes write lettres vnto kinges & nations in ỹ̄ defence of the Jwes. Antiochus refusing ỹ̄ helpe that Simon sente him, breketh his cõuenaunt.

the Jewes, and to al the people, contey
nyng these wordes: Antyochus ꝑ kyng sendeth greting vnto Symon the hye
prest and to the people of the Jewes.
For so muche as certayne wicked men
haue gotten the kyngedom of our progenytoures, I ā purposed to chaleg ꝑ
reame agaī, & to reuoke it to ꝑ old estate Wherfore I haue gathered a greate host & made shyppes of warre: that I maye goo thorowe the countre/ and be auenged of thē whiche haue destroyed oure lande, and wasted many cityes in my realme. And therfore now I make thee fre also from all the tributes, wher
of all kyngis my progenitours haue discharg d the, and from other customes (wher frō they haue releced thee)
whatsoeuer they be: yes I geue thee lea ue to smyte money of thyne awns with in thy lande. As for Jerusalem/ I wil that it be holy and free: and al the we apens and houses of defence whiche ꝑ hast builded and kepeit in thyne hādes B shall bee thyne. Where as eny thyng is or shall bee awnge vnto the kynge. I forgyue it thee. from thys tyme forth for euermore. And when wee haue ob-tayned our kyngdome we shall do thee,
thy people and the temple great worshippe: so that youre honoure shall bee known thorow out the whole worlde.
In the. CLxxiii. yeare went Antioch⁹ in to his fathers lande, & al the men of warre came together vnto him, so that fewe were left with Tryphon. So the kyng Antiochus folowed vpō him, but he fled vnto Doza, which lyeth by the see syde: for he sawe that there was mis chefe commynge vnto hym, & that his host had forsaken hi. Thē came Antiochus vnto Doza w an hūdreth & twen
tye thousand men of armes vpon fote, and eyght thousand horsmen. So hecō passed the citie rounde aboute: and the shippes came by the see. Thus they ver ed the city by lād & by water, in so much ꝑ thei suffered no man to go in nor out.
1.Mac.xiiii.d In the meane season came Numeny us (and they that had bene with hi frō
the cytie of Rome, hauynge letters writ ten vnto the kynges, and prouynces /
C wherin were conteined these wordes:
Lucius the Mayr of Rome sendeth gre tyng vnto Ptolomy the king. The embassitours of the Jewes oure frendes beynge sent from Symon the hye prest
and from the people of the Jewes, cāe vnto vs, for to renue the old frendship and bonde of loue/ and brought a shylde of golde, weyenge a thousande pounde/ which we were content to rece

to wryte vnto the kynges and prōuinces, to do thē no harme, nor to take part agaynst them, their cyties ner cō

es agaynst them. If there be eny wicked personnes therfor fled from their cō tree vnto you/ deliuer theym vnto Symon the hye prest: that he maye punyth
them accordynge to their owne lawe.
The same wordes wrote the Romay nes also vnto Demetrius the kyng, to Attalus, Traba, Arsaces, & to all regy ons: as Samsanes, to them of Spar ta, Delo, Mido, Sydon, Caria, Sa-mos, Pamphilia, Lycia, Halicarnassum, and to ꝑ Rhodes, to Faselis, Coo, Sy da, Arado, Gortina, Gnydum / to Cy-pres and to Cyren. And of euery lettre D they sent a copy to Symō the hye prest and to the people of ꝑ Jewes. So An tiochus ꝑ kyng brought his host vnto Doza the seconde tyme, to take it: whe re he made diuerse ordinaunce of war
re/ and kepte Typhen in that he shuld not come forth. Then sent Simon An-tiochus two thousande chosen men to helpe hym with gold, syluer and other plenteous geer: Neuertheles he wold not receaue them, but brake al the coue-naunt which he made w Symō afore,
and withdrewe him self from him.
He sent Athenobius also a frende
of hys vnto Symō, for to reason wyth
him sayynge: Ye witholde from Jop pa and Gaza (with the castell that is at Jerusalem) which are cyties of my real me, whose borders ye haue destroyed and done greate euell in the lande, hauing the domination in many other pla ces of my kyngdome. Wherfore delyy-uer now the cyties which ye haue taken
w the tributes of the places that ye ha ue rule vpon wout ꝑ borders of Jew
ry: Or els geue me. v. hundreth talētes,
if no we shal come & fight against you

So Athenobius the kinges frende came to Jerusalem and when he sawe
the greate worshyp and honour of Simon, in golde / Syluer, and so greate plenty of ornamentes he marueled and told Simon as the king commaunded
hym. Then answered Symon and sayde vnto hym: As for vs we haue nether
1.Mac.xv.d taken other mens lande, nor wytholden them, but onelye oure fathers herytage,
which oure enemies had vnrightuously
in possession a certayn tyme. Thys herittage of our fathers haue we chalenged in processe of tyme. And where as thou complaynest concerninge Joppa and Gaza, they dyd great harme to our people and in oure lande, yet wyll we geue
an. C talentes for them.
Neuertheles Athenobius answered
I hym not one worde, but turned agayne wrothfully vnto the kinge, and tolde hi
all these wordes, and the greate dignite of Simon wyth al that he had sene and the king was very angry. In the meane tyme fled Tryphō by shippe vnto Orthsosayda. Then the kinge made Cendebeus captayn of the sea coast, and gaue
hym an hoste of foteme and horsemen, commaunding hym co remoue the hoost towarde Jewrye, and to buylde vp the citie of Cedron, to make vp the portes, and to warre agaynst the people of the Jewes. As for the king hym self, he folowed vpon Tryphon. So Cendebeus came vnto Jamnia, and began to vexe
the people to treade downe Jewry, to ta ke the people prisoners, to slay them ād
to buylde vp Cedre, where he set horsme and other men of warre, that they might come forth and go thorow the stretes of Jewrye/ lyke as the king had comman ded hym.

Cendebeus the Captaine of Antiochus hoste is put to flight of the sonnes of Simon Ptolomeus the sō ne of Abobus killeth Simon yhis two sōnes & a bā ket. Johā killeth them & lyeth in wayte for hys lyfe.

¶ The .xvi. Chapter

Then came Jhon vppe from Gaza, and told Simon hys father what Cēdebeus had done among theyr people.
Upon thys called Simon. ii of hys elde sonnes Judas and John & sayde vnto thē. I & my bretheren & my fathers house, haue euer frō our youth vp vnto this daye, foughten agaynste
the enemyes of Israel and God ga-ue vs good fortune to delyuer Israel oftymes. And now for so moch as I am olde, be ye in stead of me and my brother, to goo forth and fyghte for oure people, and the helpe of God be with you. So he chose .xx. M. fyghti-ge men of thy countre, w horsmen also,
which wente forth against Cendebeus
and rested at Modin.
In the morynge they arose, & went to the playne felde: & beholde, a migh-tye great hoste came agaynst thē, both of fote menne and horsmen. Now was there a water broke betwyxte them, &
Jhon remoued the host towarde them.
And when he sawe that the people was afrayed to goo ouer the waterbroke/
he wente ouer fyrst him selfe: & ꝑ men
seynge this, folowed him.
Then Jhon set his horsmen and fo te men in order, the one by the other, for their enemies horsmen were very many.
But when they blewe vp ꝑ preses trō pettes, Cendebeus fled wyth hys hoste, wherof many were slayne, and ꝑ rem
naunt gat them to their stronge holde.
Judas also Jhons brother was woun ded at the same tyme. And Jhon folo wed styll vpon the enemyes, tyll he cam to Cedron which he buylded. The ene myes fled also vnto ꝑ towres that were i the feldes of Azotus, and those did Jhon burne vp. Thus ther were sl ai-ne. ii. M. men of thē, and Jhon turned agayne peceably in to Jewry.
And in the felde of Jericho was Pto
lomy the sonne, of Abobus made capta yne: which because he had aboundance of syluer and gold (for he had mari-ed the daughter of Symon the hie prie
ste) waxed proud in his minde, and thought to conquere ꝑ londe. ymagenyng falsched against Symon & his sonnes, to destroye thē. Now as Symon was going aboute thorow the cyties, that we re in the countre of Jewry, and caryng
for them: he came downe to Jericho,
w Matathiah and Judas his sonnes,
in the CLxxbii. yeare i the. xi. moneth called Sebat. Then Ptolomi the sonne of Abobus receaued them, but w dyscreate

into a strong house of his called Doch, whiche he had buylded/where he made them a bancket.

So when Symon and hys sonnes were mery and had dronken well Ptolomy stode vp with hys men(whoome he had hyd there)and toke theyr weapons,entred into the bancket house, and slewe Simon with hys two sonnes ād certen of his seruauntes.Such great vnfaithfulnes dyd Ptolomy in Israel and retōpenced euill for good. Then wrote This Ptolomy the same vnto king Antiochus,requyring hym,that he shoulde sende hym an hoost to helpe him:and so shoulde he delyuer hym the lande, with the cities and tributes of the same. He sent other men also vnto Gasa, for to take Jhon,and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to him,and he shulde geue them syluer golde and rewardes . And to Jerusalem he sent other,to take it & the sanctuarye.

Then tanne there one before, and toulde Jhon in Gasa, that his Father and hys bretheren were slayne and how that Ptolomy had sent to slaye hym also:Then John herde thys ,he was sore abashed,and layd handes vpon them that were come to destroye him and slewe them:for he knewe, that they wente aboute to kyll hym.

As for other thinges concerninge Jhon,of hys warres,of hys noble actes(wherin he behaued hym self manfully)of the buylding of walles which he made: other of hys dedes:they ar written in the cronicles of hys preesthode,from the tyme forth that he was made hye preest after his father.

¶ An Epistle of the Jewes ꝑ dwelt at Jerusalē sent vnto them whiche dwelt in Egypte where in they exhorted them to geue thankes for the deth of Antiochus Of the fyre that was hyd in the ptye The prayer of Nehemiah.

¶ The.first. Chapter

THe brethren of the Jewes which be at Jerusalem and in the land of Jewry, wish vnto those brethren of the Jewes that are throwe out Egipte: good fortune,healthe and peace.

God the Lord be gracious vnto you, and thinke vpon his couenaūt that he made with Abrahā, Isaac, and Jacob, his faythfull seruauntes: and geue you all such an hert,that ye maye loue and feare him,yea and perfourme his wyll with an whole hert & a of wylling mynd: He open your hertes in his lawe and i his commaundementes , sende you peace: heare youre prayers,be at one wt you, and neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. Thys is here oure prayer for you.

What tyme as Demetrius raigned in the.clxix.yere,we Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble and vyolense that came vnto vs. In those yeares after ꝑ Jason departed out of the holy lande & kyngdome,they brente vp the porte & shed innocent bloude. Then made we oure prayer vnto the Lord,& were herd, & offred,and lyghted the candels,set forth cakes and bred.And nowe come ye into the feast of tabernacles,i the moneth casleu.

In the clxxxviii.yeare, the people that was at Jerusalem,and in Jewry. the councell and Judas hym selfe,sent thys wolsome saluacion vnto Aristobolus kynge Ptolomyes master whys che came of the generacion of the anoynted preestes:and to the Jewes that were in Egipte: In so much as god hath delyuered vs from great perels,we thanke hym hyghe. In that we resysted so myghty a kynge.And why che brought men oute of Persis by heapes, to fight against vs and the holye cyte.

For

For as he was in Perlis(namely, the Captayne with the greate host,he perished in the temple of Naneas,beynge disceaued thorow ꝑ deuice of Naneas preestes.For as he was purposed to haue dwelte there, Antiochus and hys frendes came thyther, to receaue much money for a dowry. So when Naneas preestes had layed forth the moneye, he entred wyth a small company into the compas of the temple,and so they shut the temple.

Nowe when Antiochus entred ꝑ openig the preueye intraunce of ꝑ temple,the preestes stoned the Captayne to death,hewed them in peces that were whi,mote of theyr heades,and threw thē out i al thinges.God be prayled,which hath deliuered ꝑ wicked i to our hādes.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purifycacion of the temple vpon the.xxv.daye of the moneth Casleu we thoght necessari to certifie you ther of:that ye also myght kepe the tabernacles feast daye,and the daie of the fyre, which was geuen vs when Nehemiah offred,after that he had set vp the temple and the aulter. For what tyme as our fathers were led awaie vnto Persis,the preestes(wiche then sought the honoure of god)toke the fire preuelifrō the aulter,and hyd it in a valley,where as was a greate depe drie pyt:ād there in they kepte yt,because the place was vnknowne to euery man. Nowe after many yeares when it pleased god, that Nehemiah should be sent from ꝑ kyng of Persia:he sente the childers childzen of those preestes(which had hid the fire) to seke it.And as they told vs, they founde no fire,but thicke water.Then cōmaunded he them to drawe it vp,ād to bringe it him & ꝑ offeringes wt al. Now whē the sacrifyces were laied on & ordered,ꝑ preest Nehemiah cōmaūded to sprinckle thē & ꝑ wod wt ꝑ water.Whē this was done,& ꝑ time come ꝑ ꝑ Sunne shone,which afore was hid in ꝑ cloude:where was a greate fire kidled.In so much ꝑ euery mā maruceled:now al ꝑ preestes prayed,whyle the sacrifice was amaking. Jonathas prayed first,ād ꝑ other gaue answere.

And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O Lord God maker of all thinges,thou fearfull and stroung,ꝑ ryghteous and mercyfull,thou that art only gracyous kynge,onely ryberall,only iust,Almightie & euerlastynge,ꝑ that delyuerest Israel frō all trouble,ꝑ that hast chose the fathers and halowed the, receauinge the offeryng for the whoole people of Israel/preserue thyne owne porcyon,and halowe it.Gather those together that are scatred abrode from vs:delyuer them that ar vnder the Heathens bondage,loke vpon them whych are despyded ād abhorred/that ꝑ Heathen may know and see,how that thou art oure God:Punysshe them that oppresse,ād proudly put vs to dishonour. Set thy people agayne in thy holy place,like as Moses hath spoken. Deut.xxx.c

And ꝑ preestes song Psalmes of thākesgeuynge,so longe as the Sacrifice endured.Now when the sacryfyce was brent,Nehemiah commaunded the greate stones to be sprynckled with the reliqui of ꝑ water. Which whē it was done,there was kyndled a flame of them also:but it was consumed thorowe the lyght,that shyned from the aulter.

So when this matter was knowen,it was tolde the kynge of Perisa,that in the place where the preestes,which were led awaye had hyd fyre,there apeared water in steade of fyre,and that Nehemias and his company hadde purified the sacrifices withal.Then the kynge consyderynge and ponderynge the matter dyligētly,made him a temple to prove the thynge that was done.And whē he founde yt so in dede, he gaue the preestes many giftes ād dyuerse rewardes:yee he toke theym wyth hys owne hand/and gaue them. And Nehemias called ꝑ same place Nephtar,which ys as moch to saye as a clensynge:but many men call it Nephi.

¶ How Jeremy hidde the tabernacle ꝑ Arcke, and the aultare in the hil Of the,w.bokes of Jason cōtained in one.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

IT is found also in ꝑ writtinges of Jeremi the prophet that he commaunded them whiche were caried awaye to take fire,as it is sayde afore,He commaunded them also that

ii.Ma.iii.b

¶ C.iiii. they

they shoulde not forget the lawe & commaundementes of ỹ lord, & ỹ they should not in their myndes, wher they see images of siluer & gold wt their ornamets. These and such other thinges cõmaunded he them, & exhorted hi, ỹ they should not let the lawe of God go oute of their hertes.

It is written also, howe the prophete (at the cõmaũdemẽtes of god) charged thẽ/ to take the tabernacle & the arke wt them: & he went forth vnto ỹ moũtaine where Moises climed vp, and saw the heretage of god. And whẽ Jeremy came there he founde an open caue, wherei he laid the tabernacle, the arke and ỹ aulter of incence, and so stopped the hole.

There came certayn men together also
B folowing hi, to marke ỹ place, but they coulde not finde it.

Which when Jeremy perceaued, he reproued them saiyng: As for that place, it shalbe vnknowne, vntyll the tyme ỹ God gather his people together agayn, Exod.xiii.d and receaue them vnto mercy. Then iii.Mac.viii.b shal god shew them these thinges/ and the maiesty of the Lord shal appeare, & ỹ cloud also, lyke as it was shewed vnto Moises: and like as when Salomon desired that the place might be sãctified as it was shewed him.

For he beynge a wyse man, handled honorably & wysely offeryng vnto God i ỹ halowyng of the temple, when it was Leuit.ix.d finished. And lyke as whẽ Moises prayed vnto the Lorde, the fyre came downe from heauen, and consumed ỹ burnt offeryng: Euen so prayed Salamõ also, ãd the fyre came downe from heauẽ and consumed ỹ buznt offeryng. And Moises sayde: because the synofferynge ii.par.vii.a. was not eaten, therefore it is cõsumed. In lyke maner Salamon kepte ỹ dedycation (or halowinge) eyght dayes.

C Some read Nehemias. In the Annotacions & wrytinges of * Jeremy, were these thinges put also, & how he made a lybrarye, & how hee gathered out of all countres ỹ bookes of ỹ prophetes, of Dauid, the epystles of ỹ kynges, & of ỹ presentes. Euen so Judas also, loke what he lerned by experiẽce of warre, & soch thinges as hath happened vnto vs/ he gathered them all together, and so wee haue them by vs.

If ye now desyre to haue the same, sende some body to fetch them vnto you. Wher as we then are about to celebrate the puryficacyon, wee haue written vnto you. Therfore ye shall do well, yf ye kepe the same dayes. We hope also, ỹ the God (which delyuered his people/ and gaue them all the heretage, kyngedom, preesthod and Sanctuary that he Deutero. promised them in the lawe) shal shortly haue mercy vpon vs, and gather vs together frõ vnder the heauẽ in to his holy place: for he hath saued vs frõ greate parels, and hath clensed ỹ place.

As concernynge Judas Machabeus D & his brethren, the purification of ỹ greate temple, the dedicaciõ of the aulter, yee and of the warres that concerne noble Antiochus and Eupator his sõne, of ỹ chynynges that came down frõ i.Mac.vi heauen vpon those, which manfully defended the Jewes. For though they were but few, yet defẽded they the whole lande, droue awaye ỹ enemyes hoost, recouered agayne the temple, that was spoken of throwe out all the worlde/ delyuered the citie, doynge their best, ỹ the law of ỹ Lord which was put doune, might with all tranquilyte be restored agayne vnto the Lorde, that was so mercifull vnto thẽ. As touchyng Jason also of Cizen, we haue vndertaken compendiously to bring in to one boke, the thinges that were comprehended of him in fyue. For we consyderyng ỹ multitude of the bokes, and howe harde it E should be for theym that would medle wt stories and actes (ãd that because of so diuerse matters) haue vndertaken so to comprehende the storyes: ỹ soch as are disposed to reade, myght haue pleasure and pastyme therin: and that they which are dilygent in soch thinges, myght the better thinke vpon them: yee and that whosoeuer readeth them, might haue profit therby.

Neuertheless we oure selues that haue medled with this matter for the shortenynge of it, haue taken no smal labour, but great diligence, watchyng and trauaylig. Lyke as they that make a feaste, wolde fayne do other men pleasure: Euẽ so we also (for many mens sakes (are very wel content to take the labour labour, where as we maye shortly comprehende/ ỹ thynges ỹ other men haue truly written.

For he ỹ buyldeth an house anewe/ must prouyde for many thinges to ỹ whole buyldynge: but he that paynteth it afterwarde, seketh but only what is comly/ mete and conuenient to garnysh it withall. Euen so do we also in lyke maner. And why: He that beginneth to wryte a story for ỹ fyrst, must with his vnderstandynge gather ỹ matter together, se ỹs wordes in order, and diligently seke out of euery parte: But he ỹ afterward wyl shortẽ it, vseth few wordes, and touchethe not the matter at ỹ largest: Let thys be sufficiẽt for a Prologe, nowe will we begynne to shewe ỹ matter: for it is but a folysh thinge to make a longe Prologe, and to be short in the story it selfe.

C Of the honour done vnto the temple by the kyngs of ỹ Gentyles, Symõ wttereth what treasury is in the temple, Heliodorus is sent to take them away. He is stryken of God, and healed at ỹ prayer of Onias.

C The.iii. Chapter.

When as the holye cyte was in habyted i al peace and wealth, and when the laws were yet wel kepte. (For so was it ordened by Onias the hye preste and other godly men/ that were enemyes to wic- ii.Mac.i.c kednesse) It came therto/ that euen ỹ kynges ãd princes thẽ selues did ỹ place greate worshippe, and garnished the ii.Ma.iiii.a temple with great gyftes: In so moch ỹ Seleucus kynge of Asia of his awne rentes bare al ỹ costes belonging to the seruyce of the offringes. Then Symon of the tribe of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worcke some myschefe in the citie: but ỹ hye preest resisted him.

Neuertheless when he myghte not ii.Mac.iii.b ouercome Onias, he gat him to Appolonius the sonne of Thersa (which then was chefe lord in Celosiria and Phenices) and tolde him, that the treasurie in Jerusalem was full of innumerable money, and how that the comons goodes (wich belonged not vnto the offerynges) were exceadinge greate also: ye and how it were possible, that all these might come vnder the kinges power.

Now when Appolonius had shewed the kyng of the money, as yt was tolde him: ỹ kyng called for Heliodorus his B steward, ãd sent hi wt a cõmaundemẽt, to bring him the same mony. Immedyatly Heliodorus toke his iourney, but vnder a colour, as though he wolde go to Celosiria & Phenices to visit the cityes, but his purpose was to fulfill the kynges pleasure: so whẽ he came to Jerusalem, and was louingly receaued of the hye preestes into the citie: he toulde what was determened concerninge the mony, he asked also, yf it were so i dede. Then the hie preest tolde him that there was such money laid vp for the vp holding of widdowes, & fatherles childrẽ, and how that a certaine p̃t of it belonged vnto Hircanus Tobias a noble mã & ỹ of al ỹ mony (which ỹ wiked mã Simõ had bewrayed) there were. iiii.C. talentes of syluer: & .ii. hundreth of goulde, yea and that it were vnpossible for those mens meaninge, to be disceaued, that had laide vp theyr moneye, in the place and temple (which is had in great worshyp throw ỹ whole worlde) for the maintenaunce and honoure of the same Whervnto Helyodorus answered, that the kinge had commaunded hym in a nye wyse to bringe him in the money. So that day appoited, Helyodorus entred into the temple to ordre this mater C but ther was no smal feare throw out ỹ whole citie. The preestes fell downe before the aultare in theyr vestimentes, & called vnto heauen vpon hym wich had made a lawe concerning stuffe geuen to Exod.xxii.b kepe, that they shoulde be safely preserued, for such as committe them vnto kepinge. Then whoo so had loked the hye preest in the face it wold haue greued his herte. For hys countenaũce and ỹ chaũging of hys color, declared the inwarde sorow of hys mynde. The man was all in heupnes, and hys body in fear: wherby they that loked vpon him might perceaue the greefe of hys herte. The other people also came out of theyr houses by heapes vnto the comen prayer, because the place was lyke to come into confusyon. The wemen came together throw the streates with heary clothes about theyr brestes.

The birgyns also that were kepte in, ranne to Onyas, some to the walles, other some loked out of ꝑ wyndows: ye they all helde vp their handes towarde heauen, and prayd. A mysserable thinge was it to loke vpon the comen people, ād ꝑ hye prest beynge i suche trouble. But they besought almyghty God that the goodes whiche were cōmytted vnto them, myght be kepte whole, for those that had deliuered thē vnto their keppynge. Neuertheles the thynge ꝑ Helyodorus was determed to do, ꝑ perfourmed he in the same place, he him selfe personally beyng about the treasurye wyth his men of warre. But the spirite of almyghty God shewed hym selfe openly, so ꝑ all they which presumed to obeye Helyodorus, fell thorow the power of God into a greate fearfulnesse ād drede. For there apeared vnto them an horse. w a terryble man sittyng vpō hi decked i goodly aray, and the horse smote at Heliodor⁹ w his fore fete. Now he ꝑ sat vpō the horse had harnesse of gold vpon hi. Moze ouer there appeared. ii. faire & beutifull yōge me i goodly araie which stod by him, scourged hi of both the sides, and gaue hi many stryppes w out ceassing. With ꝑ fell Heliodorus sodenly vnto ꝑ ground. So they toke him vp (being cōpassed about w grate darknes) & bare hi out vpō a beare. Thus he ꝑ cam w so many rūners & men of warre into ꝑ saide treasury was borne out, were as no man might helpe hi: ād so the power of god was manifest and knowne. He laie stil dōme also by ꝑ power of God, destitute of all hope & life. And they praised ꝑ lord, ꝑ he had shewed hys power vpō hys place ād temple, which a lytle afore was ful of feare and trouble, & ꝑthorow the reuelacion of the almightie lord it was fylled w ioye and gladnes. Then certayne of Helyodor⁹ frendes prayed Onias, ꝑ in all haste he wolde call vpon God, to graunte hi his life, which was geuig vp the goost. So the hye prest consydered the matter, ād lest the king sl̄ old suspecte ꝑ the Jewes had done Heliodorus some euell he offered an healthoffering for hym.

Now when the hye preist had optained hys peticion, the same yong men in the same clothing appeared, and stode beside Heliodorus, sayēg: Thanke Onias the hie prest, for his sake hath the Lord graunted thee thy lyfe. therfore seing ꝑ God hath scourged the, geue him prayse and thanckes, and shewe euery man hys myght and power. And when they had spoken these wordes they appeared nomore.

So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made great vowes vnto hi, whych had graunted hi his life, thāked Onias, tooke hys hoost and went agayne to the king. Then testifyed he vnto euery man of the greate workes of God, that hee had sene wyth hys eyes. And when the kyng asked Helyodorus who were mete to be sent yet ones agayne to Jerusalē, he sayde if thou hast anye enemye or aduersarye vnto thy realme, sende hym thether, and thou shalt haue him punished, yf he escape with hys lyfe: for in ꝑ place (no doubt) there is a speciall power & working of god. For he that dwelleth in heaue, beholdeth and defendeth ꝑ place: & al ꝑ come to do it harme, he punysheth & plageth them. This is now the mater cōcerning Helyodorus, & the kepinge of the treasury at Jerusalem.

¶ Simon reporteth euell of Onias. Jason desyring the office of the hye prest corrupteth the king with rewardes. the wicked intent of Jason.

The.iiii.Chapter.

This Simon now of (whom we spake afore) being a bewarer of ꝑ money & of his owne natural cōtre, reported the worste of Onias as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto this, & as though he had ben a bringer vp of euel. Thus was he not ashamed to cal hi an enemy of ꝑ realme, that was so faythful an ouerseer & defender of ꝑ citie ād of hys people: yea and so feruēt in the law of god, but whē the malice of Simon encreased so farre, that thorow his frendes there wer certayn manslaughters cōmitted: Onias consydered ꝑ parell ꝑ myght come thorow thys stryfe & how ꝑ Appolonius (namely ꝑ chefe lord in Celosyria and Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, and Symons malyce increased ꝑ same: He gat hi to the kynge not as an accuser of the cytezins, but as one that by hym selfe intended ꝑ cōmon wealth of the whole multitude. For he sawe it was not possible to kepe peace, nether Symon to leaue of from his folyshnesse, excepte ꝑ kynge dyd loke therto. But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is called the noble) toke the kyngdome: Jason the brother of Onias laboured to bee hye prest. For he came vnto the kynge, and promised him three hundreth & .lx. talentes of syluer, & of the other rētes .lxxx. talentes. Besydes this he promysed hym yet an. C. & .L. if he myght haue the schoole of the chyldren, & that he myght call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Which when the kynge had graunted, and he hadgotten the superiorite, he beganne immediatli to drawe his kynsmen to the custome of the Heathen, put downe ꝑ thynges that ꝑ Jewes had set vp of loue, by John ꝑ father of Eupolemius / whych was sent embassytoure vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of frendshyppe and loue. He put downe all the Jewes and Lybertines of the Jewes / and set vp the wicked statutes. He durst make a fyghtynge schole vnder the castel, and set fayre yōge men to learne the maners of whores and brotheles.

This was now the begynninge of ꝑ heathenysh and straunge conuersacyon, brought in thorow the vngracious & vnherd wickednes of Jason, whych shal not be called a Preste, but an vngodly person. Insomuch that ꝑ prestes were now no more occupied about the seruice of the alter but despised ꝑ teple, regarded not the offeringes: yea gaue their diligence to lerne to fight, to wrestel, to leape, to daunce, and to put at ꝑ stone: not settinge by the honour of the fathers, but lyked the glory of ꝑ Grekes best of al: for the which they stroue prelously & were gredy to folow their statutes ye they lust ws in al thinges to be lyke them which afore wer their enemies and destroyers. Howbeit to do wickedly against the lawe of god shall not escape vnpunished: but of thys wee shal speake here after.

* Olimpadies were kepte every fyfth yere.

What time as the * Olimpadies sportes were played at Tyrus (the kynge him selfe beinge present) this vngracious Jason sent wicked men, bearyng from them of Jerusalem (whych now were called Antiochyans) iii. C. drachmas of syluer for an offerig to Hercules. These had they that caryed them, despysed vnder soch a fashiō, as though they shoulde not haue bene offred, but bestowed to other vses. Neuertheles he that sent them / sente them to the intēte that they should be offred vnto Hercules. But because of those that were present, they were geuen as to the mayntenynge of thyppes. And Appolonius the sonne of Nesteus was sent into Egypte, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolomy Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceaued that he was put out from meddelynge in the realme he soughte hys owne profyte, departed from thence, camme to Joppa, and then to Jerusalem. where he was honorably receaued of Jason and the citie, & was brought in w torch lyghe and with grate prayse: and so he turned his hoost vnto Phenices.

After iii. yeare Jason sent Menelaus, the forsayde Symons brother, to beare the money vnto the kyng, and to bringe him answere of other necessary matters. But he (when he was prayed of the kinge for magnyfying of his power (turned the Prestehode vnto him selfe, layinge vp. iii. C. talētes of syluer for Jason. So when he had gotten cō maundementes from the kynge, he cāe hauinge nothinge, that becommethe a preest, but bearing the stomack of a cruel tyraunt, and the wrath of a wylde brute beest. Then Jason (which had dysceaued his awne brother) seinge that he him selfe was begyled also, was fayne, to flee into the lande of the Ammonites and Menelaus gat dominyon. But as for the money ꝑ he had promysed vnto the kynge, he dyd nothing therin / whē Sostratus the Ruler of the Castell requyred it of him. For Sostratus was the man that gathered the customes: wherefore they were both called before the king. Thus was Menelaus put out of the prestehode, and Lysimachus his brother cam in his stead. Sostratus also was made lord of ꝑ Cyprias.

It happened in the meane season, ỹ the Tharsians and Mallocians made insurrection, because they wer geue for a presente vnto kynge Antiochus concubine. Then came the kynge in all the haste/to stil them againe, and to pacify the matter, leauinge Andronicus there to be his debyte, as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposyng that he had gotten a ryght cõuenient time, stole certaine vessels of golde out of the temple, & gaue the to Andronicus for a present and soone he solde at Tyrus and in the cyties therby.

Which when Onias knewe of a certye, he reproued him: but he gat him i a Sanctuary beside Daphnis, that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat him to Andronicus/and prayed hi ỹ he wolde slaye Onias. So when he cã to Onias, he deceyued hym craftely to come out of the Sanctuary, geuyng hi his hand (as an othe (howe be it he suspect him)) and then he slew Onias, without any regarde of rightcousnes. For the which cause not only ỹ Jewes, but other nacions also toke indignacyon, & were displeased for ỹ vnrighteous death of so godly a man.

And when the king was com againe from Cilicia, and the Jewes ād certayn of the Grekes went vnto him cõplaynyng for the vnrighteous deth of Onias. Yea Antiochus him selfe was sory in his mind for Onias, so ỹ it pitied hi and he wepte, remembryng his soberne and manerly behauiour. Wherfore he was so kyndled in his mynd, that he cõmaūded Andronicus to be stripped out of his purple clothinge, and so to be led thorow out al the citie: yea and the vngracious man to be slayne in the same place, where he committed his wyckednes vpon Onias. Thus the lord rewarded him his punishment, as he had deserued. Now whe Lysimachus had done many wicked dedes in ỹ temple thorow the councel of Menelaus, and the bowce came abrode: ỹ multitude gathered them together against Lysimachus for he had caried out now much golde.

So when the people arose, and wer full of displeasure, Lysimachus armed iii M vnthryftes to defende him: a certayne tyraunt beynge theire captayne, which was growen bothe in age & wodnesse. But when the people vnderstod ỹ purpose of Lysimachus/ some gat stones, some good stronge clubbes, & some cast ashes vpon Lysimachus. Thus there were many of them wounded, some beynge slayne, and al the other chased away. But as for the wiked church robber him selfe, they kylled him beside the treasury. Of these maters therefore ther was kepte a courte agaynst Menelaus. Now when the kynge came to Tyrus, they made a cõplaynte vn to hi of Menelaus, concernynge this busynesse, and the embassitours were thre. But Menelaus went apromised Ptolomy to geue him moche money, if he wolde persuade ỹ kynge. So Ptolompye went to the kinge into a courte (where as he was set to cole him) and broughte hym out of that mynd. In so much that he dyd discharged Menelaus from the accusacions that notwithstanding was cause of all mischefe: and those poore men which if they had tolde their cause before the Scythians they should haue ben iudged innocent, them he condempned to death.

Thus were they soone punished, which followed vpon the matter for the tyme, for the people, and for the holy vessel. Wherfore they of Tyrus toke indygnacyon, and buried them honorably. And so thorow the courtousnesse of them that were in powre, Menelaus remayned styll in authorite, increasinge in malyce, to the hurte of the cytesins

Of the sygnes and tokens sene in Jerusalem. Of the ende ād offence of Jason. The pursute of Antiochus against the Jewes. The spoiling of ỹ temple

The. v. Chapter.

ABout the same tyme Antiochus made hi ready againe to Egypte. Then were there sene at Jerusalem. xl dayes longe/ and horsmen running to and fro in the ayre/ whiche had raiment of golde, and speres. Ther were sene also whole hostes of men weaponed, and horses running in an ordre howe they came together, how thei held forthe theire shyldes, how ỹ harnessed menne drewe oute their swordes/ and shot their dartes.

The shyne of the golden weapens was sene, and of al maner of armure. Wherfore euery mã prayed, that those tokens might turne to good. Now whe there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had ben dede: Jasõ toke a .M. men, and came sodenly vpõ the cittie. The citizins came vnto ỹ walles, at the last was ỹ citie taken, & Menelaus fled into the castel.

As for Jason he spared not his owne cytizyns in the slaughter, nether consydered he what greate euell it were to destroie the prosperite of his owne kynsmen but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of his frendes. For al this gat he not the superiorite, but at the last receaued confucyon for his malyce, and fled agayne lyke a vagabunde into the lande of the Ammonites.

Fynally, for a rewarde of hys wyckednes, he was accused before Aretha ỹ king of the Arabians: In so much that he was fayne to fle from cytie to cytie/ beyng despysed of euery man as a forsaker of the lawes, and an abhompnable person. And at the last (as an open enemy of his owne natural coũtre ād of ỹ cytizins) he was driue away into Egipt.

Thus he that afore put many oute of their owne natyue land, perished frõ home him selfe. He wente to Lacedemon, thynking there to haue goette succour by reason of kindred. And he ỹ afore had caste many out vnburyed, was throwne out hi selfe, no mã mourning for him, nor putynge him in hys graue: so ỹ he nether myssed the burial of a straunger, nether was he partaker of his fathers sepulcre.

Now when this was done the king suspecte, ỹ the Jewes wold haue fallen frõ him: Wherefore he came in a greate displeasure out of Egipt, and toke the cytie by violence. He commaunded hys men of warre also ỹ they shuld kyll ād not spare, but slaie downe suche as withstode them, or clymmed vpon ỹ houses.

Thus was there greate slaughter of yong men, olde men, wemen, childre and virgines. In .iii. dayes were there slayne, lxxx .M. fourthy thousand put in prison, and no lesse sold. Yet was he not content with this, but durst go in to the most holi temple (Menelaus that traytoure to the lawes and to hys owne naturall countree, beinge hys gyde) and with his wicked handes toke the Holye vessell, which other kynges and Cyties had geuen thether for the garnishing ād honour of the place: them toke he in his handes vnworthely, and defyled them.

So mad was Antiochus that he cõsydered not, howe that God was a lytle wroth for the sinnes of them that dwelte in the citie, for the whiche suche confusyon came vpon that place. And wyrefore it had not happened the to haue bene lapped in many synnes, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly bene punished, and shut out for hys presumption, lyke as Helyodorus was, whodme Seleucus the kyng set to robbe the treasury. Neuertheles god hathe not chose the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therfore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but after warde shall it enioye the wealth of them. And like as it is nowe forsaken in the wrath of almyghtie God, so when the great God is recõsiled it shalbe set vp in hye worshyp agai

So when Antiochus had taken a M. talentes out of the temple he gat hym to Antioch in al the haste, thinckig in hys pryde, that he myghte make men saple vpon the drye lande, and to go vp on the see such an hye mynde had he. He lefte debities there to vexe the people: At Jerusalem left he Philippe a Phrygian in maners more cruel then hi selfe ỹ set hi ther: At Garisim he left Andronicus & Menelaus: whych wer more greuous to ỹ citezins then other. Now as he was thus set in malyce against ỹ Jewes, he sẽt Appolonius an hated prince, .M. xxii. M cõmaunding hi to slay al those ỹ wer of perfect age and to sell the women, maydes and chylderen. When he came now to Jerusalẽ he fayned peace, & kepte hi styl vnto the Sabboth day: & thẽ he cõmaũded his men to take thẽ to their weapẽs (for ỹ Jewes kepte holy day) & so he slew al thẽ ỹ wer gon forth to ỹ opẽ playe running here and there thorow ỹ cytye, & his men weapened, and murthered a greate nombre. But Judas Machabeus be⁹ which was the tenthe, fled into the wildernes, led his life there with his cõpany amonge the wylde beastes & vpõ the mountaines, dwellynge there, and eating grasse/lest they should be partakers of the faithfulnes.

¶ The Jewes are compelled to leaue ỹ law of god The temple is defiled. The readers are mortified ỹ they shal not abhorre ỹ aduoutrie where wt the Lord afflicteth them. The greuous payne of Eleazerus.

The. vi. Chater

A NOt longe after this, sent ỹ kinge a messanger of anty ochie, for to cõpell ỹ Jewes to altre the ordinaũces of ỹ fathers & ỹ lawe of god, to defile ỹ tẽple ỹ was at Jerusalẽ, & to cal it ỹ tẽple of Jupiter Olimpius: & ỹ thei should be in Gazarim, as those which dwel at the place of Jupiter ỹ herberous. This wiked sediciõ of ỹ vngodly was heup vpõ al ỹ people: for ỹ tẽple was full of voluptuousnesse, bibbinge & bolling of ỹ hethẽ/of ribaudes & harlottes together. The wemẽ wẽte into the holy place, & bare in ỹ was not laufull. The alter also was ful of vnlauful thinges which ỹ lawe forbiddeth to laie vpon it. The Sabbothes were not kept, ỹ other solẽpne feastes of ỹ lãde were not regarded. To be plaine, there durst no mã be a knowne ỹ he was a Jewe. Inỹ daie of ỹ kinges birth they were cõpelled perforce to offer: & when ỹ feaste of Bach⁹ was kept, they wer cõstrained to weer garlãdes of yuy, & so to go about for ỹ honour of Bach⁹. Moreouer thorow ỹ cõsel of Ptolomy, there wẽt out a cõmaũdemẽt in ỹ next cities of ỹ Heathẽ, ỹ they shuld intreat ỹ Jewes i like maner: namely, to cõpel thẽ for to do sacrifice after ỹ law of ỹ Gẽtiles: ãd who so wolde not, to put thẽ to death. A pyteous thing was it to se. There were .ii. wemẽ accused to haue circũcised theyr sonnes, whõ whẽ they had led roũde about ỹ citie (ỹ babes hãgig at their breastes) they cast thẽ doune headling ouer ỹ walles. Some ỹ wer crept into dẽnes ãd had kept ỹ Sabboth, were accused vnto Philip, ãd brent in ỹ fire: because ỹ for ỹ feare of god they kept ỹ cõmaũdemẽt so stifly, & wold not defẽd thẽselues. Now I beseech al those which reade this boke, that therefuse it not for these falles of aduersite: & iudge ỹ thynges (that are happened) for no destruccion, but for a chastenyng of oure people. And why? whẽ God suffred not sinners longe to folowe theyr owne myndes, but shortly punished them, it is a token of his greate louinge kyndnes. For thys grace haue we of God more then other peoples, that he suffreth not vs longe to sinne vnpunished like other nacions that when the Daye of Judgemente commethe, he maye punish them in the fulnes of their synnes. If we synne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth his mercy from vs: and though he punish vs wt aduersite, yet doth he neuer forsake his people. But lett this ỹ we haue spoken now wt few wordes, be for a warnyng and exortacion of ỹ Heathe. Now wil wee come to ỹ declaryng of ỹ matter. Eleazar one of the principall Scribes, an aged man & of a welfauored countenaũce, was constrayned to gape wt open mouth & to eate swinesflesh. But he desiryg rather to dye gloriously then to liue wt shame, offred hi self willigly to the martirdõ. Now whẽ he saw ỹ he must nedes go to it, he toke it pacyently. for he was at a poynte wt hi selfe ỹ he wold consent to no vnlawful thig for any pleasur of lyfe. They ỹ stode by beig moued wt pitie (but not aright) for ỹ old fredship of ỹ mã, toke hi aside prieuely, & praied hi ỹ he wold let such flesh be brought hi as were laufull to eate, & to make a countenaũce as thoughe he had eatẽ of ỹ flesh of ỹ sacrifice lyke as ỹ king cõmaũded, for so he might be delpuered from death, ãd so for the olde frendshyp of the man, they shewed hym thys kindnes. But he beganne to consydre his dyscrete and honorable age, hys noble and worshyppfull stocke, and howe that from his youth vp he had bẽ of an honest & good conuersation: yea & how constantly he had kepte the ordynaunces and Lawes Commaunded by god, wherfore he gaue thẽ thys answer and sayde: Yet had I rather first be layde in my graue. For it becometh not mine age (sayd he) in anye wyse to dissemble, wherby many yong persons myght thinke, that Eleazar being .lxxx. yere old ãd .x. were now gone to a straunge lyfe and so thorow myne ypocrysy (for a litle tyme of transit or lyfe) they might be disceaued by thys meanes, also shuld I defyle myne age, and make it abhominable. For though I were nowe delyuered from the tormẽtes of men yet shuld I not escape the hand of almyghty god neither alyue nor Dead. Wherfore I wil dye manfully, and do as it becommethe myne age: wherby I may peraduenture leaue an exãple of stedfastnes for suche as be yonge, yf I with a readye mynde and manfully dye an honest deathe, for the moost worthy and holy lawes.

When he hadde sayde these wordes immediatlye he was drawen to the torment. Now they that led hym and were mylde a lytle afore, beganne to take displeasure because of the wordes that hee sayde, for they thoughte he had spoken thẽ of an hye myndе. But when he was in hys martirdomme, he mourned and sayd: Thou (O Lord) which hast the holy knowledge, knoweste openlye: that where as I myghte be delyuered/from death, I suffre these sore paynes of my body: but in my myndе I am well content to suffre them because I feare the. Thus thys man dyed, leauing the memoryal of his death for an exaimple, not onely vnto yonge men/but vnto all the people to be stedfast and manly.

The punishmẽt of .vii. brethren & of their mother

The. vii. Chapter

IT happened also that ther were vii. brethren (with their mother) taken and compelled bye the kinge against the lawe to eate swynes flesh: namely with scourges ãd lethren whyppes. And one of thẽ which was ỹ chefe said, what seekest ỹ, & what requirest ỹ of vs? As for vs we are redy rather to suffre deathe thẽ to offẽd ỹ lawes of god & ỹ fathers. Thẽ was ỹ king angry, & bad heate caudrons & brasẽ pottes. Which whẽ they were made hot, imediatly he cõmaũded ỹ tong of hym that spake first to be cut out, to put the skinne ouer hys head, to pare of ỹ edges of his hãdes & fete: yea & ỹ in ỹ sight of his mother & the other of his brethren. Now whẽ he was clean marred he cõmaunded a fire to be made & so (whyle ther was anye breth in hi) to be fried in the caudron. In ỹ whiche when he had bene longe payned/the other brethren with their mother exhorted him to dye manfully, sayinge: The Lorde God shal regarde the treuth/ãd comfort vs, lyke as Moses testyfyeth and declareth in hys songe, sayenge: and he wyll haue compassion on his seruauntes. Deut. xxxii.

So when the fyrste was deed after this maner, they brought the second to haue him in derision/pulled the skynne wt the hearre ouer his head/& asked hi if he wolde eate swines flesh, or he were pained in the other mẽbres also thorow out hys body. But he answered boldly and saide: I wyl not do it. And so was he tormented lyke as the fyrst/and whẽ he was euen at the geuing vp ỹ goost he saide: Thou most vngracious persõ putteste vs now to death, but the kynge of the world shal raise vs vp (which die for his lawes) in the resurrecti of euerlastinge lyfe.

After him, was the third had in derision: as when he was required, he putt out his tonge, and ỹ right soone, houlding forth his handes manfullye, and spake wt a stedfast faith: These haue I of heauen, but nowe for the lawe of God I despyse them, for my trust is, ỹ I shall receaue them of him againe. Insomuch that the king and they whyche were with him, marueyled at the yonge mans boldnesse, that he nothing regarded the paines.

Now when he was deed also, they vexed the fourth with torementes i lyke maner. So when he was now at his death, he said: It is better, that we be-ynge put to death of men, haue our hope and trust in god, for he shal rayse vs vp againe. As for thee, thou shalt haue no resurrectiõ to life. And whẽ they had spoken to ỹ fifth they tormented hym. Then loked he vnto the kyng, & said: ỹ hast power amõg men, for ỹ art a mortal man also thy selfe, to do what ỹ wilt but thinke not ỹ God hath forsakẽ our generacion. Abide thee, & ỹ shalt se ỹ great power of God how he wil punish thee and thy sede. After him they brought ỹ sixte, whiche beinge at the point of death, sayd: Be not disceaued disceaued) O kynge(for this we suffre for our owne sakes, because we haue offended our God, & therfore marue-lous thinges ar shewed vpon vs. But thinke not thou, whiche takest in hand to stryue agaynst God, that thou shalt escape vnpunished. This excellent mo-ther(worthy to be wel reported of, and had in remembrance) saw her seuen sonnes dye in one daye/ and suffered it pa-cientlye, because of the hoope that she had in God: yee she exhorted euery one of them in especyall, and that boldely & stedfastly w perfite wisdome, wakynge vp her wyuish thought with a manly stomake/ and sayde vnto them: I can not tell howe ye came in my wombe, for I nether gaue you brethe ner soule, ner life. Ie is not I that ioyned y members of your bodies together, but the maker of y worlde, wich fashioned the birthe of man, & beganne all thinges. Euen he also of his owne mercy shal gee-ue you breathe and life agayne lyke as ye now regarde not your owne selues for his lawes sake. Now thought Anti-ochus that she had despised him, there-fore he let her go with her reproues, & beganne to exorte the youngest sonne(wych yet was left) not only w wordes but swore vnto him w an ooth, that he shoulde make him a ritche and welthye Manne, (if hee would forsake the la-lawes of his fathers.) yea and that he shoulde geue hym what soeuer were ne-cessary for hym. But when the younge man wolde not be moued, for all these thynges, he called hys mother, and coun-celed her to saue her Sonnes lyfe.

And when he had exhorted her w ma-ny wordes, she promised him that shee shoulde speake vnto her sonne.

So she turned her vnto him(laughing the cruel tiraunt to scorne, and spake w a bolde voyce: O my sonne, haue pytie vpon me, that bare the, & monethes in my wombe that gaue the sucke, norys-shed thee and brought thee vp vnto thys age.

I beseche the(my sonne) loke vpon heauen and earth and al that is therin, and consider that God made them and mans generacion of naught: so shalte thou feare this hagmā: but suffer death stedfastly like as thy brethre haue done it, y I mai receue the agayn in the same mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speaking these wor-des, the yong man sayd: whome loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wyl not o-beye the kinges commaundement, but the lawe that god gaue vs by Moises. As for thee that imaginest all mischeefe against the Jewes, thou shalt not esca-pe the hande of god, for we suffre these thinges because of oure sinnes.

And though god be angrye with vs a lytle wyle(for oure chastening and re-formacion) yet shall he be at one agayn with his seruauntes. But thou(O sha-meful and moost abhominable person) Wyde not thy selfe thrown vayne hope in bring so malycious vpon the seruaū-tes of god: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgemēt of y god which is almigh-tye, and seeth all thinges. My brethern that haue suffred a lytle paine are now vnder the couenaunt of euerlasting lyf: but thorow the Judgement of god, thou shalt be punished ryghteously for thy pride.

As for me(lyke as my bretheren ha-ue don) I offre my soule and my bodie for the lawes of our fathers calling vp on God, that he wyll sone be mercyfull vnto oure people: yea and wyth payne and punishement to make the graunte that he onely is God. In me nowe and my Bretheren the wrathe of almightye God is at an ende, whiche righteously is fallen vpon oure people.

Then the kinge being kindled in an-ger was more cruell vpon him then vp-on all the other, and take indignacī-on, that he was so lyghtly regarded.

So this yonge man dyed vndefiled, & put his trust stydl in the Lorde. Last of al after the sonnes, was the mother put to death also. Let this now be ynough spoken concerning the offeringes and exercise cruelnes.

Judas gathered to gether his host. Nicanor is sent agaynst Judas. Judas exorteth his souldears to cō-stātnes. Nicanor is ouercom. The Jewes geue thā-kes after they had put their enemie to flyght, dyui-ding the spoyle vnto the fatherles & vnto y wydo-wes. Nicanor fleeth vnto Antiochus.

¶ The.viii. Chapter

hym

When Judas Machabeus, & they that were wythe hym, went preuilye into the tow-nes, called theyr kinsfolkes and frendes together, toke vnto them all suche as continued yet in the fayth & law of the Jewes, & brought forth vi.M. men.

So they called vpon the Lorde, that he woulde haue an eye vnto hys peo-ple whiche was troden downe of euerye manne to be gracious vnto the temple, that was defyled of the vngodly, to ha-ue compassion vpon the destruction, of the cyty, which was shortly like to be lai-the cyty, which was shortly like to be lai-ed waste, to heare the voyce of the blou-de that cryed vnto him: to remember the moste vnrighteous deathes of yong innocēt childrē, y blasphemyes also don vnto his name, and to punysh them.

Now when Machabeus had gathe-red thys multitude together, he was to mightye for the heathen(for the wrath of the Lorde was turned into mercy) he fel vpon the townes ād cities vnawar-res, brent them, toke the moost commo-dious places/ and slew many of the ene-mies. But specially he made much cha-ses by night, in so much that his man-lynesse was spoken of euery where.

So when Philippe sawe that the manne encreaced by lytle and lytle, and that the Matter prospeared wyth hym for the moost parte he wrote vnto Pto-lomy(which was a captayne in Celosy-ria and Phenices) to help hi in the kin-ges busynes. The sent he Nicanor Pa-trocly(a speyal frende of hys(in all y haste, and gaue hym of the comen sorte of the heathen no lesse then xx.M. har-nessed men, to route out y whole gene-racyon of the Jewes, hauing to help hi one Gorgias, a man of warre, which in matters concerning battels had greate experiēce. Nicanor ordened also y tri-bute(which the Romaynes shulde haue had) to be geuen vnto the kinge, out of the captiuitye of the Jewes, namelye ii M. Talentes. And immedyatly he sent to the cytees of the see coast requiringe them for to bye Jewes to be theyr Ser-uauntes & bondmen,, promysing to sell them, lxxx. and ten for one talent: but he considred not the wrath of almightye God that was come vpon hym.

When Judas knew of this, he told the Jewes that were wyth hym of Ny-canors commynge. Now were there some of them fearfull/ not trustinge vn-to the righteousnes of God and stode their waie.

But the other that remayned, came together and besought the Lord to de-lyuer them from that wicked Nicanor, which had solde theym or euer he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for their sakes, yet for the couenaunt that he made with their fathers, and be-cause they called vpon hys holy & glori-ous name. And so Machabeus called his men together, namely about vi M. exhorting them not to agre vnto theyr enemyes nether to be a fraid for y mul-titude of their aduersaries comming a-gaynst the vnrighteously, but to fight manly, considering the reproffe y they had done to the holy place w out cause how they had dispised and oppressed y cytye, yea and destroyed the Lawes of the fathers. For they(saide he) trust in their weapons and boldnesse, but oure cōfidence is in the almighty lord which in the twinckling of an eye maye bothe destroie them that come against vs/ & al the worlde.

He exorted them also to cal to remē-braunce the help that God shewed vn-to their fathers: as when there perished an C. and lxxv. M of Sennacherybes people: And of the batail that they had in Babilon against y Gallacians: how y al the Macedonyans y came to helpe them, stode in feare: and how they beig but onely vi.M. slewe an C and xx.M thorow the help that was geuen theym from heauen, wherby they also had re-ceaued many benefites.

Thorow these wordes the men to-ke good hertes vnto them, ready to die for the lawe and the countre. So he set vpon euery company a captaine, one of his owne brethren: Simon, Joseph ād Jonathas: geuinge ech one xv.C men. He cauſd Eldras also to reade the ho-ly boke vnto them/ and to geue them a token of the helpe of god.

Then he him selfe being captayne in the fore fronte of the battail buckled vñ Nicanor. And God was their helpe, in so much ꝑ they slew aboue. ix. M men and cõpelled ꝑ more parte of Nicanors host to flee, they were so wounded and feable. Thus they toke ꝑ moneye from those ꝑ came to bye them, and folowed vpon them on euery side. But when the tyme came vpõ them, they returned, for it was the Sabbath/ & therfor they folowed nomore vpon them. So they toke their weapons and spoyles and toke ꝑ Sabbothes, geuing thãkes vnto the Lord, which had delyuered them ꝑ day, and shewed them his mercy. After the Sabbath they distributed ꝑ spoyles to the sycke, to the fatherles and to wyddowes, and the residue had they theim selues vñ theirs. When this was done, and they al had made a general praier: they besought the mercyful Lord to be at one with his seruauntes.

Num.xxxi.d
ii.reg.xxx.c
Deut.xx.b.

Of those also that were vñ Timotheus and Bachides, which fought against them, they slewe. xx. M wãne hie & strong holdes, & destroied moo spoyles: euer geuing an equal portion vnto the sicke, to the fatherles to widdowes & to aged persons. And when they had diligently gathered their weapens together, they laied them all in conuenient places, and the remnaunt of the spoiles brought they to Ierusalē. They slew Philarches ꝑ wicked persõ, which was vñ Timotheus/ & had vexed many Iewes. And when they held ꝑ thanckesgeuinge, at Ierusalem for ꝑ victory they brent those that set fire vpon the portes of the temple: namely Callisthenes, which was fledde into an house: & so they gat a worthy rewarde of their wickednes. As for that moost vnworthy Nycanor which had brought a M. marchauntes to bye the Iewes, he was throwe the help of the Lord brought downe, euen of them whõ he regarded not: so much ꝑ he put of his glorious rayment/ fled by sea, and came alone to Antioch with greate shame and dyshonoure, which he gat throw ꝑ destruccion of his host. Thus he ꝑ promised the Romaines to paie theym their trybute, when he toke Ierusalem: began now to saye plainely that god was the defender of the Iewes, and therfore not possible to wounde them, because they followed the lawes which god had made.

¶ Antiochus willyng to spoyle Persepolys is driuen to flyght. As he persecuteth the Iewes, he is stryken of the Lorde. The fayned repentaunce of Antiochus. Ii. dyeth.

The ix. Chapcer.

AT the same tyme came Antiochus agayne with dishonour out of Persis: for whe he came to Persepolys, and vnderstoke to robbe the temple, and to subdue ꝑ cytie, the People ranne together and defended themselues, in so much that he and hys were fayne to flie with shame. And so after ꝑ flyght it happened, that Antiochus came agayne vñ dishonour. But when he came to Ekbathana, he gat knowledg what was happened vnto Nicanor and Timotheus. Now as he was aduaunced in hym selfe in hys wrath, he thought he was able to auenge the iniury that was done to them, vpon the Iewes: & therfore comaunded to make readye his charet, hasting in hys iourney wythout ceassinge, the iudgement of god prouoking hi because he had spoken so proudly, that he wolde come to Ierusalem, and make it a graue of the Iewes. But the lord god of Israel that seeth all thinges, smote him with an inuisible plage, which no man coulde heale.

1.Mac.vi

For as sone as he had spoke these wordes there came vpon hym an horrible payne of his bowels, and a sore greefe of the charmes. And that was but ryghte: for he had martyred other mẽs bowels with dyuerse and straunge tormentes, how be it he wolde in no wyse, ceasse frõ his malyce. Yea he was yet the prouder and more malicious against the Iewes. But whyle he was commaunding to make haste in the matter, it happened that he fell down violently from the charet so that it brosed hys body, and dyd him great payne.

And so he that thought he myght commaunde the floudes of the see (so prouude was he beyond the condition of mã) and to weye the hye mountaynes in a paire of scoales, was now brought downe to the grounde, and caryed vpon an horslitter, knowledgig the manyfest power of god vpon him: so that ꝑ wycked bodye of hys was full of wormes, which in his paine fell quick out of hys flesh: In so muche that his hoote was greued with the smel and stinke of him. Thus he that a lytle afore thought he might reache vnto the starres of heuẽ, him might no mã now abide nor heare, for the behemence of flyncke.

2.Mac.ix

Therfore he beyng brought from his great pryde, beganne for to cometo knowleg of hi selfe: for the punishment of god warned him, and hys paine increased euer more and more. And when he hi selfe might not abyde his owne stincke, he saide these wordes: It is reason to be obedient vnto god, and that a mã desire not to be like vnto him. Thys wicked person prayed also vnto ꝑ lord of whom he shoulde haue optained no mercy. And as for the cytie that he came vnto so hastely, to bring it downe to the ground, and to make it a graue for deed men: Nowe he desyreth to delyuer ꝑ free.

And as touching the Iewes, whome he had iudged not worthy to be buried, but wold haue cast thẽ out for to be deuoured of the foules & wild beastes, sayenge, that he wold haue destroyed both olde & yõg: Now he promiseth, to make them lyke the citizins of Athens. And wher as he had spoiled the holy temple afore, nowe he maketh promyse to garnysh it vñ greate giftes, to increase the holi ornamentes, and of his owne rẽtes to beare the coastes, and charges belõging to the offerynges: yea and that he wolde also become a Iewe him self, to go thorow euery place of the world, and to preache the power of god.

But when hys paynes wold not ceasse (for the righeous iugmẽt of God was come vppon hym) oute of a verye dyspaire he wrote vnto the Iewes a letter of intercession/ contenyng these wordes: The kyng and prince Antiochus wysheth vnto ꝑ vertuous citesins of ꝑ Iewes, much health and good prosperyte.

If ye and your children fare well, and yf al thinges go after your mynde we geue great thankes.

In my sycknesse also doo I remembre you louingly: for as I came out of Persia, and was taken with sore disease: I thought it necessarye to care for the cõmen wealth. Neyther despayre I in my selfe, but haue a good hoope to escape thys sickenes.

But consydering that my father led an hoost somtime in the hyer places, ād shewed who shoulde raygne after hym, that (yf there happened any controuersye, or any harde thing were declared) they in the lande myghte knowe theyre chefe Lord, that there shoulde be no insurrection: Agayne, when I pondre by my selfe, how that all the myghtye men & neyghbours rounde about, are layenge wayte, and loke but for opoꝛtunitie to do harme: I haue ordeyned that my sonne Antiochus shal raygne after me, whome I often commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kingdomes, and haue written vnto hym as it folowyth here after. Therfore I pray you and require you, to remẽber the benefittes that I haue done vnto you generally and in especyall. For I hope ꝑ he shalbe of sober/ & louing behaueour, and yf he folowe my deuice, he shalbe in different vnto you.

Thus that murtherer and blasphemer of God was sore smytten: and lyke as he had entreated othermen/ so he died a miserable death in a straunge cõtree vpon a mountaine. And hys bodye dyd Philyppe (that wente with hym) cary awaye: which fearing the sonne of Antiochus, wente into Egipte to Ptolomy Philometor.

¶ Iudas Machabeus taketh the citties the temple. He beginneth to shewe ꝑ actes of Eupator. The Iewes fyght agaynst the Idumeans: Timotheus inuadeth Iewry, vñ whome Iudas ioyneth battel. Ii. mẽ apeare in the ayre, to the helpe of the Iewes. Timothy is slayne.

The.x. Chapter.

MAchabeus now ād hys compayny (throw the help of the lord) wanne the temple and the cirye agayne, destroyed the aulters and chapels that the heathen had buylded thorow the stretes: clensed the temple, made an other aulter of brycke stone, and after two yeares they offered sacrifices, set forth the incence, the lyghtes & shew dread. Wt he that was don, they fel downe flat vpon the grounde, and besought the Lorde, that they myghte come no more in to soch trouble: but yf they synned eny more agaynst him, he him selfe to chasten the w̄ mercy, & not to come in ỹ handes of ỹ straunge & blasphemus men.

B Nowe vpon the same daie that the straungers poluted the tẽple, it happened that on the verye same daye it was clensed agayne: namely, the .xxii. day of the moneth called Casleu. They kepte viii. daies in gladnesse, lyke as in the feast of the tabernacles: remembryng ỹ not longe afore, thei helde the feast of ỹ tabernacles vpon the mountaines and in dennes like beastes. And to the same token they bare greene bowes, braunches & palmes before him that had geuē them good fortune to clense his place. They agreed also together, & made a statut, ỹ euery yere those dayes thuld be solēply kept of all ỹ people of ỹ Jewes.

1.Mac.iiii.c

Now Antiochus then (that was called the noble) died, it is sufficiently told. Now wil we speke of Nicanor the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, howe it happened wyth him: and so with few wordes to comprehende the aduersite that chaunsed in the warres. When he had taken in the kyngdome, he made one Lisias (which had bene captaine of the hoste in Phenices and Siria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomi that was called Macrō, beinge a ruler for the Jewes (and specially, to sit in iudgment for soch wronge as was done vnto them) vnder toke to deale peaceably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frendes before Eupator: and whē he was suspecte to be a traytour (because he had left Cipres that Philometor had committed vnto him: and because he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned hi selfe, & died.

C Now when Gorgias was gouernour of the same places, he toke straungers and vnder toke of times to warre wyth the Jewes. Moreouer ỹ Idumeans that helde the stronge holdes, receaued those that were dryuen from Jerusalem, and toke in hande to warre also.

1.Mac.v.a

But they that were with Machabeus besoughte and prayed vnto the lorde, ỹ he wold be their helper: and so they fell into the strong holdes of ỹ Idumeās, & wan many places by strength: Soch as came against thē they slew, and kylled no lesse (of al together) then twenty M. Neuertheles some, no lesse then .x. thousand, were fled in two strong towres, hauing al maner of ordinaunce to withstande them.

D Then Machabeus leauing Symō Josephus, Zachaus ād those that were w̄ them (which were very many) wente to besege them, & to fight where moost nede was. Now they ỹ were w̄ Symō, beyng led w̄ coueteousnesse, were intreated for money, throw certaine of those ỹ laye in ỹ towres: to the .lxx. M: Dzachmas, & let som of thē escape. But whē it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called ỹ captaines of ỹ people together, accusig those persones, ỹ thei had sold ỹ brethrē for money, & let their enemies go. So he slew those traitores & immediatly went i hād w̄ ỹ .ii. towres ād whē they had ordred thē selues māly w̄ their weapēs & hādes, they slew i two castels moo then xx. M.

Now Timotheus whō the Jewes had ouercome afore, gat hered a multytude of straūg people, brought an host also of horsmen of ỹ Assirians, to winne Jewry by strenght: But when he drewe nye, Machabeus & they ỹ were w̄ hym fell into their prayer, sprincled asshes vpon their heades, bring girded with hayre cloth about their loines, fell downe before the aulter, and besought ỹ lorde that he would be mercyful to them, but an enemy vnto their enemies, and to take parte against their aduersaryes, according as it is promised in the lawe. So after the prayer thei wēt on further from the citie: and when they came nye the enemies, they prepared them selues against them.

1.Mac.v.b

And by times in the morninge at ỹ breake of the daye, both the hostes buckled together. The one parte had the Lord for their refuge, which is ỹ geuer of prosperite, strength and victory.

The

The other had a manly stomack, which is a captayne of warre.

The battail now beynge graet, there appeared vnto the enemyes frō heauen v. men vpon horsbackes w̄ bridles of golde, leadig the Jewes, and two of thē hauyng Machabeus betwixte them, ỹ kepte him safe on euery side with their weapons, but shot dartes and lightenynges vpon the enemyes: wher thorow they were confounded with blindnes & so sore afraied, that they fel downe.

2.Mac.xi.b 3.Mac.iii.b 4.Mac.iv.b

There were slaine of fote men twentye thousand and fyue hundreth/ and syxe hundreth horsmen. As for Timotheus hi selfe, he fled vnto Gazar a very strōg hold, wherin Cereas was captain. But Machabeus and hys companye layed sege to it cheareully: iiii. dayes.

Now they that were within trustig to the strength of the place, cursed and banned exceadinglye, and made greate crakynge w̄ wicked wordes. Neuertheles vpon the fifth daie in the morynge, xx. ponge men of Machabeus compayne, beynge, sett on fyre in their myndes because of the blasphemy came manfully vnto thē wal, and with bolde stomackes they and their other companions clymmed vp vpō the towres, vndertaking to set fire vpon the portes/ & to burne those blasphemous persones quicke. Two daies were they destroieg the castel, which when they founde Tymotheus (that was crept into a cozner) they killed him, and slewe Cereas hys brother in like maner with Appollophanes. Whē this was done, they sunge psalmes, w̄ prayses & thākes geuiges vnto the lord, which had done so great thinges for Israel, and geuen them the victorye.

Lysias goeth about to ouercome the Jewes. Succour is sent from heauen vnto the Jewes. The letter of Lysias to the Jewes. The letter of kinge Antiochus vnto Lisias. A letter of the same vnto ỹ Jwes. A letter of the Romaynes to the Jewes.

C The.xi. Chapter.

A NOt long after this, Lysias the kynges steward and a kynsmanne of hys (whiche had the gouernaūce of his matters (toke sore displeasure for the thynges that had happened: and when he had gathered. lxxx. M mē of fote with al the host of the horsmen/ he came agaynst the Jewes, thynkynge to wynne the Cytie, to make it an habytacion for the Heathen, and the temple wolde he haue to be an house of lucre, lyke as the other goddes houses of the Heathen are/ and to sel the preistes offyce euery yeare: Not considering the power of God, butt was wylde in hys mynde/ trustynge in the multitude of fote men/ in thousandes of horsmē, and in his .lxxx. Elephantes.

Ihon.ii.b.i

2.Mac.xv.b

So he came in to Jewry and then B to Bethsura (a castell of defence lyinge in a narow place. v. furlonges from Jerusalem) and wāne it. Now when Machabeus and his company knew that ỹ stronge holdes were taken, they fell to their prayers with weppyng and teares before the Lorde: And all the people in lyke maner besoght him/ that he wolde sende a good angell to delyuer Israel. Machabeus hym selfe was the fyrst that made him ready to the battayll/ exortyng the other that were with him, to ieoperde thē selues and to help their brethrē. And whē he was goynge forth of Jerusalē together with a redy and wyllyng mynde, there apeared before them vpon horsback a mā in whyte clothyng with harnesse of golde, shakynge his speare. Then they prayed ỹ Lorde all together, which had shewed thē mercy, & were comforted i their mides: in so mo che that they were ready not only to fyght with men, but with ỹ most cruel beastes, ye and to runne thorowe walles of yron.

1.Mac.vi.d

C Thus they went on willingly hauinge an helper from heauen, and the Lorde mercifull vnto them. Thei fell mightely vpon their enemies like lions, brought downe .xi. M. fote men, .vi. C. horsmen, put al the other to flight, many of them being wounded, & some gat awai naked. Yee Lisias him selfe was fayne to flē thamefully, & so to escape. Neuertheless the mā was not with out vnderstanding, but considered by him selfe, that his powez was mynished and pondred how the Jewes beynge defended by the helpe of Almighti God, were not able to be ouercome: wherfore he sent them word, and promysed, that he wolde consente to all thynges which were reasonable, and to make the kyng their frēd. To ꝑ which praier of Lysias Machabeus agreed seeyng in al thynges ꝑ comen welth: and what soeuer Machabeus wrote vnto Lysias concernynge the Jewes, the kyng graunted it. For there were letters wrytē vnto the Jewes from Lysias conteinyng these wordes.

Lysias sendeth greating to the people of Jewes. Jhon and Absalon which were sente from you, deliuered me wrytynges, and requyred me to fulfyll the thynges concernyng their arand. Therfore loke what myghte be graunted, I certifyed the kynge therof: and whatsoeuer was conuenient. I agreed therto. If ye now wyll be faithful in the maters. I shal endeuer my selfe herafter also to do you good. As concernyng other thinges by euerye article therof: I haue cōmytted them to youre messaungers: to whom I sent vnto you, to commen with you of ꝑ same/ fare ye wel. In ꝑ hundreth & xlviii. yeare, ꝑ xxiiii. daye of ꝑ moneth Dyoscorinthius.

Now the kinges lettre conteyned these wordes. Kynge Antiochus sendeth greating vnto his brother Lisias. For so moch as our father is now deed/ oure wyl is/ that they which are in oure realme, lyue without eny insurrecyon, and euery man to be dyligent in his owne matters. We vnderstande also/ that ꝑ Jewes wolde not consente to oure father, for to bebrought vnto the custome of the Gētyles, but stykly to kepe their owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of vs also, to lette thē remayne still by their awne lawes.

Wherfore our minde is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded & determned also/ to restore them their temple agayne: that they may lyue accordynge to the vse and custom of their forefathers. Thou shalt do vs a pleasure therfore, yf thou sende vnto them and agre with them:

That whē they are certified of our mynd they maye be of good chere, and loke to their owne wealth.

And thys was the letter that the kynge wrote vnto the Jewes: kynge Antiochus sendeth greatig vnto the councell & the other people of the Jewes: Yf ye fare well, we haue oure desyre: as for vs we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs, how that your desyre was to come downe to youre people, whiche are wyth vs.

Wherfore those that wyl come, we wyll geue them fre lybertie, vnto the. xxx. day of the moneth of Apryll. that they maye vse the meates of the Jewes and their owne lawes/ lyke as afore: and none of thē by any maner of wayes to haue harme, for thynges done in ignorauce. Menelaus whome we haue sent vnto you, shall comen with you at large, fare ye well. In the. CXLviii. yeare, the xv. day of the moneth Apryll.

The Romaynes also sent a lettre, cōteyning these wordes: Quintus Mennius and Titus Manilius, Embassytoures of the Romaynes. Sende greting vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Lisias ꝑ kinges kynsman hath graunted you, we graunt you the same also. But as concernynge the thynges whych he referred vnto the king, lede hyther some wyth spede, and pondre the matter dylygently amonge youre selues that we maye cast the best to youre profyte, for we must departe now to Antioch. And therfore wryte shortly agayne, that we maye knowe youre mynde: Fare well. In the CXLviii. yeare, the. xv day of the moneth of Apryll.

The.xii.Chapter.

When these couenauntes were made Lisias wente vnto the king, and the Jewes tylled their grounde, but Tymotheus, Appolonius the sonne of Geinei, Jerom and Demophon the proude, Nicanor the captayne of Cepzes, and they that laye in those places woulde not let them lyue in rest and

and peace. They of Joppa also did cuē such a shamful dede. They prayed the Jewes that dwelt amōg them, to go wt their wiues ād children into the shippes which they had prepared, and did with thē/ as though they had oughte thē no euel wil. For so much thē as ther was gone forth a generall proclamatiō throw the citie because of peace, they consented therto, and suspect nothing but when they were gone forth into ꝑ depe, they drowned no lesse then. ii. hundreth of them.

When Judas knewe of this cruelty shewed vnto his people, he commaunded those that were wyth him to make them ready, exhorting them to call vpō god the righteous iudge: went forth against those murthurers of his brethrē, set fyre in ꝑ hauen by night, brent vp ꝑ shyppes, and those that escaped from ꝑ fyre, he slew wt the sweard. And whē he had don thys, he departed as thoughe he wolde come agayne and rote out al them of Joppa. But when he had gotte worde that the Jamnites were minded to do in lyke maner to the Jewes which dwelt among them, he came vpon ꝑ Jamnites by nyghte, and set fire in the hauen wt the shippes: so that ꝑ lyghte of the fyre was sene at Jerusalem, vpō a. ii. C. & xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone frō thēce xx. furlonges, in their iourney towarde Timotheus. v M. men of fote ād. v. C horsmen of the Arabians foughte with him. So when the battail was earnest & prospered wt Judas throw ꝑ help of God: ꝑ residue of ꝑ Arabiās beig ouercome, besought Judas to be at one wt them, and promised to geue him certain pastures, and to do hym good in other thinges. Judas thynkynge that they shoulde in deade be profytable concernynge manye thynges, promysed them peace: wherupon they shoke handes, and so they departed to their tentes. Judas went also vnto a citie, which was verye faste kepte wyth brydges, fensed rounde a bout wyth walles, and diuers kyndes of people dwellynge therin, called Caspin.

They that were wythin it, put soche trust in the stregth of ꝑ walles, & i their stoare of victayles: that they were the slacker in theyr doinges, cursynge and reuylyng Judas with blasphempes, and speaking such wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus callynge vpon the greate Prince of the worlde (whych wythout any battayll rammes or ordynaunce of warre, did cast down the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Josue) fel manfully vpon the walles, toke the citie, & (throw the helpe of the Lord) made an exceading great slaughter: In so much e that a lake of two fourtlonges broade which laye therby, semed to flowe wyth bloude of the slayne. Josue. vi.

Then departed they from thence. viii C. and L. fourlonges, and came to Caraca, vnto the Jewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timothe⁹, thei coulde not gett hym there: for (not one mater dispatched) he was departed frō thence, and hadde lefte certayne menne in a verye stronge holde. But Dositheꝰ and Sosipater, which were captaynes wyth Machabeus slew those that Tymotheus had lefte in the house of defece, euen ten thousand men. And Machabeus prepared hym wyth the. vi, thousand men that were about hym, set thē in ordre by companyes, and went forth agaynst Timotheus, whyche had with hym an C. and xx. thousand men of fote, ii. When Timotheus had knowledge of Judas comming, he sent the women, chyldren and the other baggage vnto a castel called Carnyō (For it could not be wonne/ and was harde to come vnto/ the ways of the same places were so narow, and when Judas company came fyrst in sight, the enemyes were smiten with feare, throw the presence of god wyche seeth all thynges: In soo muche ꝑ they fleyng one hecre, an other there, were rather discomfitted of their owne people, and wounded with the strockes of their owne swerdes. lyfe: because he had many of the Jewes fathers and brethren in preson, which (yf they put hi to death) myght be disapoynted. So when he had promysed faythfully to delyuer thé agayne accordinge to the condicion made, they let hi go without harme, for the healthy of the bretheren. And when Judas had layn xxb. M. he went from Carnion.

Now after that he had chased away and slayne hys enemyes, he remoued ỹ hoost to warde Ephron a stronge cytye, wherin dwelte many dyuerse people of the heathen, and the stronge ponge mé kepte the walles, defendinge them nigh teiye. In this citie was much ordinaunce, and prouision of dartes. But when Judas & hys companye had called vpon almyghty god (which with hys power breaketh the strenght of the enemies) they wanne the cytie, and slewe xxb. M. of them, that were withi. From thence went they to the citie of the Scithians, which lyeth. vi C. furlonges from Jerusalem. But whé the Jewes which were in the cytie testifyed, that the cytezyns dealte louingly with them, yea and intreated them kindly in ỹ tyme of their aduersitie. Judas and hys companye gaue them thankes delyring them to be frendly styll vnto them: and so they came to Jerusalem the hye feast of the weekes beinge at hande. And after ỹ feest thei wét forth against Gorgias the gouernour of Idumea, wyth .iiii. thousand men of fote, and .iiii. C. horsme. Whiche when they met together: it chaunced a fewe of the Jewes to be slayne.

D And Dositheus one of the Bachenors a myghti horsman of Chzacia fell vpō him/and smote of his arme, so that Gorgias escaped & fled i to Mozosa. Whé they now ỹ were of Gorgias syde, had foughte longe and were weary: Judas called vpon the Lorde that he wolde be theyr helper, & captayne of ỹ felde: and wt that, he beganne with a manly voyce to take vp a song of prayse, & a crie, In so moch that hee made the enemyes afrayed, and Gorgias men of warre to ke theyr floghte. So Judas gathered his host, & came in to the cytie of Odolla & whé the seuenth daye came vpō thé ỹ clensed thémselues (as the custome was) & kepte the Sabboth in the same place. And vpon the daye folowinge, Judas and his companye came to take vp the bodies of them that were slaine, and to bury them in the fathers graues. Nowe vnder the cotes of certaine Jewes whiche were slayne, they founde Jewels ỹ they had taken oute of the temple and from the Idoles of the Jamnites: whiche thing is forbiddé the Jewes by the lawe. Then euery man saw ỹ this was the cause/wherfore they were slayne.

C And so euery man gaue thankes vnto the Lord for his righteous iudgmét which had opened the thynge that was hid. They fel downe also vnto their prayers, and besought God, the sawte which was made, might be put oute of remembraunce. Besydes that, Judas exorted the people earnestly, to kepe thé selues from suche a synne: for so muche as they saw before their eyes, that these men were slaine, for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a certain in so muche that he broughte together two thousand drachmas of siluer, which he sent vnto Jerusalé, ỹ there might a sacrifice be offered for ỹ misdede. In the which place he dyd wel and righte: for he had some consideracion and pondring of the ryse that is after this time. For yf he had not thoughte that they/ which were slain, did perpetue/it had bene superfluous ād vayne, to make anie powre or sacrifyce, & for them, that were dead. But for so much as we saue, that they whiche dye in the fauoure and beleue of God, are in good rest and ioye; he thought it to be good and honorable for a reconciling, to do ỹ same for those which wer slain, that the offence might be forgeuen.

C The .xv. Chapter.

3 M.v.p. In the. C.lxv. yere gat Judas knowlege, that Antiochus Eupator was comynge wyth a greate power in to Jewry, and Lysyas the stewarde and ruler of his matters with him: hauyng an. C. x. x. M. méof fote. v. M. horsmen. xxx. Elephantes, and. iii. C. charettes. Menelaus also ioyned him self wyth them (but wyth greate dyssceate) and spake fayre to ỹ kynge, not for eny good of the countre, but because he thought to haue bene made som greate man, of auctorite. But the kinge of kinges moued Antiochus mynd agayn ste thys vngodly personne, and Lysias informyd the kynge/that thys Menelaus was the cause of all myschefe: so ỹ the kynge commaunded to take him, & (as the maner of them is) to put hym vn to death in the same place.

There was also in the same place a tower of. L. cubytts hye, heapped with asshes: but aboue it was so made/that men myght lose downe on euery syde. Where in to the kynge commaunded ỹ shamefull person to be caste amonge ỹ asshes, as one that was cause of al vngraciousnesse. And reason it was, that the vnthrift shulde dye, soch a death, & not to be buryed: for he had done moch myschefe vnto the aulter of God (whose fyre and asshes were holy) therfore was it righ, that he him self also shulde be destroyed wt asshes.

But ỹ kynge was wood in his mynde and came to sheewe hym selfe more cruell vnto the Jewes, then hys father was. Wherych when Judas perceaued, he commaunded the people to call vpon the Lorde nyght and daye: that he wolde now helpe them also, lyke as he had done alway: For they were afrayed to be put from their lawe, from their natural countre and from the holy temple: & not to suffre the people (whych a lytle whyle afore began to recouer) to be subdued again of the blasphemos nacyons So when they had done thys together and besought the Lorde for mercye, wt C weping and fasting thre days long, flat vpon the ground Judas exhorted thé to make them selues readye, But hee and the elders together deuysed to goo for the fyrste with theyr People. afore the kynge brought hys hoost in to Jewry, and afore hee beseged the cytie/ and so to committe the matter vnto God.

Wherefore he ascribed the power of all thynges vnto God the maker of the worlde, exortynge his people to fyghte manfully, (yee euen vnto death) for the lawes/the temple, the citye, their awne natiue countre, and to defende ỹ cytezins: and set his hoost before Modyn. He gaue them also that were wt hym, a token of the victory of God, chosyng out the manlye iii ponge men, wente by nyght in the kynges pauilyon, and slewe of the hoost. xiiii. M. men, & ỹ greatest Elephantes, wt those that sat vpon them.

Thus when they had brought a greate feare and rumour amōge the tentes of theyr enemyes, and all thinges wente prosperously wt them, they departed in D the breake of the day, God bring their healper and defender. Nowe when the kynge perceaued the manlinesse of the Jewes, he wente aboute to take ỹ strōg places by crafte, and remoued hys hoost vnto Bethsura, which was a well kepte house of defence of the Jewes: but thei were chased awaye, hurt & discōfited. And Judas sent vnto them ỹ were i it, soch thinges as were necessary. In the Jewes hoost also ther was one Rhodoch? which tolde the enemyes their secretes: but they sought hym out, and whé they had gotten hym, they put hym in prisō After this dyd the kynge comen wt thé that were in Bethsura, take truce wt thé departed, and stroke a battayll wt Judas, which ouercame him,

But when he vnderstode, that Philyp (whom hee left to be ouerseer of his busynesses at Antioche) beganne to rebel agaynst him, he was astonnied in hys minde: so that he yelded him selfe to the Jewes, and made them an othe, to do whatsoeuer they thought ryght.

Now when he was reconsyled wt them he offred, made moch of the temple/gaue greate gyftes vnto it/exprased Machabeus, makynge hym captayne and gouernour from Ptolomais vnto the Garrenes:

Neuertheleſſe when hee came to Ptolomays, the people of ỹ cyty were not content wyth that bonde of frendſhype: for they, were afrayed, that he wolde breake the couenaunt. Then wente Lyſias vp in to the ſeat, and enfourmed the people, ſhewed them the cauſe why, & pacyfyed them. So he cam agayn to Antyoch. Thys is now ỹ mater concernynge the kynges iourneye, and hys returne.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

A Fter thre yeares was Judas informed, howe ỹ Demetrius the ſonne of Seleucus was come vp with a greate power and ſhyppes, thorow the hauen of Tripolis, to take certayne commodyous places and countrees, agaynſt Antiochus and his captayn Lyſias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hye Preſt, & wylfully defyled hym ſelf, in the tyme of the myxtynge) ſeing, that by no meanes he coulde be helped, nor haue any more intraunce to ỹ aultar: he came to kyng Demetrius in the hundreth and one and fyftye yeare, preſentyng vnto him a crowne of golde, a palme and an olyue tree: which (as me thought) belonged to the temple, and ỹ daye he helde his tonge. But when he had gotten oportunytye for his madnes, Demetrius called him to counſel, and aſked hym, what thinges or councels the Jewes leaned vnto. He anſwered: The Jewes that bee called Aſſidei (whoſe captayn is Judas Machabeus) maynteyne warres, make inſurrecyons, and wyl not let the realme be in peace.

For I beynge depryued of my fathers honoure (I meane the hye preſthode) am come hither: partly e because I was faythfull vnto the kynge/ and partly because I ſought the profyt of the cyteſyns. And why all our people thorow ỹ wickednesſe of them are not a lytle troubled. Wherfore I beſeche the (O kynge) conſydre al theſe thynges dilygently and then make ſome prouiſyon for the lande and the people, accordynge to the kyndneſſe that thou haſt offered vnto them. For as long as Judas hathe the vpperhande, it is not poſſible ỹ men can lyue in peace.

When he had ſpoken theſe wordes, other frendes alſo haynge euell wyll at Judas, ſtert the kynge Demetrius on fyre agaynſt him. Which immediatly ſent Nicanor (ruler of the Elephantes) a captayn, into Jewry: commaundyng him, to take Judas him ſelf alyue, but to ſlaye them ỹ were with him, & to make Alcimus hye preſte of the temple.

Then the heathen whych fled oute of Jewry fro Judas, came to Nicanor bi flockes, thinkyng the harme and decaie of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now whe ỹ Jewes herde of Nicanors comminge, and the gathering together of the heathen thei ſprenckled them ſelues with earth and beſought him which made them hys people, and euer defended his owne porcion with euident tokens, that he wolde preſerue the lyll. So at the commaundement of the captaine thei removed from thence, and came to a towne called Dassafa. And Simon Judas brother fel in hande wyth Nicanor but thorow the ſodane cõmige of the enemyes/ he was afrayed.

Neuertheles Nicanor hearynge ỹ manlynes of them that were w Judas, and ỹ bolde ſtomakes that they had to fight for theyr naturall countree, durſte not proue the mater w bludſhedding. Wherfore he ſent Poſſidonius, Theodotus & Mathias before, to geue & to take peace. So when they had taken long aduiſement there vpon, and the captayne ſhewed it vnto the multitude: they were agreed i one mynde, to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to ſyt vpõ theſe matters quietly amonge them ſelfes, the ſtoles alſo were brought and ſet forth. Neuertheles Judas commaunded certayne men of armes to wayte in cõuenyent places, leſt there ſhuld ſodenly aryſe any euel thorow the enemyes. And ſoo they commoned reaſonably together.

Nicanor, whyle he abode at Jeruſalem ordred hym ſelf not vnreaſonably, but ſet away the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer w hys herte and fauoured him. He prayed hi alſo to take a wyfe, and to bringe forth childre. So he maried, lyued in reſte, & thei led a comẽ life. But Alcimus perceaynge the loue that was betwyxte thẽ, & how thei wer agreed together, came to Demetrius, & tolde him that Nycanor had taken straunge matters i hande, and ordened Judas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynges ſucceſſor. The kynge was ſoore displeaſed, and thorow ỹ wicked accuſations which Alcymus made of Nicanor, he was ſo prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nycanor, ſayynge: that hee was verye angrie for the frendſhipp and agreement, which he had made w Machabeus. Neuertheleſſes he cõmaunded hym in al the haſte, that hee ſhulde take Machabeus preſoner, and ſende him to Antioche.

Wyych letters when Nycanor had ſene, he was at his wittes end, and ſore greaued, that hee ſhoulde breake the kynges whereyn they had agreed: ſpecially, ſayenge Machabeus was ỹ mã that neuer dyd him harme. But becauſe he myght not w ſtande ỹ kynge hee ſought opportunite to fulfil his commaundement. Not w ſtandinge, when Machabeus ſawe that Nicanor begã to bee churliſhe vnto him/ and that he intreated him more rughli then he was wonte, he perceaued ỹ ſuch vnkyndnes came not of God/ and therefore hee gathered a few of his men, & with drewe him ſelfe from Nicanor. Which when he knew that Machabeus had manfully preuented him, he came in to the great and moſt holy temple: and commaunded the preſtes (which were doyng their vſual offeriges) to delyuer him the mã. And whe they ſware that they could not tell where the man was whom he ſought he ſtrecched out his hande/ & made an othe, ſayenge: If ye wyl not delyuer me Judas captiue, I ſhall remoue thys tẽple of God in to ỹ playn feld, I ſhal bzeake downe the aulter, & conſecrate this temple vnto Bacchus. After theſe wordes he departed.

¶ Then the preſtes lyft vp there hãdes toward heauen, and beſought him that was euer the defẽder of their people, ſaienge. Thou O lord of all/ which haſte nede of nothynge, wolderſt that the temple of thy habitacio ſhuld be amõg vs. Therfore now O moſt holy Lord, kepe this houſe euer vndefyled, which lately was clenſed. Now was there accuſed vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Alderma of Jeruſalem, a louer of the whole citie and a man of good repo3te: whiche for the kinde hert that he bare vnto ỹ people was called a father of ỹ Jewes. This man oft tymes, when the Jewes were minded to kepe them ſelues vndefiled, defended and deliuered thẽ, being content ſtedfaſtly to ſpende his body & his lyfe for his people.

So Nicanor wylling to declare the hate/ that he bare to the Jewes ſente v C men to take him: for he thoughte, yf he gat him he ſhould bringe the Jewes in great decaye. Nowe whi n the people began to ruſhe in at his houſe/ to breake the doores, and to ſet fire on it: he beinge now taken/ wold haue defended hi ſelfe with the ſwerde: choſing rather to dye manfully, then to yelde him ſelfe to thoſe wicked doers: and becauſe of his noble ſtocke, he had rather bene put to extreme cruelte. Notwithſtandig what tyme as he miſſed of his ſtroke for haſt and the multitude fell in violentlye betwyxt the doores: he ranne boldely to the wall, and caſt him ſelfe downe manfully among the people of them/ which gaue ſoone place to his fall, ſo that he fel vpon his bely.

Neuertheles while there was yet breathe with in him, he was kyndled in hi3 mynde, and whyle hys blonde guſhed out exceadingly (for he was verye ſore wounded) he ranne thorow the middeſt of the people and gat hym to the toppe of a rocke. So when his blonde was now gone, he toke out his owne bouells with both his handes, and threwe them vpon the people: callyng vpon ỹ Lord of lyfe and ſpirite, to reward hym this againe, and ſo he died.

NOwe when Nicanor knewe that Judas was in the cõtre of Samaria, he thoght with al his power to strike a felde wyth hym, vppon a Sabboth daye. Neuertheles the Jewes that were compelled to go vñ hym, said: O do not so cruelly and vnkindlye but halowe the Sabboth day, and worshyp hym that seyth all thynges. For all this yet sayde the vngracious personne: Is there a myghty one in heauen, that commaunded the Sabbath day to be kepte? And when they sayde: yea the lyuing god, the myghtie Lorde in heauen commaunded the seuenth daye to be kepte, he sayd: And I am myghty vpõ earth, to commaunde them for to arme theym selues/and to performe the thynges bu

Nicanor had deuised wythe greatte pryde to ouer come Judas, and to bringe awaye the victorye. But Machabe? had euer a fast confydence and a perfecte hope in God that he wolde help hym, ād erhorted hys people, not to be afraid at the commyng of the heathen: but alwaye to remembre ẏ help that had bene shewed vnto them from heauen, yea & to be sure now also, that almighty God wolde geue them the victorye. He spake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes, putting them in remembraunce of the battayles, that they had stryken afore, and made them to bee of a good corage.

So when theyr hertes were pluct vp he shewed them also the dyscreatfulnes of the heathen, and how they wold kepe no couenaunt nor oth. Thus he weaponed the not wyth the armour of shyld & speare, but with wholsome wordes and erhortacions. He shewed them a dreame also, wherre thorowe he made theym all glad, whych was thys: he thought that he sawe Onias (whych had bene a high preste, a vertuous and louing man, sad, and of honest conuersacion, wel spoken, and one that had bene exercysed in godlynes from a chyld) holding vp hys hãdes towarde heauen, and prayinge for hys people. After thys there appeared vnto hym another mã, whych was aged honourable and glorious.

And Onias sayde: This is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Israell. C This is he that prayeth moch for the people, and for al the holy cytie: Jeremy the prophet of God. He thought also ẏ Jeremy helde out hys ryght hãd and gaue hym (namelye vnto Judas) a swearde of gold/ sayinge. Take this holy swearde, a gyfte from God, wherwith thou shalte smyte downe ẏ enemyes of the people of Israell. And so they were well comforted thorow ẏ wordes of Judas, and toke corage vnto them/ so that the yonge men were determed i theyr myndes to fyght, and to byde styfly at it. In so moch that in the thinges which they toke in hand, theyr boldnesse shewed the same, because the holy cytye and the temple were in parell: for ẏ which they toke more care/ thē for theyr wyues, childeren, brethren and kynsfolckes. Agayne, they that were in the cytie, were most careful for those which were to fyght. Now when they were all i a hope that the iudgement of ẏ matter was at hande, & the enemyes drew nye, the host beynge set in aray, the Elephãtes and horsmen euery one standynge i his place: Machabeus consydered the commynge of the multitude, the ordynaunce of dyuerse wepens, the cruelnes of the beastes, and helde vp his hãdes towarde heauen, callynge vponẏ Lorde that doth wounders, which geueth not ẏ victory after the multitude of wea

Wyth theyr handes they smote, but wyth theyr hertes they prayed vnto the Lorde, and slew no lesse thē xxxv. thousande menne: For thorowe the presente helpe of God they were gloryously comforted.

Nowe when they left of, and were turnynge agayne vñ ioye they vnderstode that Nicanor him selfe was slayne wñ the other. The they gaue a great shoute and a crye, prayslynge the Almighty Lorde vñ a loude voyce. And Judas ( Ẏ which was euer ready to spend his bodi and lyfe for his citesins) cõmaunded to smite of Nicanors head, wñ his arme and hande, & to be brought to Jerusalem. Wo hen he came there, he called all the people, and the prestes at the aulter withe those that were in the castell, and shewed them Nicanors head, and hys wycked hande, which he had presumptuously holden vp agaynste ẏ temple of God. He caused the tonge also of ẏ vngodly Nicanor to be cut in lytle peces, & to bee cast to the foules/ and the cruell mans hande to be hanged vp before the tẽple. As for Nicanors head, he hanged vp vpon the hye castell, for an euydent and playn token of ẏ helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe ẏ daye holy, namely the. xiii. daye of the moneth Adar, which in the Syrians lãguage is called the nexte daye before Mardocheus daye. Thus was Nicanor slayne, & from that tyme forth the Jewes had ẏ citye in possessyon: And here wyll I nowe make an ende.

The.ii. Chapter.

A When Jesus was borne at Bethlehē in Jurye, in ỹ tyme of Herode the king. Beholde there came a* wyse men frō ỹ east to Jerusalē saying: wher is he that is borne kynge of Jewes? We haue sene hys starre in the East, & are come to worshyp hym.

Whē Herode the kyng had heard thys, he was troubled, & al Jerusalē with hym, & he gathered al the cheefe Priestes & Scribes of ỹ people, & asked of thē wher christ should be borne. And they said vnto him: at Bethleem in Jury. For thus it is wrytten by the prophet. And thou Bethleem in the lande of Jury, arte not the b* leest concerning the Princes of Juda. For out of the shal come the captayne, that shal c* gouerne my people Israell.

B Thē Herode preuely called ỹ wyse mē and diligently enquyred of them, the tyme of the starre that appered, and sent thē too Bethleem saying: Go & searche diligently for the chylde. And when ye haue founde him, bringe me worde, that I maye come & worshippe him also.

✣ Whē they had heard the king, they departed: & lo the starre whyche they sawe in the East wēt before thē, tyl it came & stode ouer the place wher the chyld was. When they sawe the starre, they were maruelously glad: & went into the house, & fould ỹ chyld wyth Mary hys mother, & kneled downe & d* worshipped hym, & opened their treasures, & offred vnto him gyftes, gold frankynsēce & myrre. And after they were warned of God in a dreame, that they shoulde not go agayne to Herode, they returned into their owne countrey another way.

When they were departed: behold ỹ angel of ỹ Lord appered to Joseph in a dreame saying: aryse & take the chyld and hys mother, & flye in to Egypte, & abyde there tyll I bringe the worde. For Herode wyll seke the chylde to destroye hym. Thē he arose and toke the chylde & hys mother by nyght and departed into Egypt, and was there vnto the death of Herode to fulfylle that which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet whych sayth, out of Egypt haue I called my sonne.

Thē Herode perceauing ỹ he was mocked of the wyse mē was exceding wroth & sent forth & e* slue al the chyldren ỹ were in Bethleem, and in all the costes therof, as many as were two yere old & vnder, according to the tyme which he had diligently searched out of the wyse men.

Thē was fulfylled that which was spokē by the prophet Jeremy saying: On the hylles was a voyce heard, mourning, weping, and great lamentacion. Rachell weping for her children, & wolde not be comforted, because they e* were not.

D ✣ Whē Herode was dead: behold, an angel of the Lord appered in a dreame to Joseph in Egypt saynge: aryse and take the chyld and his mother, & goo into the lande of Israel. For they are dead which sought the childes lyfe. Then he arose vp, & toke the chylde & his mother, and came into the lande of Israel. But when he herde that Archelaus dyd raygne in Jury, in the rowme of his father Herode, he was afrayd to go thither. Notwythstādyng after he was warned of God in a dreame he turned aside into the parties of Galile, & went and dwelt in a cytie called Nazareth, to fulfyl that which was spoken by the Prophetes he shalbe called a* Nazarite. Judicū.13

¶ The baptyme, preaching and office of Jhon, and how Christ was baptyſed of hym in Jordan.

The.iii. Chapter.

A In those dayes John ỹ Baptiſt came & preached in ỹ wyldernes of Jewry, saying: Repent, ỹ kingdō of heauē is at hand. This is he of whom it is spokē by the prophet Esay, which sayth The voyce of a cryer in wyldernes, prepare ye the Lordes waye, and make his pathes straight. Thys John had hys garmēt of camels heare, and a gyrdell of a skynne about hys loynes. His meate was a* locustes and wylde honye. Then went oute to hym Jerusalem and all Jewry, and al the B regiō rounde aboute Jordan, and were baptyſed of hym in Jordan, confeſſinge their synnes.

✣ When he sawe many of the Phariſes and of the Saducēs come to his baptyme he said vnto them: O generation of b* vypers, who hath taught you to flē frō the vengeaunce to come? Bringe forth therfore ỹ fruytes belonging to repentaunce. And se that ye ones thinke not to saye in your selues, we haue Abrahā to oure father. For I saye vnto you, that God is able of these stones to rayse vp chyldrē vnto Abraham Euen now is the axe putt vnto the rote of the trees: so that euery tree which bringeth not forthe good fruyte, is hewen downe & cast into the fyre.

I baptyse you in water in tokē of repentaunce: but he that commeth after me, is mightier thē I, whose shoes I am not worthy to beare. He shal baptyse you with the C holy goost and wyth fyre: which hath also hys fan in his hand, and wyll pourge hys floure, and gather the c* wheat into hys garner, and wyl burne the chaffe wyth vnquencheable fyre.

✣ Thē came Jesus frō Galile to Jordan vnto John too be Baptyſed of hym. D But John forbade him, saying: I ought to be baptyſed of the: & comest thou to me? Jesus answered & sayde to hym. Let it be so now. For thus it becometh vs to fulfyl d* all righteousnes. Then he suffred hym And Jesus as soone as he was baptyſed, came streyght out of the water. And lo, heauē was opē ouer hym: & John sawe ỹ spirite of God descende lyke a doue & lyghte vpō him. And loo, there came a voyce frō heauen saynge: This is that my beloued sonne in whom is my delyte.

¶ Christ is tempted: he calleth Peter, Andrew, James & Jhon, and healeth all the seke.

The.iiii. Chapter.

A Then was Jesus led awaye of the spirite into wyldernes, to be tempted of the deuyl. And when he hadde fasted fourty dayes and fourty nightes, he was afterward an hungred. Thē came to him the tempter, & sayd: yf thou be the sonne of God cōmaunde that these stones be made bred. He answered & sayd: it is wrytten, man shal not lyue by bread onlye, but by euery worde that proceadeth out of the mouth of God. Jesus fasteth.

Thē the deuyl toke him vp into ỹ holy cittie, & sette him on a pinacle of the tēple, & sayd vnto him: yf thou be ỹ sonne of God cast thy selfe downe. For it is wrytte: he shal geue hys angels charge ouer ỹ, & vpō their handes they shal hold the vp ỹ thou dashe not thy foote againste a stone. And Jesus said to him: it is wrytte also: * Thou shalt B not tempte thy Lord God. Psalm. xc. Deute. vi.

The deuyl toke him vp agayne & ledd him into an exceding hye mountayne, and shewed him al the kingdōs of the worlde, & all the glorye of thē, and sayde to him: all these wyl I geue the, yf ỹ wilt fall downe & worship me. Thē sayd Jesus vnto him Auoyd Satan. For it is wrytte, * ỹ shalte worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serue. Deu. vi. & x. b

Then the deuyl left hym, & beholde, the angels came & ministred vnto hym.

✣ When Jesus had heard that John was taken, he departed into Galile & lefte Nazareth, & went & dwelt in Capernaum whych is a cytie vpon the see, in the costes of Zabulon & Nepthalim, to fulfyll that that wbych was spoken by Esay the Prophet, sayinge:* The land of Zabulō and Nephthalim, thee waye of the see beyonde Jordan, Galile of the Gentils, the people which sat in darknes, saw great light, & to thē whiche sate in the region & shadowe of death, lyght is begon to shyne.

Frō that tyme Jesus began to preach, and to saye: a* repent, for the kingdom of heauen is at hande.

✣ As Jesus walked by the see of Galile he saw two brethren: Simō which was called Peter, & Andrew his brother, castinge a net into the see, for they were fishers, and he sayde vnto them, folowe me and I wyll make you fyshers of men. And they streyght waye lefte theyr nettes, and folowed hym.

D And he went forth from thence, & sawe other two brethē, James the sonne of Zebede, & John his brother, in the shyp wyth Zebede theyr father, medinge their nettes and called them. And they wythout taryinge lefte the shyp and theyr father and folowed hym

✣ And Jesus went about al Galile, teachyng in theyr synagoges, & preachyng the b* gospel of the kingdō, & healed al maner of sycknes, & al maner diseases amōg the people. And his fame spreade abrode thorowout al Siria. And they brought vnto him al syke people that were taken wyth diuerse diseases & gryppinges, & them that were possessed with deuyls, & those wbych were lunatyke, & those that had the palsye and he healed thē. And there folowed him a great nombre of people, from Galile, & from the ten cytyes & from Jerusalē, and from Jewry, & from the regions that lye beyond Jordan.

The Notes

a* To repent, is, to forthinke & to leaue & chaūge their euel lyfe, for the loue of vertue & hate of synne, as in Mark. i. b. Actes. xvi. d b* The gospel is an open shewing and preachyng of the grace & redemptiō obtained & geuen thorow Christe.

C In this Chapter & in the two nexte folowing is contayned the most excellent and diuine Sermon of Christ in the mount: Which seemō is the very keye that openeth the vnderstandinge into thee lawe. In this fyfth chapter specially he preacheth of the. viii. beatitudes or blessinges, of māslaughter, wrath and anger: of aduoutrye, of sweringe, of suffering wrong and of louynge euen towardes a mans enemyes.

The. v. Chapter. ✣

When he saw the people he went vp into a mountayne, & when he was set, his disciples came to hi, & he opened his mouth, and taught thē sayinge: blessed are thee a* poore in spirite for theirs is the kyngdom of heauē. Blessed are they that mourne: for they shalbe confforted. Blessed are the meke: for they shal enherete the erth Blessed are they which b* honger & thurst for righteousnesse: for they shalbe fylled. Blessed are the mercyful: for they shal obteyne mercy. Blessed are the pure in herte: for they shall se God. Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shalbe called the c* children of God. Blessed are thet which suffre B persecutiō for righteousnes sake: for theirs is the kyngdom of heauen. Blessed are ye when mē reuyle you, and persecute you and shall falsely saye all maner of euyll sayinges agaynste you for my sake. Reioyce and be gladde, for great is youre d* rewarde in heauen. ✣ For so persecuted they the Prophetes whyche were before youre dayes.

✣ Ye are the salt of ye earth: but yf the salt haue lost his saltnes, what cā be salted therwith? It is thence forthe good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be troaden vnder fote of mē. Ye ar ye light of ye world A citie that is set on an hyll, cānot be hyd, nether do mē light a candel, and put it vnder a bushell, but on a candelsticke, and it lyghteth al that are in the house. Let youre light so shine before men, that they may se your good workes, and glorifye your father whych is in heauen.

✣ Thinke not that I am come to destroy the law, or ye prophetes: no I am not come to destroye thē, but to fulfyll thē. For truly I say vnto you, tyl heuen and erthe pe- C rysshe, one iott or one tyttle of the law shal Luke xvi not scape, tyll al be fulfylled.

Whosoeuere* breaketh one of these leest cōmaundementes, and teacheth men so, he shalbe called the leest in the kingdō of heauen. But whosoeuere* obserueth and teacheth, the same shalbe called greate in the kyngdom of heauen.

✣ For I say vnto you, except youre righteousnes exceade the righteousnes of thee Scribes & Phariseis, ye cannot entre into the kingdom of heauen.

Ye

Ye haue heard how it was sayd vnto thē of ye old tyme: Thou shalt not kil. For whosoeuer killeth, shalbe in daūger of iudgemēt. But I say vnto you, whosoeuer is angry with his brother, shalbe in daūger D of iudgemēt. Whosoeuer sayth vnto hys brothers* Racha, shalbe in dāger of a counsel. But whosoeuer saith thou fole, shalbe in daunger of hel fyre.

Therfore whē thou offrest thy gyfte at the aulter, and there remembrest that thy brother hath ought against the: leaue ther thyne offeryng before the aulter, & go thy way fyrst and be recōcyled to thy brother, and then come and offre thy gyfte.

✣ Agre with thyne aduersary quickly, whyles thou art in ye way wyth him, lest ye aduersary deliuer the to the iudge, and the iudge deliuer the to the minister, and then thou be cast into preſō. Verely I say vnto the: thou shalt not come out thēce b* tyl ye haue payed the vtmost farthinge.

Ye haue heard how it was sayd to thē of old tyme, Thou shalt not cōmit aduoutrye. But I say vnto you, that whosoeuer loketh on a wyfe, lustynge after her, hathe commytted aduoutrye wyth her alreadye in hys herte.

Wherfore yf thy right eye offende the C y* plucke hym out, & cast hym frō the. Better it is for thee that one of thy members perysshe then that thy hole body shulde be cast into hel. Also yf thy right hand offend the, cut hym of and cast him from the. Better it is that one of thy members perysshe, then that all thy bodye shulde be casste into hell.

It is sayd, whosoeuer put away his wyfe, let him geue her a testimonial also of ye deuorcement. But I say vnto you: whosoeuer put away his wife (except it be for fornicatiō) causeth her to breake matrimony. And whosoeuer maryeth her that is deuorced, breaketh wedlocke.

F Agayne ye haue heard how it was said to thē of old tyme, thou shalt not forswere thy self, but shalt performe thyne oth to Swere God. But I saye vnto you, sweare not at all: neyther by heauen, for it is Goddes seate: nor yet by the earth, for it is hys fote stole: neyther by Jerusalē: for it is the citie of that greate kynge: neyther shalte thou sweare by thy head, because thou canst not make one whyte heare or black. But your communicatiō shalbe, yea, yea: nay, nay. For whatsoeuer is more then that, cōmeth of euyll.

Ye haue heard how it is sayd, an eye for an eye: a toth for a toth. But I say to you ye resist not wyck. But whosoeuer geue ye a blowe on thy right cheke, turne to hym the other. And yf any mā wil sue the at the lawe, & take awaye thy coote, let him haue thy cooke also. And whosoeuer wyl cōpel the to go a myle, go with him twayne. Geue to him that asketh, & frō him that wold borowe, turne not awaye. Exod. xxi. c. Deute. xix. d Leui. xxiiii. c Luke. vi. c Ryghte cheke G

✣ Ye haue heard how it is sayd: ye shalt loue thine neyghbour, b* & hate thyne enemye. But I saye vnto you, loue your enemyes. Blesse thē that curse you. Do good to thē that hate you & praye for thē which do you wrōg & persecute you, that ye may be the children of your father that is in heauen: for he maketh hys sunne to aryse on the euel, and on the good, and sendeth hys rayne on the iuste and vniuste. For yf ye loue them, which loue you: what rewarde shal ye haue? Do not the Publicans euen so? And yf ye be frendly to youre brethren only: what synguler thinge do ye? Do not the Publicans lyke wyse? ye shal therfore be perfect, euen as your father which is in heauen, is perfecte

The.xii. Chapter. ✠

AT that tyme Jesus went on the Saboth dayes thorow ỹ corne and hys disciples were an hongred, & began to pluck the eares of corne, & too eate. Whē the Pharises saw that, they sayd vn-to him: Behold, thy disciples do that whyche is not lawful to do vpon the Saboth daye. He sayde vnto thē. Haue ye not rede what Dauid dyd, whē he was anhongred and they also which were with hym: How he entred into thee house of God, & ate the halowed loaues whyche were not lawfull for hym to eate nether for thē whych were wyth hym, but only for the prestes. Or ha-ue ye not rede in the law, how ỹ the prestes in the temple breake the Saboth day, and yet are blamelesse? But I saye vnto you, ỹ here is one greater then the temple. Wher-fore yf ye had wyst what this saying mea-neth: I requyre mercy and not sacrifice: ye not same wold neuer haue cōdēned innocētes. For lyke the sonne of mās lord euen of the Saboth daye.

And

And he departed thence, and went in to their synagoge: and beholde there was a man which had his hande dryed vp. And they asked him, saying: is it lawful to hea-le vpon the Saboth dayes? because they might accuse him. And he sayde vnto thē:
which of you wold it be, yf he had a shepe fallē into a pytt on the Saboth day, that wold not take hym and lyft him out? And how moch is a mā better thē a shepe? Wherfore it is lefull to do a good dede on thee Saboth dayes. Then sayde he to ỹ man:
stretch forth thy hand. And he stretched it forth. And it was made whole agayne ly-ke vnto the other.

✠* Then the Pharises wēt out, & helde a counsel agaynste hym, how they myght destroy him. Whē Jesus knew that, he de-parted thēce, & moch people folowed him, and he healed thē all, & charged thē ỹ they shuld not make him knowē: to fulfil that which was spokē by Esay ỹ prophet wht-che saieth. * Behold my child, whō I haue chosen, my beloued, in whō my soule delī-teth. I wil put my spzete on him, & he shal shewe iudgmēt to ỹ gētils. He shal not stry-ue, he shal not crye, nether shal eny mā hea-re hys voice in ỹ stretes. a bzosed rede shal he not breake, and flaxe that begynneth to burne, he shal not quēche, til he send forth iudgmēt vnto victozie, & in his name shal the gentyles truste. ✠

Then was brought to him, one possessed wt a deuyll whyche was both blynde, and dōme: & he healed hym, in so mothe that he which was blynde & domme, both spake & sawe. And al the people were amased, and said: * Is not this thee sonne of Dauid? But when ỹ Pharises heard that, they sai-de: This felow dzyueth ỹ deuils nonother wyse out but by the helpe of Belzebub the chefe of the deuyls.

But Jesus knew theyr thoughtes & saye-de to them. Euery kyngdom deuided with-in it selfe, shalbe brought to naughte. Ne-ther shall eny cytye or housholde deuyded against it selfe, cōtinue. So yf Satan cast oute Satan, then he is deuyded agaynste hym selfe. How shal then his kynge dome endure? Also yf I by ỹ helpe of Belzebub cast out deuyls: by whose helpe do youre chyldren cast them out? Therfore thei shal be youre iudges. But yf I cast out the de-uils by the spzite of god: then is the kingdome of god come on you.

The.xiii. Chapter.

A Mar.iiii.a Luk.viii.a THe same day went Jesus out of ỹ house, and sat by the see syde, and moch people resozted vnto him, so greatly ỹ he went, & sat in a shippe, and al the people stode on the shooze. And he spake manye thynges to thē in symylytudes, saying: Beholde, the sower went fozthe to sow. And as he sowed, some fel by ỹ wayes side, & ỹ fowles came & deuoured it vp. Some fel vpō stony groūd where it had not moch erth, and anone it sprong vp, because it had no depth of erth: & whē the sūne was vp it caught heet, and foz lacke of rotyng wyddred awaye. Some fel amōg thornes, & ỹ thornes spronge vp and choked it. Parte fell in good ground, and brought fozth good frute: some an hūdred folde, some sixtie folde some thyrtie folde. Whosoeuer hath eares to heat let hi heare

And ỹ disciples came and sayd to him: B Why speakest thou to them in parables? He answered and sayd vnto them, it is geuen vnto you to knowe the secretes of the kyngdome of heauen, but to them it is not geuen.  Foz whosoeuer hath, to him shal be geuē: and he shall haue aboundaunce. But whosoeuer hath not: from hym shal be taken away euen that he hathe. Therefoze speak I to thē in similitudes: foz though thei se, they se not: & hearing they heare not: neither vnderstād. And in them is fulfilled the Prophesie of Esaias, which prophesie saith: with ỹ eares ye shall heare & shal not vnderstande, and with ỹ eyes ye shal se, & shal not perceaue. Foz thys peoples hertes are waxed gros, and their eares ar dul of heryng, & they? eies haue thei closed lest they shuld se wt they? eyes, and heare with their eares, and shuld vnderstād de with their hertes, & shuld tourne that I myght heale them.

But blessed are youre eyes, foz they se: & your eares, foz they heare. Verelye I saye C vnto you, ỹ many Prophetes, and perfytemē haue desyred to se those thinges which ye se, & haue not sene them: & to heare those thinges whyche ye heare, & haue not herde thē. Heare ye therfoze the similitude of the sower. Whosoeuer heareth the wozde of ỹ d* kyngdō & vnderstandeth it not, ther cometh the euyll man & catcheth awaye that whych was sowne in his hert. & he this is he which was sowne by the way syde. But he that was sowne in the stony grounde, is he which heareth the wozd of god, & anone wyth ioye receaueth it, yet hath he no rotes in hym selfe, and therfoze dureth but a seasō: foz as sone as tribulation oz persecutiō aryseth because of the wozde, by and by he falleth. He that was sowne amōg thornes is he that heareth ỹ wozde of God: but the care of thys wozlde, & the dysseytfulnesse of ryches choke the wozd, and so is he made vnfrutefull. He whyche is sowne in ỹ good ground is he that heareth thee wozde and vnderstādeth it: whych also beareth frute and bryngethe fozthe, some an hundred folde, some sixtye folde, & some thrytye folde.

Another

Another symylytude put he fozthe vnto thē sayinge: + The kyngdom of heauē is lyke vnto a mā which sowed good seed in his feld. But whyl men * slept there came his foo & sowed tares amonge the wheate, & went his waie. Whē the blade was sprōge vp and had brought fozth frute, thē appered the tares also. Then came the seruātes to thee housholder, and said vnto him: Syr sowedeste not thou good seed in thy closse, frō whence then hath it tares? He sayde to thē: the enuious man hath done this. Then the seruaūtes sayde vnto him: wylt thou thē that we go & wede them out? But he sayd, nay, lest whill ye go about to wede out ỹ tares, ye pluck vppe also with thē the wheate by the rottes: let bothe grow together tyll harueste come, and in tyme of harueste, I wyll saye to the repers, gather ye fyrste the tares, and bynde them in sheaues to be brent: but gather the wheete into my barne. +

Mar.iiii.b + Another parable he put fozth vnto thē saying: The kingdom of heauē is lyke vnto a graine of mustard seed, which a mā taketh and soweth in his feld, which is ỹ leest of al seedes. But whē it is growne, it is ỹ greatest amōg yearbes, and it is a tree: so ỹ the birddes of the ayer come & bylde in the braunches of it.

C Another similitude said he to them. The kyngdō of heauē is lyke vnto leuē whiche a woman taketh & hydethe in .iii. peckes of meele, tyll all be leuened.

Mar.iiii.c All these thinges spake Jesus vnto thee people by similitudes, & wyth oute symylytudes spake he nothynge to them, to fulfil ỹ which was spoken by the Prophete sayPsal.xxviii.a ing: * I wyll open my mouth in symylytudes, & wyl speake fozth thynges whych haue bene kept secrete from the begynnynge of the wozlde. +

+ Then sent Jesus the people awaye, & came home. And hys dyscyples came vnto him, saying: declare vnto vs ỹ symylitude of the tares of the feld. Then answered he & sayd to thē: He that soweth the good seed is ỹ sonne of mā. And the feld is ỹ wozld. Tares are expōded And the chyldren of the kingdom, they are the good seed. And ỹ tares are the childrē of the wicked. And the enemie that soweth them, is the deuil. The harueste is the ende of the wozld. And the repers be ỹ Angels. Foz euen as the tares ar gathered & brent in the fyre: so shall it be in the ende of thys wozld. * The sonne of mā shal send fozth his Angels, and thei shal gather out of his kingdom all thynges that offende, and thē whych do iniquite, & shall cast them into a furnes of fire. There shalbe wayling and gnasching of teth. * Then shal the iust men shine as bright as the sonne in the kingdō of they? father. Whosoeuer hath eares to heare, let him heare. + Apoc.xxiii.f

+ Agayne the kyngdom of heauen is lyke vnto treasure hydde in the felde, ỹ whiche a man fyndeth and hydeth: and foz ioy thereof goeth and selleth al that he hath, & byeth that felde.

Againe ỹ kingdome of heauē is lyke to a marchaūt ỹ seketh good pearles, whiche whē he had foūd one precious pearle, wēte and solde al that he had, and bought it.

Agayne the kyngdom of heauē is lyke vnto a neet cast into the see, that gathereth of al kyndes of fishes: which whē it is full, men drawe to lande, & sytte and geather ỹ good in to vessels, and caste the bad awai. G So shall it be at the end of the wozld. The Aungels shall come oute and seuer ỹ bad from the good, & shal cast them into a furnes of fyre: ther shall be waylinge & gnaschynge of teth.

Jesus said vnto them. Vnderstād ye al these thinges? They sayd: ye Lozde. Then said he vnto thē: Therfoze euery * Scribe whych is taught vnto the kyngdome of heauē is lyke an housholder, whyche bringeth fozth, out of his treasure, thinges both newe and olde. +

And it came to pas whē Jesus had fynished these symylytudes, that he departed thence, & came into his owne countre, and taught thē in their synagoges, in so moche that they were astonyed & saide: whence cometh al thys wysdom & power vnto him? Is not this the Carpenters sonne? Is not his mother called Marye? and hys brethrē be called James and Joses and Symon and Judas? And are not his sisters al here wyth vs? Whence hath he all these thynges. And they were offended by hym. Thē Jesus sayde too them, a Prophete is not wythoute honoure, saue in hys owne countre, and amonge hys owne kynne. And he dyd not many myracles there, foz there vn beleefes sake.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

AT that tyme Herode the a*Tetrarcha heard of ꝑ fame of Jesu & said vnto his seruātes: this is John ꝑ Baptist. He is risen agayne from deeth and therfore are soch myracles wrought by hi. For Herode had taken John, & bound him & put him in prisō for Herodias sake, hys brother Philips wyfe. For John said vnto him: it is not lawful for ꝑ to haue her. And when he wolde haue put hym to deethe, he feared the people, because thei counted him as a Prophete.

But whē Herodes byrth date was come the daughter of Herodias daunsed before thē, & pleased Herode. Wherfore he promysed wt an othe, ꝑ he wold geue her whatsoeuer she wold aske. And she being informed of her mother before, sayde: geue me here John Baptistes heed in a platter. And the kig sorowed. Neuertheles for his othes sake, & for their sakes which sate also at ꝑ table, he cōmaūded it to be geuē her: & sente & beheaded John in ꝑ prisō, & his heed was brought in a platter & geuē to the damsell, & she brought it to her mother. And his disciples came & toke vp his bodye, & buryed it: and went and tolde Jesus.

Whē Jesus heard that, he departed thence by shyppe into a deserte place oute of the way. And when the people had herde therof, thei folowed him a fote out of theyr cities. And Jesus wēt forth & sawe moche people, and hys herte dyd melte vpon thē, & he healed of them those that were sycke. When euen was come, his disciples came to hi saying: this is a desert place, & ꝑ day is spēt: let the people depart, that they may go in to the townes, and bie them vytalles. But Jesus sayde to them: They haue no neade to go awaye. Geue ye them to eate. Then sayde they vnto him: we haue here but .v. loues and two fysshes. And he sayd: bryng thē hyther. And he cōmaūded ꝑ people to sit downe on the grasse, and toke the .v. loues & the .ii. fysshes, & loked vp to heauen and b*blessed, & brake & gaue ꝑ loues to his disciples, & the disciples gaue thē to the people. And thei did al eat, & were sufficed. And they gethered vp of the gobets ꝑ remayned .xii. baskets full. And they that ate, were in nombre aboute .v. M men, beside weimen and chyldren.

And streight way Jesus made his disciples enter into a shippe, and to go ouer before him, whyl he sēt the people away. And as sone as he had sent the people away, he went vp into a mountayne alone to praye. And whē night was come, he was there hi self alone. And the shyppe was now in the middes of the see, and was tost wt waues, for it was a cōtrari wīd. c* And in ꝑ fourth watch of the nyght Jesus came vnto them walking on the see. And whē his disciples saw hym walckynge on the see, they were troubled, saying: it is some spryte, & cryed out for feare. And streight way Jesus spake vnto them sayinge: be of good cheare, it is I, be not afrayed: John vi. mark. vi.

Peter answered him, and saide, Master: yf thou be he bid me to come vnto the on ꝑ water. And he saide, come. And whē Peter was come downe out of the ship, he walcked on the water, to go to Jesus. But whē he saw a myghty wynde, he was afrayed. And as he beganne to syncke, he cried saying: master saue me. And immediatlye Jesus stretched forth his hād, & caught him, & said to him: O thou of litel faith, wherfore didest thou dout? And assone as they were come into ꝑ shippe, the wynd ceased. Then they that were in the shyppe, came and worshypped hym, saynge: of a truth thou art the sonne of god. And when they were come ouer, they wente into the lande of Genazareth. And whē the men of ꝑ place had knowledge of hym, they sent out into all ꝑ countre rounde aboute, and brought vnto him all that were sycke, and besought him, that they myght touche the hemme of hys vesture onlye. And as many as touched it were made safe.

The. xv. Chapter. ✠

THen came to Jesus Scribes & Pharises from Jerusalem sayinge: why do thy disciples transgres the traditions of ꝑ elders? for they wesh not their handes when they eate bread. He ānswered & sayde vnto them: why do ye all so transgresse the commaundement of God, thorow youre tradycyons? For god commaunded saying: honoure thy father & mother & he that curseth father or mother shall suffer deeth. But ye saye, euery man shal saye to his father or mother: that which thou desyrest of me to helpe the with: is geuē god: so shall he not honoure hys father or hys mother. And thus haue ye made, that thee commaundemente of god is wythout effecte, through youre tradycyons. Ypocrytes, well prophesyed of you Esayas sayinge: This people draweth nye vnto me wythe their mouthes, & honoureth me wyth theyr lyppes, how be it their hertes are farre frō me: but in vayne they worshyppe me teachynge doctrynes, whych are nothyng but mens precepts.

And he called the people vnto hym, and sayd to them: heare & vnderstād, That whiche goeth into ꝑ mouth, defileth not ꝑ mā: but that whych commeth out of ꝑ mouthe, defyleth the man.

Then came his disciples, and sayde vnto him: Perceauest thou not, how that ꝑ Pharises are offended in hearinge this saying? He answered and sayde: a*al plantes whych my heauenly father hath not planted, shalbe plucked vp by the rotes. Let thē alone, they be ꝑ blynde leaders of the blynd. If the blynde leade the blynde, bothe shall fal into the dyche.

Then ānswered Peter & sayd to him: declare vnto vs this parable. Then sayd Jesus ar ye yet without vnderstanding? perceaue ye not, ꝑ whatsoeuer goeth in at ꝑ mouthe, descendeth downe into ꝑ bely, & is cast out into ꝑ draught? But those thynges whych procede out of the mouth, come frō ꝑ herte, & they defyle the man. For out of the herte come euil thoughtes, murder, breaking of wedlock whoredom, theeft, false wytnesse beryng, blaspheme. These are thee thynges whych defyle a man. But to eate wyth vnwasshen handes, defilethe not a man. ✠

✠ And Jesus wēt thence, & departed into the costes of Tire and Sidon. And behold a woma which was a Cananite came out of ꝑ same coostes, & cryed vnto hi sayinge: haue mercy on me lord thou sonne of Dauid, my daughter is pyteously vexed wt a deuil. And he gaue her neuer a word to answere. Then came to him his disciples, & besought hym saying: send her away, for she folowethe vs crying. He answered, & sayd: I am not sēt, but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. Then she came & worshypped him, saying: master help me. He answered & sayd: it is not good, to take thee chyldrens bred, & to cast it to b*dogges. She ānswered & sayd: truthe Lorde, neuertheles the dogges eate of the crōmes, whyche fall frō their masters table. Then Jesus answered & saide vnto her. O woma great is thy fayth, be it to thee, euen as thou desyrest. And her daughter was made whole euē at that same houre. ✠

Thē Jesus went awaye from thence, & came nie vnto ꝑ see of Galyle, & wēt vp in to a mountayne & sat downe ther. And moch people came vnto him, hauyng with them, halt, blind, domme, maimed, and other many: & cast thē downe at Jesus fete. And he healed thē, in so moche that the people wondred, to se the domme speake, thee maymed whole, ℣ halt to go, ⁊ the blynde to se. And they gloryfyed the God of Israel.

Then Jesus called his disciples to him, ⁊ sayd: I haue compassion on the people because they haue contynued wt me now .iii. dayes, ⁊ haue nought to eate: and I wyll not let thē departe fastynge, leste they perysshe in the waye: And his disciples sayde vnto him: whence shulde we gett so moche bredde in the wyldernes as shuld suffyse so greate a multitude? And Jesus said vnto thē: how many loues haue ye? And they sayd: seuen, and a fewe lytle fyshes. The .xxii. Chapter.

AND Jesus answered, & spake ỹ vnto them agayne, in symply tudes, sayinge. ✠ The kynge dome of heauen is lyke vnto a certayne kynge, whych maryed hys sonne, and sent forth hys seruaūtes, to call them that were byd to the wyddynge, and they wolde not come. Agayne he sente forthe other seruauntes, sayinge: Tell them whyche are bydden: beholde I haue prepared my dynner, myne oxen and my fatlynges are kylled, and all thynges are ready, come vnto the maryage. But they made lyght of it, & went their wayes: one to hys ferme place, another about hys marchaundyse, thee remnaunte toke hys seruauntes and intreated them vngodlye and slewe them. Whē the kynge hearde that, he was wroth, & sende forth his warryers and destroied these murtherers, and brent vp theyr cytte

Thē sayd he to hys seruaūtes: the wedding was prepared. But they which were bidden, were not worthy. Go ye therfore oute into the hye wayes, and as manye as ye fynde byd thē to the maryage. These seruauntes went out into the hie wayes, & gathered to gether as manye as they coulde fynde, both good & bad, and the weddinge was furnished wyth gestes. Then ỹ kyng came in, to byset the gestes, & spyed there a mā which had not on a a* weddynge garmente, & sayde vnto hym: frende, howe forwhy it that thou camest in hyther & hast not on a weddynge garment? And they toke hym * a peny. And he sayd vnto thē: whose is this Image & superscriptiō? They sayd vnto hym: Cesars. Then sayd he vnto thē: Geue ther fore to Cesar, ỹ which is Cesars: and geue vnto God, that which is Goddes. Whē they heard that, they marueled, & left hym and went theyr waye.

The same day ỹ Saduces came to him (which saye that ther is no resurrection) & asked him saying: Master, Moses bad, yf a man dye hauing no chyldrē, that the brother marye hys wyfe, & reyse vp sede vnto his brother. For in the resurrectiō they nether mary nor are maryed: but are as ỹ Angels in heauen.

D ✠ Whē the Pharises had heard, howe ỹ he had put ỹ Saduces to sylēce, they drewe together, & one of thē whych was a doctour of lawe, asked him a questiō tēptinge him & saying: Master which is ỹ chefe cōmaūdemēt in the lawe? Jesus sayd to him Loue the Lord thy god with al thine hert, withall thy soule, and wyth all thy mynde. This is the first and the chefe cōmaundement. And ther is another lyke vnto thys. Loue thyne neybour as thy self. In these two cōmaundementes hange all the lawe and the Prophetes.

Whyl the Pharyses were gathered together, Jesus asked thē saying: what thynke ye of Christ? Whose sonne is he? They sayde vnto hym, thee sonne of Dauid. He sayd vnto them: how then doth Dauid in spyryte, call hym Lord saying: The Lorde sayd to my lord, syt on my right hād * tyl I make thyne enemyes thy foote stole. The .xxv. Chapter.

Then the a* kingdõ of heuẽ shalbe likened vnto ten vyrgyns, which toke theyr lãpes & went to mete the bridegrõ: fyue of them were folish, and fyue were wyse. The folysshe toke theyr b* lampes, but toke none oyle with them. But the wyse toke oyle with them in theyr vessels with their lampes also. Whyle the bridegrõ taryed, al slombred & slepte. And euẽ at mydnight, there was a crye made: behold, the bridegrõ cometh, go out against hym. Then al those virgins arose, and prepared theyr lãpes. And the folysshe sayd to the wyse: geue vs of your oyle for our lãpes go out. But the wyse answered sayinge: * not so, lest there be not ynoughe for vs & you: but go rather to them that sell & bye for your selues. And whyle they went to bye, the bridegrõ came: & thei that were ready, went in wyth hym to the weddinge and the gate was shutte vp. Afterwardes came also ỹ other virgins saying: Mayster, master, opẽ to vs. But he answered & sayd, verely I say vnto you: I knowe not you. Watche therfore: for ye know nether the daye nor yet the houre, when the sonne of man shal come.

Lyke wyse as a certeyn mã (redy to take his iourney to a straũge coũtre, called his seruãtes & deliuered to them his goodes * And vnto one he gaue .v. talẽtes, to another .ii. & to another one: to euery mã after his abilitie & streight way departed. Thẽ he that had receaued ỹ .v. talẽtes, wẽt & bestowed thẽ and wanne other fyue talentes. Lykewyse he that receaued .ii. gayned other two But he that receaued ỹ one, went and digged a pyt in the erth, & hyd his masters money. After a long ceasion the Lord of those seruantes came & reckened with thẽ, Thẽ came he that had receaued fyue talentes, & brought other fyue talẽtes saying: master thou deliueredst vnto me fyue talentes: behold I haue wõne two other talentes with thẽ. And his mayster sayd vnto him, wel good seruãt & faythful. Thou hast bene faythful in lyttle, I wyl make ỹ ruler ouer moche, goo in into thy masters ioye.

Thẽ he which had receaued the one talente came & sayde: mayster, I consydered that thou wast an harde mã, which reapest wher thou sowedst not, & gatherest wher thou strawedst not, & was therfore afrayed & wẽt & hyd thy talent in the erth: behold, thou hast thyne owne. Hys master answered & sayd vnto hym: thou euyl seruaunte and slowthful, thou knewest that I reape wher I sowed not & gather where I strawed not: ỹ oughtest therfore to haue had my money to the chaungers, & then at my coming shuld I haue receaued mine owne wyth vauntage. Take therfore the talent frõ him, and geue it vnto hym which hath ten talentes. c* For vnto euery mã ỹ hath shalbe geuen, and he shal haue aboundance, and from hym that hath not, shalbe taken away, euen that he hathe. And caste ỹ vnprofytable seruaunt into c* vtter darknes: there shalbe weppynge and gnaſshinge of teethe.

Whẽ the sonne of mã cometh in hys glorye, & al the holy angels with him, then shal he syt vpon the seate of his glory, and before him shalbe gathered al natiõs. And he shal seperate thẽ one from another, as a shepeherde deuydeth the shepe frõ the goates. And he shal set the shepe on hys ryght hand, and the goates on the lyft. Thẽ shal the kynge saye to thẽ on his ryght hande: Come ye blessed childrẽ of my father, inherit ye the kyngedõ prepared for you from the beginninge of the worlde. For I was an hongred & ye gaue me meate. I thursted, & ye gaue me drinke. I was herbourlesse, & ye lodged me. I was naked and ye clothed me. I was sicke & ye visited me. I was in prisõ & ye came vnto me. Thẽ shal the righteous answere him saynge: mayster, whẽ saw we the an hongred, & feed ỹe or a thurst, and gaue the drinke? whẽ saw we the herbourlesse, and lodged the? or naked & clothed the? whẽ saw we the sycke or in prison & came vnto the? And ỹ kyng shal answere and saye vnto thẽ: verelye I say vnto you: in as moch as ye haue done it vnto one of the leest of these my brethrẽ, ye haue done it to me.

Thẽ shall the kynge saye vnto thẽ that shalbe on the lyft hand: depart from me ye cursed, into euerlasting fyre: which is prepared for the deuyl and his angels. For I was an hũgred, & ye gaue me no meate. I thursted, & ye gaue me no drincke. I was herbourles, & ye lodged me not. I was naked, & ye clothed me not. I was sycke & in prison, and ye visyted me not.

Then shal they also answere hym saynge: mayster, when saw we thee an hungred, or a thurst, or herbourlesse, or naked, or sycke, or in prison, and dyd not minister vnto the? Then shal he answere thẽ & saye Verely I saye vnto you in as moch as ye dyd it not to one of thee leeste of these, ye dyd it not to me. He answered & sayde: he ȳ depeth his hāde wt me in ȳ dishe, the same shal betray me. * The sonne of man goeth as it is wrytte of hym: but wo be to the mā, by whō the sonne of mā shalbe betrayed. The cheke Prestes & the elders, & all the coūcel, sought false witnes against Jesus for to put him to death, but foūde none: in so moch that whē many false witnesses ca me, yet foūd they none. At ȳ last came two false witnesses, & sayd: This felowe sayd: I can destroye the tēple of God, & bylde it agayne in. iii. dayes. And the cheke Preste arose, & said to hym: ānswerest thou nothinge? How is it ȳ these beare witnes agaynst the? But Jesus helde his peace. And ȳ cheke preste answered, & sayd to hym: I charge the in the name of the lyuing God, ȳ thou tell vs, whether thou be Christ the sōne of God. Jesus sayd to hym: thou haste sayd. ¶ Christ is delyuered vnto Pilate. Judas hangeth him self. Christ is crucified among theues. He dyeth and is buryed. Watchmen kepe the grane.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

When the morning was come al the cheke prestes & ȳ elders of the people held a counsayl agaynst Jesus, to put him to death, and brought him bōūd and delyuered hym vnto Pontius Pilate the debyte.

Mar. xv. a Luke. xxiii. a Joh. xviii. a

Thē whē Judas which betrayed him, sawe that he was cōdempned, he repented him self, & brought agayne the. xxx. plates of syluer to the cheke Prestes & elders sayinge: I haue synned betrayinge the innocent bloud. And they sayd: what is that to vs? See thou to that. And he cast downe ȳ syluer plates in the tēple & departed, & wēt and hounge hym selfe.

And the cheke prestes toke ȳ syluer plates & sayd: it is not lawfull for to putt thē into ȳ treasure, because it is ȳ pryce of blode. And thei toke counsel, & bought wt thē a potters feld to bury straūgers in. Wher fore ȳ felde is called the feld of bloud, vntyl thys day. Thē was fulfylled, ȳ whych was spoken by Jeremy the Prophet saying: & they toke .xxx. syluer plates, the prise of him ꝑ was valued whō they bought of the childrē of Israel, & they gaue thē for ꝑ potters feld, as the Lord appoynted me. * Jesus stode before ꝟ debite: & ꝑ debite asked him saying: art ꝑ the king of ꝑ Jewes Jesus sayde vnto him: Thou sayest. And whē he was accused of ꝑ cheke prestes & elders, he ānswered nothig. Thē sayd Pilate vnto him: hearest thou not, how many thinges they laye against the? And he ānswered him oncuer a word: in so moch that the debite maruepled greatlye.

Mar. xv. c. luk. xxiii. a. Joh. xviii.

At that feaste, the debyte was wonte to delyuer vnto the people a prisonner, whō they wold desyer. He had thē a notable prisonner called Barrabas. And when they were gathered together, Pilate sayd vnto thē: * whether wyl ye that I gene loose vnto you: Barrabas or Jesus which is called Christe? For he knewe well, that for enuye they had delyuered hym.

Mat. xv. a Joh. xviii. g

Whē he was sett downe to gene iudgemēt his wyfe sente to hym sayinge: haue ꝑ nothing to do with ꝑ iuste mā. For I haue suffred many thinges this daye in a dreame about hym. But ꝑ chefe prestes & the elders had persuaded ꝑ people, ꝑ they shuld aske Barrabas, & shulde destroye Jesus.

Thē the debyte answered & sayd vnto thē whether of the twayne wyl ye ꝑ I let loose vnto you? And they said, Barrabas. Pilate sayd vnto thē: what shal I do thē with Jesus which is called christe? They al said to him: let hym be crucyfied. Thē sayd ꝑ debite: what euel hath he done? & they cried ꝑ more sayēg: let hi be crucified. Whē Pilate sawe ꝑ he preuayled nothig, but ꝑ more busynes was made, he toke water & washed hys hādes before the people sayinge:

Dys iudge rōfessen hi to be. mat

I am innocent of the bloud of thys iuste person, & ꝑ ye shal se. Thē answered al the people & sayd: his bloud be on vs, and on our chyldren. Then let he Barrabas loose vnto them, & scourged Jesus, & delyuered hym to be crucified.

Then ꝑ soudiours of ꝑ debite toke Jesus vnto ꝑ comē hal, & gathered vnto hi al the cōpany. And thei stripped him and put on hym a purpil roobe, & platted a crowne of thornes & put vpō hys head, & a rede in hys right hād: & bowed their knees before hym & mocked hym, sayinge: hayle kyng of the Jewes: & spytted vpō hym, and toke ꝑ rede and smote him on the head.

And when they had mocked hym, they B toke the roobe of him agayne, & putte hys owne rayment on hym, & led hym away to crucifye hym. And as they came oute, they foūd a mā of Cyren, named Simon: hym they cōpelled to beare hys crosse. And whē they came vnto the place, called Golgotha (ꝑ is to saye, a place of dead mens sculles) they gaue him vyneger to drincke medled wyth gall. And when he had tasted therof he wolde not drincke.

When they had crucifyed hi, they parted his garmentes, & dyd cast lottes: to fulfyl that was spokē by ꝑ prophet. * They deuided my garmētes amōg thē, & vpō my vesture dyd cast lottes. And they sate & watched him ther & they set vp ouer his head ꝑ cause of his deeth writtē. This is Jesus ꝑ king of ꝑ Jewes. * And ther were two theues crucifyed with hym, one on ꝑ right hād C and another on the lyfte.

They ꝑ passed by, reuyled him, waggig their heades & sayinge: ꝑ that destroyest ꝑ tēple of god & byldest it in .iii. dayes, saue thy self. Yf thou be ꝑ sonne of God, come downe frō the crosse. Lykewyse also ꝑ hye prestes mocking him wyth the Scribes & elders sayd: He saued other, hym self he cā not saue. Yf he be the kyng of Israel: lette hym nowe come downe frō the crosse, & we wyl beleue hym. He trusted in god, let him delyuer hym now, yf he wyl haue him: for he sayd, I am the sonne of God. That same also the theues which were crucified w hym, cast in hys teeth.

Frō the syxte houre was ther derckenes ouer all ꝑ land vnto the ninth houre. And about the ninth houre Jesus cryed with a lowde voyce, sayinge: Eli Eli lama asabathani. That is to saye: * my God, my God why hast thou forsaken me? Some of the that stode ther, when they heard that, sayd This mā calleth for Helias. And streyght waye one of thē rāne & toke a sponge & filled it ful of vineger & put it on a rede, and gaue hym to drinke. Other sayd, let be: let vs se whether Helyas wyl come & delyuer hym. Jesus cryed agayne & a loude voyce and yelded vp the goost.

¶ The office of Iohn the Baptist. The Baptyme of Christ his fastinge, his preachinge, and the callinge of Peter, Andrew, Iames & Iohn. Christ healeth ỹ mā wyth the vncleane spyrite, helpeth Peters mother in lawe, and cleanseth the leper.

The fyrst Chapter.

THe begynning of the Gospel of Iesu Christe the sonne of God, as it is writtē in ỹ Pro-

Esay.xl.a che shal prepare thy waye before the. The voyce of a cryer in the wyldernes: *prepare ye the waye of the Lorde, make hys pathes streyght. Iohn dyd Baptyse in the wyldernes, & preache the baptyme of repētaunce, for the remission of synnes. And al that land of Iurie & they of Ierusalē, wēt oute vnto hym, and were all Baptysed of hym in the ryuer Iordan, confessing their synnes.

John was clothed wyth camelles heyre and with a gerdel of a skyn about his loynes. And he dyd eate a*locustes & wylde hony, & preached saying: a stronger then I cōmeth after me, whose shoo latchet (I am not worthye to stoupe downe) & vnlose. I haue baptised you with water: but he shal baptyse you with the holy ghost.

And it came to passe in those daies, that Iesus came frō Nazareth, a cytye of Galile: and was Baptised of Iohn in Iordan. And assone as he was come out of ỹ water b*Iohn sawe heauē open, & the holi goost descending vpō him, like a doue. And ther came a voyce frō heuē. Thou art my derē sonne in whom I delyte.

And immediatly the spyrite draue hym into wildernes: & he was ther in the wildernes. xl. dayes, & was tēpted of Satā, and was with wilde beastes. And the angelles ministred vnto him. After Iohn was take Iesus came into Galile, preaching ỹ Gospel of the kingdō of God, & saying: ỹ time is come, & the kingdō of god is at hand, repent & beleue the Gospell.

As he walked by ỹ see of Galile, he sawe Simō & Andrew his brother, casting nettes into the see for they were fyshers. And Iesus sayd vnto thē: folowe me, & I wyll make you fyshers of men. And streyghte waye, they forsoke theyr nettes & folowed him. And whē he had gone a lyttel further thence, he sawe Iames the sōne of Zebede & John hys brother, euen as they were in the shyp mendinge their nettes. And anone he called thē. And they lefte their father Zebede in the shyp with his hyred seruaūtes and went theyr waye after hym.

And they entred into Capernaum: and streyght way on the Saboth dayes, he entred into the synagoge & taught. And they marueled at hys learnyng. For he taught thē as one that had power wyth hym, and not as the Scribes.

And ther was in their Synagoge a mā vexed wt an vncleane spyrite, & cried saying let be, what haue we to do with ỹ thou Iesus of Nazareth? Arte ỹ come to destroye vs? I know the what thou arte, euen that holy of god. And Iesus rebuked hi saying hold thy peace & come out of hym. And the vncleane spirit tare him & cried with a loud voyce, & came oute of hym. And they were al amased, in so moch that they demaūded one of another amōg them selues saying: what thing is this? *what newe doctrine is this? For he cōmaūdeth ỹ foule spirites with power, & they obeye hym. And imme diatly hys fame spred abrode throughout al the region borderinge on Galile.

And forth with, as sone as they were come out of the Synagoge, they entred into the house of Symon & Andrew, with Iames & John. And Symōs mother in law laye sycke of a feuer. And anone they told him of her. And he came & toke her by the hand & lyft her vp: & the feuer forsoke hyr by & by: & she ministred vnto thē. And at euē whē ỹ sunne was downe, they brought to him al that were diseased, & thē that were possessed wyth deuils. And all the cytye gathered together at ỹ doze, & he healed many ỹ were sicke of diuers deseases. & And he cast out many deuyls, & suffred not the deuyls to speake, because they knew hym.

And in the morning very erly, Iesus arose & wēt out into a solitary place, & there prayed. And Simō & they that were wyth him folowed after him. And whē they had found him, they sayd vnto him: al mē seke for the. And he sayd vnto thē: let vs go in to the next townes, ỹ I maye preache ther also: for truly I came out for ỹ purpose. And he preched in their synagoges, throughout al Galile, & cast the deuils out.

*And ther came a leper to hi, besechinge

And Iesus had cōpassion on hym, & put forth his hād, touched him, & said to him I wyll, be thou clene. And as sone as he had spokē, immediatly ỹ leprosy departed frō him, & sent him awaye forth wt & sayd vnto him: See ỹ say nothing to any mā: but get the hence, & shewe thy self to the Prest, & offer for thy clensinge, those thinges whych Moses cōmaūded, for a testimoniall vnto thē. But he assone as he was departed) begā to tel many thinges, & to publish ỹ dede: in so moch ỹ Iesus could nomoze openly entre into ỹ citte but was without in desert places. And there were certayn of ỹ Scribes sytting ther, & reasoning in their hertes: how doth this felow so blaspheme? who can forgeue synnes, but God only? And immediatlye when Iesus perceaued in his spyrite ỹ thei so reasoned in thē selues he sayd vnto thē: why thinke ye soch thinges in your hertes? Whether is it easier to saye to the sycke of the palsye, thy synnes are forgeuen the: or to saye, aryse take vp thy bed, & walke? * That ye maye

And by & by he arose, toke vp the bed, & wēt forth before thē al: in so moch that they were al amased, and glorysyed God sayinge: we neuer sawe it on thys fassyon.

And he wēt agayne vnto the see, & al ỹ people resorted vnto hym, & he taughte thē. And as Iesus passed by, he sawe Leui the sonne of Alpheus sytt at the receyte of costume & sayd vnto hym: folow me. And he arose & folowed him. & And it came to passe, as Iesus sate at meat in his

And whē ỹ Scribes & phariseis sawe hi eat wt publicās & synners, they sayd vnto hys disciples: how is it, ỹ he eateth & drinketh wt publicās & synners? Whē Iesus heard

And the disciples of John & the Phariseis did faste: & therfore came & said vnto him. Why do the disciples of Iohn & of the Phariseis fast, & thy disciples fast not. And Iesus sayd vnto them: can the childre of a wedding fast, whiles the bryd degrō is with thē. As long as they haue the bryd degrō with them, they cānot fast. But the dayes wyl come when the bryde grom shalbe taken frō them & then shal they a*faste in those dayes.

Also noma so'weth a pece of new cloth vnto an olde garmēt, for then taketh he away ỹ new pece frō the olde, & so is the rēt worse. And ꝑ Pharises sayde vnto him: beholde, wy do they on ꝑ Sabboth dayes ꝑ wyche is not lawful? And he sayde to thē: haue ye neuer rede what Dauid did, whē he had nede, & was an hōgred bothe he & they ꝑ were wt him? How he wēt into the house of god, in ꝑ dayes of Abiathar ꝑ hie prieste, & did eate the halowed loaues, which is not lawful to eate, but for the Prestes only: & gaue also to thē which were with him? And he sayd to them the Sabboth was made for man, & not man for ꝑ Sabboth. Wherfore ꝑ sonne of man is Lord euen of the Sabboth day.

And he entred againe into ꝑ synagoge, & ther was a mā ther which had a widdered hād. And they watched him to se, whether he wold heale hym on the Sabboth daye, ꝑ they might accuse hym. And he sayde vnto the man which had the widdered hād: arise & stād in ꝑ middes. And he said to thē: whether is it lawful to do a good dede on the sabboth dayes, or an euyl? to saue life, or kil? But they helde their peace. And he loked rounde about on thē angerly mourning on the blindnes of their hertes, & said to the mā: stretch forth thine hād. And he stretched it out. And hys hand was restored, euen as whole as the other.

And the Pharises departed, & streight way gathered a counsel, wt thē ꝑ belōged to Herode, against hi ꝑ thei might destroy hi. And Jesus auoyded wt his disciples to ꝑ see. And he begā agayn to teach by the see side. And ther gathered togeather vnto hym moch people, so greatly ꝑ he entred into a ship, & sate in ye see, & al the people was by the see side on the shoore. And he taught thē many thinges in similitudes and sayd vnto thē in his doctrine. Herkē to: behold, ther went out a sower to sowe. And when he was alone, they ꝑ were about him wt the. xii. asked him of ꝑ similitude. And he said vnto thē. To a* you is it geuē to know ꝑ mistery of the kingdō of god. But vnto thē that are wout shal all thinges be done in similitudes: ꝑ whē they se, they shal se, & not discerne: & whē thei heare, thei shal heare, & not vnderstād: lest at any tyme they shuld tourne, & their sinnes shuld be forgeuen thē. D And ther arose a great storme of wind & dasshed the waues into the ship, so ỹ it was ful. And he was in the sterne a slepe on a pelowe. And they awoke him, & said to him: Mayster carest thou not that we perysshe? And he rose vp, & rebuked the wynd, & sayd vnto the see: peace & be styl. And the wynd alayed, & there followed a great calme. And he sayd vnto the: why are ye so fearful? How is it ỹ ye haue no fayth? And they feared exceedingly, & sayde one to another: what fellowe is this? For both wynd and see obeye hym.

The .v. Chapter. ✠

The declareth the possessed frō ỹ vncleane spyrit, the womā from the bloody yssue, and rayseth the captaynes daughter.

A ND they came ouer to the other syde of the see into ỹ cōtre of the Gaderenites. And whē he was come out of the ship, ther met him out of the graues a man possessed of an vncleane spyryte, which had his abyding amōg the graues. And no man could bind him: no not with chaynes, because ỹ whē he was oftē bound with fetters and chaynes, he plucked the chaynes a sōdre, & brake the fetters in peces. Nether could any mā tame him. And alwayes both night & daye he cryed in the moūtaynes & in ỹ graues & bet him self with stones. When he had spyed Jesus a farre of, he rāe & worshipped him, & cryed with a loude voyce and sayd: what haue J to do with the Jesus the sonne of the moost hiest God? I requyre the in the name of god that thou tormente me not. For he had sayde vnto hym: come out of the mā thou foule spyryte. And he asked hym: what is thy name? & he answered saying: my name is Legion, for we are many. And he prayed him instantly, that he wold not send them awaye out of the countre.

B And ther was ther nye vnto ỹ moūtaynes a great heerd of swyne feedinge, & all the deuyls besought him sayinge: sende vs into the heerd of swine, ỹ we may enter into thē. And anone Jesus gaue thē leaue. And the vncleane spyrytes went out & entred into ỹ swine. And the heerd started, & ran hedling into ỹ see. (They were about .ii.m. swyne,) & they were drowned in ỹ see. And the swyne heerdes fled & told it in the cītie & in the cōtre. And thei came out for to se what hadde happened: & came to Jesus, & sawe him ỹ was vexed wt the fend & had the Legiō, syt, both clothed & in his right vnnd, & were afrayed. And they ỹ sawit told them, how it had happened to hi that was possessed wthe deuyl: & also of the swyne. * And they began to praye him, that he wolde departe frō their coostes. Luke viij. marcha.

F And whē he was come into ỹ ship, he ỹ had the deuil, prayed him that he might be with him. Howbeit Jesus wold not suffer hi, but sayd vnto him: go home into thyne owne house & to thy frendes, & shewe thē what great thinges ỹ Lord hath done vnto the, & how he had cōpassion on the. And he departed, & began to publisshe in the ten cities, what great thinges Jesus had done vnto him C and all men dyd mervayle.

And whē Jesus was come ouer again by ship vnto the other syde, moch people gathered to hi, & he was nie vnto ỹ see. * Matth. ix. Luke viij. And behold, ther came one of ỹ rulers of ỹ synagoge, whose name was Jairus: & whē he saw hi, he fel downe at his fete, & besought hi greatly saying: my daughter lieth at point of death, J wold ỹ woldest come & lay thi hād on her ỹ she might be safe & liue. And he wēt with hym, & moch people folowed hi, & thrōged him.

And ther was a certayn womā, which was diseased of an yssue of bloude .xii. yeres, & had suffred many thinges of many physycions, & had spent al ỹ she had, & felt none amēdemēt at al, but were dowe & worse. Whē she had heard of Jesus she came into ỹ preace behind him, & touched his garmēt. For she thoughte: yf J may but touch his clothes, J shalbe whole. And streyght waye her fountayne of bloud was dryed vp, & she felt in her body, that she was healed of the plage.

And Jesus immediatly felt in hi self, ỹ vertue ỹ went out of hym, & turned hym rounde

rovnd about in ỹ preace, & sayd: who touched my clothes? And his disciples sayd vnto him: seyst ỹ the people thrust the, & yet askest, who dyd touch me? And he loked rovnd about, for to se her ỹ had done ỹ thig. The womā feared & trēbled (for she knew what was done wt in her) & she came & fel doune before hi, & tolde hi the truth of every thig. And he sayde to her: Daughter thy fayth hath made ỹ whole: go in peace, & be whole of thy plage.

D * Whyl he yet spake, ther came frō the Matth. ix. Luke viij. ruler of the Synagoges house, certayne whych sayde: thy daughter is dede: why disease ỹ the Master eny further? Assone as Jesus herd that word spokē, he said vnto the ruler of the Synagoge: be not afraied only be leue. And he suffred no mā to folow hi more thē peter & James & John ỹ brother of James. * And Matth. ix. Luke viij. he came vnto ỹ house of the ruler of the synagoge, & saw the wōdrig: & them that wept & wailed greatly, & wēt in & sayde vnto thē: why make ye this a do & wepe. The maidē is not dede, but slepeth. And they laught hi to scorne. Thē he put thē al out & toke the father & ỹ mother of ỹ maidē, & thē that were wt hi, & entred in whr the maidē lay, & toke the maidē by the hād, & said vnto hir: Tabitha, cumi: which is by interpretacyō: maidē J saie vnto the, aryse. And streyght the maydē arose, & went on her fete. For she was of the age of twelue yeres. And thei were astonied at it out of measure. And he charged thē straytly that no mā shuld know of it, & commaunded to geue her meate.

A Matth. xiij. Luke iiij. ND he departed thence, & came into his owne cōtre, & his disciples folowed him. And whē ỹ Sabothe daye was come, he begā to teach in the synagoge. And many that herd hi were astonied, & sayd: from whence hath he these thinges? & what wysdom is this that is geuē vnto hi? & soch vertues that are wrought by his hādes? Is not this ỹ carpenter Maryes sonne? & the brother of James & Joses & of Juda & Simōd & are not his sisters here wt vs? And they were offended by him. And Jesus sayde vnto them: a prophet is not despised but in his owne countre, & among his owne kynne, & amōge them that are of the same household. And he could there shewe no myracles, but layd his hādes vpon a fewe sicke foulcke and healed them. & he marueyled at theyr vnbeleefe. F

B And he went about by the tounes that lay on every syde, teachinge. And he called the twelue, & began to sēde them two & two, & gaue them power ouer vncleane spyrytes. And cōmaūded them, that they shuld take nothing vnto their iorney saue * a rode onli nether scrip, nether bred nether mony in their pourses, but shuld be shood wt sandals. And that thei shuld not put on two cootes. And he sayd vnto the: whersoeuer ye entre into an house, there abyde til ye departe thence. And whosoeuer shal not receaue you nor heare you, whē ye depart thēce, shake of the dust ỹ is vnder your fete, for a wytnesse vnto the. J say verely vnto you, it shalbe easier for sodō & Gomor at ỹ daye of iudgmēt, thē for ỹ cītie. And thei wēt out & preached, ỹ they shuld repēt: & they cast out many deuils. And they anoited many that were sycke with oile, & healed them.

And kynge Herode herde of hym (for his name was spreed abroade) and sayde: John Baptiste is risen agayne from deeth, & therfore myracles are wrought by him. Other sayd it is Helyas: & some sayd: it is a prophete or as one of the prophetes. But when Herode hard of hym, C he sayde: it is John whō J beheaded, he is risen from deeth agayne.

✠ For Herode him selfe had sent forth & had taken John, & bound him & caste hi into prison for Herodias sake, which was his brother philyppes wife: For he had maried her. John said vnto Herode It is not lawful for the to haue thi brothers wife. Herodias layd wait for him, & wolde haue killed him, but she coulde not. For Herode feared John, knowyng that he was a iust mā & an holy: & gaue hi reuerence: and when he hard hym, he dyd many thinges, & heard him gladly.

But

But when a conuenyent day was come: Herode on his birth day made a supper to ꝯ lordes, captaines & chefe estates of Galyle. And immediatly ꝯ kig sent the hāgmā & cōmaūded hys heed to be brought in. And he wente & beheeded him in the prysō & brought his heed in a charger, & gaue it to the maiden and the maiden gaue it to her mother. And the Apostles gaddered thē selues together to Jesus, & told hi al thiges, both what they had done, & what they had taught. And he said vnto them * come a part into ꝯ wildernes, & rest a while. And his raimēt did shine, & was made verī white, euē as snowe: so whyte as no fuller can make vpon the erth. And there apered vnto them Helias w̄ Moses: & thei talked w̄ Jesu. And Peter answered and sayd to Jesu: Master here is good beynge for vs, let vs make.iij. tabernacles, one for ỹ, one for Moses, & one for Helias. And yet he wyst not what he sayde: for they were afrayde. And ther was a cloude that shadowed thē. And a voyce came oute of the cloude sayinge: * Thys is my deare sone, heare him. He answered & saide vnto thē: * Helias verely shal first come & restore al thinges. And al so the sonne of man as it is written, shal suffre manye thynges and shalbe set at nought. Moreouer I say vn to you that Helias is come, and they haue done vnto him whatsoeuer pleased thē, as it is wrytten of hym.

mark.ix.b Mat.xvii.a Luke.ix.c

And he came to his disciples & saw moch people about them, and the Scribes disputynge with them. And streight way al ỹ people whē they beheld hym, were amased and rā to hym & saluted him. And he sayde vnto the Scribes: what dispute ye wyth them? ✠ * And one of ỹ cōpanye answered & sayd: Master I haue brought my sonne vnto the, which hath a domme spzyte. And whensoeuer he taketh him, he teareth hym, and he foameth, and gnasheth wyth his tethe, and pyneth away. And I spake to thy disciples that they shuld caste hym out, & they coulde not.

He answered hym and sayde: O generacīō without faith, how longe shall I be w̄ you? How longe shall I suffre you? Bzinge hym vnto me. And they broughte hym vnto hym. And assone as the spzete sawe hym, he tare him. And he fell downe on the grounde walowynge and fomming. And he asked his father how long is it a goo, sens thys hath happened hym? And he sayde, of a chylde: and ofte tymes castethe him in to the fyre, and also into the water, to destroy him. But yf thou canst do eny thyng, haue mercy on vs, and helpe vs. And Jesus sayde vnto hym: yf thou couldest beleue, al thinges are possyble to hym that beleuith. And streyght way the father of the chyld cryed wyth teares sayinge: Lorde I beleue, help myne vnbelefe.

But they wyste not what ỹ saying meāt, & were afrayed to aske him. And he came to Capernaum. And whē he was come to hou se, he axed them: what was it ỹ ye disputed bitwene you by ỹ way? And they held their peace: for by the waye they reasoned amōge thē selues, who shuld be the chefest. * And he sate downe & called the twelue vnto him & said to thē, yf eny man desire to be fyrste, the same shalbe last of all, & seruaunte vn to all. And he toke a chylde, & set him in the middes of thē, & toke him in his armes and sayd vnto them: whosoeuer receaueth enye soche a chylde in my name, receaueth me. And whosoeuer receaueth me, receueth not me, but him that sent me.

John answered hym saying: * Master, we saw one castyng out deuyls in thy name, whyche foloweth not vs & we forbade him because he folowethe vs not. But Je sus said forbid him not. For ther is no mā that shall do a myracle in my name, that cā lyghtely speake euyll of me. Whosoeuer is not against you, is on your part. And who soeuer shal geue you a cup of water to drin ke for my names sake, because ye belonge to Chryste, verely I saye vnto you, he shal not lose hys *reward. And whosoeuer shal offende one of these lytelons, that beleue in me, it were better for hym, that a mylstone were hanged aboute his necke, and that he were cast into thee see. Wherfore yf thy hā de offende the, cutt hym of. It is better for the, to enter into lyfe maymed, thē hauyng two handes go into hell, into fyre that ne uer shalbe quenched, where their wo̅me dy eth not, and thee fyre neuer goeth out. Like wyse yf thy fote offend the, cut hym of. For it is better for the to go halte into lyfe, then hauynge two fete to be caste into hell, into fire that neuer shalbe quenched: wher their wo̅me dyethe not, and thee fyre neuer go eth oute. Euery man therfore shalbe salted wyth fyre. And euery sacrifyce shalbe seasoned w̄ salt. Salt is good. But yf ỹ salt be vn sauery, what shall ye salt therw̄? Se that ye haue salt in your selues: & haue peace a mōge youre selues, one wyth another.

The.x. Chapter.

And he rose from thence and went into the costes of Iurye through the regyō that is be yond Iordan. And the people resorted vnto hym a fresche: & as he was wonte, he taught them agayne. And thee Pharyses came and asked hym a questyon: whether it were lawefull for a man to put away hys wyfe: to proue hym. And he answered & said vnto them: * what dyd Moyses byd you do? And they sayde Moses suffred to wryte a testymonyall of deuorsement, and to put her away. And Je sus answered and sayde vnto them: For ỹ hardnes of youre hertes he wrote this pre cepte vnto you. But at the fyrste creacyon God made them man and woman. * And for thys thynges sake shall man leue hys father and mother & bide by his wife and they twayne shalbe one flesshe. So then at they nowe not twayne but one flesh. Ther fore what God hathe coupled, let not man separate.

And in the house his disciples asked him agayne of that matter. And he sayde vnto them. Whosoeuer putteth a waye his wife & marryeth another, breaketh the wedlocke to herwarde. And yf a woma̅ forsake her hus band and be maryed to another: she cōmyt tethe aduoutrye. And they brought chyl dren to hym, that he shoulde touche them. And hys disceples rebuked thoose that brought them. When Jesus sawe that, he was displeased and sayde to them: Suf fre the chyldren to come vnto me, & forbyd thē not. For of such is ỹ kingdom of God. Verelye I saye vnto you whosoeuer shall not receaue the kingdom of God as a chil de, he shal not enter therin. And he toke thē vp in his armes, & put his hādes vpō thē, and blessed them.

* And when he was come into the way, ther came one running and kneled to yim, & asked hi: good Master, what shal I do: that I maye enherett eternall lyfe? Jesus sayde to hym: why calleste thou me good? There is no man good but one, whyche is god. Thou knowest the cōmaūdementes: breake not matrymony: kyll not: steale not, bere no false wytnes: defraude no mā: ho noure thy father & mother. He answered & sayde to hym master al these I haue obser ued frō my youth. Jesus behold him, & had a fauour to hym & sayd vnto him: one thin ge is lackig vnto ỹ Go & sel al that thou hast, and geue to the poore & thou shalt ha ue treasure in heuen & come & folowe me, & take vp the crosse. But he was discumfor ted with that saying, & went away mourni ge, for he had greate possessions.

And Jesus looked round about, & sayd vnto his disciples: what an hard thig is it for thē ỹ haue ryches, to entre into the king dō of God. And his dysceples were asto nyed at hys wordes. But Jesus answered againe & said vnto thē: childzen how herde is it for thē, ỹ trust in rychesse, to entre in to the kyndom of God? It is easyer for a ca mel to go thorowe the eye of an nedle, then for a ryche man to entre into the kyngdom of god. And they were astonied out of mea sure, sayinge betwene thē selues: who then can be saued? Jesus loked vpō thē, & said: with men it is vnpossible, but not w̄ god: for wyth god al thynges are possyble.

And Peter beganne to say vnto him: Lo, we haue forsaken all, and haue folowed the. Jesus answered & sayde: Verely I say vnto you, ther is no mā that forsaketh hou se, or brethren, or systers, or father, or mo ther, or wyfe, other chyldren, or landes for my sake and the gospelles, whych shal not receaue an hundred foolde nowe in this li fe: houses and brethren, and systers, & mo thers, and chyldren, and landes with perse cutions: and in the worlde to come, eternal lyfe. Many ỹ are fyrst, shalbe last, & ỹ last, fyrst. And they were in the waye goyng vp to Jerusalem. And Jesus went before thē: and they were amased, & as they folowed, were afrayde.

And Jesus toke the.xii. agayne, & began to tel them what thynges shuld happē vn to him. * Beholde we go vp to Jerusalem, and the sonne of man shalbe deliuered vn to ỹ hie prestes and vnto the Scribes: and they shall condempne him to deethe, & shall delyuer him to the gentylles: and they shal mocke him, and scourge him & spytt vpon hym, and kyll hym. And the thyrde daye he shall ryse agayne.

And then James and John the sōnes of zebede came vnto him, saying: Master: we wold that thou shuldest do for vs whatso euer we desyre. He sayde vnto them: what wold ye I shuld do vnto you? They said to him: graunt vnto vs that we maye sit one on thy ryght hande, & the other on thy lyfte hād, in thy glory. But Jesus said vnto thē. Ye wot not what ye aske. Cā ye dryncke of the cup that I shal dryncke of, and be bap tised in the baptime that I shalbe baptised in? And they sayde vnto hym: that we can. Jesus sayde vnto them: ye shal dzincke of the cup that I shall dryncke of & be bapty sed w̄ the baptyme that I shalbe baptised in: but to sit on my ryght hand and on my lyfte hande is not myne to geue, but to thē for whom it is prepared.

* And when the.x. herd that, they begā to disdayne at James & John. But Jesus cal led them vnto him, & sayde to them: ye kno we ỹ they which seme to beare rule among the gentils, raigne as lordes ouer thē. And they that be greate amonge them, exercyse auctoryte ouer thē. So shal it not be amō ge you, but whosoeuer of you wilbe greate amōg you, shalbe your minister. And who soeuer wilbe chefe, shalbe seruaūt vnto al For cuē the sonne of mā came not to be mi nistred vnto: but to minister, & to geue his lyfe for the redemption of many.

And they came to Hiericho. * And as he wēt oute of Hiericho wyth his disciples, & a great nombre of people: Barthymeus ỹ sonne of Thimeus which was blynde, sate by the hye wayes syde beggynge. And whē he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he beganne to crye and to saye: Jesus thee sonne of Dauid, haue mercye on me. And many rebuked hym, that he shoulde holde hys peace. But he cryed thee moze a grea te deale, thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy on me. And Jesus stode styll, and commaū ded hym to be called. And they called thee blynde, sayinge vnto hym: Be yf good cō forte: ryse, he calleth the. And he threwe a way hys clooke, and rose and came to Je sus. And Jesus answered, & saide vnto hi: What wylt thou that I do vnto thee? The blynd

¶ The cōceptiō & byzth of John the baptist. The cōceptiō of Christ. The thankful songes of Mary and Zachary

The .i. Chapter.

THer was in the dayes of Herode the king of Jury a certayne prest named Zacharias, of ỹ course of Abia. And hys wife was of the daughters of Aarō: & her name was Elizabeth Both were perfecte before God, & walked in al the lawes & ordinaunces of the Lord, that noo man coulde fynde faute wyth them. And they had no chylde, because that Elizabeth was barren & both were well stryken in age.

And it came to passe, as he executed ỹ Prestes office before God, as his course came (accordīg to the custume of ỹ Prestes office) hys lot was to burne incense And he went into the tēple of the lorde. & the whole multitude of the people were without in prayer whyle the incense was a burninge. And there appered vnto hym an Angel of the Lorde standinge on the right syde of the aulter of incense. And when Zacharias sawe hym, he was abashed, & feare came on hym.

And the angel sayde vnto hym: feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is heard: * And thy wyfe Elizabeth shal beare thee a sonne, & thou shalt cal his name John, & thou shalt haue ioye & gladnes, & many shall reioyce at his byzth. For he shall be great in ỹ sight of the lord, & shal neither shalbe fylled w̄ ye holy goost, euē in hys mothers wombe: & many of the childzen of Israel shal he tourne to theyr Lozde god. And he shal go before hi in ye spzete & power of Helias, to tourne ye ✻hertes of the fathers to ye childzen, & ye vnbeleuers to the wysdom of the iuste men: to make the people redy for the Lozde.

To make ye childzen haue lyke an hart to god as Abzahā and the fathers had

And zacharias said vnto ye angel: wher by shal I knowe this? seig that I am old & my wyfe wel stryken in yeres. And the angell answered & said vnto him. I am Gabziel ye stand in the pzesens of God, & am sent to speake vnto the: & to shew the these glad tidynges. And behold ye shalt be dōme, & not be able to speake, vntyl ye tyme ye these thynges be perfozmed, because ye beleuest not my wozdes whyche shalbe fulfylled in their season.

And the people wayted for zacharias & meruepled ye he taried in the temple. And whē he came out, he could not speke vnto thē. Wherby they perceued ye he had sene some visiō in ye tēple. And he beckened vnto them, & remained speachles.

✠ And it fortuned, assone as ye tyme of his office was out, he departed home into his owne house. And after those dayes, his wife Elizabeth cōceued, & hyd her self fyue moneths sayig: This wise hath God dealt withe me in ye dates whē ✻he loked on me, to take frō me the rebuke ye I suffred a mōg mē. And in the syxt moneth the angel Gabziell was sente from god vnto a cytie of Galyle, named Nazareth, to a virgin spoused to a mā whose name was Joseph, of ye house of David, & ye virgins name was Mary. And ye angel wēt in vnto her, & said: ✻Hayle ful of grace, the Lozde is w̄ the: blessed arte thou amonge wemen.

Whē she sawe hi she was abasshed at his saying: & cast in her mynd what maner of salutacīō that shuld be. And ye angel said vnto her: feare not Mary: for ye hast found grace with God. Lo, ye shalt conceaue in thy wombe, & shalt beare a sōne, & shalt cal his name Jesus. He shal be greate, & shalbe called ye sonne of the hiest. And ye lozd god shall geue vnto hi the seate, of his father David, & he shall raygne ouer ye house of Jacob for euer, & of hys kyngdom shalbe none ende.

Thē sayd Mary vnto the angel: how shal this be, seyng I knowe not a man? And the angel answered & said vnto her The holy goost shal come vpō the, & the power of the hyest shal ouershadow the. ‡ Therfore also ye holy thing which shal be borne, shall be called ye sonne of God. Luce.i.a

And behold thy cosen Elizabeth she hath also conceaued a sonne in her age. And this is her syxte moneth, thoughe she be called barren: for with god can nothing be vnpossible. And Mary sayd: behold the handmayden of the Lozd, be it vnto me euen as thou hast said. ✠ And the Angel departed from her.

✠ And Mary arose in those dayes, & wēt into the mountayns with hast, into a cytie of Jury, & entred into thee house of zachary, & saluted Elizabeth. And it fortuned, as Elizabeth heard the salutīō of Mary, the babe sprōge in her belly. And Elizabeth was fylled wyth ye holy goost & cryed w̄ a loude voyce, & said: Blessed art thou amonge the wemen & blessed is the frute of thy wombe. And whēce happeneth this to me that the mother of my Lozd shuld come to me? For lo, as soone as ye voice of thy salutatiō soūded in myne eares, ye babe sprange in my belly for ioye. And blessed art ye that beleuedst: for those thiges shalbe pformed which were tolde ye frō the Lozd. And Mary sayde:

My soule magnifieth the Lozd. And my spzet reioyseth in god my sauiour. ✠ For he hath loked on the poore degre of hys hādmaydē. Behold now from hence forth shal al generatiōs call me blessed For he ye is mighti hath done to me grete thinges, & holy is hys name. And hys mercy on thē ye feare him throw out al generatiōs. He sheweth stregth ✻ with his arme, he scatereth thē ye ar proude in the ymagination of their hertes. He putteth down ye mighty frō their seates, & exalteth thē of low degre. He filleth the hōgry w̄ good thinges: & sendeth away ye ryche empty. He remembreth mercy: & helpeth hys seruaunt Israell.

‡ Euē as he promysed to our fathers Abzahā & to hys sede for euer. And Mary abode wyth her about a.iii. moneths and returned agayne to her owne house

Genesis xvii. f

✠ Elizabeths tyme was come that she shuld be delyuered and she brought forth a sonne. And her neighboures and kynsfolk and her cosins hearde tel how the Lord had shewed great mercy vpon her and they reioysed with her.

And it fortuned the eyght day, they came to circūcyse the child: and called hys name zacharyas, after ye name of his father. Howbeit his mother answered and sayde: not so, but he shalbe called John. And they said vnto her: There is none of thy kin, that is named w̄ this name. And they made sygnes to his father, howe he wold haue him called. And he asked for writyng tables & wrote saying: his name is John. And they merueiled al. And his mouth was opened immediatlye, & his tong also, & he spake lawding God. And feare came on al thē that dwelt nye vnto them. And also these sayinges were noised abrode throughout al ye hyl countre of Jurie & al they that herd thē laide thē vp in their hertes saying: What maner child shal this be? And the hand of ye Lozd was wyth hym.

And his father zacharias was filled w̄ the holy goost, & prophecyed saying.

Blessed be ye lozd god of Israel, for he hath ✻ visited & redemed his people. ✠ Matthe. 1.a

And it chaūced in those dayes: ye ther went out a cōmaūdement frō August the Emperour, ye al the worlde shuld be taxed. And thys taxinge was the first, & executed whē Syrenius was leftenaūt in Syria. And euery mā went vnto hys owne cytye too be taxed. And Joseph also ascended from Galile out of a citie called Nazareth, into Jury vnto the citie of Dauid whych is called Bethleem, because he was of the house & linage of Dauid, to be taxed w̄ Mary his spouled wife which was with child. A

And it fortuned whyl they were there her tyme was come ye she shuld be delyuered. And she broughte forth her ✻ first begotten sonne, & wrapped hym in swedlynge clothes, & layde hym in a manger, because ther was no rowme for thē with in the ynne.

And ther were in ye same regiō shepher des abiding in the feld & watching their flocke by night. And lo ye angel of ye lord stode harde by thē, & the brightenes of ye Lord shone roūd about thē, & they were sore afrayed. But the angell sayde vnto thē: Be not afrayed. For behold, I bringe you tidinges of great ioye, that shall come too all thee people: for vnto you is borne G borne this day in ỹ citie of Dauid, a saueour which is christ the lord. And take this for a sygne: ye shall fynd the childe swadled & laid in a māger. And streight way ther was wt the angell a multitude of heuenly souldyers, laudyng god and sayīg: Glory to god on hye, and* peace on the erth: & vnto men reioysyng.

And it fortinned, assone as the angels were gone away frō thē into heuē, the shepherdz said one to another: let vs go euē vnto Bethleem, & se this thinge ỹ is happened, which the lord hath shewed vn to vs. And they came wt hast and found Mary and Ioseph and the babe layd in a manger. And whē they had sene it, they published abrode ỹ sayīg which was told thē of ỹ child. And all ỹ herd it, wōdred at those thinges which were tolde thē of ỹ shepperdes. But Mary kept al those sayinges, & pōdered them in her hert. And ỹ shepherdes retourned, praising & lauding god for al ỹ they had herd & sene, euen as it was told vnto them.

And when the eyght daie was come that the childe shuld be circumcised, his name was called Iesus, which was named of ỹ Angel before he was cōceaued in the wombe.

Exodi xiii. And when the time of their purifycacīō (after the law of Moses) was come, they brought him to Ierusalem, to present him to the Lord (as it is written in ỹ lawe of the Lord: euery mā child ỹ first openeth thee *matrix, shalbe called holy to ỹ lord) & to offer (as it is sayd in the lawe of the lord) a payre of turtle doues or two ponge pigiōs. And behold there was a man in Hierusalem whose name was Simeon. And the same man was iust & feared god & longed for the consolacīō of Israel & the holy goost was in hi. And an āswere was geuen hi of ỹ holy goost, that he shuld not se deth, before he had sene the lords christ. And he came by inspyracyon into the temple.

And when ỹ father & mother brought in the child Iesus, to do for hi after thee custome of the lawe, then toke he him vp in his armes and said. Lord, now lettest Nunc dimittis. ỹ thy seruaūt depart in peace accordynge to thy promes. For myne eyes haue sene the saueour sent from the. Which ỹ hast prepared before the face of all people. A light to lighten the gentyles, and the glory of thy people Israel.

And his father & mother merueyled at those thynges whiche were spoken of him. And Simeon blessed them, & sayd vnto Mary his mother: behold, this childe shalbe ỹ fal and resurrection of many in Israel, & a signe which shalbe spoken againste. And moreouer *the swerd shal pearce thy soule, ỹ thoughtes *of many hertes may be opened.

And ther was a prophetisse, one Anna, the daughter of Phanuell of ỹ trybe of Aser: which was of a great age, & had lyued wt an husbād. vii. peres frō her byrginite. And she had ben a wedow about lxxiiii. score & iiii. yere, which wēt neuer out of the tēple, but serued god wt fasting & prayer vpght & day. And the same came forth that same houre, & praysed the lorde, & spake of him to al that loked for redempcyon in Hierusalem.

And assone as they had performed al thynges accordyng to the lawe of ỹ Lorde, thei returned īto Galile to their owne cytye Nazareth. And the child grewe and wexed strong in spyrite, and was fylled wyth wysdome, and the grace of god was wyth hym.

And his father & mother went to Ierusalem euery yere at the feste of ester. And when he was xii. yere old, they wēt vp to Ierusalem after the custome of ỹ feeste. And whē they had fulfilled ỹ dayes, as they returned home, ỹ childe Iesus boode still in Ierusalem vnknowing to his father & mother. For they supposed he had bene in the cōpany, & therfore came a dayes iorney & sought hym amōge theyr kynsfolke & acquaintaūce. And when they foūd hym not, they went back agayne to Ierusalem, & sought hi. And it fortuned after iii. dayes that they foūde hi in the temple, sytting in the middes of the doctours, both hearyng them and posynge them. And al that heard hym, merueiled at his wit and answeres.

And when they sawe him, they were astonied. And his mother said vnto him: sonne, why hast thou thus dealt wt vse? Beholde thy father & I, haue soughte ỹ, sorowenge. And he sayd vnto thē: howe is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must go aboute my fathers busines? And they vnderstode not ỹ sayinge ỹ he spake to thē. And he went wt them, & came to Nazareth, & was obediēt to them. But his mother kept al these thinges in her hert. And Iesus increased in wyldō & age & in fauour with God & man.

Thē cam ther publicās to be baptised, & said vnto him: Maister, what shall we do? And he said vnto thē, require no more thē ỹ which is apoynted vnto you.

And many other thinges in his exhortacīō preached he vnto the people.

The.iiii.Chapter.

IEsus then ful of the holye goost returnid from Jordã & was caried of thee spyrite into wildernesse, & was. xl. daies tẽpted of the deuyll. And in those daies ate he nothinge. And whẽ they were ended, he after ward hongred. And the deuil said vnto him, yf ꝑ be the sonne of god commaũd this stone that it be bredc. And Jesus ãswered him sayig: ✠ It is writẽ. mã shall not live by bred onely, but by euery word of God.

And the deuil toke hi into an hye mõtayne, and shewed him al the kyngdome of the world eũe in the twinckling of an eye. And the deuill sayde vnto hym: all this power wyl I geue the euery whit & the glorye of thẽ: for that is deliuered to me & to whosoeuer I wil, I geue it. If ꝑ therfore wylt worshyppe me, they shalbe al thyne, Jesus answered him & said: hence from me Satan. For it is wrytte. Thou shalt honoure the Lord thy God and hym only serue.

And he caryed him to Jerusalẽ, & sett him on a pynacle of the temple, & said vn to hym: Yf thou be the sonne of god cast thy selfe downe from hens. For it is writen, he shall geue his Angels charge ouer the to kepe the, & vn theyr hãdes they shal stay the vp that thou dashe not thy fote agaynst a stone. Jesus ãswered and sayde to him, it is sayd: ✠ ꝑ shalt not tẽpt the Lorde thy god. Allone as the deuyl had ended all hys temtacyons: he departed from hym for a season.

✠ And Jesus retourned by ꝑ power of the spyrite into Galile, & ther wẽt a fame of him thorow out all the regiõ rounde about. And he taught in their synagoges & was commended of all men.

*And he came to Nazareth where he was nourised & as his custome was, wẽt into the synagoge on ꝑ Saboth dayes: & stode vp for to rede. And ther was deliuered vnto hi the boke of ꝑ Prophete Esaias. And whẽ he had opened ꝑ boke he found the place, wher it was wrytẽ. * The spyrte of ꝑ lord vpõ me, because he hath anointed me: to preach ꝑ gospell to ꝑ poore he hath sent me: & to heale ꝑ broke hẽarted: to preach deliueraũce to ꝑ captiue, & sight to the blind, & frely to sett at liberte thẽ that ar bruised, & preache the acceptable yere of the Lorde.

And he closed the boke, & gaue it agayne to the minister, & sate downe. And the eyes of al ꝑ were in the synagoge, were fastened on him. And he began to say vnto thẽ. Thys day is this scripture fulfylled in your eares. And al bare him wytnes, & wondred at the gracyouse wordes which proceded out of his mouth. ✠ & said: Is not this Josephs sonne?

And he said vnto thẽ: Ye may very wel say vnto me this prouerb. Physicio, heale thy selfe. ✠ What soeuer we haue heard done in Capernaum, do the same here likewyse in thine owne coũtre. And he sayde, verely I saye vnto you: No prophet is accepted in his owne countre.

But I tel you of a truthe, *many wydowes were in Israel in ꝑ daies of Helias, whẽ heuen was shut thre yeres and syx monethes, whẽ greate famishmente was through out al the lãd, & vnto none of them was Helyas sent, saue into Sarepta besydes Sidon vnto a woman ꝑ was a widowe. *And many lepers were in Israel in the tyme of Heliseus ꝑ prophete: and yet none of thẽ was heled, saupng Naaman of Syria.

And as many as were in the synagoge whẽ they herd that, were filled wt wrath: & rose vp, & thrust him out of the cite, & ledde him euen vnto the edge of the hil, wheron their citie was bilte, to caste hym downe hedling. But he wẽt his way eũe thorow ꝑ middes of thẽ. ✠ ✠ * & came in to Capernaum a cytie of Galile, & there taught them on the Saboth daies. And they were astonied at his doctrin: for his preachynge was with power. * And in ꝑ synagoge there was a man whiche had a spyrete of an vncleane deuel, & cryed wt a loude voice sayinge: lett me alone, what hast ꝑ to do wt vs, ꝑ Jesus of Nazarethe Art ꝑ come to destroy vs: I knowe thee what ꝑ art, euẽ the holy of god. And Jesus rebuked him sayig: hold thy peace & come out of him. And ꝑ deuill threwe hi in the middes of thẽ & came out of hym, & hurte him not. And feare came on thẽ al, & they spake amõg thẽ selues sayige: what maner a thyng is this. For wt auctorite & power he cõmaũdethe the foule spyrtes, & they come out. And ꝑ fame of him spred abrode thorow out all places of the countre round aboute. ✠

✠ * And he rose vp & came out of ꝑ synagoge, & entred into Simons house. And Simõs motherlaw was taken wythe a great feuer, & they made intercessiõ to hi for her. And he stode ouer her, & rebuked the feuer: and it left her. And immediatly she arose & ministred vnto them.

When the sonne was downe, all they that had syckes taken wt diuers diseases, brought them vnto hym: & he layde hys hãdes on euery one of thẽ, & healed thẽ. * And deuyls also came out of manye of thẽ crying and sayinge: thou art Chryste the sonne of god. And he rebuked thẽ & suffered thẽ not to speake: for they knew that he was Chryst.

Assone as it was daye, he departed and wẽt away into a desert place, & ꝑ people soughte him & came to him, & kepte hym that he should not depart frõ them. And he said vnto thẽ. I must to other cytyes also preache the kingdom of god: for therfore am I sent. And he preached in ꝑ synagoges of Galyle.

¶ Christ preacheth in ꝑ ship. The disciples forsake all, and folow him. He clenseth thee leper, healeth the man of the palsye, calleth Mathew ꝑ customer and eateth with open synners.

The.v.Chapter.

IT came to passe as the people preased vpõ him, to here the word of God, that he stode by the lake of Genezareth: * & saw two shippes stãd by the lake syde, but the fyshermen were gone out of them, & were washyng their nettes. And he entred into one of ȳ shippes, which pertey ned to Simō, and prated him, that he wold thrust oute a lyt tel frō ȳ land. And he sate downe & taught the people out of ȳ ship. Whē he had lefte speaking, he said vnto Simō. Laū che out into ȳ depe, & let slip your nettes

B to make a draught. And Simō ānswered and sayd to hym: Master, we haue labored al night, & haue taken nothinge. Neuertheles at thy word I will lose forth the net. And when they had so done, they inclosed a greate multitude of fyshes.
And their net brake: but thei made signs to their felowes which were in the other shyp, that they shuld come & helpe them
And they came: & filled both the shippes
that they soncke agayne.

When Simon Peter saw that, he fel downe at Jesus knees saying: Lord go frō me, for I am a sinful mā: For he was vtterly astonyed and al that were with him, at ȳ draught of fyshe which they to ke: & so was also James & John the sonnes of Zebede which were parteners wt Simō. And Jesus said vnto Simō fear re not frō hence forth ȳ shalt catch men.
And they brought ȳ shippes to lande, &
forsoke al, and folowed hym. ✠

de yf thou wilt, thou cāst make me cleane. And he stretched forth his hād, & touched him saying: I will, be thou cleane.
And immediatly ȳ lepprosy departed frō
hym. And he warned hi, that he shuld tel

But so moche the moare went there a of theyr infyrmityes. And he kepte hym

✠ And it hapened on a certayne daye,
Mark. ii. a ȳ he taught: & ther sate the phariseS and D doctours of lawe, which were come oute of al ȳ townes of Galile, Jurie, & Jerusalē. And the power of the Lorde was to heale thē. * And behold, men brought a Matth. ix. a marke. ii. a mā lying in his bed which was take wt
a palsie: & sought meanes to bringe him in & to lay hi before him. And when they coulde not fynde by what way they mygh bring hi in, because of ȳ preasse, they wēt vp on the top of the house, & let him doune thorow the tylyng, bed & al, in ȳ middes before Jesus. Whē he saw their faith, he said vnto him: man, thy synnes ar forgeuē the. And the scribes & ȳ pharises began to thinck saying: What felow is this which speaketh blasphemy?
C * Who cā forgeue sinnes but god only. Matth. ix. a marke. ii. a

When Jesus perceaued theyr thoughtes, he answered & said vnto thē: What think ye in youre hertes? Whether is ea sier to say: thy sinnes ar forgeuē thee, or to say: rise & walk? But that ye may kno we that ȳ sōne of mā hathe power to for geue sinnes on erth, he sayd vnto the sy cke of ȳ palsye: I say to ȳ, aryse take vp thy bed & go home to thi house. And im-mediatli he rose vp before thē, & toke vp his bed wheron he lay, & departed to his owne house prayseng god. And they we re al amased & they lauded God, & were fylled wyth feare saying: We haue sene
straunge thynges to day. ✠

F * And after that he went forth & sawe matth. ix. marke. ii.
a publycan named Leui, sytting at thee
receypte of custome, & sayd vnto him: fo-lowe me. And he lefte all, rose vp, & folowed him. And ȳ same Leui made hym a great feaste at home in his owne house.
And ther was a great cōpany of publy
cās & of other ȳ sate at meat wyth him. matth. ix. marke. ii.
And ȳ scribes & phariseS murmured against his disciples, saying: Why eat ye & drinck ye wt publicās & synners? Jesus answered & said vnto thē: They that are whole nede not of the phisition: but they that ar syck. I came not to cal the ryght tewes, but sinners to repentaunce.

Then they said vnto him: Why do the disciples of John faste often & praye, &
the disciples of the phariseS also: & thine eate & drink? And he said vnto thē. * Cā ye make the children of the weding fast,
as long as the bridgrome is present wt them? The dayes wil come, whē ȳ bride grome shalbe taken awaye frō thē: then shal they fast in those dayes.

Then

Then he spake vnto thē a similytude:
No man putteth a pece of a new garmē te, into an olde vesture: for yf ye do: then breaketh he the new, & the pece that was taken out of ȳ new, agreeth not wt the ol de. Also no mā poureth newe wyne in to old vessels. For yf he do, the newe wyne breaketh ȳ vessels, & rūneth out it selfe, & the vessels perish: But new wine must be poured into newe vessels, & both are preserued. Also, no mā ȳ drynke the olde wine, straight way cā away wt newe for he sayeth, the olde is pleasaunter.

The euangelyst the disciples, that pluck ȳ eares of corne he healeth the mā with the withred hād, cho seth his twelue apostles, maketh a fwete sermō, & teacheth to do good for euel.

The. vi. Chapter.

A xxiii. xvii. a marke. iii. d IT happened on an after Sa both, that he went thorow ȳ corne feld, & ȳ his disciples plucked the eares of corne, & ate, & rubbed thē in theyr handes. And certaine of the phariseS sai de vnto them. Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the Saboth dayes? Augustin And Jesus ānswered them & said: * Haue ye not redde what Dauid dyd, when he him self was an hungred and thei which were wt him: how he went into the house of God, & toke and ate the loues of halowed breed, & gaue also to them whych were wt him: which was not lawfull to eate, but for the prestes only. And he sayde vnto them: The sōne of mā is Lorde of the Saboth daye.

B ✠ * And it fortuned i another Saboth xxiii. xvii. a marke. iii. a also, ȳ he entred into the synagoge & taught. And ther was a mā whose ryght hād was dryed vp. And the scribes & phariseS watched him, to se whether he wolde heale on ȳ Saboth day, ȳ they might fynde an accusacyon agaynst him. But he knewe their thoughtes, & said to ȳ mā which had the wyddred hād: Ryse vp, & stand forth in the middes. And he arose & stepped forth. Thē sayd Jesus vnto thē: I wil aske you a questiō: Whether is it lawful on ȳ saboth daies to do good or to do euil: to saue lyfe or for to destroye it? And he beheld thē al in cōpas, and said vnto the mā: Stretch forth thy hande. And he did so: & his hād was restored & made as whole as the other. And they were fylled full of madnesse, & comuned one with another, what they might do to Jesu. ✠

C ✠ And it fortuned in those daies, that he mat. xiiii. a marke. vi. d John. vi. a went out into a mountayne for to pray, & continued al nighte in prayer to God. And assone as it was day, he called hys disciples, & of them he chose twelue, whi che also he called apostles. Simō whom he named Peter, & Andrew his brother. James & John, philip and Bartlemew, Mathew & Thomas, James ȳ sōne of Alpheus & Simon called zelotes, & Judas James son: & Judas Iscariotb, whi che same was the traytoure.

✠ And he came downe wt them & stode in the playne felde wt the cōpany of hys disciples, & a great multytude of people out of al parties of Jurie & Jerusalem, & frō ȳ see rost of Tire & Sydō, whych came to here hi, & to be healed of theyr dy seases: & they also ȳ were vexed wt foule spretes, & thei were healed. And al ȳ people prea sed to touch him: for ther went vertue oute of him, and healed them all.

D And he lifted vp his eies vpō the disci ples, and said: Blessed be ye * poore: for yours is ȳ kigdō of god. Blessed ar ye ȳ hōger now: for ye shalbe satisfied. Blessed ar ye ȳ wepe now: for ye shal laugh. Blessed ar ye whē mē hate you, & thrust you out of their cōpanie, & raile, and abiorre your name as an euil thige, for the sonne of mānes sake. Reioyse ye then, & be glad: for behold, your reward is grea te in heuen. For after thys maner their fathers entreated the Prophetes.

But wo be to you that ar ryche: for ye haue therin youre cōsolacion. Woo be to you that ar ful: for ye shal hōger. Woo be to you that nowe laughe: for ye shall wayle and wepe. Woo be to you when al men praise you: for so did theyr fathers to the false Prophetes.

But I saye vnto you which heare: Lo ue your enemies. Do good to thē which hate you. Blesse them ȳ course you. And pray for thē which vyōgfullye trouble you. And vnto hi that smiteth ȳ on ȳ one cheke, offer also ȳ other. And hi ȳ taketh away thy goune, forbid not to take thy E cote also. Geue to euery mā that asketh of the. And of him that taketh away thy goodes,

goodes aske the not againe. ‡ And as ye wold that men shuld do to you: so do ye to them lykewyse.

If ye loue the which loue you: what thāke at ye worthy of? For ꝑ vere sinners loue their louers. And yf ye do for the whi che do for you: what thāke at ye worthy of? For ꝑ very synnes do cue ꝑ same. If ye lend to them of whome ye hope to receaue: what thāke shal ye haue: for ꝑ vere sinners lend to sinners to receaue as mo che againe. Wherfore, loue ye your enemyes, do good & lēd, loking for nothig a gaine: & your reward shalbe greate, & ye shalbe ꝑ children of the hiest: for he is kid vnto the vnkynde and to the cupll.

F ✣ Be ye therefore mercyfull, as youre father is mercyfull. * Judge not, and ye shal not be iudged. Condemne not: & ye shal not be condemned. Forgeue, and ye shalbe forgeuē, Geue, and it shalbe geuē vnto you: good measure, pressed downe, shaken to gether & runnynge ouer, shall mē geue into your bosomes. * For with what measure ye mete, wt the same shall men mete to you agayne.

And he put forth a similitude vnto thē: Can the blynd leade ꝑ blynde? Do they not both then fal into the dyche? The disciple is not aboue his master. Euery mā shalbe perfect, euē as his master is. Why seyst thou a moote in thy brothers eye, & cōsyderest not the beame that is in thyne owne eye? Ethee how canst thou saye to thy brother: Brother, let me pull out the moote that is in thyne eye: whē thou perceauest not the beame ꝑ is in thine owne eye? Ypocryte cast out the beame oute of thyne owne eye fyrst, and thē shalt thou se perfectly, to pull out the moote out of thy brothers eye. ✣

G * It is not a good tree ꝑ bringeth forth cupll frute, neyther is that an cupll tree, ꝑ bringeth forth good frupte. For euery tree is knowē by his frupte. Neyther of thornes gather mē figges, nor of bushes gather they grapes. A good mā out of ꝑ good treasure of his hert, bringeth forth ꝑ which is good. And an cupl mā out of ꝑ cupl treasure of his hert, bringeth forth that which is cupl. For of the aboūdaūce of the hert, hys mouth speaketh.

Why cal ye Master, Master: and do not as I byd you? whosoeuer cometh to me, & heareth my sayinges, & doth the same, I wyl shewe you to whō he is lyke. He is lyke a man which bylt an house: & dygged depe & layde the foundation on a rocke. When the waters arose, ꝑ floud bet vpō that house, & could not moue it. For it was groūded vpō a rock. But he that heareth & doth not, is like a mā that without foundatiō bylt an house vpon the erth, agaynst which ꝑ floud dyd beat and it fell by and by. And the fal of that house was greate.

And whē he heard of Jesu, he sent vnto hym the elders of the Jewes, besechinge him ꝑ he wolde come & heale his seruaūt. And they came to Jesus & besought him instātly saying: He is worthy that thou shuldest do thys for hym. For he loueth our nation, & hath bylt vs a synagoge. And Jesus went wyth them.

And when he was not farre from the house, the Centurio sent frendes to hym saying vnto him * Lord trouble not thy selfe: for I am not worthy ꝑ thou shuldest enter vnder my rofte. Wherfore I thought not my self worthy to come vnto ꝑ: but saye the word, & my seruaūte shalbe whole. For I lyke wyse am a mā vnder power, and haue vnder me soudiers, & I saye vnto one: go, & he goeth. And to another, come: & he cometh. And to my seruaūte, do this: & he doeth it. Whē Jesus heard

✣ And it fortuned after that, ꝑ he wēt into a citie called Naim, & many of hys disciples went with him & moche people. Whē he came nye to the gate of ꝑ cytye: behold ther was a dead man caryed out which was ꝑ only sonne of his mother, & she was a widowe, & moch people of the cytie was wt her. And whē the Lord sawe her, he had cōpassiō on her, & sayde vnto her, wepe not. And he wēt & touched the coffin, & they ꝑ bare him, stode styll. And he sayd: Yonge mā, I say vnto ꝑ, aryse. And the dead sate vp, & begā to speake. And he delyuered hym to hys mother. And ther cam a feare on thē al. And they glorified God saying: a great Prophet is risen amōg vs, & God hath visited his people. ✣ And this rumor of hym wēt forth throughout al Jury, & thorowout al the regions which lye rounde about.

Whē ꝑ mē were come vnto him they sayd: John baptist sent vs vnto ꝑ, saying: Art ꝑ he that shuld come: or shal we wayt for āother? And al the people that heard, and the publicans, iustified God, & were baptysed wyth the baptyme of John. But the Pharises and Scribes despysed the cōsell of God agaynst them selues, & were not baptised of hym.

And the Lord sayd: Wher vnto shal I lyken the men of this generation, and what thing are they lyke? They are lyke vnto chyldren sytting in the market place, & crying one to another, & saying: We haue piped to you, & ye haue not daūced: we haue mourned to you, & ye haue not wept. For John Baptist came, nether eatinge bred nor drinking wyne, & ye saye: he hath the deuell. When the pharise which bade hi, sawe ꝑ, he spake with him self, saying: If this mā were a pphete, he wolde surely haue knowen who & what maner womā this is which toucheth him, for she is a sinner. I entred into thy house, & thou gauest me no water too my fete: but she hathe washed my fete wt teares & wyped thē wt ȳ heares of her head. Thou gauest me no kisse: but she, sence ȳ time I came in, hath not ceased to kysse my fete. Myne head wt oyle ȳ diddest not anoynt: but she hath anointed my fete wt oyntmēt. Wherfore I say vnto the: a* many synnes are forgeuē her: for she loued moch. To whom lesse is forgeuē, the same doth lesse loue. And he sayd vnto her, thy synnes ar forgeuen the. And they that sate at meat wt him, began to saye wythin them selues: Who is this which forgeueth synnes also? And he sayd to the womā: Thy faith hath saued the: Go in peace.

And some fel on good groūd & sprange vp, & bare fruite, an hundred folde. And as he sayde these thinges, he cryed: He ȳ hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

And his disciples asked him sayinge: what maner symilitude is thys? And he sayd: a* vnto you is it geuē to know the secretes of the kyngdom of God: but to other in similitudes: ȳ when they se they should not se, & when they heare they shulde not vnderstande.

The similitude is this. The sede is ȳ word of God. Those ȳ ar besyde ȳ waye are they that heare, & afterwarde cometh the deuil & taketh away the word out of theyr hertes leste they shulde beleue & be saued. Then he cōmāded the foule spyrete to come out of ȳ mā. For ofte tymes he caught him, & he was bound with chaynes, & kept with fetters and he brake the bondes and was caried of the fende into wyldernesse.

And Jesus asked him saying: What is thy name? And he sayd: a* Legiō, because many deuils were entred into him And they besought him, ȳ he wold not cōmaūde them to go out into the depe. to beware of couetousnes, by the symplitude of a certaine ryche man: the wyl not have thē to hange vpō earthly thynges, but to watch and to be redy agaynst hys commynge.

The. xii. Chapter.

AS ther gathered togeather
an innumerable multytude
of people (in so moch ꝑ they trode one another) he began to saye vnto his dyscyples:
fyrst of al beware of thea✠ leuē of ꝑ pha ryses which is ypocrysy. For ther is no thyng couered, that shal not be vncoue-
red: nether hyd that shal not be knowen.
For whatsoeuer ye haue spoken in dark nes: that same shalbe herd in the lyght.
And ꝑ which ye haue spokē in ꝑ eare euē
in secret places, shalbe preached euen on the top of the houses.

I saye vnto you my frēdes: be not afraid of them that kyll ꝑ body, and after that haue no moze that they can do. But I wil shew you, whom ye shal feare. Fea re hym wyych after he hath kylled, hath power to cast into hel. Ye I say vnto you hym feare. Are not fyue sparowes bought for two farthinges? And yet not one of them is forgoten of god. Also euen ꝑ very heares of your heedes ar nombred.
Feare not therfore: ye are moze of value
then many sparowes.

I say vnto you: whosoeuer confesseth me before men, euen hym shal the sōne of man confesse also before the angelles of god. And he that denieth me before men:
shalbe denied before ꝑ āgels of god. And whosoeuer speaketh a word agaynste b✠ the sōne of mā it shalbe forgeuē hi. But vnto hi ꝑ blaspheneth ꝑ holi goost, it shal not be forgeuē. When they bring you in to the synagoges, ✠ vnto ꝑ rulers ✠ offy-cers, take no thought how or what thyn
ge ye shal ānswere or what ye shal speake
For the holy goost shal teach you in ꝑ sa me houre, what ye ought to saye,

✠ One of the company sayd vnto him:
Master byd my brother deuide ꝑ enheri
tance w me. And he said vnto him: Ma, who made me a iudge or a deuyder ouer you? Wherfore he said vnto the: take he de, ✠ beware of couetousnesse. ✠ For no mans lyfe standeth in the aboūdance of ꝑ thinges which he possesseth. And he put forth a similitude vnto thē saying: The grouūd of a certayne ryche man broughte forth frutes plenteously, ✠ he thought in him selfe saying: what shal I do? because I haue no rowme wher to bestowe my frutes? And he said: This wyll I do. I wyl destroye my barnes, ✠ bilde greater, ✠ therin wil I gather all my frutes and my goodz: ✠ I wyl say to my soule: Sou le ꝑ hast moche goodes layde vp in store for many yeares, take thine ease: eate, drinck, ✠ be mery. But god sayd vnto hi:
Thou fole, thys nyght wil they fetche a way thy soule againe frō ꝑ Then whose shal those thinges be which ꝑ hast proded? So is it with hi that gathereth ry ches? ✠ is not ryche in God.

And he spake vnto his disciples: Ther fore I say vnto you: Take no thoughte for your life, what ye shal eat, nether for your body, what ye shal put on. The life is moze then meat, ✠ the bodi is moze thē rayment. Consider the rauens, for they nether sowe nor repe, whych nether haue stooze house nor barne, and yet God fedeth them. How moch are ye better then foules. Which of you w takig thought can adde to hys stature one cubyt? If ye then be not able to do that thing whyche is lest: why take ye thought for ꝑ rēnāute? Cōsyder ꝑ lilies how thei grow. Thei labour not: they spin not, ✠ yet I say vn
to you, ꝑ Salomon in all thys royalte, was not clothed lyke to one of these.

If the grasse which is to day in the fel
de, ✠ to morow shalbe cast into ꝑ fornāce, God so clothe, how moch moze wyll he clothe you, o ye enduced w lytle fayth?
and aske not what ye shal eat or what ye shal drink, nether clyme ye vp an hye: for al soch thiges ꝑ hethen people of ꝑ worl de seke for. Your father knowethe that ye haue neade of soch thiges. Wherfore seke

seke ye after the kingdom of god, and al these thinges shalbe ministred vnto you ✠ Feare not lytel flocke, for it is your fathers pleasure to geue you a kyngdom. ✠ Sel ye that ye haue, & geue almes. And make you bagges, whyche were not olde, & treasure ye fayleth not in heuen, wher no theefe cometh, neither mothe corrupteth. For where youre treasure is, there wyll youre hertes be also.

Let your loines be gerdde about, & your lightes brenning, & ye your selues lyke vnto men that wayt for their master, whe he wil returne fro a weding: that assone as he cometh & knocketh, they may open vnto him. Happy are those seruātes, whych the lord whe he cometh shall find waking. Verely I say vnto you, he wyll gyrde him self about & make them to sit doune to meat, & walke by & minister vnto them. And yf he come in the secōd watch, ye yf he come in the thyrde watch, & shal finde them so, happy are those seruātes. Thys vnderstonde ye, yt yf the good man of the house knew what houre the theefe wold come, he wolde surely watche: & not suffre hys house to be broken vp. Be ye prepared therfore: for the sonne of man wyl come at an houre when ye thinke not.

Then peter sayd vnto him: ✠ Master, tellest thy this similitude vnto vs, or to al men? And the lord said: Who ther be a faithful seruaūte & wise, whome his Lorde shal make ruler ouer his household, to geue them their dutie of meat at due season? happy is that seruaūte, whō hys master when he cometh, shal find so doing. Of a truth I say vnto you, that he wil make hi ruler ouer al his he hath. But & yf that euil seruaūt shal say in his hert: My master wil defarre his cōming, and shall begine to smyte the seruaūtes & maydens, & to eate & drynke and to be dronken: the lord of that seruaūt wil come in a day when he thinketh not and at an houre when he is not ware, & wil deuide him, & wil geue hi his rewarde with the vnbeleuers.

The seruaūt that knew his masters wil & prepared not hi self, neither dyd according to his wil, shalbe beten with many stripes. But he that knewe not, and yet did comit thinges worthy of stripes, shal be beate with feaw stripes. For vnto whō moch is geuen, of hym shalbe moche requyred. And to whom men moch cōmyt, the more of hym wyl they aske.

I am come to send fyre on erth: & what is my desyre, but that it were all readye kyndled? Notwithstanding I must be baptysed with a baptime: & how am I payned till it be ended? Suppose ye that I am come to send ✠ peace on earth? I tel you nay, but rather debate. For fro hence forthe there shalbe .v. in one house deuyded, three against two, & two against three. The father shalbe deuided against the sonne, & the sone against the father. The mother against the daughter, & the daughter against the mother. The mother in law against hyr daughter in lawe, and the daughter in lawe against her mother in lawe.

Then said he to the people: when ye se a cloude ryse out of the west straight way ye say: we shall haue a shower, and so it is. And when ye se the fourth winde blowe, ye say: we shall haue heet: and it cōmeth to passe. Ypocrytes, ye can skyl of the fassiō of the earthe & of thee skye: but what is the cause, that ye cannot skyl of this time? Ye and why iudge ye not of youre selues what is ryghte.

Whyl thou goest with thyne aduersary to the ruler: as thou art in the way, geue diligence that thou mayst be delyuered fro hym, least he brynge the to the iudge, & the iudge deliuer the to the iayler, & the iayler cast the in to preson. I tel the, thou departest not thence tyll thou haue made good the vtmost myte.

The Notes.

a✱ What leuen the faithful must be warre of, is more euydently shewed in Math. xvi where by leuen is vnderstanded the doctrine & inuencion of the pharyses, & of al other mē lyke conditioned vnto the, here it is noted by thee name of ypocrysye because it is deceatful, false, & vngodly, & maketh all the louers therof ypocrytes:

d✱ Soch peace as this world loueth (which is then at peace when mens appetytes & desyres are satysfied, & when the euel agree with the euel) came I not to send on the earthe, but therfore came I, with the wordes of verye peace, to destroye the peace of thys world: for it is the doctrine of the gospel, which teacheth al peace, shalbe enuied of many, it can not be but debate must arise euen amongest greateste frēdes, while they that loue thys world wyl sooner ouersyde cruelty towarde the they loue best, then leaue the vices whi che they haue bene accustomed vnto. And against/those whom the fyre of the charyte belongyng to the gospel hath touched/ wyll by no means suffre the selues to be deuided fro that which they haue begōne to cleaue to, betwyxt there am I not come to set peace, but debate,

Of thy: Galileans who Pylate slew, & of those that died in Syloe. The similitude of the figge tree. Christ healeth the lyck woman. The parable of the mustard sede & leuē. Few entre into the kyngedō. Christ reprouyth Herode and Jerusalem.

The. xiii. Chapter.

There were present at the same season fro which they shewed him of the galileans, whose blode Pylate medled with their owne sacrifice. And Jesus answered, & said vnto them: Suppose ye that these Galileans were greater sinners then all other Galileans, because they suffred such punishment? I tel you nay: but except ye repent, ye shal al likewise perysh. Or those .xviii. vpon which the toure in Syloe fel, & slew them, thynke ye that they were sinners aboue al men that dwel in Jerusalem? I tel you nay: but except ye repent ye al shal lykewyse perysshe.

✠ He put forth this similitude: a certayne mā had a figge tre planted in his vine yard & he came & sought frute thereon, & found none. Then said he to the dresser of his vineyard: behold, this thre yere haue I come & sought frute in this figge tree, & fynd none: cut it downe: why cōbrethe it the ground: and he answered & said vnto him: Lord let it alone this yeare also, tyl I dygge rounde about it, & dōg it, to se whether it wyll beare frute: & yf it beare not then, after that, cutte it doune. And he taught in one of their synagoges on the Saboth dayes. And behold there was a woman which had a spryte of infyrmytye .xviii. yeres: & was bowed together & could not lyft vp her self at all. When Jesus saw her, he called her to him, & sayde to her woman thou art delyuered fro thy dysease. And he laid his handes on her, & immediatly she was straight, and glorysied god. And the ruler of the synagoge answered with indignacion (because that Jesus had healed on the Saboth daye) and sayde vnto the people. There are .vi. dayes in which men ought to worke: in them come and be healed, and not on the Saboth daye.

Then answered him the Lord, and said: ypocrite, doth not eache one of you on the Saboth day, lowse his oxe or his asse from the stall, & leade him to the water? And ought not this daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound lo .xviii. yeares, be lowsed fro this bond on the Saboth day? And when he this sayd, al his aduersaries were ashamed, and al the people reioyced on all the excellent dedes, that were done by him.

Then sayd he: what is the kyngdome of God lyke? or wherto shall I compare it? It is lyke a grayne of mustard seede, which a man toke and sowed in his garden: and it grewe & waxed a great tree, & the foules of the ayre made nestes in the braunches of it.

And agayne he sayd: wher vnto shal I liken the kyngdom of god? it is lyke leuen, which a woman toke, and hyd in three bushels of floure, tyl al was thorow leuended. And he went thorow al maner of cytyes and townes teaching, and iorneying towardes Jerusalem. Then sayde one vnto him: Lord, are ther few that shalbe saued? And he sayde vnto them: Strayue with your selues to enter in at the strait gate: for many I say vnto you, wil seke to enter in, and shal not be able.

✠ When the good man of the house is risen vp, and hath shet to the doze, ye shal begynne to stand without, & to knock at the doze saying Lord Lord, open vnto vs: & he shal answere & say vnto you: I know you not whence ye are. Then shal ye begin to say: we haue eaten in thee presence & drunken, & thou hast taught in our stretes. And he shal say: I tel you I know you not whence ye are: departe from me all ye workers of iniquytye. Ther shalbe weping & gnashyng of teth, when ye shal se Abraham and Isaac & Jacob, and al the prophetes in the kingdome of God, and your selues thrust out at dores. And they shal come, fro the east & from the weste & fro the north & from the south, and shall sit downe in the kingdome of god. And beholde, ther are last, which shalbe first.

And

And there are fyrst which shalbe last.

G The same daye ther came certayne of ỹ Phariſes and sayd vnto him: get ỹ oute of ỹ way, and departe hence: for Herode wil kyl the. And he sayde vnto them. Go ye and tel ỹ fore, behold I cast oute deuils and heale ỹ people to day and to morow, and the third day I make an ende. Neuertheles, I must walke to daye & to moro we, & the daye folowing: for it cannot be, that a prophet perysh enye other wher, saue at Ieruſalem.

mat.xxiii.d. *O Ieruſalem, Ieruſalem, which killeſt prophetes, & ſtoneſt the that are ſent to the: how often wolde I haue gathered thy childrē together, as the hen gathereth her neſt vnder her wynges, but ye wold not. Behold youre habitacyō shalbe left vnto you deſolate. For I tel you, ye ſhal not ſe me vntil ỹ time come that ye ſhall ſaye, bleſſed is he that commeth in the name of the Lorde.

The .xviii. Chapter. ✣

And he put forth a similitude vnto thẽ, signifying ỹ men ought alwayes to praye & not to be wery, sayig: Ther was a Judge in a certayne citie, whiche feared not god nether regarded mã. And ther was a certayne wedow in the same citie, whiche came vnto hi sayig: aueng me of myne aduersarie. And he wold not for a whyle. But afterward he said to hi self: thoughe I feare not god nor care for mã, yet because this wedow troubleth me, I wil auẽg her lest at the last she come & bagge on me. And the Lorde saide heare what the vnryght wes Judge sayeth. And shal not god auenge his elect, whych crye daye and nyght vnto him, ye though he deferre thẽ? I tel you he wyl auenge them and that quickly. ✣ Neuertheleſſe, whẽ the sõne of mã cometh, suppose ye, that he shal fynd fayth on the erth.

✣ And he put forth this similitude, vnto certayne which trusted in thẽ selues ỹ they were perfect, & despised other. Two men went vp into ỹ tẽple to praye: ỹ one a pharise & the other a publicã. The pharise stode & prated thus vẽ him self. God I thanke the that I am not as other mẽ are, extorsioners, vniuste, aduoutrers, or as this publicã. I faste twise in ỹ weke. I gene tithe of al that I possesse. And ỹ publican stode a farre of, & wold not lift vp his eies to heuen, but smote his brest saying: God be mercyfull to me a sinner. For of soch is the kyngdom of god. Verely I saye vnto you: whosoeuer receaueth not ỹ kyngdõ of god as a child: he shal not entre therin.

And a certayne ruler asked hym sayin ge: good master: what ought I to do, to obtayne eternal lyfe? Jesus sayde vnto hi: Wht callest ỹ me good? none is good saue God only. Thou knowest the commaũdementes: Thou shalt not commyt aduoutry: ỹ shalt not kil: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt not beare falſe witnes: Honour thy father & thi mother. And he sayd al these haue I kept frõ my youth. Whẽ Jesus heard ỹ, he sayd vnto him. Yet lakest thou one thig. a* Sel al that thou hast, & distribute it vnto the poore, & thou shalt haue treasure in heuen and come, & folow me. Whẽ he hard that, he was heuy: for he was very ryche.

Whẽ Jesus saw him moorne, he sayde: Vẽ what difficulte shal they that haue ryches, enter into ỹ kingdom of God: it is easier for a camel to go thorow a nedles eye, then for a rych man to entre into the kingdõ of God. Then said they ỹ heard that. And who shal thẽ be saued? And he sayd: Thinges which are vnpossible vẽ men are possyble with God.

He shalbe deliuered vnto the gentyles, & shalbe mocked and shalbe despytefully entreated, and shalbe spetted on: & when they haue scourged him, they wyl put hi to death, and the thyrd day he shal aryse agayn. But they vnderstode none of these thinges. And this saying was hyd frõ them. And they perceaued not thee thynges whych were spoken.

✣ And it came to passe, as he was come nye vnto Hiericho, a certayne blinde man sate by the waye syde begging. And whẽ he hearde thee people passe by, he asked what it meant. And they sayd vnto him, that Jesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed sayinge: Jesus ỹ sonne of Dauid, haue ỹ mercy on me. And they whyche went before rebuked hym, ỹ he should hold hys peace. But he cried so moch the more, ỹ sonne of Dauid haue mercy on me. And Jesus stode styll, & cõmaunded him to be brought vnto him. And when he was come neare, he asked him saying what wilt thou that I do vnto the? And he sayde: Lorde that I may receaue my syght. Jesus said vnto him: receaue thy syght: thy fayth hath saued the. Of zacheus, and the ten seruauntes to whõ the talentes were deliuered. Christ rydeth to Jerusalem and weepeth ouer it.

The .xix. Chapter ✣

And he entred in & wente thorowe Hiericho. And beholde, A ther was a mã named Zacheus, which was a ruler amõg the Publicans, & was ryche also. And he made meanes to se Jesus, what he should be: & couldc not for ỹ prease, because he was of a low stature. Wherfore he ran before, & clymed vp in to a wylde fyg tree, to se him: for he shulde come ỹ waye. And when Jesus came to the place, he loked vp, & sawe him, and said vnto him: zache, come downe at once for to daye I muste abyde at thy house. And he came downe hastelye & receaued him ioyfully. And when they saw ỹ they al grudged saying: He is gone in to tary wyth a man that is a synner.

And zache stode forth and sayd vnto the Lord: beholde Lorde, the halfe of my goodes I gene to the poore, and yf I haue done any man wronge, I wyl restore hym fower fold. And Jesus sayd to him thys daye is helth come vnto thys house, for as moche as he also is become the chylde of Abrahaim. * For thee sonne of mã is come to seke and to saue that whych was loste. ✣

As they hearde these thinges, he added therto a symylitude, because he was nye to Hierusalẽ, & because also they thoughte that the kyngdõ of God should shortely appere. He sayd therfore: ✣ ‡ a certayne noble man went into a farre countre, to receaue hym a kyngdõ, & then to come agayne. And he called his ten seruauntes and delyuered them ten pounde, sayinge vnto thẽ: by and sell tyl I come. But his cytesens hated him, and sent messengers after him sayinge: we wyll not haue this man to raygne ouer vs.

And it came to passe, when he was come agayne & had receaued hys kingdõ, he cõmaunded these seruauntes, to be called to him (to whõ he gaue his money) to wit what euery mã had done. Thẽ came the first, saying: Lord, thy pouñds hath encreased ten pouñd. And he sayd vnto him ‡ Wel good seruãt because ỹ wast faithful in a very littel thing, take thou auctorite ouer .x. cytyes. And the other came saying: Lord thy pound hath encreased fyue pound. And to the same he sayde: ✣

H.i. be thou

& be thou also ruler ouer fyue cytyes.

And the third came & said: Lord behold here thy pound, whych I haue kepte in a napkyn, for I feared the, because thou arte a straite man: thou takest vp ỹ thou laydest not downe, & repest that thou didest not sowe. And he sayde vnto hym: * Of thine owne mouth, iudge I the ỹ euyl seruaũt. Knewest thou that I am a straite mã takyng vp that I laid not downe, & reppynge that I dyd not sowe? Wherfore then gauest not thou my money into ỹ bank, that at my cõminge I myght haue required mine owne w vsũtage.

And he said to them that stode by: take frõ him that pound, & geue it hi that hath ten pound. And they sayd vnto hym lorde he hath ten pounde. I saye vnto you, that * vnto all them that haue, it shall be geuen: & frõ him that hath not, euen that he hath shalbe take frõ hym. Moreouer those mine enemies, which wold not that I shuld raigne ouer them bring hyther, & slee them before me. * And whẽ he had thus spoken, he proceded forthe before, assendyng vp to Jerusalem.

And it fortuned, whẽ he was come nie to Bethphage & Bethany, besides mount Oliuete, he sent two of his disciples saynge: go ye into the towne which is ouer agaynst you. In the which assone as ye are come, ye shal fynd a colt tied, whereon yet neuer mã sate. Louse him and bryng him hyder. And yf any mã aske you, whi that ye lowse him: thus saye vnto hym, the Lord hath nede of hym.

They that were sent, wẽt theyr waye & fouũd, euen as he had sayd vnto thẽ. And as they were alosing the colt the owners said vnto them: why lowse ye the colt? And they said: for the Lord hath nede of him. And they broughte hym to Jesus. And they cast their rayment on the colt, and set Jesus theron. And as he wente, they spredde their clothes in the way.

And when he was now come, where he shuld go downe frõ the mount Oliuete, ỹ whole multitude of the disciples begã to reioyce, & to laude god w a loude voyce, for al the miracles that they had sene, saying: blessed be the kyng that cõmethe in the name of the lord: peace in heauen, & glory in the hight. And some of ỹ pharyses of the cõpany sayd vnto hi: Master rebuke thy disciples. He answered, & saydc vnto thẽ: I tel you yf these shuld holde their peace, the stones wold crie.

✣ And when he was come nere, he behelde the citie, & wept on it saying: If thou haddest knowen those thinges which belõg vnto thy * peace, euen at thys thy time. But now are they hyd frõ thine eies. For the dayes shal come vpon thee, that thy enemyes shall cast a banke about ỹ, and compasse the rounde, & kepe thee in on euery side, & make the euen w ỹ groũde, with thy chyldren whych are in thee. And they shall not leue in the, one stone vpõ another, because thou knowest not the tyme of thy vysytacyon.

And he went into the temple, & begãne to cast out them that solde therin, & them that bought saying vnto them, it is writtẽ: my house is the house of prayer: but ye haue made it a den of theues. And he taught daili in the tẽple. ✣ * The hie prestes & the scrybes and the chefe of ỹ people went about to destroye hi: but could not fynd what to do. For all thee people stack by hym, & gaue hym audyence.

¶ They aske christ one question, & he asketh thẽ another. The parable of the vyneyard. Of tribute to be geuen vnto Cesar. and how christ stoppeth the mouthes of the Sadduces.

The. xx. Chapter. ✣

And it fortuned i one of those daies as he taught ỹ people in the tẽple & preched ỹ gospel: the hye prestes & the Scrybes came w ỹ elders & spake vnto hi sayig: ✣ Tel vs by what auctoryte ỹ doeste these thinges? Ether who is he ỹ gaue ỹ this auctorite? He ãswerd & said vnto them: I also wil aske you a question, & answere me. The baptyme of John: was it from heauen or of a * men? And they thought w in thẽselues saying: yf we shal say frõ heuẽ: he wyll say: why then beleued ye hi not. But and yf we shal say of men, al the people wyll stone vs. For they be persuaded ỹ John is a prophet. And they answered that they could not tel whence it was. And Jesus sayde vnto them: neither tell I you by what auctorite I do these thynges.

Thẽ begã he to put forth to the people this symylitude. ✣ A certayne man plãted a vyneyard, & let it forth to fermers and went hym selfe into a straunge coũtre for a great season. And when the tyme was come, he sent a seruaũt to hys tenãtes ỹ they shuld geue hym of the frutes of the vyneyarde. And the tenauntes dyd bette him, & sent him away empty. And agayn he sente yet another seruaunte. And they dyd bet hym, & foule entreated him also, & sent him awaye emptye. Moreouer, he sent the thyrd to, & hym they wounded, & cast out. Then sayd the lord of the vyneyard: what shal I do? I wil send my dere sonne, him peraduenture they wyl reuerence, when they se hym.

But when the fermers saw hym, they thought in thẽselues saying: this is the heyre, come let vs kyll hym, that the enheritaũce may be oures. And they cast him out of the vyneyard: & kylled him. Now what shall the lord of the vyneyard doo vnto them? He wyl come and destroy the fermers, & wyl let oute hys vyneyarde to other. When they hearde that, they sayde: God forbydde.

And he beheld thẽ & sayde: what meaneth this then that is writtẽ: ✣ the stone ỹ the bylders refused, the same is made the head cornet stone? Whosoeuer stõble at that stone shalbe brokẽ: but on whosoeuer it fal vpõ, it wyl grinde him to powder. And the hye prestes & the Scribes ỹ same houre went aboute to laye handes on hym, but they feared the people. For they perceaued that he had spoken this symylytude agaynst them.

And they watched hi, & sẽt forth spies, which shuld fayne thẽselues perfecte, to take him in his wordes, & to delyuer him vnto the power & auctorite of the debite. And they asked him saying: Master, we know ỹ thou sayest & teachest right, neyther cõsyderest thou any mãs degre, but teachest the way of god truly. Is it lawful for vs to geue Cesar tribute or noo? He perceaued their craftines, & sayd vnto thẽ: ✣ why tẽpt ye me? Shewe me a peny. Whose ymage & superscriptiõ hath it? They ãswered & said: Cesars. And he said vnto thẽ: geue thẽ vnto Cesar ỹ whiche pteyneth to Cesar: & to god ỹ whiche ptayneth to god. And they could not reproue his sayig before ỹ people, but thei

marueled at his ãswer, & held their peace

Thẽ came to hi certayn of the Sadduces which denye ỹ ther is any resurrectiõ And thei asked hi saying: ✣ Master, Moses wrote vnto vs, yf any mans brother die hauing a wyfe, & ỹ same die without yssue: ỹ then hys brother shuld take hys wyfe, & rayse vp sede vnto hys brother. Ther were. vii. brethrẽ, & the first toke a wife, & dyed wout childrẽ. And ỹ secõde toke the wyfe, & he dyed chyldles. And ỹ thyrd toke her, & in lykewyse the reſydue of the seuen, & left no childrẽ behind thẽ & dyed. Last of al the woman dyed also. Now at ỹ resurrectiõ whose wyfe of thẽ shal she be? For seuen had her to wyfe.

Jesus ãswered & said vnto thẽ. The childrẽ of this world mary wyues, & are ✣ maried, but thei which shalbe made worthy to enioye ỹ world, & ỹ resurrectiõ frõ deeth, neither mary wyues nor are maried nor yet cã die any more, for they are equal vnto ỹ angels: & are the sonnes of god in as moch as they are the childrẽ of ỹ resurrectiõ. And ỹ the dead shall ryse agayne, euẽ Moses signified beſydes the bushe, whẽ he sayd: ✣ the Lord God of Abraha & the God of Jsaac, & the god of Jacob. For he is not ỹ god of ỹ dead, but of thẽ which liue. For al liue in hi. Thẽ certayne of the Phariſes ãswered & sayd: Master ỹ hast wel said. And after that durst they not aske him any question at all.

Then sayd he vnto thẽ: ✣ how say they ✣ that christ is dauids sonne? And Dauid him selfe saith in the boke of the psalmes ✣ The Lord sayd vnto my Lorde, syt on my right hand, tyl I make thyne enemyes thy fote stole. Seinge Dauid calleth him Lord: how is he then hys sonne?

Thẽ in the audience of al the people, he sayde vnto hys disciples: ✣ beware of the Scribes, which delyre to go in longe clothing: and loue greetinges in the markets, & the hyest seates in the synagoges and the chefe rowmes at feastes, whiche deuoure wydowes houses & that vnder a colour of long prayng: the same shal receaue greater damnacion.

¶ Christ cõmẽdeth the poore wyddowe, telleth of thee destructiõ of Jerusalẽ, of false teachers, of ỹ tokens & troubles for to come, of the ende of this worlde, and of hys owne commynge.

A mark. xii. d

AS he beheld, he saw ỹ ryche mē, how they cast in their offringes into ỹ treasury. And he saw also a certayn poore wyddow, which cast in thyther. ii. mites. And he sayd of truth I say vnto you, this poore wyddow hath putt in more then they all. For they al haue of theyr superfluyte added vnto the offrynge of God: but she, of her penurye hathe cast in al the substaunce that she had.

As some spake of the temple, howe it was garnished with goodly stones & Jewels, he sayd: ✝ The dayes wil come, whē mat. xxiiii. a Mark. xiii. a of these thinges whiche ye se, shal not be lefte stone vppon stone, that shall not be throwē downe. And they asked him saynge: Master when shal these thinges be and what signe wyl there be when soche thinges shal come to passe.

And he sayd: take hede, ỹ ye be not deceaued. For many wyl come in my name saying: I am he, & the tyme draweth neare. Folow ye not thē therfore. But when ye heare of warre & dissencion: be not afeayed. For these thinges must fyrst come: but the ende foloweth not by and by. Thē sayde he vnto thē: Naciō shall ryse agaynst nacion, & kingdō agaynst kingdom, & greate earthquakes shalbe in all quarters, and honger, and pestilēce: and fearful thinges. And great sygnes shall there be from heauen.

But before al these, they shal lay their hādes on you & persecute you, delyuering you vp to the Synagoges & into prison, & bring you before kinges & rulers for my names sake. And this shal chaunce you for a testimonial. Let it stick therfore fast in your hertes, not once to study before, what ye shal answere: for I wyll geue you a mouth & wysdō, wher against all your aduersaryes shall not be able to speake nor resist. Yea & ye shalbe betrayed of your fathers & mothers, & of youre brethren, & kynsmen, and louers, & some of you shal they put to death. And hated shal ye be of al men for my names sake. D Yet ther shal not one heyre of your heades perishe. Wyth your a* patience possesse your soules.

And when ye se Jerusalē beseged with an hoste, thē vnderstāde that ỹ desolacio of the same is nye. Then let thē which are in Jewry flye to the mountaynes. And let thē which are in the middes of it, depart out. And lette not them that are in other countreyes, enter therin. For these be the dayes of vengeaunce, to fulfyll all that are writtē. But wo be to them that be wt chylde, & to them that geue sucke in those dayes: for ther shalbe great trouble in ỹ C lande, & wrath ouer all thys people. And they shal fal on the edge of the swearde, and shalbe led captyue into all nacios. And Jerusalem shalbe troden vnder foote of the gentyls, vntyll the tyme of thee gentyls be fulfylled.

✝ And ther shalbe sygnes in the sunne and in the mone, & in the starres: & in the erth, the people shalbe in sorowe perplexite, that they shall not tel which way to turne thē selues. The see & the waters shall roze, and mēnes hertes shal fayle thē for feare, and for loking after those thinges which shal come on the erth. For ỹ powers of heauen shal moue. And then shall they se the sonne of man come in a cloud wyth power & great glorye. When these thinges beginne to come to passe: then loke vp, & lifte vp your a*heades for your redemption draweth nye.

And he shewed thē a similitude: behold the fyg tree, & all other trees, when they F shout forth their budes, ye se & know of youre owne selues ỹ sommer is then nye at hand. So lykewise ye (whē ye se these thinges come to passe) vnderstād, that ỹ kingdō of God is nye. Verely I say vn to you: this generatiō shal not passe, tyll all be fulfylled. Heauen & erth shal passe but my wordes shal not passe. ✝

✝ Take hede to your selues, lest your hertes be ouercome with surfetting and dronkennes & cares of this worlde: & that, ỹ daye come on you vnwares. For as a snare shal it come on al thē that sit on the face of the erth. Watche therfore cōtinually & praye, that ye may obtayne grace to flye al this that shal come, and that ye may stand before the sonne of man. ✝

THe feast of swete bred drue nye which is called Ester, & the hye Prestes & Scribes sought how to kil him, but they feared ỹ people. Then I mat. xxvi. a mar. xiiii. a entred Satā into Judas, whose surname was Iscariot (which was of ỹ nōbre of ỹ. xii.) & he wēt his way & cōmuned wt ỹ hye prestes & officers howe he might betraye hi to thē. And thei were glad: & promised to geue hi money. And he cōsēted, & sought opportunite to betray him vnto them when the people were awaye.

✝ Thē came the day of swete bred, whē mat. xxvi. d Mar. xiiii. a of necessite the esterlābe must be offred. And he sent Peter & John saying: goo & prepare vs the esterlābe, ỹ we may eate. They sayd to hi. Wher wilt ỹ, ỹ we prepare? And he said vnto thē. Behold whē ye be entred into the citie, there shal a mā mete you bearing a pitcher of water, him folow into ỹ same house ỹ he entreth in, & say vnto ỹ good mā of the house. The master sayth vnto ỹ, wher is the gest chāber, wher I shal eate mine esterlābe with my disciples? And he shall shewe you a great parlour paued. There make redy. And they wēt & foūd as he had sayd vnto thē: & made ready the esterlambe.

And whē thee houre was come, he sate downe & the twelue Apostles wyth him. And he sayd vnto thē: I haue inwardly desyred to eate this esterlābe wythe you before ỹ I suffer. For I saye vnto you: hence forth I wyl not eate of it any more vntil it be fulfilled in the kingdō of god.

mat. xxvi. d mar. xiiii. & 1. Cor. xi. c ✝ And he toke the cup & gaue thanckes, & sayd. Take thys, and deuyde it amonge you. For I saye vnto you: I wyll not drincke of the frupte of the vyne, vntyll the kyngdom of God be come.

And he toke bred, gaue thākes, & gaue to thē, saying: This is my body which is geuē for you. This do in the remēbrāce of me. Lykewyse also, when they had supped, he toke the cup sayig: Thys cup is the newe testament in my bloud, which shall for you be shedde.

Yet behold, ỹ hand of him ỹ betrayeth me is wt me on the table. And thee sonne of man goeth as it is apoynted: but wo be to ỹ mā by whom he is betrayed. And they begā to enquyre among thē selues, which of thē it shuld be, ỹ shuld do that.

C mat. xviii. a marke. ix. c Luke. ix. f ✝ ‡ And ther was a stryfe amōg them, which of thē shuld be take for ỹ greatest. And he said vnto thē: ỹ kinges of ỹ gentyls raygne ouer thē, & they ỹ beare rule ouer thē, ar called gracious lordes. But ye shal not be so. But he ỹ is greatest amōg you, shalbe as the yōgest, & he ỹ is chefe, shalbe as ỹ mynister. For whether is greater, he ỹ sitteth at meat: or he ỹ serueth? Is not he ỹ sitteth at meat? And I am amōg you, as he ỹ ministreth. Ye ar they which haue biddē wt me in my temptatiōs. And I apoynt vnto you a kingdō as my father hath apoynted to me: ỹ ye may eate & drincke at my table in my kingdō, and syt on seates, and iudge the twelue trybes of Israell. ✝

And the Lord sayd: Simon, Simon behold Satan hath desyred you, to sifte you, as it were wheat: but I haue prayed for the, that thy faith fayle not. And whē thou art conuerted, strength thy brethrē. D mat. xxvi. e mark. xiiii. c And he sayd vnto him. ‡ Lorde I am redy to go with the into prison & to death. And he sayde: I tell the Peter, the cocke shall not crowe thys daye tyll thou haue thryse denyed that thou knewest me.

And he sayd vnto thē: when I sent you without wallet & scrippe & shoes: lacked ye any thing? And they sayd no. And he sayd to thē: but nowe he ỹ hathe a wallet let hi take it vp, & likewise his scrip. And he ỹ hath no sweard, let him sel his coote & bye one. For I saye vnto you, that yet that which is wrytē, must be perfourmed in me: ‡ euē wyth the wycked was he nō- mark. xv. f Luke. xxii. e Joh. xviii. e bred. For those thinges whych ar writtē of me, haue an ende. And they said: lorde: beholde here are two swordes. And he sayde vnto them: it is ynough.

And he came out, & went as he was wonte to moūte Oliuete. And the disciples folowed him. And when he came to the place, he sayde to them: prayе lest ye fall into temptacion.

And he gate him selfe frō thē, about a stones cast, & kneled down, & prayed, saying. Father yf ȳ wilt, withdraw this cup frō me. Neuertheles, not my wil, but thy ne be fulfilled. And ther appered an angel vnto him frō heuē, cōfortīg hi. And he was in an agony, & prayed som what lōger. And his sweat was lyke droppes of bloud, trickling downe to the ground
And he rose vp frō prayer & came to hys
disciples, & fōud thē sleping for sorowe, & sayde vnto them: why slepe ye? Ryse &
prayе, lest ye fall into temptation.

Whyl he yet spake: behold, ther came a cōpany, & he ȳ was called Judas one of the .xii. went before them, and prealed nye vnto Jesus to kisse him. And Jesus said vnto hi: Judas, betrayest ȳ ȳ sōne of mā wt a kisse? Whē they which were about him sawe what wold folow, they said vn
to hi: Lord, shal we smite wt sweardes.
And one of thē smote a seruāt of ȳ hyest preest of al, & smote of his right eare. And Jesus āswered & said, suffer ye thus far forth. And he touched hys eare, & healed him. Thē Jesus sayd vnto ȳ hie prestes were come to him. Be ye come out, as vn to a theфe wt sweardes & staues? When I was dayly wt you in the tēple, ye stret is euē youre verye houre, & the power of darknes. Thē toke they hym, & led hym, & brought him to the hye Prestes house.

And Peter folowed a farre of.

Whē they had kyndled a fyre in ȳ mid des of ȳ palis, & were set down together Peter also sate downe amōge thē. And one of ȳ wenches, beheld him as he sate by the fyer, & set good eye sight on hi & said this same was also wt him. Thē he deny ed him saying: woma I knowe him not.
And after a lyttel whyle, āother saw him & sayd: ȳ art also of thē. And Peter said mā I am not. And about the space of an houre after, āother affirmed saying: ve-rely euē this felow was wt him for he is of Galile, & Peter sayde: mā I wote not what ȳ sayest. And immediatly whyle he yet spake, the cock crewe. And the Lorde turned back & loked vpō Peter. And Pe ter remembred the wordes of the Lorde,
how he sayde vnto hym, before the cocke crowe, thou shalte denye me thryse. And Peter went out and wepte bytterly.

And the men that stode about Jesus,
mocked hym, & smote hym, & blynfolded hym, and smoote hys face. And asked him saying: arede who it is ȳ smoote
the? And many other thinges despytful ly sayd they agayn st hym.

And assone as it was day ȳ elders of ȳ people & the hye Prestes & Scribes, ca-saying: art thou very chryst? tell vs. And he sayd vnto thē: yf I shal tel you, ye will not beleue. And yf also I aske you, ye will not āswere me or let me go. Herafter shal ȳ sonne of mā syt on the right hāde of ȳ power of god. Thē sayd they al: art

ȳ then the sonne of God? He sayd to thē:
ye saye ȳ I am. Then sayde they: & what nede we any further witnes? We ourselues haue herde of hys owne mouth.

The .xxiii. Chapter

And the whole multitude of thē arose, & led hym vnto Pi late. And they begā to accuse hi saying: we haue fōude
this felow perurrting ȳ peo ple, & forbiddinge to paye tribute to Cesar: saying, ȳ he is chryst a king. And Pi late apposed hym saying: art ȳ the king of the Jewes? He answered him & sayd:
thou sayest it. Then sayde Pilate to the hye Prestes, & to the people: I fynde no faute in this mā. And they were the more fearce saying. He moueth the people, teaching thorow out Jewry, and began at Galile, euen to thys place.

Whē Pilate heard mencion of Galile
he asked whether ȳ mā were of Galile.
And assone as he knew ȳ he was of He-rodes iurisdictiō he sent hym to Herode,
which was also at Jerusalē i those daies
And whē Herod saw Jesus, he was exce dingly glad. For he was desyreous to se hi of a lōge seasō, because he had hearde
many thinges of him, & trusted to haue sene some myracle done by hi. Thē questi oned he wt hym of many thiges. But he answered hi not one word. The hye prestes and Scrybes stode forth & accused him straytly. And Herode wyth his men of warre, despised him, & mocked hym, &
arayed him in whyte, & sent him agayne to Pilate. & And that same daye Pylate and Herod were made frendes to gether
For before they were at variaunce.

And Pylate called together ȳ hye pre stes & the rulers, & the people, & sayd vn-
to them: ye haue brought this man vnto me, as one that peruerted ȳ people. And behold I haue examined him before you and haue fōude no faute in this man, of those thinges whereof ye accuse him. No nor yet Herode. For I sent you to hym:
and lo nothing worthy of death is done to him. I wyl therfore chasten him & let him louse. & For of necessite, he must haue let one louse vnto them at that feast.

And al the people cryed atonce saying away with him, & delyuer to vs Barra-bas: which for insurrectiō made in they tie & morther, was cast in prison. Pilate spake agayn to thē wylling to let Jesus lowse. And they cryed saying: Crucifye hym, Crucify hym. He sayd vnto thē the thyrd tyme. What eupll hath he done? I fynde no cause of death in hi. I wyl therfore chasten him & lett hym lowse. & And they cryed wt a loude voyce, & required ȳ he might be crucifyed. And the voyce of them & of the hye Prestes preuayled.

And Pilate gaue sentence ȳ it shulde be as they requyred & let louse vnto thē, hym that for insurrectiō & morther, was cast into prison, whō they desyred: & delyuered Jesus to do with him what they wolde. & And as they led him away, they caught one Simō of Syrene, comīnge out of the felde: & on hym layde they the crosse, to beare it after Jesus.

And ther folowed him a great cōpany
of people & of wemē, which wemē bewayl led & lamented hym. But Jesus turned backe vnto them, & sayd: Daughters of Jerusalē, wepe not for me: but wepe for your selues, & for your children. For behold, ȳ dayes wil come, whē men shal say blessed are the barre & the wōbes that ne
uer bare & the pappes which neuer gaue suck. Then shal they beginne to say to the mountaynes, fal on vs: & to the hylles couer vs. For yf they do thys to a grene tree, what shalbe done to the dryе.

And there were two eupl doers led wt hym to be slayne. & And when they were come to the place, which is called Calua
ry, ther they crucifyed him & the eupl doers, one on the ryght hand & the other on the left. Thē sayd Jesus: father forgeue them, for they woote not what they doo.
And they parted his rayment, & cast lots
And the people stode & beheld. And ȳ rulers mocked him wt thē saying: he holpe other mē, let him helpe him selfe, yf he be chryst ȳ chosē of god. The soudiars also mocked him, & cam & gaue him veneger & sayd: yf ȳ be ȳ king of the Jewes saue thy selfe. And his superscriptiō was writ ten ouer hym, in Greke, in Latyn, & Hebrew: This is the king of the Jewes.

And one of ȳ eupl doers which hāged,
railed on him saying: Yf ȳ be chryst saue thy selfe & vs. The other āswered and rebuked him saying: Nether fearest ȳ god
because thou art in the same damnatiō?
We ar righteously punished, for we receaue according to our dedes: but thys mā hath done nothīg amisse. And he say de vnto Jesus: Lord remember me whē ȳ comest into thy kingdō. And Jesus say de vnto him: Verely I saye vnto the, to day shalte ȳ be with me in Paradyse.

And it was about ȳ sixt houre. And ther came a darknes ouer al the lād, vntil the ninth houre, & the sunne was darkened.
And ȳ vayle of the tēple dyd rēt cuē tho row the middes. And Jesus cried with a great voyce & sayd. Father, into thy hādes I cōmēd my spret. And whē he thus had sayd he gaue vp the goost. Whē the Cēturiō saw what had happened, he glo rified god saying: Of a surtye thys mā was pfect. And al ȳ people ȳ came together to ȳ sight, beholding ȳ thinges why che were done, smoote their brestes, & returned home. And al his acquayntāce, & the wemē ȳ folowed him frō Galile sto-
de a farre of beholding these thinges.

And behold ther was a mā named Jo seph, a cōcellour, & was a good mā & a iuste, & did not cōsent to the cōcel & dede
of the which was of Aramathia, a cytie
of the Jewes: whyche same also wayted
for the kingdō of god: he went vnto Py late & begged the body of Jesus, & toke
it down, & wrapped it in a linnen clothe,

& layed it in an hewē toūbe, wherin was neuer man before layed. ✠ And that day was ỹ saboth euen, & the Sabothe dzue on. The wemē ỹ folowed after which ca me wt him frō Galyle, beheld the sepul cre & how his body was leyed. And they returned & prepared odoures and oynt mentes: but rested ỹ Saboth day, accoz dynge to the commaundement.

And the one of them named Cleophas, answered & said vnto him: art thou only a straūger in Jerusa lem, & hast not knowē the thinges which haue chaūced therin in these dayes? To whom he sayd: what thinges?

And they sayd vnto him: of Jesus of Nazareth which was a prophet, mighty in dede & word before God, & al the peo ple. And it came to passe as he sate at meat with thē, he tokebzed, blessed it, bzake & gaue to thē. And their etes were opened & they knew him: and he vanysshed out of their sight. And they said betwen thē sel ues: dyd not our hertes burne within vs whyl he talked wyth vs by ỹ waye, & as he opened to vs the scriptures? And thei rose vp ỹ same houre, & returned agayn to Jerusalem, & found the eleuen gathe red together, & them that were wyth thē

As they thus spake ✠ Jesus him selfe stode in the middes of thē, and said vnto thē: peace be wt you. And thei were abas shed & afraid, supposyng that they had sene a spzete. And ye are witnesses of the se thinges. And beholde, I wyl send the Acts. i. a promes of my father vpō you. * But ta ry ye in the citie of Jerusalem, vntill ye be endewed with power from an hye.

And he led them out into Bethani, and Acts. i. a. mark. xvi. d lift vp his hādes & blessed thē. * And it came to passe, as he blessed thē, he depar ted from thē, and was caryed vp in to heuen. And they worshipped hi, and returned to Jerusalem wt greate ioye, and were con tynually in the tēple praysing & lawdynge God: Amen.

IN the beginninge was thee wozd, & the wozd was with God: & the wozd was God The same was in the begin ning with God. All thinges were made by it, and without it, was ma de nothinge that was made. And this is þ cōdēpnacion that lyght is come into the world, & the mē loued darkenes more then lyght, because their dedes were euil. ¶ The louyng communicacion of christ with þ woman of Samaria by the welles syde. How he healeth the rulers sonne.

The. iiii. Chapter.

AS sone as the lord had knowledg, how þ pharyses had hearde, that Jesus made & baptised mo disciples then John (thought that Jesus hi self baptised not: but his disciples) he left Jewry, & departed agayne into galile. And it was so þ he must nedes go thorow Samaria. Thē came he to a citie of Samaria called Sichar, besides þ possession that Jacob gaue to his sonne Joseph. And ther was Jacobs well. Jesus therfore weried in his iorney, sate thus on the wel. And it was * about the syxt houre, & ther came a womā of Samaria to draw water. And Jesus saide vnto her: geue me drinck. For his disciples were gone away vnto þ toune to bye meat. Thē sayd the womā of Samaria vnto him: how is it, þ thou being a Jew, askest drinke of me, which am a Samaritane? For the Jewes medle not with the Samaritans. Jesus āswered & sayd vnto hir: yf thou knewest the gift of god, & who it is that saieth to the geue me drink, thou wouldest haue asked of hym, & he wolde haue geuen geuen þ water of life. The womā sayde vnto him. Syr þ hast nothyng to draw wt, & thee well is depe: from whence then hast thou þ water of life? Art thou greater then our father Jacob which gaue vs þ wel, & he him self dranke therof, and his children, and his catel?

Jesus answered & said vnto hir: whosoeuer driketh of this water, shal thirste againe. But whosoeuer shal drink of þ water that I shal geue hi, shal neuer be more a thirst, but þ water þ I shall geue him, shalbe in hi a wel of water, springige vp into euerlastinge life. The womā said vnto hi: Sir geue me of that water, þ I thirst not, neither come hider to draw. Jesus said vnto her. Go & cal the husbā de, & come hither. And the womā answered & said to him. I haue no husbād. Jesus said to her. Thou hast wel sayde, I haue no husbād. For þ hast had .v. husbādes, & he whom þ now hast, is not thi husband. That saydest thou truely.

The womā said vnto him: Sir I perceaue þ þ arte a prophete. Oure fathers worshipped in this mountayne: & ye say þ in Jerusalē is þ place wher mē ought to worship. Jesus said vnto her: womā beleue me, þ houre cometh, whē ye shal neither in this mountayne nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the father. Ye worshypp ye wot not what: we know what we worship. For saluacīō cōmeth of the Jewes. But þ houre cometh & now is, when the true worshippers shal worship þ father in þ spyrte, & in trouth. For verely suche the father requireth to worship hi, God is a spyrte, & they that worshyp hi, must worshyp him in spyrte and trouthe.

The womā said vnto him: I wot well Messias shal com, which is called christ. When he is come, he wil tel vs al thinges. Jesus said vnto hir: I that speke vnto þ am he. And euē at þ poīt came his disciples, & merueled þ he talked wt thee woman. Yet no mā said vnto hi: what meanest thou, or why talkest thou with the her? The womā thē left her waterpot, & went her way into the citie, & said to thee men. Come se a mā which told me al thynges þ euer I did. Is not he christ? Thē they wēt out of the citie, and came vnto hym.

And in þ mene while his disciplz prayed him saying: Master, eate. He sayde vnto them: I * haue meate to eat, that ye know not of. Then said the disciples betwene thē selues: hath any mā brought him meat? Jesus said vnto thē: my meat is to do the wil of him þ sent me. And to finish his worcke. Say not ye: ther ar yet foure monethes, & then cometh harueste. Behold I say vnto you, lyft vp your eyes, & loke on the regions: for they are whyte alredy vnto harueste. And he þ repeth receueth reward, & gathereth frute vnto life eternal: þt both he þ soweth, & he that repeth might reioyce together. And herin is þ saying true, that one soweth and another repeth. I sēt you to repe þ whereon ye bestowed no labour. Other mē labored, & ye are entred into their laboures.

Many of the Samaritās of that citie beleued on him, for þ saying of the womā, which testified: he told me al thinges that euer I dyd. Thē when the Samaritans were come vnto him they besought hi, that he wold tary wyth thē. And he abode ther two dayes. And many mo beleued because of his owne wordes, & sayd vnto þ womā: Now we beleue not because of thy saying: for we haue herd hi ourselues, and know that this is euē in dede christ the sauiour of the world. ✠

After two dayes he departed thence, & went away into Galile. * And Jesus hi selfe testified that a prophete hathe none honour in his owne countre. Thē as sone as he was come into galile, þ Galileans receaued him whych had sene al þ thynges that he dyd at Jerusalem at the feest. For they wēt also vnto the feaste daye. And Jesus came againe into Cana of galile, wher he turned þ water into wyne.

✠ And ther was a certaine ruler, whose sōne was sycke at Capernaū. Assone as þ same herde þ Jesus was come out of Jewry into Galile, he wēt vnto hi, & besought hi, that he wold descend, & heale his sonne. For he was euen ready to die. Thē saide Jesus vnto him: except ye se tyngs & wōdres, ye cānot beleue. The ruler said vnto hi. Syr come away or euer that my child die. Jesus said vnto hi, go thy way, thy sōne liueth. And the mā beleued the wordes þ Jesus had spokē vnto him, & wēt hys way. And anone as he wēt on his way his seruātes met hym,

and..

& told him saying: thy child lyueth. The enquired he of them the houre whe he began to amend. And they said vnto him: Yester day ꝑ seuenth houre, the feuer left hi. And ꝑ father knewe that it was the same houre in which Jesus said vnto hi Thy sonne lyueth. And he beleued, & all his houshold. ✠ This is agayne the secõde myracle that Jesus dyd, after he was come out of Jewry into Galyle.

And Jesus said vnto hi: rise, take vp thi beed & walk. And immediatly the mã was made whole, & toke vp his bed, & wẽte. And ꝑ same day was ꝑ sabothe daye. The Jewes therfore said to him ꝑ was made whole. It is ꝑ Saboth daye, it is not lauful for the to cary thy beed. He ãswered the he ꝑ made me whole, sayd vnto me: take vp thy beed, & get ꝑ here. For Jesus had goten hi self awai, because ꝑ ther was preace of people in ꝑ place.

Then ãswered Jesus & said vnto them verely, verely I say vnto you: ꝑ sõne cã do nothig of him self, but that he seeth ꝑ father do. For whatsoeuer he doth, ꝑ doeth the sõne also. Then when ꝯ people sawe ꝯ Jesus was not ther nether his disciples, they also toke shippynge & came in Capernaum sekyng for Jesus.

And whē they had foūde hi on ꝯ other syde of ꝯ see, they said vnto him: Rabbi, whē camest ꝯ hither? Jesus āswered thē & said: verely, verely I saye vnto you: ye seke me, not because ye saw ꝯ myracles: but because ye ate of ꝯ loues, & were fylled. ✣ Labour not for the meate whyche perisheth, but for the meat that endureth vnto euerlatting lyfe, which meat ꝯ sonne of man shal geue vnto you. For hym hath god the father *sealed.

Then said thei vnto him: what shal we do that we might worck the workes of God? Jesus answered & sayd vnto thē. Thys is ꝯ work of God, that ye beleue on him, whō he hath sent. They sayd vnto hi: what sygne shewest thou thē, that we mai se & beleue the? what doest thou worcke? Oure father dyd eate Manna in the desert, as it is wryten: He gaue thē bryde from heauen to eate. Jesus sayde vnto thē: verely, verely I saye vnto you Moses gaue you not bred from heauē: but my father geueth you the true bryde frō heauen. For the a*bryde of god is he which cōmeth downe frō heauē, and geueth lyfe vnto the worlde.

Thē said they vnto him: lord, euer more geue vs this bred. And Jesus said vnto thē: I am ꝯ bryde of lyfe. He that cometh to me shall not honger: and he that beleueth on me shal neuer thirst. ✣ But I saye vnto you: ꝯ ye haue sene me, & yet beleue not. All that the father geueth me shal come to me: & him that cometh to me, I cast not away. For I cam downe frō heuen: not to do myne owne wyll, but hys wil which hath sent me. And thys is the fathers wil which hath sente me, that of al which he hath geuē me, I shuld loose nothing: but shuld rayse it vp agayne at ꝯ last day. And this is ꝯ wil of hi ꝯ sent me: ꝯ euery mā which seith the sōne & beleueth on hi, haue euerlastig lyfe. And I wil rayse him vp at ꝯ last day. The Jewes thē murmured at hi, because he sayde: I am that bred which is come doune frō heuē. And they said: Is not this Jesus the sōne of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that he saieth, I came doune frō heuē. Jesus āswered & said vnto thē. Murmur not betwene your selues. ✣ ✣ No mā can come to me except ꝯ father which hath sēte me drawe hi. And I wyll rayse him vp at ꝯ last day. It is wrytē in ꝯ prophetes, that they shalbe al taught of god. Euery mā ther fore that hath herd & hath larned of the father cometh vnto me. Not that any mā hath sene ꝯ father, saue he which is of god, the same hath sene the father.

Verely verely I say vnto you, he that beleueth on me, hath euerlasting lyfe. I am that bryde of lyfe. Your fathers dyd eate Manna in the wyldernesse and are dead. This is that bred which commeth from heuen that he whych eatethe of it, shuld also not dye. I am that lyuing bryde which came downe from heuen. If any mā eate of this bred, he shal liue for euer. And the brede that I wyll geue is my flesh, which I wyl geue for thee lyfe of the worlde. ✣

And the Jewes stroue amōg them selues saying: How cā thys felow geue his flesh to eate? Then Jesus said vnto thē. ✣ Verely, verely I say vnto you, excepte ye eat ꝯ flesh of ꝯ sonne of mā & dyncke his bloude, ye shal not haue life in you. Whosoeuer eateth my flesh & dynkethe my bloud, hath eternal life, & I wyl rayse hi vp at the last day. ✣ For my flesh is meat in dede: & my bloud is dynk in dede. He that eateth my flesh & dynkethe my bloud, dwelleth in me & I in him. As the lyuing father hath sent me, euē so lyue I by my father: and he that eateth me shal lyue by me. Thys is the bred whych came frō heauē: not as your fathers haue eaten Manna & are dead. He ꝯ eateth of this bread, shal lyue euer. ✣

These thinges said he in the synagoge as he taught in Capernaū. Many therfore of his disciples: whē they had herde this, sayd: this is an hard saying: who cā abyde ꝯ hearing of it? Jesus knew in hi selfe, ꝯ his disciples murmured at it, and sayd vnto thē: b* Doth this offend you? What & yf ye shal se the sonne of mā ascende vp where he was before? It is the spirete ꝯ quickeneth, ꝯ flesche profeteth no thing. The wordes ꝯ I speake vnto you are spirete and lyfe. But ther are some of you that beleue not. For Jesus knew frō the beginning, which they were that beleued not, & who shulde betraye him. And he sayd: therfore sayde I vnto you: that noman can come vnto me, except it were geuen vnto him of my father.

Frō ꝯ tyme many of his disciples went backe & walked no more with him. Thē sayd Jesus to the twelue: wyl ye also go away? Thē Simō Peter āswered: Master to whō shall we go? Thou haste the wordes of eternall lyfe, ‡ and we beleue & know that thou art Christ the sonne of the lyuing God. Jesus answered thē: Haue not I chosen you twelue, & yet one of you is a deuyll? He spake it of Judas Iscariot the sonne of Symon. For he it was that shoulde betraye hym, and was one of the twelue. ✣

AFter that, Jesus went aboute into Galile, & wolde not go about in Jewry for the Jewes sought to kyl hi. The Jewes tabernacle feast was at hand. Hys brethrē therfore sayd vnto him: get the hence & go into Jewrye that thy disciples may se thy workes ꝯ thou doest. For ther is nomā ꝯ doeth any thinge secretly, & he him selfe seketh to be knowen openly. Yf thou do soch thinges, shewe thy selfe to the world. For as yet hys brethren beleued not in hym.

Thē Jesus sayd vnto thē: My tyme is not yet come: but your tyme is allway redy. The world cānot hate you. But me it hateth: because I testifye of it, that the workes of it ar euyl. Go ye vp vnto this feast. I wil not go vp yet vnto this feast for my tyme is not yet full come. These wordes he sayd vnto thē, & abode styl in Galile. But as sone as his a*brethrē were gone vp, thē wēt he also vp vnto ꝯ feast: not openly, but as it were preuelt. Thē sought hi the Jewes at the feast: & sayde: where is he. And moche murmuringe was ther of him amōg ꝯ people. Some said: He is good. Other said nay, but he deceaueth ꝯ people. Howbeit no mā spake openly of him, for feare of ꝯ Jewes. ✣

In ꝯ middes of the feast, Jesus wēt vp into the tēple & taught. And ꝯ Jewes marueled sayig: How knoweth he ꝯ scriptures, seyng ꝯ he neuer learned? Jesus āswered thē, & sayd: My doctrine is not myne: but his ꝯ sent me: If any mā wyll do his‡ wyll, he shal know of ꝯ doctrine, whether it be of god, or whether I speake of my self. He ꝯ speaketh of hym self, seketh hys owne prayse. But he ꝯ seketh his prayse that sent him, the same is true and no vnrighteousnes is in him.

He ꝯ loueth ꝯ wil of god to kepe his law: the same vnderstādeth the doctryne

Dyd not Moses geue you a law, and yet none of you b* kepeth the law? Why go ye about to kyl me. The people āswered & sayde: thou hast the deuyl: who goeth aboute to kyl the? Jesus answered & sayde to them: I haue done one worcke, and ye al meruayle. Moses therfore gaue vnto you circūcision not because it is of Moyses: but of ꝯ fathers: And yet ye on the Saboth daye, circūcise a man. Yf a mā on the Saboth day receaue circūcision without breaking of ꝯ law of Moses: disdayn ye at me, because I haue made a man euery whyt whole on the Saboth both day: Judge not after ỹ vtter apearaūce: but iudge righteous iudgement.

Thē sayd some of them of Ierusalē: is not this he whō they go about to kil? Behold he speaketh boldely, & they saye nothing to him. Do ỹ rulers know in dede ỹ this is very Christ? Howbeit we know this mā whēre he is: but whē christ commeth, noma shal know whence he is.

Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught saying: ye know me, & whence I am ye knowe. And yet I am not come of my selfe, but he that sente me is true, whō ye know not. I knowe hym: for I am of him, & he hath sent me. Thē they sought to take him: but no man layd handes on him, because hys tyme was not yet come. Many of the people beleued on him and sayd: whē Chrīst cometh, wyl he do moo myracles then thys mā hath done?

The Pharises heard ỹ the people murmured soch thinges about him. Wherefore the Pharises & hye prestes sent ministers forth to take him. Thē sayd Jesus vnto thē: Yet am I a little whyle wt you, & then go I vnto him ỹ sent me. Ye shall seke me, & shal not fynde me: & wher I am, thither cā ye not come.

Thē sayd the Jewes bet wene thē selues: whither wyll he go, that we shall not fynde him? Wyl he go amōg the gentils which are scattered al abroade, & teache the gentiles: What maner of saying is this ỹ he sayd: ye shall seke me, & shal not fynd me: and where I am, thither can ye not come?

In the last daye: the great day of the feast Jesus stode and cryed sayinge: Yf any man thyrst, let hym come vnto me, & drinke. He that beleueth on me, as sayth the scripture out of hys belly shall flowe ryuers of water of lyfe. This spake he of the spyrite whych they that beleued on hym, shuld receaue. For the holy ghost was not yet there, because ỹ Jesus was not yet glorifyed.

Many of the people, whē they heard this saying, sayd: of a truth this is a prophet: other sayd, this is christ: som sayd: shal christ come out of Galile? & Sayeth not ỹ scripture ỹ christ shall come of the sede of Dauid: & out of ỹ town of Bethleem where Dauid was? So was there dissenciō amōg the people about hi. And some of thē wolde haue take him: but no mā layde hādes on him. Then came the ministers to the hye prestes & Pharises. And they sayde vnto them: why haue ye not brought him? The seruātes answered neuer mā spake as this mā doeth. Then answered thē the Pharisis: ar ye also deceaued? Doth any of the rulers or of the pharises beleue on hi? But the comē people which know not ỹ law, ar cursed. Nicodemus sayd vnto thē: he ỹ came to Jesus by nyght, & was one of them. Doth our law iudge any mā before it heare hi, and know what he hath done? They answered & sayd vnto him: art thou also of Galile? Search & loke, for out of Galile aryseth no Prophete. And euery man went vnto his owne house.

The. viii. Chapter.

AND Jesus went vnto mount Oliuete, & erly in the mornin ge came agayn into the temple & al the people came vnto him, & he sate downe and taught thē. And the Scribes & phatises brought vnto him a womā taken in aduoutry, & set hyr in the middes & said vnto him: Master, this womā was take in aduoutry, euē as the dede was adoyng. Luke. xx.

shuld be stoned. What sayest thou therfore? And this they sayd to tempt him: ỹ they might haue wherof to accuse hym. Jesus stouped downe, & with his finger wrote on the groūd. And whyle they cōtinued asking him, he lyft hym selfe vp, & sayd vnto thē: let him ỹ is among you without synne, cast the first stone at her. And agayne he stowped downe & wrote on the ground. And as sone as thei heard de that, they wēt out one by one, ỹ eldest fyrst. And Jesus was left alone, & ỹ woman standing in the middes. When Jesus had lyft vp hym self agayne, & saw noo man, but the woman, he sayde vnto hyr: woman where are those thyne accusers? hathe noo man condempned thee?

She sayd: No man Lorde. And Jesus sayd: Neither do I condēpne thee. a* Go, and synne no more.

Then spake Jesus agayne vnto thē saying: I am the light of ỹ worlde. He ỹ folowith me, shal not walke in darknes: but shal haue the light of lyfe. The Pharises sayd vnto him: ỹ beares record of thy self, thy record is not true. Jesus answered & sayd vnto thē: though I beare record of my selfe yet my record is true: for I know whēce I cam & whether I go. But ye cānot tel whēce I come & whither I go. Ye iudge after ỹ flesche, I iudge no mā. And yf I iudge, my iudgemēt is true. For I am not alone: but I & the father ỹ sent me. It is also writtē in your lawe, ỹ the testimony of two mē is true. I am one ỹ bare witnes of my selfe, & the father ỹ sent me, beareth witnes of me. Thē sayde they vnto him: wher is thy father? Jesus answered: ye nether know me, nor yet my father, yf ye had knowē me, ye shuld haue knowē my father also. These wordes spake Jesus in ỹ treasury, as he taught in the tēple, & no mā layde hādes on him, for his tyme was not yet come.

Then sayd Jesus agayne vnto them: I go my way, & ye shal seke me, & shal dye in your synnes. Whyther I go, thyther can ye not come. Then sayd the Jewes: wyl he kyl hym self, because he sayeth, whether I go, thether can ye not come? And he sayd vnto them: ye are from beneth, I am from aboue. Ye ar of thys world, I am not of this worlde. I sayde therfore vnto you, that ye shal die in your synnes. For except ye beleue that I am he, ye shal dye in your synnes.

Then sayd they vnto him, who art ỹ? And Jesus sayd vnto thē: Euē the very same thinge ỹ I saye vnto you. I haue many thinges to saye, & to iudge of you. Yea & he that sent me is true. And I speake in ỹ world, those thinges which I haue heard of him. Howbeit they vnderstode not that he spake of his father. Then sayd Jesus vnto thē: when ye haue lyfte vp an hye ỹ sonne of mā, thē shal ye know that I am he, & that I do nothinge of my selfe: but as my father hath taughte me, euē so I spake: and he that sent me, is wt me. The father hath not left me alone, for I do alwayse those thinges that please him. As he spake these wordes many beleued on him.

Then sayde Jesus to those Jewes which beleued on him. Yf ye continue in my wordes, then ar ye my very disciples and shal know the truth: & the truth shal make you free. They ānswered hym: We be Abrahās sede, and were neuer bonde to any mā: why sayest thou then, ye shal be made free.

Jesus answered thē: verely, & verely I saye vnto you ỹ whosoeuer committeth synne, is the seruāt of sinne. And the seruāt abideth not in ỹ house for euer: But the sonne abideth euer. Yf the sonne therfore shal make you free, then ar ye free in dede. I know ỹ ye ar Abrahās sede: but ye seke meanes to kil me, because my sayinges haue noo place in you. I speake ỹ I haue sene with my father: & ye do that which ye haue sene wt your father. Thei ānswered & said vnto him: Abrahā is our father. Jesus sayd vnto thē: Yf ye were Abrahās children ye wold do the dedes of Abrahā. But now ye go about to kyl me, a mā ỹ haue tolde you ỹ truth which I haue herde of god: this dyd not Abrahā. Ye do ỹ dedes of your father. Then sayd they to hi: we were not borne of fornication. We haue one father, whych is god. Jesus said vnto them: yf god were your father, thē wolde ye loue me. For I proceaded forth & come frō God. Nether came I of my selfe, but he sent me. Why do ye not know my speach? Euē because ye cānot abyde the hearing of my word.

Ye are of your father the deuyl, & the lustes of your father ye will do. He was a murtherer frō the beginning, & abode not in the truth, because ther is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lye, thē speaketh he of his owne. For he is a lyar, & ỹ father ther of. And because I tel you the trueth, therfore ye beleue me not.

Which of you cā rebuke me of synne? Yf I saye thee trueth, why do not ye beleue me? He that is of God heareth Gods wordes. Ye therfore heare them not, because ye are not of God. Then answered the Jewes & sayd vnto hi: Saye we not wel that ỹ art a Samaritan and hast the deuil? Jesus answered: I haue not the deuyl: but I honour my father, and ye haue dishonoured me. I seke not myne owne prayse: but there is one that seketh and iudgeth.

Verely, verely I saye vnto you, yf a man kepe my sayinges, he shal neuer see death. Then sayde the Iewes vnto him. Now know we that thou hast ꝑ deuil. Abraham is dead, and also the Prophetes and yet thou sayest yf a mā kepe my sayinge, he shal neuer taste of death. Arte ꝑ greater then our father Abraham, which is dead: & the Prophetes are dead. Whō makest thou thy selfe.

Iesus answered, Yf I honoure my selfe, myne honour is nothing worth. It is my father that honoureth me, whych ye saye, is your God, & ye haue not knowen hym: but I knowe hym. And yf I shuld saye, I know hym not, I shuld be a lyar lyke vnto you. ✠ But I know him, and kepe hys sayinge.

Youre father Abraham was glad to se my ✱✱daye, & he sawe it and reioyced. Thē sayd the Iewes vnto him: thou art not yet .l. yere olde, and hast thou sene Abrahā? Iesus sayd vnto thē: Verely verely I saye vnto you: yer Abraham was I am. Then toke they vp stones to caste at hym. But Iesus hyd hym selfe & went out of the temple. ✠

The .ix. Chapter.

AND as Iesus passed by, he sawe a man which was blynde from hys byrth. And his disciples asked hym sayinge: Master who dyd synne: this man or his father & mother, that he was borne blinde? Iesus answered: Neyther hath this man synned nor yet his father & mother: but ꝑ the workes of God shulde be shewed on him. I must worcke the workes of him ꝑ sent me, whyle it is day. ✱ The night cometh whē noman cā worke. As long as I am in the world, I am the lyght of the worlde.

As soone as he had thus spoke, he spatt on the ground & made claye of the spetle and rubbed the claye on the eyes of thee blynde, & sayd vnto him: Go wasche the in the pole of Siloe, which by interpretacion, sygnifieth sent. He went his waye & washed and came agayne sayinge. The neyghbours & they that had sene him before how that he was a begger, sayde: is not this he ꝑ late & begged? Some sayd this is he. Other sayd: he is lyke hym. C

But he hym self sayde: I am euen he. They sayd vnto him. How ar thine eyes opened then? He answered & sayde. The man that is called Iesus, made claye, & anointed mine eyes, & sayd vnto me. Go to the pole Siloe & washe. And I wēte & washed & receaued my sight. They sayd vnto hi: wher is he? He sayd: I cānot tel

Then brought they to the Pharises, hym that a lyttle before was blynde: for it was the Saboth daye whē Iesus made the claye & opened hys eyes. Then agayne the Pharises also asked him how he had receaued his syght. He sayd vnto thē: He put claye vpō myne eyes and I washed & do se. Then sayd some of thee Pharises: this mā is not of God, because he kepeth not the Saboth day. Other sayd: how can a man that is a synner, do soch myracles? And ther was stryfe amōge them. Then spake they vnto the blinde agayne. What sayest thou of hym, because he hath opened thine eyes? And he sayd: He is a Prophet. D

But the Iewes dyd not beleue of ꝑ felow, how ꝑ he was blind & receaued hys syght, vntyl they had called the father & mother of him ꝑ had receaued his syght And they asked them sayinge: Is this your sonne, whō ye say was borne blind How doth he nowe se then? Hys father & mother answered thē and sayd, we wote wel that this is our sonne, & that he was borne blind: but by what meanes he nowe seyth that can we not tel, or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tel. He is old ynough, aske hym, lette him answere for him self. Soch wordes spake his father and mother, because they feared the Iewes. E wes. For the Iewes had cōspyred al ready that yf any man dyd cōfesse ꝑ he was christ he shuld be excōmunicat out of the synagoge. Therfore said his father and mother: he is olde ynough, aske hym.

Then agayn called they the mā ꝑ was blinde, & sayde vnto him: Geue God the prayse: we know ꝑ this man is a sinner. He answered and sayd: Whether he be a sinner or no, I cannot tel: One thinge I am sure of, ꝑ I was blinde, & nowe I se, Thē sayd they to him agayn. What dyd he to ꝑ? How opened he thine eyes? He ānswered thē, I told you yer whyle, & ye did not heare. Wherfore wold ye heare it agayn? Will ye also be his disciples? Thē rated they him, & sayd: Thou art his disciple. We be Moses disciples. We ar sure that God spake with Moses. This felow we know not frō whence he is.

Thee man answered & sayd vnto thē: Why this is a meruelous thinge that ye wote not whēce he is, seing he hath opened my neeies. For we be sure ꝑ god heareth not a✱synners. But yf any mā be a worshipper of god & do his wyl, him heareth he. Sence ꝑ world began was it not hearde that any mā opened the eyes of one that was borne blind. Yf this man were not of god, he could haue done nothig. Thei answered & sayd vnto him: thou arte all together borne in synne, & doest ꝑ teache vs? And they cast hym out.

G Iesus heard ꝑ they had excōmunicate him: & assone as he had foūd him, he said vnto hym: doest ꝑ beleue on the sonne of God? He answered and sayd: Who is it Lord, ꝑ I might beleue on him? And Iesus sayd vnto him: Thou hast sene hym & he it is that talketh wt the. And he said Lord I beleue, & worshipped him. ✠ Iesus sayd: I am come vnto iudgemēt into this world: ꝑ they which se not might se, & they which se might be made blinde And some of ꝑ Pharises whych were wt hym, hearde these wordes and sayd vnto him: are we then blind? Iesus sayd vnto them: yf ye were blinde ye shuld haue no synne. But nowe ye saye, we se, therfore your synne remayneth.

Jewes roūde about him, and sayd vnto
him: How long doest ȳ make vs doute?
Yf thou be Christ, tel vs playnly. Jesus answered thē: I told you & ye beleue not
The workes ȳ I do in my fathers name, they beare witnesse of me. But ye beleue not, because ye ar not of my shepe. As I sayd vnto you: my shepe heare my voice
& I know thē, & they folowe me, & I ge-ue vnto thē eternal life, & they shal neuer perysshe, neither shal any mā plucke them out of my hāde. My father whych gaue them me, is greater then all & nomā is able to take them out of my fathers hāde
And I and my father are one.

Thē ȳ Jewes agayne toke vp stones,
to stone him withall. Jesus answered thē:
many good workes haue I shewed you
frō my father: for which of them wyll ye stone me? The Jewes answered hi saying For thy good workes sake we stone the not: but for thy blasphemye, & because ȳ ȳ being a man, makest thy self god. Jesus answered thē. Is it not writtē in your law. ✣ I say, ye ar gods? Yf he called thē Gods vnto whō the worde of God was spokē (& ȳ scripture cānot be brokē) saye ye thē to him, whō the father hath sanctified, & sent into the world, thou blaspemest, because I sayde I am the sonne of God? Yf I do not the workes of my father, beleue me not. But yf I do, thē thou ghe ye beleue not me yet beleue the wor-kes, that ye may knowe & beleue that the father is in me, and I in hym.

Agayne they wēte about to take hym:
but he escaped out of theyr hādes, & wēt awaye agayne beyond Jordan, into the place where Jhon before had baptised, & ther abode. And many resorted vnto him and sayde, John dyd no myracle: but all thinges ȳ John spake of this mā, ar true.
And many beleued on hym there.

The. xi. Chapter. ✣

Certayn mā was sycke, named Lazarus of Bethania
the towne of Mary & her sy ster Martha. It was that Mary which anoynted Jesus with oyntmēt & wiped his fete wyth her hayre, whose brother Lazarus was sycke, & his sisters sent vnto him saying Lord behold he whō thou louest, is sicke
When Jesus heard that, he sayde: thys infirmite is not vnto death, but for the laude of God, ȳ the sonne of God might be praysed by the reason of it. Jesus loued Martha & her syster and Lazarus.
Then after he had heard that he was sic
ke, yet abode he two dayes styll in the sa me place where he was.

Thē after ȳ, said he to his disciples: let vs go into Jewry agayne. His disciples sayd vnto him: Master, ȳ Jewes latelye sought meanes to stone the, & wilte ȳ go thyther agayne? Jesus answered, are ther not twelue houres in the day? Yf a man walke in ȳ daye, he stōbleth not, because he seyth the light of this world. But yf a mā walke in ȳ night, he stōbleth, because ther is no light in him. This said he, & af ter that, he sayd vnto thē: our frend Lazarus sleyeth, but I go to wake him out of slepe. Then sayd his disciples: Lorde yf he sleepe, he shal do wel ynough. Howe beit Jesus spake of hys death: but they thought ȳ he had spoken of the naturall slepe. Then sayd Jesus vnto thē playn-ly, Lazarus is deed, & I am glad for you re sakes, that I was not there, because ye may beleue. Neuertheless let vs go vnto hym. Thē sayd Thomas which is cal led Didimus, vnto ȳ disciples: let vs al so go, ȳ we may die with him. Thē went Jesus, & foūde ȳ he had lyne in hys graue foure dayes alreadye. Bethanie was nye vnto Jerusalē, about .xv. furlonges of, and many of the Jewes were come to Martha and Mary to comfor: thē ouer ther

their brother. Martha assone as she her de that Jesus was comyng, went & mett him: but Mary sate styl in the house.
✣ Then said Martha vnto Jesus: lor de yf thou haddest bene here, my brother had not ben deed: but neuertheles, I kno
we ȳ whatsoeuer thou askest of god, god wil geue it the. Jesus said vnto her Thi brother shal ryse agayne. Martha sayd vnto him: I know ȳ he shal ryse agayne in ȳ resurrectiō at the last day. Jesus sai de vnto her: ✣ I am ȳ resurrectiō & ȳ ly fe: he that beleueth on me, ye thought he were deed, yet shal he liue. And whosoeuer lyueth & beleueth on me, shall neuer die: Beleuest ȳ this? She sayd vnto hi:
ye lord, I beleue that ȳ art Christ ȳ son
ne of god whiche should come into ȳ worl
de. ✣ And assone as he had so sayde, she went her way & called Marye her syster secretly saying: The master is come and calleth for the. And she assone as she her de that, arose quickly, & came vnto him
Jesus was not yet come into the toune:
but was in the place wher Martha met him. The Jewes then which were wt her in the house & comforted her, when they saw Mary, that she rose vp hastely, and went out, folowed her, saying: She goeth vnto the graue, to wepe ther.

Then whē Mary was come wher Jesus was & saw him, she fel downe at his fete, saying vnto him: Lord yf thou had dest bene here, my brother had not bene deed. Whē Jesus saw her wepe, & ȳ Je-wes also wepe, which came wt her, he gro ned in ȳ spyrite, & was troubled in hi self & said: Where haue ye layed hym. They sayde vnto hym: Lorde come & se. And Jesus wept. Then said the Jewes. Behold how he loued him. And some of thē said: could not he which opened the eyes of the blind, haue made also, ȳ this man should not haue dyed? Jesus againe gro ned in him selfe, & came to the graue. It was a caue & a stone layde on it.

And Jesus sayd: take ye away ȳ stone.
Martha the syster of hi ȳ was deed, sai
de vnto him, Lorde by this tyme he stin keth. For he hath bene deed foure daies:
Jesus said vnto her: Saide I not vnto
ȳ, that yf ȳ oldest beleue: thou shuldeste se ȳ glory of god. Then they toke away the stone frō ȳ place wher the deed was layd. And Jesus lift vp his etes & sayd.
Father I thank the because that ȳ hast heard me. I wot that thou hearest me al wayes: but because, of thee people that stand by I said it that they may beleue,
that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus had spokē, he cryed
wt a loude voice. Lazarus come forthe.
And he that was deed, came forth, bouñ
hād and fote with graue bōdes, & his fa ce was bouñ with a napkin. Jesus sayd vnto thē: louse him, & let him go. Then many of ȳ Jewes which came to Mart, & had sene ȳ thinges which Jesus dyd, beleued on hi. ✣ But some of them went their wayes to ȳ Pharyses, & tolde them
what Jesus had done.

✣ Then gathered ȳ hye Prestes & the pharyses a coūcel and said: what do we:
This mā doth many miracles. If we let hi scape thus, al men wil beleue on him,
and ȳ Romaines shal come & take away
our coūtre & the people. And one of them named Caiphas which was ȳ hye preste that same yere, said vnto thē: Ye perceāne nothing at al nor yet consyder ȳ it is expediēt for vs, ȳ one man die for ȳ peo ple, & not al ȳ al ȳ people perisshe. Thys spake he not of hi self, but beīg hie prest
ȳ same yere, he prophesied ȳ Jesus shul-de die for ȳ people, & not for ȳ people on ly, but that he should gather togeather in one the childre of god which were scatte red abrode. ✣ Frō that dai forth theifield
a coūcel together, for to put hi to deeth.

Jesus therfore walked no more opēly among the Jewes, but wēt hys waye thēce vnto a coūtre nie to a wildernes, in to a citie called Ephraim, & ther hañted
wt his disciples. ✣ And the Jewes est er was nie at hād, & many wente out of the coūtre vp to Jerusalē before the ester, to purifi thē selues. Then sought they for Jesus, & spake betwene them selues as they stode in ȳ tēple: What thinke ye, sein ge he cōmeth not to the fest. The hie pre stes & pharises had geuē a cōmaūdemē te, that yf any mā knew wher he were, he should shew it, that thei might take hi.

The.xii. Chapter. ✣

A mat. xxvi. o. mar. xiiii. a luke. vii. f.

THen Jesus sixe dayes before
e ester, came to Bethani we re lazarus was, which was deed & whom Jesus raysed frō deeth. There they made him a supper, & Martha serued: but La zarus was one of thē that sate at the table wt him. Then toke Mary a pounde of ointment called Nardus, perfect and precious, & anointed Jesus fete, & wypte
his fete wt her heer & the house was fylled of ꝑ sauer of the ointmēt. ✱ Thē saide one of his disciples named Judas Is carioth Simōs sonne, which afterward
betrated hi, why was not this ointmente sold for thre hūdred pence and geuē to ꝑ poore. This said he, not ꝑ he cared for ꝑ poore: but because he was a theefe, & kep
te ꝑ bagge, & bare that which was geuē.
Thē said Jesus: Let her alone, againste ꝑ day of my burying she kepte it. The poore al wayes shal ye haue wt you, but me shal ye not al wayes haue.

B Moch people of the Jewes had knowledge that he was ther. And they came,
not for Jesus sake only, but ꝑ they myg-ht se Lazarus also whom he raised frō deeth. The hye prestes therfore held a coū cel that they might put lazarus to deethe
also because that for his sake many of ꝑ Jewes went a waye, and beleued on Je sus. ✣

What. xxi. a mar. xiiii. a luke. xix. f ✱ On the morow, moche people ꝑ were

Hosāna, blessed is he that in the name of got a yōge asse & sate theron, accordig to that which was writen: feare not daugh ter of Syon, behold thy kynge cometh

C syttyng on an asses coolt. These thinges vnderstode not his disciples at ꝑ fyrste:
but whē Jesus was glorifyed, thē remē-
bred they ꝑ soch thinges were writte of hi, & that soch thinges they had done vnto hi.
The people ꝑ was wt him whē he called Lazarus out his graue, & raised hi from people, because they heard that he hadde done soch a myracle. The Pharises ther fore sayde amōge thē selues perceaue ye how we preuayle nothinge? Beholde the worlde goeth away after hym.

Ther were certayne Frekes amonge

saida a citte in Galyle, & desyred him say ing: Syr we wolde fayne se Jesus. Phi answered thē saying: the houre is comeꝑ D

the sonne of man must be glorifyed.

✣ Verely verely I say vnto you, except worlde shal kepe it vnto lyfe eternall. Yf any mā minister vnto me, let him folowe me & wher I am ther shal also my minis-

hym wyl my father honoure. ✣

Nowe is my soule troubled, and what shal I saye? Father delyuer me frō thys

re. Father glorify thy name. Then came ther a voyce frō heauē: I haue glorifyed it & wil glorifye it agayne. Thē sayd the people ꝑ stode by & heard: it thoundreth.
Other sayd an angell spake to hym. Jesus āswered & sayd: this voyce came, not because of me, but for your sakes.

✣ Now is the iudgemēt of this worlde
now shal ꝑ prince of thys worlde be caste E
out. And I, yf I were lyft vp frō the erth

Jesus, signifying what death he shulde dye. The people āswered him: We haue heard out of ꝑ law ꝑ Christ byde eter
and how sayest thou then ꝑ the sonne of mā must be lift vp? who is that sonne of mā? Thē Jesus sayd vnto thē: yet a lyttle whyle is the lyghte with you. Walke whyl ye haue light, lest ꝑ darckenes come on you. He ꝑ walketh in the darcke, wotteth not whither he goeth. Whyl ye haue

the chyldren of the lyght. ✣

These thinges spake Jesus & departed & hid him self frō them. And thoughe he F had done so many myracles before thē,

yet beleued not they on him, ꝑ the saying of Esaias ꝑ prophet might be fulfilled
ꝑ he spake. ✣ Lorde who shal beleue oure saying? And to whō is ꝑ arme of ꝑ Lord opened? Therfore could they not beleue because ꝑ Esaias sayth agayne: he hath blinded they eyes & hardened they hert-es, ꝑ they shuld not se wt their eyes, & vn derstād wt their hertes & shuld be cōuer-

sayd Esaias whē he saw his glory, & spa ke of hi. Neuertheles amōg the chefe ru lers many beleued on hi. But because of ꝑ Pharises they wold not be a knowē of it, lest they shuld be excommunicate. For they loued the prayse ꝑ is geuen of men,
more then the praise that cometh of god.

And Jesus cryed & sayd: he ꝑ beleueth
on me, beleueth not on me, but on hym ꝑ sent me. And he ꝑ seeth me, seeth him that sent me. ✣ I am come a light into ꝑ worl
de that whosoeuer beleueth on me, shuld

re my wordes, & beleue not, I iudge him not. For I cam not to iudge ꝑ world: but to saue ꝑ world. He ꝑ refuseth me & receā ueth not my wordes, hath one ꝑ iudgeth
hi. The wordes ꝑ I haue spokē, thei shal iudge him in ꝑ last daye. For I haue not spokē of my self: but ꝑ father which sent me, he gaue me a cōmaūdement what I shuld saye, & what I shuld speake. And I know ꝑ this cōmaūdemēt is lyfe euer lasting. Whatsoeuer I speake therfore, basin, & ✱ began to washe his disciples

Then came he to Simon peter. And peter sayd to him: Lord shal thou washe

him: what I do, thou woteste not nowe, but ꝑ shalt know hereafter. Peter sayd vnto hi: ꝑ shalt not washe my fete whyl

shed, needeth not sauc to wassh his fete, & is clene euery whit. And ye ar clene: but not al. For he knew hys betrayer. Ther-

After he had washed their fete, & receā-

ꝑ I am he. Verelye verelye I saye vnto

Yf god be glorified by him, God shall also glorifye hym in him self: & shal straycht waye glorifye hym.

✠ Deare chyldrē, yet a litteli whyle am I w you. Ye shal seke me, & as I sayde vnto þ Jewes whyther I go, thyther can ye not come. Also to you I saye nowe. AND he sayd vnto hys disciples: let not youre hertes be troubled. Beleue in God, & beleue in me. In my fathers house are many mansions. Yf it were not so, I wold haue told you I go to prepare a place for you. And yf I go to prepare a place for you, I wyll come agayne, & receaue you euen vnto my selfe that where I am, ther may ye be also. And whyther I go ye knowe, & the waye ye knowe.

Thomas sayde vnto hym: Lorde we know not whether thou goest. Also how is it possible for vs to know the way? Jesus sayd vnto hym: I am the waye, thee truth & þ lyfe. And noman cometh vnto þ father, but by me. Yf ye had knowen me ye had knowē my father also. And now ye know him, & haue sene hym.

Philip sayd vnto him: Lord shew vs the father, & it suffiseth vs. Jesus sayde vnto him, haue I ben so longe tyme with you: & yet hast þ not knowē me? Philip, B he þ hath sene me, hath sene þ father. And howe sayest þ then: shewe vs the father? Beleuest þ not that I am in the father, & þ father in me? At the leest beleue me for the very workes sake.

Verely, verely I say vnto you, he that beleueth on me, the workes that I do, the same shal he do, & greater workes then these shal he do, because I go vnto my father. C He þ hath my cōmaūdemētes & kepeth them, the same is he þ loueth me. And he þ loueth me shalbe loued of my father: & I wil loue him, & wyl shewe myne owne selfe to him. Judas sayde vnto him (not Judas Iscarioth) lorde what is the cause þ thou wylt shew thy self vnto vs, & not vnto þ worlde? Jesus answered & sayde vnto him: yf a mā loue me, he wil kepe my sayinges, my father also wil loue hī, & we wyll come vnto hym, and wil dwelle wyth hym. He that loueth me not, kepeth not my sayinges. Yf ye loued me, ye wolde verely reioyce, because I said I go vnto þ father. For the father is greter thē I. And now haue I shewed you, before it come, þ whē it is come to passe, ye might beleue. C Ministers (or deacons) are ordened in ꝥ congregacion to do seruice in necessary things: of the boke, that ꝥ apostles may be waire only vpō ꝥ worde of God. Steuen is accused.

The. vi. Chapter.

IN those dates as the nōbre of the disciples grew, ther arose a grudge amonge the Grekes against ꝥ Hebrues, because their* wyddowes were despised in the daylye ministringe. Thē the twelue called ꝥ multytude of ꝥ disciples together & sayde: it is not mete ꝥ we shuld leaue the worde of god and serue at ꝥ tables. Wherfore brethre loke ye out amōg you seuen men of honest report & ful of the holy goost & wysdom, whō we may apoynt to this nedeful busynes. But we wil geue our selues cōtinually to prayer & to the ministratiō of the word. And the saying pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Steuen a mā ful of fayth & of the holy ghost, Philip and Prochorus, & Nichanor, & Timon, and Permenas, and Nicholas a cōuerte of Antioche. Which they sette before the Apostles, & they prayed and * layd their handes on them.

And the worde of God encreased, & the nōbre of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalē greatly and a great company of the preistes were obediēt to the fayth. + And Steuen ful of fayth & power, dyd great wonders & myracles among the people. Then ther arose certayn of the Synagoge, which are called Libertines & Syrenites, & of Alexandria, & Cicilia & Asia & disputed wyth Steuē. And they coulde not resyste the wisdom, & the spyrite, with which he spake. Then sente they in men, which sayd: we haue heard him speake blasphemous wordes agaynst Moses, & agaynst god. And they moued the people & the elders & thee scrybes: and came
D vpon him & caught him, & brought him to the cousel, & broughte forth false witnesses which sayd. This mā ceaseth not to speake blasphemous wordes agaynst this holy place & the lawe: for we heard him saye: thys Jesus of Nazareth shall destroye this place, & shal chaunge the ordinaunces whych Moses gaue vs. And all that sate in the counsel loked stedfastly on him, & sawe hys face as it had bene the face of an Angell.

The god of glory appered vnto oure father Abrahā whil he was yet in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, & said vnto him: * come out of the centre, & frō thy kired, & come into the land, whych I shal shew the. Then came he out of the lād of Caldey, & dwelte in Charran. And after that, assone as his father was dead, he brought hi into this lād in whych ye now dwel, & he gaue him none inheritaūce in it, no not the brede the of a fote: * but promised that he wolde geue it to him to possesse & to his sede after him, when as yet he had no chylde.

God verely spake on this wise, ꝥ hys seade shuld be a dweller in a straūg lāde & that they shuld kepe them in bōdage & entreate thē cuil. iiii. C. yeares. But thee naciō to whome they shalbe in bondage wil I iudge, said god. And after ꝥ shall they come forth and serue me in this place. + And he gaue him the couenāte of circumcision. And he begat Isaac, & circumcised him the. viii. day, & Isaac begat Jacob, & Jacob the twelue Patryarches. * And ꝥ Patriarkes hauige indignacyon sold Joseph into Egypt. And god was w him, & deliuered him out of al his aduersities, and gaue hi fauour and wysdom in the syght of Pharao kynge of Egipt which made him gouernr ouer Egipte, and ouer al his housholde.

‡ Then came ther a derth ouer al thee lād of Egypt & Canaan, and greate afflictiō, that our fathers foūd no sustenāce. But whē Jacob heard that ther was corne in Egipt he sent our fathers tyrst. ‡ And at thee seconde time, Joseph was knowē of his brethre, and Josephs kinred was made knowē vnto pharao. Thē sent Joseph and caused hys father to be brought & al his kinne, thre skore & x. soules. And Jacob descēded into Egipt and died both he & our fathers, and were trāslated into Sichem, and were putt in the sepulcre that Abrahā bought for money of the sonnes of Emor, at Sichem.

When the time of the promes drue nye (which god had sworne to Abrahā) thee people grew & multiplied in Egipt: tyl a nother king arose which knew not of Joseph. The same dealt suttelye with oure kinred and euil intreted our fathers and made thē to cast out their yōge childre that they shuld not remayne alyue. The same tyme was Moyses borne, & was a proper chyld in the syght of god, whych was norysshed vp in hys fathers house thre monethes. When he was cast oute, Pharaos daughter toke him, & norished him vp for her owne sonne. And Moses was learned in al maner wysdom of the Egyptians, and was myghty in dedes & in wordes.

And whē he was ful forty yeare old, it came into his hert to viset hys brethre, ꝥ childre of Israel. And whē he sawe one of thē suffre wrong, he defended him & auenged hys quarel ꝥ had the harme done to him, & smote the Egyptiā. For he supposed hys brethre wold haue vnderstande, how ꝥ god by his handes shuld saue thē
D But they vnderstode not.

And ꝥ next day he shewed hym self vn to thē as they stroue, & wold haue set thē at one agayne saying: Syrs, ye are brethre, why hurte ye one another? But he ꝥ dyd his neyghbour wrōge, thrust him away saying: who made the a ruler and a iudge amōge vs? What wilt ꝥ kyll me, as ꝥ diddeste the Egyptian yester daye? ‡ Thē fled Moses at that saying, & was a straūger in ꝥ land of Madian, wher he begat two sonnes.

‡ And whē. xl. yeres were expired, there appered to him in the wilderns of moūt Sina, an Angel of ꝥ Lord in a flame of fyre in a bushe. When Moses saw it, he wōdred at the syght. And as he drue nare to, behold, the voyce of the Lord came vnto him: I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abrahā & the God of Isaac, & the god of Jacob. Moses trēbled & durst not behold. Thē sayd the Lord to hym. ‡ Put of thy shoes frō thy fete, for the place where ꝥ standest is holy groūd. I haue
C wher ꝥ standest is holy groūd. I haue perfectly seen the affliction of my people which is in Egipt & I haue heard their groning, & am come down to deliuer thē. And now come and I wyll sende the in to Egypte.

This Moses whō they forsoke sayng: who made the a ruler & a iudge: ꝥ same God sent both a ruler & a deliuerer by the hādes of ꝥ Angell which appered to him in the bushe. And ꝥ same brought them

Our fathers had ye tabernacle of witnes in the wilderues, as he had apointed thē speaking vnto Moses, that he shuld make it accordyng to the fassyō that he had sene. Which tabernacle our fathers rece-

But he being ful of the holy gost, loked vp stedfastly wythe his eies into heuen, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the ryghte hād of god and said: behold, I se the heuens open, and the sonne of mā stādynge on the right hande of god. Then they gaue a shoute wt a loude voice, & stoped their eares & ran vpon him al at once, & caū him out of the citie, & stoned hi. And the witnesses layde downe their clothes at a yōg mānes fete named Saul. And they stoned Steuen calling on & saying: Lorde Jesu receaue my spyrite. How beit they that were scatered abrode, went euerye where preachynge the word. Thē came Philyp in to a cyte of Samaria, B

And many take wt palsyes, & many ye halted, were healed. And there was great ioye in that cytie. And there was a certayne mā called Simō, whych before tyme in the same citie, vsed witchcrafte & bewitched the people of Samarie, sayinge ye he was a man that could do greate thinges. Whō they regarded, frō the leest to the greatest, saying: this felowe is the great power of God. And him they sette C

But as sone as they beleued Philippes preaching of the kingdom of God & of the name of Jesu Christ, they were baptysed bothe mē and wemen. Thē Simō him selfe beleued also, & was baptised, & cōtinued with Philip, & wondred beholdinge the myracles and sygnes, whych were shewed.

† When ye Apostles which were at Jerusalē heard saye that Samaria had receaued the worde of God: they sent vnto thē Peter & John. Which whē they were come, prayed for thē that they myghte receaue the holt goost. For as yet he was come on none of thē: but they were baptised only in the name of christ Jesu. For I perceaue that thou arte full of bitter gall, and wrapped in iniquite.

Then answered Simon & sayd: praye ye to the Lord for me, that none of these thinges which ye haue spoke, fal on me. And they when they had testified & preached the worde of the Lord returned toward Jerusalem & preached the Gospel in many cyties of the Samaritans.

† Thē the angel of the Lord spake vn E

He was ledd as a shepe to be slayne: & lyke a lambe dōme before his sherer, so opened he not hys mouthe. * † Because of his hūblenes, he was not estemed: who shal declare his generatiō? for his lyfe is taken frō ye erth. The chā berlayn āswered Philip & sayd: I praye the, of whō speaketh the prophet this? of hym selfe, or of some other man?

And Philip opened his mouth, & begā at ye same scripture, & preached vnto him Jesus. And as they went on theyr way, they came vnto a certayn water, and the chamberlayne sayde: See here is water, what shal let me to be baptysed? Philip sayd vnto hym: Yf thou beleue wyth all G

And there was a certayne disciple at Damasco named Ananias & to hym sayd the Lord in a vysyon: Ananias? And he sayd: behold I am here Lord. And the Lord sayd vnto him: aryse & go into the strete which is called straight, & seke in the house of Judas, after one called Saul of Tharsus. For beholde he prayeth, & hath sene in a vision a mā named Ananias coming in to him, & puttinge hys handes on him, þ he myght receaue hys syght.

He said vnto hi. a* Thy prayers & thy almes are come vp into remembraūce before god. And now sēd mē to Joppa, & cal for one Simō named also Peter. He lodgeth wythe one Symon a tannar whose house is by the see syde. He shal tell the what thou ought best to do. When the Angell whych spake vnto Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his housholde seruātes and a deuoute soudier of them that waited on hym, and tolde them all thee mater, and sent them to Joppa.

B On the morow as they wēt on their iorney & drewe nye vnto the citie, Peter wēte vp vpō þ top of þ house to pray, about þ vi. houre. Thē were he an hōgred, and wold haue eate. But whyll they made redy, He fel into a traūce, and saw heue opened and a certayne vessel come downe vnto him, as it had bene a greate shete, knyt at the .iiii. corners, & was let downe to the erth, wherein were al maner of .iiii. C foted beastes of the earth, and vermen & wormes, & foules of the ayer. And there came a voice to hym: ryse Peter kyl and eate. But peter sayd: God forbyd Lord, for I haue neuer eaten eny thyng þ is comen or vnclene. And þ voice spake vnto him agayne the second tyme: what God hath clensed, þ make þ not comen. Thys was done thryse, & þ vessel was receaued vp agayne into heuen.

D While peter mused in hi selfe what this visiō which he had sene meāt: behold, the men men which were sent frō Cornelius, had made inquirāce for Symons house, and stode before ꝑ doze. And called out one & asked whether Symō whyche was also called peter were lodged ther. Whyl peter thought on this visiō, the spyrte sayd vnto him: behold, mē seke the: arise therfore, get ꝑ downe & go wt them, & doute not: for I haue sēt them, peter wēt down to the mē whych were sent vnto him frō Cornelius, and sayde. Behold, I am he whō ye seke, what is the cause wherfore ye are come. And they sayd vnto hi: Cornelius ꝑ captayne, a iust mā, & one that feareth god, & of good reporte among al the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holy angel to sēd for the into his house, & to heare wordes of the. Then called he them in, and lodged them.

And on ꝑ morow Peter went away wt them, & certaine brethren from Joppa accōpanyed him. And ꝑ thirde daye entred they into Cesaria. And Cornelius wayted for thē, & had called together his kinsmen, & special frendes. And as it chaunced peter to come in, Cornelius met him, & fel downe at his fete, & worshypped hi. But peter toke him vp sayinge: stād vp: for euen I my self am a man. And as he talked wt hym he came in, & fould manye that were come together. And he said vnto thē: Ye know how that it is an vnlawful thing for a man that is a Jew, to cōpani or come vnto an alien: but god hath shewed me that I shulde not cal any mā comen or vncliene: therefore came I vnto you without sayinge nay, assone as I was sente for. I aske therefore, for what intent haue ye sent for me.

And Cornelius sayd: This daye now fyll. dayes I fasted & at the nynth houre I prayde in my house: & behold, a mā stode before me in bright clothyng, & sayde Cornelius, thy prayer is hard & thine almes dedes are had in remēbraunce in ꝑ syght of god. Sende therfore to Joppa, & cal for Simon which is also called peter. He is lodged in the house of one Symō a tanner by the see syde, the whyche assone as he is come, shal speake vnto ꝑ Then sent I for the immediatly: & thou hast wel done for to come. Now at we al here present before god, to heare al thynges ꝑ ar commaunded vnto the of God.

Then Peter opened hys mouth & sayde: Of a trueth I perceaue, that god is not partiall but in all people he that feareth hym & worketh ryghtewesnes, is accepted wyth hym,

Ye know the preaching that God sente vnto ꝑ childrē of Israel, preachig peace by Jesus Christ, whych is Lord ouer al thinges. Which preachig was publisshed thorow out al Jewry, and beganne in Galile, after the baptime which John preached how god had anoynted Jesus of Nazareth wt the holy gost, & wyth power. Which Jesꝰ went about doing good, & healinge al ꝑ were oppressed of the deuels, for god was wt him. And we are witnesses of al thynges which he dyd in the land of the Jewes & at Jerusalē: whom they slew, & honge on tree. Him god reysed vp the third day, & shewed him openly, not to al the people, but vnto vs wytnes chosē before of god, which ate & dranke wt hi after he arose frō deeth. And he cōmaūded vnto vs to preache vnto ꝑ people & testifie, that it is he that is ordened of god a iudge of quick & deede. To him geue al the Prophetes witnesse, that thorow his name, al that beleue in hym shal receaue remyssyon of synnes.

Whyle Peter yet spake these wordes, the holy gost fell on al thē which herde ꝑ preaching. And they of the circumcision whych beleued, were astonyed, as manye as came wt Peter, because that on ꝑ Gētyls also was sheed out the gyft of ꝑ holy gost. For they heardethem speake wt tōges & magnyfy God. Then answered Peter: cā any man forbyd water, ꝑ these shuld not be baptysed, whych haue receaued the holy ghoost as wel as we? And he cōmaunded them to be babtised in ꝑ name of the Lord. Then prayde they him: to tary a feaw dayes.

AND ꝑ Apostles & ꝑ brethren that were thorowout Jewry hearde saye that the Gethen had also receaued the worde of god. And whē peter was come vp to Jerusalē, they of the circūcysyon reasoned wyth him sayinge: Thou wentest in to men vncircumcised, & atest wyth them.

Then peter began & expouded ꝑ thyng in order to thē saying. Into the which when I had fastened mine eies, I cōsydered and saw fower footed beastes of the earth, & bestes & wormes, & foules of ayer: And I herd a voice sayinge vnto me, arise peter, sley & eate. And I said: God forbyd lord, for nothing + comē or vncliene, hath at any time entred into my mouth. But ꝑ voyce answered me againe frō heuen, coūte not ꝑ those thinges comen which god hath cleansed. A THere were at Antioche, in ꝑ cõgregacõ certaine * prophetes & teachers: as Barnabas & Simõ called Niger, & Lucyus of Cirene & Manahen Herode the Tetrarkes norsfelow, and Saul. As they ministred to the lord and fasted, the holy goost sayd: separate me Barnabas and Saul, for ꝑ worke wher vnto I haue called thẽ. Then fasted they & prayed, ãd put their hãdes on thẽ, and lett them go. And they after they were sẽt of the holy goost, came vnto b Selecutia, and from thence thei sailed to Cipzus. ¶ Mariaunce about circūcision. The apostles pacifye the matter at Jerusalē. Paules Barnabas preache at Antiochie.

The.xv. Chapter.

Galat.v.a.

Then came certayn fro Jewrye, & taught the brethren except ye be circūcysed after y maner of Moses, ye cannot be saued. And when there was rysen dissension & disputinge not a lytle vnto paul & Barnabas, against the They determined y Paul & Barnabas, & certayn other of them should ascende to Jerusalē vnto the Apostels & elders about this question. And after they were brought on their way by ye cōgregation, they passed ouer Phenices & Samaria, declaring the cōuersion of the Gentyls, and they brought great ioye vnto al the brethre. And when they were come to Jerusalē, they were receaued of the congregatiō & of the Apostles and elders. And they declared what thinges god had done by thē. Then rose vp certayn of the secte of the Phariſes, which dyd beleue, ſayig that it was nedeful to circumcise them & to cmoyne them to kepe the law of Moſes. And the Apoſtles & elders came together to reaſon of thys matter.

And when ther was moch diſputinge, Peter rose vp & ſayd vnto thē: Ye mē & bzethzē, ye knowe howe y a good whyle ago, God chose amōg vs y the gentils by my mouth ſhulde heare the wozde of the goſpel & beleue. And god which knoweth the hert, bare thē witnes, & gaue vnto thē the holy ghoſt, euen as he dyd vnto vs & he put no difference betwene theim & vs, but with fayth  puryfied theyr hertes. Now therfoze why tempt ye god, that ye wold put a yocke on the diſciples neckes which nether our fathers noz we were able to beare. But we beleue y thozow the grace of the Lozd Jeſu Chriſt, we ſhalbe ſaued, as they do. Then all the multitude was pleaſed and gaue audience to Barnabas and Paul, which tolde what ſygnes & wonders God had ſhewed amonge the Gentyls by them.

And whē they helde theyr peace James anſwered ſayng: Men & bzethzen herke vnto me. Simeō tolde how God at y be gynning dyd viſyt y Gentils, & receaued of thē, people vnto his name. And to this agreeth y wozdes of the prophetes, as it is writtē. After this I wyl returne, & wil bylde agayne the tabernacle of Dauid which is fallē downe, & y whych is fallē in dekey of it, wyl I bylde agayne, and I wyl ſet it vp, y the reſydue of men might ſeke after the Lozd, & alſo y gētils  vpō whō my name is named ſayth y lozd, which doth al theſe thinges: knowē vnto god ar all his wozkes frō the beginning of the wozlde. Wherfoze my ſentence is that we trouble not them which frō amōge the Gentyls, ar turned to God: but y we wryte vnto them, that they abſteyne thē ſelues frō fylthynes of ymages, frō foznicatiō, frō  ſtrangled & frō bloud. For Moſes of old tyme hath in euery cyte that preache hym, & he is rede in y ſynagoges euery Saboth daye.

Then pleaſed it the Apoſtles & elders with the whole cōgregation, to ſend choſen men of theyr owne company to Antioche wyth Paul and Barnabas. They ſent Judas called alſo Barſabas, & Sylas whych were cheſe men among y bzethzen, and gaue them letters in theyr hādes after thys maner.

The apoſtels, elders & bzethzē ſend gretinges vnto y bzethzē which ar of y Gentils in Antioche, Syria & Cilicia. Foz as moch as we haue heard y certayn which departed frō vs, haue troubled you wt wozdes, & tōbzed youre myndes ſaying: Ye muſt be circumciſed & kepe the lawe, to whō we gaue no ſoch cōmaundement It ſemed therfoze to vs a good thinge, whē we were come together with one accozde, to ſend choſen men vnto you, with our beloued Barnabas & Paule, men y haue leoparded theyr lyues foz the name of our Lozd Jeſu Chriſt. We haue ſente therfoze Judas & Silas, which ſhall alſo tel you y ſame thinges by mouth. Foz it ſemed good to the holy ghoſt & to vs, to putno greuous thing to you, moze thē theſe neceſſary thinges: y is to ſaye, that ye abſteyne from thinges offred to ymages, frō bloud, from ſtrangled & foznication. Frō whych yf ye kepe your ſelues, ye ſhal do wel. So fare ye well.

Whē they were departed, they cam to Antioche & gathered the multitude toge ther, & deliuered the Pyſtle. When they had rede it, they reioyſed of y cōſolation And Judas & Silas being & pzophetes exhozted the bzethzē with moch preachinge, & ſtrengthed thē. And after they had taried ther a ſpace, thet were let go in peace of the bzethzen vnto the apoſtles. Not withſtāding it pleaſed Sylas to abyde ther ſtyl. Paul & Barnabas cōtinued in Antioche teaching & preaching the wozd of the Lozd wyth other many.

But after a certayn ſpace, Paul ſayd vnto Barnabas: Let vs go agayn & viſyte our bzethzen in euery citie where we haue ſhewed y wozd of y Lozd, & ſe how they do. And Barnabas gaue cōſell to take with them John, called alſo Mark But Paule thoughte it not mete to take hym vnto theyr cōpany which departed frō thē at Pāphilia, & went not wt thēto the wozke. And y diſſentiō was ſo ſharp betwene them, y they departed aſunder one from thee other: ſo that Barnabas toke toke Marcke and ſayled vnto Cypers. And paul chose Sylas & departed, delyuered of the bzethzē vnto y gracē of god And he went thozow al Syria & Cilicia, ſtabliſhing the congregations.

¶ Timothy is circūcyſed. Paul pzacheth at Philippos and ther is he put in pzeſon.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Then came he to Derba & to Lyſtra. And beholde a certayne diſciple was ther named Timotheus, a womās ſonne which was a Jewiſſe & beleued: but hys father was a Greke. Of whō repozted wel, the bzethzē of Lyſtra & of Iconiū. The ſame Paul wold y he ſhuld go forth wt hī, & toke & circumciſed hym because of the Jewes whyche were in thoſe quarters: foz they knew al y hys father was a greke As they went thozowe the cyties, they deliuered thē the decrees foz to kepe, ozdeyned of the Apoſtles and elders, whych were at Jeruſalem. And ſo were the congregations ſtabliſhed in the fayth, and encreaſed in nōber daylye.

Whē they had gone thozow out Phrigia & the region of Galacia, & were fozbidden of the holye ghoſte to preach the wozde in Aſia, they came to Myſia, and ſought to go into Bethynia. But y ſpyzet ſuffred thē not. Then they wēt ouer Myſia, & came downe to Troada. And a viſyon appered to Paul in y nyght. Ther ſtode a mā of Macedon & prayed him ſaying: come into Macedonia & help vs After he had ſene the viſyon, immediatly we prepared to goo into Macedonia, certified that the Lozd had called vs, foz to preache the goſpell vnto them. Then lowſed we forth from Troada, & wyth a ſtraight courſe came to Samothracia & the next day to Neapolim, & frō thēce to Philippos, which is the cheſe cytie in the partes of Macedonia, and a free cytie.

We were in y cytie abyding a certayn dayes. And on y Saboth dayes we wēt out of y cytie beſydes a ryuer where men were wont to pray. And we ſate downe & ſpake vnto the wemē which reſozted ther. And a certayn womā named Lidia a ſeller of purple, of the cytie of Thyatira, whych worſhipped God, gaue vs audience. Whoſe hert the lozd opened y ſhe attēded vnto y thiges, which paul ſpake Whē ſhe was baptiſed & her houſhold, ſhe beſought vs ſaying: Yf ye thincke y I beleue on y Lozd, come into my houſe and abyde ther. And ſhe cōſtrayned vs.

Leuit. xxiij. den. xxiiij. 1. Cor. xxviij

And it fortuned as we wēte to prayer a certayn damſel poſſeſſed wyth a ſpyrite that pzophelyed, met vs, which brought her maſter & maſtres moch vauntage wt pzophelying. The ſame folowed Paul and vs & cryed ſaying: theſe men are the ſeruauntes of the moſt hye God, whych ſhewe vnto vs the way of ſaluatiō. And thys dyd ſhe many dayes. But paul not content, turned about & ſayd to the ſpyrit I commaunde the in the name of Jeſu Chriſt, that thou come out of her. And he came out the ſame houre.

And when her maſter & maſtres ſawe that the hope of their gaynes was gone, they caught Paul & Silas, & dzue them into the market place vnto the rulars, & bzought thē to the officers ſaying: Theſe men trouble our cytie, whyche are Jewes & preach ordinaunces, which ar not lawful foz vs to receaue, nether to obſerue, ſeyng we are Romayns. And the people ran on thē, & y officers rent theyr clothes, & cōmaūded thē to be beaten wt rodes. And when they had beatē them ſoze they caſt them into preſon, cōmaūding y tayler to kepe them ſurely. Which tayler when he had receiued ſoch cōmaūdment thzuſt them into the vnner preſō, & made theyr fete faſt in the ſtockes.

At mīdnight Paul & Silas prayed, & lauded God. And the preſouers heardē thē. And ſodenly ther was a greate erthquake, ſo y thee foundatiō of the preſon was ſhakē, & by & by al y dozes opened, & euery mās bādes were lowſed. When the keper of the preſon waked out of his slepe & saw the preson doꝛes opē he dꝛue out hys sweard & wold haue kylled hym selfe, supposinge the presoners had bene fledde. But Paul cried wᵗ a lowde voyce sayinge: do thy selfe no harme, foꝛ we ar al here. Then he called foꝛ a light & sprang in & came trembling, & fell downe befoꝛe Paul & Silas, & bꝛought thē out & said Syꝛs what must I do to be saued? And they sayd: beleue on the Lord Jesus and thou shalt be saued & thy housholde. And they preached vnto him the woꝛde of the Lord, & to al that were in hys house. And he toke thē the same houre of the night & washed theyr woundes, & was baptysed wyth al that belōged vnto him straycht waye. When he had bꝛoughte them into hys house, he sett meate befoꝛe them, and ioyed that he wyth all hys housholde, beleued on God.

And when it was day, ꝑ officers sent ꝑ ministers sayinge: let those men go. The kepet of the preson tolde thys saying to Paul, the officers haue sent woꝛd to lowse you. Now therfoꝛe get you hence and go in peace. Then sayd Paul vnto them they haue beatē vs opēly vncondēpned, foꝛ al ꝑ we are Romayns, & haue cast vs into preson: & now wold they send vs away pꝛeuely? May not so, but lett thē come thē selues & fet vs oute. When ꝑ ministers told these woꝛdes vnto ꝑ officers they feared when they heard ꝑ they were Romayns, & came & besought them, and bꝛought thē out, & desyꝛed thē to departe out of the citie. And thei went out of the preson and entred in the house of Lydia and when they had sene the bꝛethrē, they comfoꝛted them & departed.

¶ Paul commeth to Thessalonica, wher the Jewes set the cytie on a roꝛe. Paul ꝛeasoneth, & commeth to Athens, where he preacheth the true and vnknowen God.

The .xvii. Chapter.

NOw they made theyr iourneye thoꝛow Amphipolis, & Apolonia, they cam to Thessalonica where was a Synagoge of ꝑ Jewes. And paul as his maner was went in vnto thē, & .iii. saboth dayes declared out of ꝑ scripture vnto thē, openīg & alleging ꝑ Christe must nedes haue suffeꝛed & ꝛysen agayn frō death, & that this Jesus was Chꝛist whō (sayd he) I preache to you. And some of thē beleued & came & cōpanyed wᵗ Paul & Silas: also of thee honourable Grekes a great multitude & of the chefe wemen, not a fewe.

But the Jewes which beleued not hauing indignatiō, toke vnto thē cupl men whiche were vagabondes, & geathered a cōpany, & set al the citie on a roꝛe, & made assaut vnto ꝑ house of Jason, & sought to bꝛing thē out to the people. But when they foūd them not, they dꝛue Jason and certayne bꝛethren vnto the heades of the citie cryinge: these, ꝑ trouble the woꝛld are come hyddet also whych Jason hath receaued pꝛeuely. & And these al do cōtrary to the decrees of Cesar, affirminge another kyng, one Jesus. And they troubled the people & the officers of the citie, when they heard these thinges. And when they were sufficientlye answered of Jason & of the other, they let them go.

And ꝑ bꝛethren immediatly sent away Paule & Sylas by night vnto Berrea. Which whē they were come thither, they entred into ꝑ Synagoge of the Jewes. These were ꝑ noblest of byrth amōg thē of Thessalonia, which receaued ꝑ woꝛde wᵗ al diligence of minde, & searched ‡ the scriptures dayely whether those thinges were euē so. And many of thē beleued: also of woꝛshipful wemen which were grekes, & of men not a fewe. When ꝑ Jewes of Thessalonia had knowledge that the woꝛd of god was preached of Paule at Berrea, they cam & moued ꝑ people ther And then by & by the bꝛethren sent away Paul to go as it were to the see: but Sylas & Timotheus abode there styll. And they that gyded Paul, bꝛought him vnto Athens, & receaued a cōmaūdemēt vnto Sylas & Timotheus foꝛ to come too him atōce & came their way. Whilepaul wayted foꝛ thē at Athens, his spꝛete was moued in him, to se ꝑ citie geuen to woꝛshipping of ymages. Thē he disputedin ꝑ synagoge wᵗ the Jewes, & wᵗ ꝑ deuout persons, & in the market dayly withthem ꝑ came vnto him. Certain philosophers of the Epicures & of the Stoyckz, disputed with him. And some ther were which sayd: what wyl thys babler saye? Other sayd: he semeth to be a tydinges bringer of new

of new deuyls, because he preached vnto thē Jesus & the resurrection. And they toke hym, and bꝛought hym vnto Marce strete sayinge: maye we not knowe what thys new doctrine wherof thou speakest is? foꝛ thou bꝛingest straunge tydinges to our eares. We wolde knowe therfoꝛe what these thinges meane. Foꝛ al the Athenians & straungers which were there gaue thē selues to nothing els, but ether to tell oꝛ to heare new tydinges.

Paule stode in the middes of Marce strete & sayd: ye men of Athens I perceaue ꝑ in al thinges ye are to superstitious. Foꝛ as I passed by & behelde the maner how ye woꝛship your goddes, I foūdan aulter wherein was writtē: vnto the vnknowē God. Whom ye then ignoꝛantly woꝛship, him shewe I vnto you: ‡ God ꝑ made the woꝛld & al that ar in it, seinge ꝑ he is Lorde of heauen & erth, he dwelleth not in temples made wᵗh hādes, nether is woꝛshypped wᵗh mennes handes, as though he neded of any thinge, seinge he him selfe geueth lyfe & breeth to all men euery where & hath made of one bloud al natiōs of men, foꝛ to dwell on al the face of the erth, & hathe assigned befoꝛe, howe longe tyme, & also the endes of theyr inhabitatiō, ꝑ they shuld seke God, yf they might fele & fynd him thoughe he be not farre frō euery one of vs. Foꝛ in him we lyue, moue & haue your being, as certain of your owne Poetes sayde. Foꝛ we are also hys generation. Foꝛ as moche then as a* we are the generation of God, we ought not to thinke that the Godhead is lyke vnto golde, syluer oꝛ stone, grauen by craft & ymagynation of man.

And the tyme of this ignoꝛaūce god regarded not. But now he biddeth al men euery where repente, because he hath appoynted a day, in the which he wyl iudge the woꝛld accoꝛding to righteousnes, by that man whō he hath apoynted, & hathe offered fayth b* to all men, after that he had rayſed hym frō death.

When they heard of ꝑ resurrectiō frō death, some mocked, & other sayd: we wil heare the agayne of thys matter. So Paul departed frō among them. Howbeit certayne men claue vnto Paul & beleued, amōg the whych was Dionisyus a senatour, and a woman named Damaris, and other wyth them.

The Notes

a* We ar hys generatiō &c. ꝑ is, we are come of him as of our father and maker.

b* Fayth is here taken foꝛ ꝑ promyses of mercy, which thoꝛow fayth saue vs: which promises after ꝑ resurrection of christ, god commaunded to be preached vnto al naciōs and not to the Jewes onely, as befoꝛe.

¶ Paul preacheth at Corinthū, continuing there a yere & a halfe, goeth agayne into Syria, cōmeth to Ephesus, Cesarea & Antioche. Of Apollos, Aquila and Priscilla.

The .xviii. Chapter.

AFter ꝑ Paule departed frō Athens & came to Corinthū & foūde a certayne Jewe named Aquila borne in Pontus, lately come frō Italie wᵗ his wife Priscilla (because ꝑ the Emperour Claudius had cōmaūded al Jewes to depart frō Rome) & he dꝛew vnto thē. And because he was of ꝑ same craft he abode wᵗ them & wꝛought: their craft was to make tentes. And he preached in the synagoge euery Saboth daye, & exhoꝛted the Jewes & the Gentyls.

When Silas & Timotheus were come frō Macedonia, Paul was cōstrayned by the spꝛet to testyfye to ꝑ Jewes ꝑ Jesus was very Christ. And when they sayd cōtrary & blaspheмed, he shoke his rayment & sayd vnto thē: your bloud vpō your owne heades, & frō hencefoꝛth I go blameleſſe vnto the gentyles. And he departed thence, & entred into a certayne mās house named Justus a woꝛshipper of God, whose house ioyned hard to thee synagoge. Howbett one Crispus ꝑ chefe ruler of the synagoge beleued on the Loꝛde wyth all hys housholde, and many of the Corinthians gaue audiēce, & beleued and were baptysed.

Then spake the Lord to Paule in the nighte by a vysyon: be not afrayed, but speake, & holde not thy peace: foꝛ I am wyth the, & noman shal inuade the ꝑ shall hurt the. Foꝛ I haue moch people in this cytye. And he contynued there a yeare & syx monethes, and taught thē the woꝛd of God.

Whē Gallio was ruler of ꝑ coūtre of Acaia the Jewes made insurrectiō with one accoꝛd against Paul, & bꝛought him to the iudgemēt seate, saying: this felow counteleth men to worshyp god contrary to the law. And as Paul was about to open hys mouth, Gallio sayd vnto the Jewes yf it were a matter of wronge, or an euyl dede (O ye Jewes) reason wold that I shuld be heare you: but yf it be a Questyon of wordes, or of names, or of your law, loke ye to it your selues. For I wyl be no iudge in soch matters, & he draue them frō the seate. Then toke all the Grekes Sosthenes the cheefe ruler of the Synagoge, & smote him before the iudges seate. And Gallio cared for none of those thinges.

Paul after this, taried ther yet a good whyle, & then toke his leaue of the brethren and sayled thence into Cirria, Priscilla & Aquila accompanying him. And he shore hys head in Cenchrea, for he hadde a vowe. And he came to Ephesus & left them ther: but he hym selfe entred into the Synagoge and reasoned wyth the Jewes. When they desyred hym to tarye longer tyme with them, he consented not, but bad them fare wel sayinge. I muste nedes at thys feast that cometh, be in Jerusalem: but I wyll returne agayne vnto you, yf God wyl. And he departed frō Ephesus and came vnto Cesarea: & ascended & saluted the congregation, & departed vnto Antioche, & whē he had taried ther a whyle he departed. And went ouer al the countre of Galacia & Phrigia by order, strēgthning all the disciples.

And a certayne Jewe named Apollos, borne at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, an eloquent mā, & myghty in the scriptures. The same was instructed in the way of the Lord, & he spake feruently in the spyrite, & taught diligently the thinges of the Lord, & knew but the  baptyme of Johan only. And the same began to speake boldely in the Synagoge. And when Aquila & Priscilla had heard him they toke him vnto thē & expounded vnto hym the way of God more perfectly.

And when he was disposed to go into Acaia, the brethren wrote exhorting the disciples to receaue him. After he was come thyther, he holpe them moche whyche had beleued throw grace. And myghtely he ouercame the Jewes, and that openly, shewynge by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ.

¶ Of the xii. mē who Paul baptysed at Ephesus & what miracles were done by him. Demetrius mouerth sedicion in the cyte.

The.xix.Chapter.

IT fortuned whyle Apollos was at Corinthū, that paul passed thorow the vpper coastes & came too Ephesus, & found certayne disciples, & sayd vnto thē: haue ye receaued the holy ghost sence ye beleued? And they said vnto him: nay we haue not heard whether ther be any holy ghost or no. And he said vnto thē: wherewith were ye then baptysed? And they sayd: * wyth Johns baptyme. Then sayd Paul: John verely baptysed with the baptyme of repentaunce, saying vnto the people that they shuld beleue on him, whych should come after hym: that is on Christ Jesus. Whē they heard that they were baptysed in the name of the Lorde Jesu. And Paul layd his hādes vpō thē, & the holy ghoste came on thē, & they spake with tonges, & prophesied, and all the men were about.xii.

And he wēt into the synagoge, & behaued him self boldely for the space of thre monethes, disputing & geuing thē exhortacions of the kingdō of God. But when diuers were hard herted & beleued not but spake euyl of the waye, & that before the multitude: he departed from thē, and separated the disciples. And he disputed daply in the scole of one called Tyrānus And this continued by the space of two yeres: so that all they which dwelt in Asya, heard the word of the Lorde Jesu, both Jewes & Grekes. And god wrought no smal myracles by the handes of paul: so that frō hys body, were brought vnto the sycke, napkins or partelettes, and the diseases departed from them, and the euyl spyrites went out of them.

Thē certayn of the vagabond Jewes exorcistes, toke vpō thē to cal ouer them which had euyl spyrites, the name of the Lord Jesus saying: We adiure you by Jesu whō paul preacheth. And ther were vii. sōnes of one Sceua a Jewe & cheefe of the of the prestes which dyd so. And the euyl spyrite answered & said: Jesus I know & Paul I know: but who are ye? And that mā in whō the euyl spyrite was, ran on thē, & ouercame thē, & preuayled agaynst them so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded. And this was knowen to all the Jewes and Grekes also, whyche dwelt at Ephesus and feare came on thē all, and they magnyfyed the name of the Lorde Jesus.

And many that beleued, came & confessed and shewed theyr workes. Many of thē which vsed curious craftes, brought their bokes & burned thē before al men, & they counted the pryce of them, & found it fifty thousand * syluerlinges. So mightely grewe the word of God, & preuayled. After these thinges were ended, Paule purposed in the spyrit, to passe ouer Macedonia & Achaia, & to go to Jerusalem saynge: After I haue bene ther, I must also se Rome. So sente he into Macedonia two of thē that ministred vnto him Timotheus and Erastus: but he him self remayned in Asia for a season.

The same tyme ther arose no little a do about that way. For a certayn man named Demetrius, a syluersmith, whiche made syluer schrynes for Diana, was not a little beneficiall vnto the craftes mē. Whych he called together with the workmen of lyke occupatiō & sayd: Syrs, ye knowe that by thys crafte we haue vauntage. Moreouer ye se & heare that not alone at Ephesus, but al most thorowe out al Asia, this Paul hath persuaded & turned away moch people saying that they be not godes which are made with hādes. So that not only this our craft cometh into perell to be set at naught: but also that the temple of the greate Goddas Diana shuld be despysed, & her magnificence shulde be destroyed, whyche all Asya and the worlde worshyppeth.

Whē they hearde these sayinges, they were ful of wrathe, & cryed out sayinge: Great is Diana of the Ephesians. And al the citie was on a roze, & they rushed into the comē hal with one assent, & caught Gayus & Aristarcus, men of Macedonia Paules cōpanyōs. When paul wolde haue entred in vnto the people, the disciples suffered hym not. Certayne also of the chefe of Asia which were his frēdes, sent vnto hym, desyryng hym that he wold not preache into the common hal. Some cryed one thyng and some another, & the cōgregation was al out of quiet, and the more part knewe not wherfore they were come together.

Some of the cōpany drue forth Alexander, the Jewes thrusting hym forth. Alexander beckened with the hande, & wold haue geuē the people an answere When they knewe that he was a Jewe, ther arose a shoute almoste for the space of two houres, of all men crying: greate is Diana of the Ephesians.

Whē the towne clarke had ceased the people, he said: ye men of Ephesus, what mā is it that knoweth not how that the cyte of the Ephesiās is a worshipper of the great goddes Diana, & * of the ymage which came frō heauē. Seing then that nomā sayth here against, ye ought to be content & to do nothing rashly: for ye haue brought hether these mē which are nether robbers of Churches, nor yet despysers of your goddes. Wherfore yf Demetrius & the craftes men which are with him, haue any saying to any mā, the lawes open, & ther are rulers, let thē accuse one another Yf ye go about any other thing, it maye be determyned in a lawful cōgregation. For we are in ieopardye to be accused of this dayes busynes: for as moch as ther is no cause wherby we may geue a rekenynge of this concourse of people. And when he had thus spoken he let the congregation departe.

The Notes

 wyth Johns baptime &c. The difference betwene the baptyme of John & the apostles was only this, that John baptysed thē to beleue in christ that was for to come, & the apostles baptysed thē to beleue in christ whych was come already & had suffred for the remission of the synnes of as many as beleued in hym.

 Of the ymage which came frō heauē They that made Images amōg the grekes, thinkēt to wynne more aduauntage ther by, fayned that they were sende from Jupiter forth of heuen, and that they were not mortall or subiect to death.

¶ Paul goeth into Macedonia & into Grece. He stode be craftely vp a dead bodye. At Ephesus he calleth the elders of the cōgregation together, admonisheth the keping of Gods flocke vnto them, warneth thē of false teachers, maketh his prayer with them, and departeth to Surye.

The.xx. Chapter.

A Fter thee rage was ceased. Paul called ỹ disciples vnto hym, & toke hys leaue of thē, & departed for to go into Macedonia. And when he had gone ouer those parties & geuen thē large exhortations, he came into Grece, & ther abode. iii. monethes. And whē ỹ Jewes layd wayt for him as he was about to sayle into Sirria, he purposed to retur ne thorow Macedonia. Ther accōpanied hym into Asia, Sopater of Berrea, & of Thessalonia Aristarcus & Secundus B and Gayus of Derbe, & Timotheus: & out of Asia Tychicus and Trophimus These went before, & tarryed vs at Troas. And we sayled away frō Philippos after the Eester holy dayes, & came vnto thē to Troas in fyue dayes, where we abode seuen dayes.

And on ỹ morow after ỹ Saboth day the disciples came together for to breake bread & Paul preached vnto thē (redy to depart on the morow) & cōtinued ỹ preaching vnto midnight. And ther were many lightes in the chāber where they were gathered together, & ther sate in a windo we a certayn ponge mā named Eutichus fallē into a depe slepe. And as Paul declared, he was the more ouercome wyth the slepe, & fel downe frō the vpper loft, and was take vp dead. *Paul wēt downe & fel on him, & embraced him, & sayd: make C nothing a do for his syle is in him. Whē he was come vp agayne, he brake bread and talked, & comened a longe whyle cuē tyl the morning, & so departed. And they brought the ponge man a lyue, and were not a lyttle conforted.

And we wente afore to shyp, & lowsed vnto Asson ther to receaue Paul. For so had he appointed, & wold him self go a fote. Whē he was come vnto vs to Asson, we toke him in, & cam to Mitilenes. And we sayled thēce, & cam the next daye ouer agaynst Chios. And the next day we arryued at Samos, & tarryed at Trogilion. The next day we came to Myleton: for Paul had determined to leaue Ephesus as they sayled, because he wold not spēd ỹ tyme in Asia. For he hasted to be (yf he could possible) at Jerusalē at the day of Pentecoste. Wherfore frō Myleton he sent to Ephesus, & called thee elders of ỹ D congregatiō. And when they were come to him, he sayd vnto thē: Ye knowe from the fyrst daye that I cam into Asia, after what maner I haue bene wyth you at al ceasons, seruing the Lord with al hūblenes of mynde, & with many teares, & tēptations which happened vnto me by the layinges awayt of the Jewes, & howe I kept backe nothing that was profytable but that I haue shewed you and taught you openly and at home in youre houses, witnesinge both to the Jewes & also to the Grekes, the repentaūce toward God and fayth toward our Lorde Jesus.

And now behold I go bounde in ỹ spyrit vnto Jerusalē, & know not what shal come on me ther, but ỹ the holy goost wytnesseth in euery cytie saying: ỹ bandes & trouble abyde me. But none of those thīges moue me: nether is my lyfe dere vnto my selfe, ỹ I myght fulfyl my course with ioye, & the ministration which I haue receaued of the Lord Jesu, to testifie the Gospel of the grace of God.

And now behold, I am sure ỹ hēceforth ye al (thorow whō I haue gone preachīng the kingdō of god) shal se my face no more. & Wherfore I take you to recorde f 11. Esay. iii. Dan. this. thys same day, ỹ I am pure frō ỹ bloud of al men. For I haue kept nothing backe: but haue shewed you al ỹ counsell of God. Take hede therfore vnto your selues & to al the flock, wher of ỹ holy ghost hath made you ouerseers, to rule the congregatiō of god, which he hath purchased wt his bloud. ‡ For I am sure of this ‡ Actum. xiii. c. ii. Corinth. xi. Gene. xlix. Jude. viii. ỹ after my departing shal greuous wolues entre i amōg you, which wil not spare the flock. Moreouer of your owne selues shal mē arise speaking peruerse thīges to drawe disciples after thē. Therfore awake & remēber, ỹ by the space of. iii. yeares I ceased not to warne euerye one of you both nyght & daye wyth teares.

And now brethē I cōmēd you to god & to ỹ word of his grace, which is able to G bilde further & to geue you an inheritaūce amōg al thē which ar sanctified. I haue desyred no mās syluer, gold, or vesture. Ye know wel that these handes haue ministred vnto my necessities, & to thē ỹ were Whē he had thus spoke, he kneled downe & prayed with them al. And they wept al aboundātly & fel on pauls neck, & kissed hym, sorowynge most of al for thee wordes which he spake, that they shulde se his face no more. And they accōpanyed him vnto the shyppe.

C Pauls iorney by shippe. Of philippe the Euāgelist. & Agabus the prophet, which warned paul not to go to Jerusalem. He remoyned stedfast in his purpose, and is taken in the temple.

The.xxi. Chapter.

A And it chaūced that assone as we had lauched forthe, & were departed from thē, we came with a straight course vnto Choon & the daye folowing vnto the Rhodi, & frō thence vnto Patara. And we founde a shyppe redy to sayle vnto Phenices, & wēt a borde & set forth. Then apered vnto vs Ciprus, & we left it on the left hande, & sayled vnto Syria & came vnto Tire. For there thee shyp vnladed her burthen. And whē we had founde brethren we tarryed there. vii dayes. And they told paul thorow ỹ spyrite, that he shuld not go vp to Jerusalem And when the dayes were ended, we departed & wēt our waies, and thei al brought vs on our waye, wyth their wiues & chyldren, tyll we were come out of the cytie. And we kneled downe in the shore & B prayde. And when we had take our leaue one of another, we toke shyppe, and they returned home agayne.

When we had ful ended the course frō Tyre we arryued at Ptolomaida, & saluted the brethrē, & abode wythe them one day. The next day, we that were of paul company departed & came vnto Cesarea And we entred into the house of Philip the Euangelist, which was one of the seuē deacones & abode wt him. Thee same mā had. iiii. daughters virgins, whyche C did prophesi. ‡ And as we taried there a Actum. xxi. d good many of dayes, ther came a certaine prophete frō Jurie, named Agabus. Whē he was com vnto vs, he toke pauls girdel, & bound his hādes a nd fete, & sayde. Thus sayth the holy goost: so shal the Jewes at Jerusalem bynd the man that owneth this girdel, and shal delyuer hym into the handes of the Gentyls.

When we herd this, both we & other of the same place, besought hi that he wold not go vp to Jerusalem. Thē paul āswered & sayd: what do ye weping and breaking mine hert? I am redy not to be bōde only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of ỹ lord Jesu. When we could D not turne hys mynde, we ceased, saying: the wyl of the lord be fulfilled. After those dates we made our selues redy, & wēt vp to Jerusalem. Ther went wt vs also certaine of the disciples of Cesarea, & brought wt them one Mnasō of Cipzus an old disciple wt whom we shuld lodg. And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren receaued vs gladlye. And on the morow paul went in wt vs vnto Jame. And al the elders cam together. And when he had saluted them, he told by order al thīnges, ỹ god had wrought amōg ge the gentyls by his ministracion. And whē they herd it, they glorifyed ỹ Lord, & sayd vnto him: Thou sest brother, how many thousād Jewes ther ar whyche beleue, and thei ar al *zelous ouer the law. *zelouste for gloriose, as a mā is ouer hys wyfe And they are informed of the, that ỹ teachest all thee Jewes whyche are among the gentylles, to forsake Moses, & sayst that they oughte not to circumcise their chyldren nether to lyue after the custumz. what is it therfore? The multitude must nedes come to geather. For they shall heare that thou arte come. Do therefore this that we say to the.

E * We haue. iiii. men, which haue a vow on them. Them take & purifie thy selfe Numerobi. wt them, and do cost on them, ỹ thei may shaue their heddes and al shal knowe ỹ those thinges whyche they haue herd cōcernynge the, are nothyng: but that thou thy selfe also walkest & kepest the lawe. For as touchynge thee gentyls which beleue we haue wrytten & concluded. that they obserue no soche thynges: but that they kepe thē selues from thīges offered to idoles, frō bloud, frō strāgled, & from fornicatiō. Then the next day paul toke the men, and purified hi self wythe them and entred into the temple: declarynge ỹ he obserued the dates of the purificatiō, vntil ꝑ an offering shuld be offered for euery one of them.

And as the seuē dates shuld haue bene ended, ꝑ Jewes which were of Asia whē they sawe him in the temple, they moued al the people, & layd hādes on hym crying: men of Jsrael, helpe. This is the mā ꝑ teacheth al men euery wher against the people and the law, & this place. Mo reouer also he hath brought grekes into the tēple, & hath polluted this holy place. For they saw one Trophimus an Ephesian wt him in the cytie. Hym they supposed paul had brought into the tēple. And al the citie was moued, & ꝑ people swarmed together. And thei toke paul & drue hym out of the temple, and forthe wyth the dores were shut to.

As they wēt about to kil him, tidinges came vnto the hie captayne of the soudiers, that al Jerusalē was moued. Wyth ch immediatly toke soudiers & vndercaptaines, & ran do wne vnto thē. When they saw the vpper captaine & the soudyers they left smiting of paul. Thē ꝑ captaine came neare & toke him, & cōmaunded him to be bound with .ii. chaines, & demaūded what he was, & what he had done. And one cried this, another ꝑ amōge ꝑ people. And when he could not knowe ꝑ certaintie for the rage, he cōmaunded hi to be caried into ꝑ castle. And when he came vnto a Greece, it fortuned that he was borne of the soudiers for the violēce of ꝑ people. For the multytude of the people folowed after cryinge: away wyth him.

And as paul shuld haue bene caried into the castle, he sayd vnto the hye captayne: may I speake vnto the? Which sayde: Cāst thou speake Greke? Arte not ꝑ that Egyptian which before these dates made an vproure, and ledde out into the wyldernes .iiii. thousand men that were moūtheters? But paul sayd: I am a mā which am a Jewe of Tharsus a citie in Cicil a Citesin of no vyle citie, I beseech the suffre me to speake vnto the people. When he had geuen him licence, Paule stode on the steppes, & beckened wt thee hand vnto the people, & there was made a great silence. And he spake vnto them in the hebrue tonge sayinge.

¶ Paul answereth the Jewes, is scourged, and layd in prison agayne.

The .xxii. Chapter.

Men, brethren & fathers, heare mine āswere which I make vnto you. Whē they herd that he spake in the Ebrue tong to them, they kept the more silence. And he said: I am verely a mā which am a Jew borne in Tharsus, a cytie in Cicil: neuertheles yet brought vp in this citie, at the fete of Gamaliel, & informed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, & was feruent minded to godwarde, as ye al are this same day, and * I persecuted thys waye vnto the deethe byndīg & delyuerīg into prison both men & wemē, as the cheefe preest doth beare me witnes, & al the elders of whom also I receued letters vnto the brethren, & went to Damasco to bringe them which were there bounde vnto Jerusalem for to be punished.

And it fortuned, as I made my iorney & was come nie vnto Damasco about none that sodenly ther shone frō heauen a great lyght rounde about me, & I fel vnto the erth, & herd a voyce sayinge vnto me. * Saul Saull, why persecutest ꝑ me? And I answered: what art ꝑ Lord? And he said to me: I am Jesus of Nazareth whom ꝑ persecutest. And they that were wt me, saw verely a light and were afraid: but they herd not the voyce of hi that spake wt me. And I said: what shal I do lord? And the Lord sayd vnto me: Arise & go into Damasco & ther it shalbe told the of al thynges which ar apointed for the to do. And when I saw not hige for the brightnes of the lyght, I was ledde by the hand of them that were wt me, and came into Damasco.

And one Ananias a perfect man, & as pertaynyng to the lawe hauing good report of al the Jewes which there dwelt, came vnto me, & stode and said vnto me: Brother Saul, loke vp. And that same houre I receued my sight & saw hi. And he said, the god of our fathers hath ordeined ꝑ before, that ꝑ shuldest know his wil, & shuldest se that which is rightful, & shuldest heare the voyce of hys mouth for ꝑ shalt be hys witnes vnto all men of

of those thynges, which thou hast sene & heard. And now: why tariest thou? Aryse and be baptised, and washe awaye thy synnes, in callynge on thee name of thee Lord. And it fortuned, when I was come agayne to Jerusalem & prayde in the tēple, that I was in a traunce, & saw him saying vnto me. Make haste, & gett thee quyckly out of Jerusalem: for they wyl not receaue thy witnes that thou beares of me. And I said: Lord they know that I presoned, & bet in euery synagoge thē that beleued on the. And whē the bloude of thy witnes Steuē was sheed, I also stode by, & cōsēted vnto his deeth & kept the raymēt of them ꝑ slew hym. And he sayd vnto me: depart, for I wil sende the afarre hence vnto the Gentyls.

They gaue hi audyēce vnto this worde, & then lyft vp their voyces & sayd: away wyth soch a felow from the erthe: it is pytie that he shuld lyue. And as they cried & cast of their clothes, & threw duste into the ayer, the captaine bad him to be brought into the castle, & cōmaūded him to be scourged, & to be examined, that he might know wherfore they cried on him And as they bound him wt thōges, paul said vnto ꝑ Centurion that stode by: Is it lauful for you to scourge a mā that is a Romayn & vncōdemned? When the Centurion herd that, he went and told ꝑ vpper Captayn saying. What intendest ꝑ to do? This mā is a Romayne.

Then the vpper captayne came, & said to him: tell me, arte thou a Romayne: he sayd: Ye. And the captayne āswered: with a great some obtayned I this fredō. And paul said: I was freborne. Thē straight way departed from hym, they which shuld haue examined hym. And ꝑ hye captayne also was afrayde, after he knewe that he was a Romayne: because he had bounde hym.

On the morowe because he wolde haue knowen thee certaintye wherefore he was accused of the Jewes, he lowsed hi from hys bondes, and commaunded the hye Prestes & al the councell to come together, & brought paul and sett hym before them.

¶ Paul cometh before the councel. Debate ariseth amōg the people, the Captayne deliuereth him, God comforteth hym.

The .xxiii. Chapter.

Paul behold the cōcel & say de: men and brethren, I haue liued in al good cōscience before God * vntyll thys day. The hye preest Ananyas cōmaūded thē that stode by, to smyte him on the mouth. Then said paul to hi: God smite the thou painted wal. Sittest thou and iudgest me after the lawe: and cōmaundest me to be smitten contrary to the lawe? And they that stode by sayd: reuylest thou Goddes hye preest? Thē said paul: I wist not brethren ꝑ he was the hye preest. For it is wrytten: ꝑ shalte not curse the ruler of thy people.

Whē paul perceued that the one parte were Saduces, & the other pharises: he cried out in the councel. Men & brethre, * I am a phariſay, the sonne of a phariſay. Of the hope & resurrection frō deeth I am Iudged. And when he had so said, ther arose a debate betwene the Pharisayes & the Saduces, and the multitude was deuided. For the Saduces say that ther is no resurrectiō, nether angell, nor spirite. But ꝑ pharisaies graūt both. And ther arose a great crye, and the scribes which were of ꝑ Pharisayes part, arose and stroue sayinge: we fynde none euyl in this man. Though a spirite or an angell hath appered to hym, lette vs not stryue agaynst God.

And whē ther arose greate debate, the captaine fearig lest paul shuld haue ben pluckt a sondre of them, cōmaunded the soudiers to go doune, & to take hi frō amōg them & to bring him into ꝑ castell. The nyght folowyng, god stode by him & sayd: be of good cheare paul: for as ꝑ hast testified of me i Jerusalē, so must ꝑ beare wytnes at Rome. Whē day was come, certaine of the Jewes gathered them selues to gether, and made a vow, sayinge, that they wold nether eat nor drynck tyl they had kylled paul. They were about .xl. which had made this cōspiratiō And they came to ꝑ cheefe preste & elders, and sayd: we haue bound our selues wt a bowe, that we wyll eate nothynge vntyl we haue slayne paul. Now therefore geue ye knowledg to the vpper captaine & to the councel, that he bryng him forth vnto vnto vs to morow, as though we wolde know some thyng more perfectly of him But we (or euer he come neare) are redy in the meane season to kyl hym.

When Pauls systers sonne heard of their layng a wayte, he went and entred into the castle, and tolde paul. And paul called one of the vnder captaynes vnto him, and said: bryng thys younge man vnto the hye captayne: for he hath a certayne thyng to shew him. And he toke hi & sayd: Paul the presoner called me vnto him, & prayed me to bryng this yonge man vnto the, whych had a certaine matter to shewe the.

The hye captayne toke him by the hād & went a part wyth him out of ȳ waye: & asked him: what hast thou to saye vnto me? And he said: the Jewes are determined to desire the that thou woldest bring forth paul to morow into the councel, as though they wold enquyre somwhat of him more perfectly. But folow not their myndes: for there lye in wayte for hym of them, mo then .xl. men, whyche haue bound them selues vnder a vowe, that they wyll neither eate nor drynke tyll they haue killed hym. And nowe are they redy, and loke for thy promes.

The vpper captayne let the yonge mā depart & charged hym: se thou tell it out to no man that thou haste shewed these thynges to me. And he called vnto hym two vnder captaines saying: make redy two hūdred soudiers to go to Cesarea & horsmen thre score & ten, & speare mē. ii. hundred, at the thirde houre of the night And deliuer them beastes that they may put Paul on, and bryng hym safe vnto Felix the hye debyte, and wrote a letter in this maner.

Claudius Lisias vnto the most mighty ruler Felix, sendeth greetynges. Thys mā was take of the Jewes, & shuld haue bene kylled of thē. Then came I wt̄ soudiers, & rescued him, & perceaued that he was a Romaine. And whē I wold haue knowē the cause, wherfore they accused hi, I brought hym forth into their coūcel. There perceaued I that he was accused of questyons of their lawe but was not gilty of any thyng worthy of death or of bondes. Afterward whē it was shewed me how that ȳ Jewes laid wait for the mā, I sent him straight way to the, & gaue comaundement to his accusers, yt they had oughte against him, to tel it vnto ȳ: fare wel. Thē ȳ soudiers as it was comaunded them, toke paul, & brought him by night to Antipatras. On ȳ morow they lefte the horsmen to go wt̄ him, & returned vnto ȳ castle. Which whē they came to Cesarea, they deliuered ȳ epistle to the debite, & presented Paul before hi. Whē the debite had redde the letter, he asked of what cōtre he was. And when he vnderstode ȳ he was of Cicil, I will heare the (saide he) when thyne accusars ar come also: & cōmaunded hi to be kept in Herodes pallys.

¶ Paul is accused before Felix, he answereth for hym selfe.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

After fyue dayes, Ananyas ȳ hye prest descended, wyth elders & wt̄ a certaine Oratour named Tartullus, and enformed ȳ ruler of Paul. Whē paul was called forth, Tartullus begā to accuse him saying: Seing ȳ we liue in great quietnes by ȳ meanes of ȳ, & that many good thinges are done vnto this nacīō thorow thy prouidēce: that alow we euer & in al places most might Felix wt̄ al thanckes. Notwythstādyng, that I be not tedcous vnto the, I pray the, that ȳ woldest heare vs of thy curtesy a fewe wordes.

We haue foūd this mā a *pestilent fe- *Psal. 58. b and. 119. b. low, & a mouer of debate vnto al the Jewes thorow out the world, & a maintainer of the sect of the Nazarites, & hathe also enforced to pollute the tēple. Whō we toke & wold haue iudged accordyng to our law: but the hye captayne Lisias came bpō vs, & with great violēce toke hym away oute of our handes cōmaundyng hys accusers to come to the. Of whom ȳ mayst (yf thou wylte enquyre) knowe ȳ certaine of al these thiges whereof we accuse him. The Jewes likewyse affyrmed, saying that it was euen so.

Thē paul (after that the ruler him selfe had beckened vnto hi that he shuld speake) āswered: I shal with a more quyete minde āswere for my selfe, for as moche as I vnderstād ȳ thou hast bene of many yeres a iudge vnto this people, because that thou maist knowe that ther ar yet but .xii. dayes sence I went vp to Jerusalem for to pray, & they nether foūd me in the temple dysputyng wyth any mā, ether raysyng vp the people nether in ȳ Synagoges, nor in the cytye: Nether cā they reproue thee thynges whereof they accuse me.

But this I cōfesse vnto the, that after the way (which they cal heresye) so worship I the god of my fathers, beleuing al thinges which ar writen in the lawe & ȳ prophetes, & haue hope towardes god, that the same resurrectiō of ȳ dead (which they them selues loke for also) shalbe, both of iust & vniust. And therfore studi I to haue a cleare conscyence towarde god, and toward mā also.

But after many yeres I came & brought almes to my people & offerynges in the which they foūd me purified in ȳ tēple, nether with multitude, nor yet wt̄ vnquietnes, howbeit ther were certaine Jewes out of Asia, whych ought to be here presēt before the, & accuse me, yf they had ought against me, or els lett these same here say, yf they haue founde anye cuyll doyng in me, whyl I stāde here in ȳ coūcell: except it be for thys one voyce, that I cryed standinge amonge them, of thee resurrectiō from deeth am I iudged of you thys daye.

Whē Felix herd these thinges, he defer de them, for he knew very well of ȳ way, & sayde: when Lysias the captayne is come, I wyll knowe the vtmoste of youre matters. And he commaūded an vnder captaine to kepe Paul and that he shuld haue rest, & that he shuld forbid none of his acquayntaunce to mynister vnto hi, or to come vnto him.

And after a certaine dates, came Felix & his wife Drusilla which was a Jewe, & called forth paul, and heard him of the fayth which is toward chryst. And as he preached of righteousnes, temperaūce, & iudgmēt to come, Felix trembled & āswered: thou hast done ynough at thys time, depart, when I haue cōuenient tyme, I will send for the. He hoped also ȳ money shuld haue bene geue him of paul, that he might louse him: wherfore he called hi the oftener and comened with him. But after two yere. Festus Porcius came into Felix roume. And Felix wilig to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, lefte Paul in prison bounde.

¶ The Jewes accuse paul before Festus, he appeale the vnto the Emperour, and is sente vnto Rome.

The .xxv. Chapter.

When Festus was come into ȳ prouince, after .iii. dayes, he ascended frō Cesarea vnto Jerusalē. Then enformed him the hye prestes and the chefe of the Jewes of paul. And thei besought hym and desyred fauoure against hym, that he wolde sende for hym to Jerusalē: & layde awayt for hym in ȳ way, to kyll hym. Festus answered that paul shuld be kept at Cesarea: but that he hym self wold shortly depart thither. Let them therfore (sayde he) which amōge you ar able to do it, come downe with vs and accuse him, yf ther be anye faute in the man.

When he had taryed ther more thē ten dayes, he departed vnto Cesarea, & thee next day sate downe in the iudgmēt seate, & cōmaunded Paule to be brought. When he was come, the Jewes whyche were come frō Jerusalem, came aboute hym & layd many and greuous cōplaintes against paul, whych they coulde not proue as longe as he answered for hym self, that he had nether agaynste the law of the Jewes, nether agaynste thee temple, nor yet against Cesar offended any thynge at al.

Festus willing to do the Jewes a pleasure āswered paul & saide: wylt thou go to Jerusalem and there be iudged of these thinges before me? Then sayd paul: I stand at Cesars iudgment seat, wher I ought to be iudged. To the Jewes haue I no harme done, as thou beryest wel knowest. If I haue hurte thē: or cōmitted any thyng worthy of deeth I refuse not to dye. If none of those thinges ar, wher of they accuse me, no mā ought to deliuer me to thē. I appeale vnto Cesar Then spake festus with delyberation: & answered. Thou hast apealed vnto Cesar: vnto Cesar shalt thou go.

After

After a certayne dayes, kynge Agrippa & Bernice came vnto Cesarea to salute Festus. And whē they had bene ther a good seasō, Festus rehersed paulscause vnto ꝯ kīng saying: ther is a certaine mā left in prison of Felix, about whom whē I came to Jerusalem ꝯ hye prestes & elders of the Jewes enformed me, & desired to haue iudgmēt against him. To whō I ānswered: It is not the maner of ꝯ Romains to delyuer eny mā, ꝯ he shulde perish, before that he which is accused haue the accusers before hym, & haue lycence to answere for him selfe cōcernynge ꝯ cryme layd against him: when they were come hider wout delaye on the morowe I sate to geue iudgmēt, & cōmaunded the man to be brought forth. Against whō whē ꝯ accusers stode vp, they brought none accusatiō of soch thinges as I supposed: but had certaine questions against hym of their owne superstition, & of one Jesus whych was deed whom Paul affirmed to be aliue. And because I douted of soche maner questiōs, I asked hym whether he wolde go to Jerusalem, & ther be iudged of these matters. Then when Paull had appealed to be kept vnto the knowledg of Cesar, I cōmaūded him to be kept, til I might send hym to Cesar. Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: I wold also heare the mā my selfe. To morow (said he) thou shalt heare hi. And on the morow when Agrippa was come and Bernice wythe greate pompe, & were entred into the coūtel house wyth the captaynes & chefe men of the citie, at Festus cōmaundement paul was brought forth. And Festus said: king Agrippa, & al men whiche are here presente wt vs: ye se this man about whom al ꝯ multytude of thee Jewes haue bene wt me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying that he ought not to lyue any leger. Yet founde I nothyng worthy of deeth that he had committed. Neuertheless seinge that he hath appealed to Cesar, I haue determined to send him. Of whō I haue no certaine thynge to wryte vnto my Lord. Wherfore I haue brought hi vnto you, & specially vnto the, king Agrippa, ꝯ after exampnacyon had, I myghte haue sumwhat to wryte. For me thinketh it vnreasonable, for to send a presoner, & not to shewe the causes whych are layde agaynst hym.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

Agrippa sayd vnto paul: ꝯ art permitted to speake for thy selfe. Then Paul stretched forth ꝯ hād, & ānswered for hym selfe. I thynke my selfe happy kynge Agrippa, because I shal answere this day before the, of al ꝯ thynges wherof I am accused of the Jewes namely because ꝯ art experte in all customes & questions, whych at amōge the Jewes. Wherfore I beseche thee to heare me patyently.

My lyuyng of a chyld, whych was at the fyrst amōg myne owne nacyō at Jerusalē know al the Jewes which knewe me from the begynnynge, yf they wolde testify it. For after the most straitest sect of our lay, lyued I a pharyse. And now I stād & am iudged for the hope of the promes made of god vnto our fathers: vnto whych promes our xii. tribes instātly seruing god daye and nyghte hope to come. For whych hopes sake, kynge Agrippa, am I accused of ꝯ Jewes. Why shuld it be thoughte a thynge incredible vnto you, that God shuld rayse agayne ꝯ ded. I also verely thought in my self, that I ought to do many contrary thynges, clene agaynst the name of Jesus of Nazareth: which thyng I also did in Jerusalē. Wher many of the saites I shut vp in prison, & had receaued auctorytye of the hye prestes. And when they were put to deeth, I gaue the sentence. And I punished them oft in euery synagoge, & compelled them to blaspheme: & was yet more mad vpō thē, & persecuted thē, euē vnto straunge cytyes. About which thinges as I wēt to Damasco wt auctorytye & lycence of the hye prestes, euē at myddaye (o kyng) I saw in the way a lyght from heuen, aboue the brightnes of the sūne, shyne, roūd about me & thē which iorneyed wyth me.

When we were al fallen to the erthe, I heard a voyce speakyng vnto me, & saying in the Hebrew tong: * Saul, Saul, why

* Acts. 9. 4. and. 22. 7.

why persecutest thou me? It is hard for the to kyck agaynst the prycke. And I said: Who art thou lorde? And he sayde I am Jesus whō thou persecutest, but ryse & stād vp on thy fete. For I haue apered vnto the for this purpose, to make ꝯ a minister & a witnes both of those thīges which ꝯ hast sene, & of those thinges in the which I wil apere vnto the, delyuering the frō the people, & frō ꝯ gētyls, vnto which now I send the, to opē their eyes, ꝯ they might turne frō darknes to lyghte, & from the power of Satā vnto god, that they may receaue forgeuenesse of sinnes & inheritaūce among thē whiche are sāctyfyed by fayth in me.

Wherfore kīng Agrippa, I was not disobedient vnto thheuenly vision: but shewed first vnto them of Damasco, & at Jerusalem, & thorow out al the costes of Jewry, & to the gentils, ꝯ they shulde repent, & tourne to god, & do ꝯ right workes of repentaūce. For this cause the Jewes caught me in the tēple & wēt aboute to kil me. Neuertheles I obtained helpe of god & cōtinew vnto thys day witnessing both to smal & to greate saying none other thinges, then those whyche thee prophetes & Moses did say shuld come, that chryst shulde suffre, & that he shulde be the first that shuld ryse from deeth, & shuld shew lyght vnto the people, & to the gentils. And he thus ānswered for hi self: Festus sayd wt a lowd voice. Paul, thou arte besydes thy selfe. Moch learnyng hath made the mad. And paul sayde: I am not mad, most dere Festus: but speake the wordes of trueth and soberues. The king knoweth of these thiges, before whome I speake frely: nether thinke I that any of these thynges ar hiden frō him. For this thing was not done in a corner. Kyng Agrippa beleuest ꝯ thee Prophetes: I wote wel thou beleuest. Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Sumwhat thou bringest me in mynd for to become a chrystē. And Paul sayde: I wold to god that not only ꝯ: but also al that heare me to daye, were, not sumwhat onelye but altogether soch as I am, except these bonds. And when he had thus spokē, the kyng rose vp, & the debyte, & Bernice, and they that sate wyth thē. And whē they were gone aparte, they talked betwene them selues saying: This mā doeth nothing worthy of deeth, nor of bondes. Then saide Agrippa vnto Festus: This mā might haue bene lowsed, yf he had not appealed vnto Cesar.

¶ Paul shippyng toward Rome. Julius the captayne intreateth hym curteously, at the last they suffre shypwrake.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

When it was cōcluded that we shuld sayle into Italye, they deliuered paul & certaine other prisoners vnto one named Julyus, an vnder captaine of Cesars soudiers. And we entred into a ship of Adramicii, & lowsed frō lādc: apointed to saile by the costes of Asia, one Aristarcus out of Macedonia of the contre of Thessalia: being wt vs. And ꝯ next day we came to Sidon. And Julius courteously entreted paul, & gaue him liberte to go vnto his frendes, & to refresh him self. And from thēce launched we, & sayled hard by Cipers, because the windes were contrary. Then sayled we ouer the see of Cylicia, & Pāphylia, & came to Myra a citie in Lycia.

And ther ꝯ vnder captaine foūd a ship of Alexāder, redy to sayle into Italye, & put vs therin. And when we had sayled slowly many daies, & scace were come ouer against Gnidon (because ꝯ wind wt stode vs) we sailed hard by the costes of Candy, ouer against Salmo, & wythe moch worke sailed beyōd it, & came vnto a place called goodporte. Nie wher vnto was a citie called Lasea. When moch tyme was spēt & sayling was now leoperdeous, because also ꝯ we had ouerlonge fasted, Paul put them in remembraūce, & said vnto them. Syrs, I perceue that thys viage wilbe with hurt & moch domage, not of ꝯ lading & ship only: but also of our liues. Neuertheles the vnder captaine beleued ꝯ gouerner & thee master, better thē the thinges which were spokē of paul. And because the hauen was not cōmodius to witer in, many tooke counsel to depart thēce, yf by any meanes they might attaine to phenices & ther to witer which is an hauen of Cāpy, and serueth to the southwest and northwest wynde. When the south wind blew, they supposynge

sing to obtayne their purpose lowsed vn
to Asson, and sayled past al Candy.

But anone after, ther arose agaynst their purpose, a flaw of wynd out of the northeeste. And whē ꝑ ship was caught & could not resist the wind, we let her go & drawe vñ ꝑ wether. And we came vnto an yle named Clauda, & had moch work to come by a bote, whiche they toke vp & vsed help, vndergirding the ship, fearig lest we shuld haue fallē into Sirtes, & we let downe a vessel & so were caried. The next day whē we were tossed vñ an exceding tēpest, they lyghtened ꝑ ship, & the third day we cast out vñ our owne hāndes ꝑ tackling of ꝑ shippe. Whē at ꝑ last nether sūne nor starre in many dayes ap-ered & no smal tēpest lay vpō vs, al hope that we shuld be saued, was thē taken away. Then after long abstynence, Paul stode forth in the middes of thē & sayde:
Syrs ye shuld haue harkened to me, & not haue lowsed from Candy, nether to haue brought vnto vs this harme & los.
And now I exhort you to be of good cha-
re. For ther shalbe no los of ani mās life amōg you, saue of ꝑ ship only. For ther stode by me this night ꝑ angell of God, whose I am, & whō I serue, sayig: feare
not Paul for ꝑ must be brought before Cesar. And lo, God hath geuen vnto the al ꝑ sayle with the. Wherfore syrs be of good chere: for I beleue god, ꝑ it shalbe euē as it was told me. Howbeit we must be cast into a certayne ylonde.

But when ꝑ fourteth nyght was come as we were caried i Adria about mid nyght, the shypmen demed that ther ape
red some countre vnto them: & sounded, & found it. xx. feddoms. And when they had gone a litell further, they soūded againe, & found. xv. feddōs. Then fearig lest they shuld haue fallē on some rocke,
they cast. iiii. ancres out of the sterne, & wyshed for the day. As the shipmen were about to fle out of the ship, & had lett
doune ꝑ bote into ꝑ see, vnder a coulour
as though they wold haue caste ancres out of the for shyp: Paul sayd vnto the vnder captaine & the Soudiers: except these abyde in the shyp, ye cānot be safe.
Thē the Soudiers cut of the rope of ꝑ
bote, and let it fall awaye.

And in the meane time betwyxt that ꝑ
day, Paul besought thē al to take meate, sayig: this is ꝑ fourteth day ꝑ ye hau
tarryed and cōtinued fastyng, receaui ge nothing at al. Wherfore I pray you to take meat: for this no dout is for your helth: for ther shal not an here fall from the heed of anye of you. And whē he had thus spokē, he toke breed & gaue thākes to god in presence of thē al, & brake it, & began to eate. Thē were they al of good cheare, and they also toke meat. We were altogether in the shyp, two hūdred. lxx.
sixe & sixtene soules. And whē they had eaten ynough, they lyghtened the ship, &
cast out the wheate into the see.

When it was day, they knew not ꝑ lā-
de but thei spied a certaine hauē wt abāc ke into ꝑ which they were mynded (yf it were possible) to thruste in the shyp. And whē they had takē vp ꝑ ancres, they cō-mitted thē selues vnto ꝑ se, & lowsed ꝑ rud der bōdes & hoysed vp ꝑ maine sayle to the wind & drue to lād. But thei chaūced on a place, which had ꝑ see on both ꝑ sy-des, & thruste in ꝑ ship. And the fooze par te stuck fast & moued not but the hynder
brake with the violence of the wawes.

The soudiers councel was to kil the presoners, lest anye of them, whē he had swome out shuld fle away. But ꝑ vnder captayne wyllyng to saue Paull kepte thē frō their purpose, & cōmaunded ꝑ
they ꝑ could swime shuld cast thē selues fyrste into thee see, and scape to lād. And the other he commaunded to go, someon bordes, and some on broke peces of the shyp. And so it came to passe, ꝑ they cam all safe to lande.

The. xxviii. Chapter.

AND when thei were scaped,
thē they knew that thee yle was called Milete. And the people of ꝑ countre shewed vs no lytel kindnes: for they kyndled a fyre & receaued vs euery one,
because of the present rayne & because of the cold. And when paul had gathered a bōdel of stycks, and put them into thee
fire, ther cam a viper out of ꝑ heet & lept
on his hād. When the men of the coūtre saw the wozme hang on his hād, they sai de among them selues: this mā must ne-des be a moztherer: whō (though he ha ue escaped the see) yet vengaūce suffreth not to liue. But he shouke of the vermē into ꝑ fire & felt no harme. Howbeit they watted whē he shuld haue swolne, or fal len downe deed sodenly. But after they had loked a great while, & saw no harme come to hym, they chaunged theyr mynd
des, and sayd that he was a god.

In the same quarters the cheke mā of ꝑ
yle whose name was publius, had a lord ship: the same receued vs, and lodged vs
iii. dayes courteously. And it fortuned ꝑ
the father of publius lay sick of a feuer and of a bloudy flixe. To whom paul en tred in & prayde, and layd his handes on hym and healed him. When this was done, other also which had dyseses in the yle, came and were healed. And they did vs great honour. And whē we departed, they laded vs wt thynges necessarye.

After thze monethes we departed in a ship of Alexādry, which had wintred in ꝑ
yle, whose badge was Castor & Pollux.
And when we came to Ctracusa, we tar ed ther. iii. daies. And frō thence we fet a cōpass & came to Regiō. And after one day ꝑ south wīd blew, & we came ꝑ next daye to Puteolus: wher we founde brethren, & were desyred to tary withe them seuen dayes, & so came to rome. And frō thence, when the brethren herd of vs, thei came against vs to Iptyphorā, & to the. iii tauernes. When paul saw them, he thāc ked god, & wered bold. And whēne came to rome, the vnder captayne deliuered ꝑ presoners to ꝑ cheke captaine of the host but paul was suffred to dwel by hi selfe
wyth one Soudyer that kept hym.

And it fortuned after thze daies, ꝑ paul called the cheke of the Iewes togeather.
And when they were come, he sayd vnto them. Men and brethrē though I haue cōmitted nothing against ꝑ people or la wes of our fathers: yet was I deliuered presoner frō Jerusalem into the hādes of the Romains. Which when they had ex amined me wold haue let me go, because they fownd no cause of deethe in me. But when the Iewes cried cōtrary, I was cō strayned to appeale vnto Cesar: not because I had ought to accuse my people of. For this cause haue I called for you, euen to se you, & to speake wyth you: because that for the hope of Israel, I am bound wyth thys chayne.

And they sayde vnto hym: We nether receaued letters out of Jewry pertaining vnto the, nether came any of ꝑ brethren that shewed or spake eny harme of thee.
But we wil heare of ꝑ what ꝑ thicke ste.
For we haue herd of this sect, that euery where it is spoken agaynst. And when they had apointed him a day, there came many vnto hi into his lodging. To whō he expouded & testified the kingdome of god, & preached vnto them of Jesu: both out of the law of Moses & also out of ꝑ prophetes, euē from morning to nyght.
And some beleued the thinges which we re spoken, & some beleued not.

When they agreed not amōg them sel ues they departed, after that Paull had spoken one word. Well spake the holye gost by Esay the prophet vnto oure fathers, sayinge: Go vnto thys people & Esaye. vi. c

shuld be cōuerted, & I shuld heale them.
Be it knowen therfore vnto you, ꝑ thys
saluacyō of god is sent to the gentyles, and they shall heare it. And when he had sayd that, the Jewes departed, and had great desputions among them selues.

And paul dwelt. ii. yeres ful in his lodging, & receued al that came to him, preā chynge the kyngdome of God, and teachynge those thinges whyche

¶ The Prologe of the Epistle of Saint Paul to the Romaynes.

FOr as moch as this Epistle is the principall and most excellent part of the newe Testamente and most pure Euangelion, that is to saye, Glad tidinges, and that we cal Gospel, and also alighteand alwaye in, vnto the whole scripture. I thinke it mete & euery Christen man not only knowe it by rote & without the boke: but also exercise hi selfe therin euermore continually as with the daylye breade of the soule. No man verely can rede it to ofte or studye it to wel: for the more it is studyed the easier it is, the more it is chewed, the pleasanter it is, & the more groundelye it is serched, the preciouser thinges are found in it, so great treasure of spiritual things lieth hid therin.

I will therfore bestowe my labour & diligence, thorowe this lytell preface or prologe, to prepare a way in ther vnto, so farforth as God shal geue me grace, that it may be the better vnderstanded of euerye man. For it hath bene hether to cuel darckened & glosed and wonderfull dreames of Sophisters that no mā could loke out the entent and meaning of it. Which neuertheless yet of yt selfe, is a bryght lyght, & sufficiēt to geue lighte vnto all the scripture.

Howe Paul desireth his wordes must be diligently vnderstāde

Fyrst we must marke diligently the maner of speakinge of the Apostel, and aboue all thinge knowe what Paule meaneth by these wordes, the Lawe, Synne, Grace, Fayth, Rightcousnes, Flesh, Spirite & lorde ryse, or els rede thou it neuer so ofte, thou shalt but lose thy labour. This worde lawe maye not be vnderstand here after the commune maner and so vse Paules terme, after the maner of men or after mans wayes, that thou woldest saye the lawe here in this place where nothig but lerninge which teacheth what ought to be done and what ought not to be done, as it goeth wyth mannes law, where the law ys fulfilled with outwarde workes only, though the hert be neuer so farre of. But God iudgeth the ground of the herte & pe thoughtes and the secret mouinges of the minde, and therfore his lawe requireth the grounde of ye herte and lowe from the botome: there of and is not content with the outwarde worke only: but rebuketh those workes most of al which spynge not of loue from the ground & lowe botome of ye herte, though they appeare outwarde neuer so honest and good. As Christ in the Gospel rebuketh ye Pharises aboue all other that were open synners, and calleth them hypocrites, that is to saye dyssembelers & paited sepulcres which pharises yet liued no man so pure as pertayneth to the outwarde dedes & workes of the lawe: ye Paull in the thirde Chapter of his Epistell vnto the Philippians confesseth of hi self, that as touchyng the lawe he was soch a one as no man could cōplayne on & not withstādig was yet a murderar of ye Christen persecuted them and tormented them so sore that he compelled them to blaspheme Christ, & was al together merciles, as many which now fayne outward good workes are.

The lawe of God requireth loue,

For this cause the .xxv. Psalme calleth al men lyars, because that no man kepeth ye lawe frō ye ground of the herte nether can kepe it though he appeare outwarde full of good workes.

For al men are naturally enclyned vnto euel and hate the lawe: we finde in our selues vnlust & tedi- ousnes to do good, but lust & delectation to do euel: Now wher no frelust is to do good, there the botome of the hert fulfylleth not the lawe: ther no doubt is a fo sinne, & wrath is deserued before God, though ther be neuer so great outward shewe and apperaunce of honest liuynge. For this cause concludeth saint Paul in the seconde Chapter, ye the Iewes are al sinners and trauesgressors of the law, though they make men beleue, thorowe ypocrisy of outwarde workes, how that they fulfil the lawe, & sayeth that he only which dothe the lawe is righteous before God, meanynge therby that no man wyth outwarde workes/fulfyllethe the lawe.

Thou sayth he, to the Iewe teachest a man shulde not breake wedlocke and yet breakest wedlock thy selfe, where in thou iudgest another man, there in condemnest thou thy self, for thou thy selfe doest euen the very same thinges whiche thou iudgest. As though he wolde saye, thou lyuest outwardly wel in the workes of the lawe, and iudgest them that liue not so. Thou teachest other men, and seest not in ā other mans eye, but art not ware of the beame that is in thyne awne eye. For though ye kepe the law outwardly with workes, for feare of rebuke, shame & punishement, other for loue of reward vauntage & vayne glory, yet doest thou al without, lust and loue towarde the lawe: and haddest leuer a greate deale otherwise do if ye deddest not feare the lawe: ye inwardly in thyne herte, thou woldest ye there were no lawe, no nor yet God, the auctor and vengear of the lawe, yf it were possible: so payneful it is vnto the: to haue thyne appetites refrayned, & to be kepte doune. Wherfore then it is a playne conclusion that thou from the grounde ād bo- tome of thine hert, arte an enemy to the lawe, what pretayleth it now, that thou teachest an other man not to steale, when thou thyne owne selfe arte a theefe in thyne herte, and outwardlye woldeste fayne steale yf thou durst, thoug he that the outwarde dedes abyde not awaye behinde with soche ypocrytes and dyssimulars, but breake forth, amonge euen as an euell scabbe or a pocke cannot alwayes be kept in wyth oute of medicyne.

The lawe en creaseth so many thinges clene contrarie to his nature, whereof he is not able to fulfyll one poynte or tytle, as creaseth sinne

Thou teachest another man, but teachest not thi selfe. ye thou wotest not what thou teachest. for ye vnderstandest not the lawe aright, how that it cannot be fulfilled and satisfied, but with vnfeyned loue & affyccion, so greatly it cannot be fulfilled with outwarde dedes and workes only. Moreouer ye lawe en- creaseth synne as he sayth in the fifte Chapter, because that man is an enemy to the lawe for as moches it requi- reth the lawe requireth it. And therefore are we moare ypoughed, and haue greater lust to breake it. For which cause sake as he sayth in the seuenth Chapter, that the law is spirituall though he wold saye, yf the lawe were fleshly and but mans doctrine, it might be fulfilled, satisfied and stilled wyth outwarde dedes.

But nowe is the lawe goostly, and no man fulfilleth it excepte that al that he doth, springe of loue frō ye botom of the hert. Such a new hert & lusty corage vnto the law ward, canst ye neuer com by of thine owne strenght and enforcement, but by the operation and working of the spirite. For the spirite of God only ma- keth a man spirituall and lyke vnto the lawe, so that now hencefoorth he doeth nothing of fear or for lucre or vaun tages sake or vayne glory, but of a fre herte and of inwarde lust. The lawe is spiritual and wil be the law. bothe loued and fulfilled of a spiritual hert, and therfore of necessite requireth it the spirite that maketh a mannes hert fre, and geueth him lust and courage vnto the lawwarde. Where soch a spirit is not, there re- mayneth sinne, grudging and hatered agaynst the lawe, which lawe neuertheless is good righteows and holy.

The spyrit is required yet

Iequaynte thy selfe therfore with the manner of speakinge of the Apostel, and let this new sphe- fall in thine herte. that it is not both one to do dedes and workes ot the lawe and to fulfil the lawe. The worcke of the lawe is what soeuer a man doth or can do of his owne free wyl, of his own proper sighte & enforsing. Notwithstanding thought there be neuer so greate worckinge yet as long as there remay- neth in the herte vnlust, tediousnes, grudginge, grief, payne to the lummes and compulsion towarde the law & to fulfyll ye so long are al the workes vnprofitable, lost, ye & damnable in the syght of God. This meaneth Paul in the thirde Chapter where he sayeth, by the dedes of the law shal no fleshly be iustified in the sight of god. Herethynges.

To do ye dedes of ye lawe

Yf perchaunce thou that those sophisters are but dyssemblers with teache that a man may and must prepare him self to grace and to the fauoze of God with good wozkes before he hath the spyzete and true fayth of Chist. How can they prepare them selues vnto the fauour of God, ꝛ to ꝓ which is good, when they the selues can do no good, nor cannot once thinke a good thought or consent to do good the deuel so stirring their hertes, mindes and thoughtes captiue at his pleasure? Can thole wozkes please god thinkest thou, which are done wt greke payne and tediousnes, wt an euell will, with a contrary grudgynge minde? O holy saynte Pzosperus how mightyly, wt ꝓ scripture of Paul diddest thou confounde this heresye, about (I trowe) a twelue hundred yeres ago or ther vpon.

Pzosperus.

To fulfil the lawe what it is.

To fulfil the lawe, to do the wozkes therofand what soeuer the lawe commaundeth wt loue, iust ꝛ inwarde affection and delectation: and to liue godly and wel, freely, willingly, ꝛ without compulsion of ꝓ lawe euen as though there were no lawe at al. Suche lust and feelyberte to the lawe, commeth only by the wozking of the spzite in the herte, as he sayth in the, i. Chapter. Now is the spzite none other wyse geuen then by fayth only, in that we beleue the pzomises of God, with out wauering, how that God is true, ꝛ wil fulfil al his good pzomises toward vs, for Chzistes bloudes sake, as it is playne in ꝓ first Chap. I am not ashamed sayth Paul, of Christs gladde tidinges, for it is the power of God vnto saluation to as many as beleue. For attonce and to gether euen as we beleue the glad tydinges pzeached to vs the holy gost entreth into oure hertes, ꝛ loweseth the bondes of ꝓ deuel which before possessed our hertes in captiuite ꝛ held them ꝓ we colde haue no lust to the wyl of God in the lawe. And as the spzite commeth by fayth only, euen so fayth cometh by hearing the wozde or glad tidinges of God when Chzist is pzeached, how ꝓ he is Godes sone ꝛ man, &c. deed and rise agayn for our sakes as he sayd in ꝓ iii, iiii, ꝛ v, Chapters. All our iustifiyng the cometh of fayth, and fayth ꝛ the spzite come of God ꝛ not of vs.

The spirit cometh by fayth.

Faith cometh by hearing ꝓ glad tidinges.

When we saye fayth bringeth the spzite, it is not to be vnderstande that fayth deserueth ꝓ spirit, or that the spzite is not pzesent in vs before fayth. For the spzite is euer in vs, and fayth is ꝓ gifte ꝛ working of the spzite. But thozow pzeaching, ꝓ spzite beginneth to wozke in vs. Judas by pzeaching ꝓ lawe, he wozketh ꝓ feare of god, so he pzeaching ꝛ the glad tydynges he wozketh fayth. And now when we beleue and are come vnder the couenaunt of God, then are we sure of ꝓ spzite by the pzomys of God ꝛ then the spzite accompanieth fayth inseparably, and we beginne to fele hys wozckinge. And so faithe certifyeth vs of the spirite, and also bringeth the spzite wyth her vnto the wozkinge of all other gyftes of grace, and to the wozching out of the rest of oure saluation, vntyll we haue altogether ouercome sinne, death, hell and Satan, and are come vnto the euerlastinge lyfe of glozy. And for this cause say we, fayth bringeth the spzyte. Here of commeth it, that fayth onely iustifieth, maketh rightuous, and fulfylleth the lawe, for it bringeth the spirite thozow Chzistes deseruinges, the spzete bringeth iust, loseth the herte, maketh hym fre, setteth hym at liberte, and geueth hym strength to wozcke the dedes of the lawe wyth loue, euen as the lawe requireth. That at the last out of the same fayth so wozckinge in the herte, spzinge all good wozckes by the wozkinge of the holy gost, as shall be declared in the .v. Chapter. Fayth onely iustifieth

Faith onely iustifieth.

Wozkes spzinge of fayth.

That meaneth he in the thyrde Chapter, for after he hath cast away the wozckes of the law, so that he couldeth as though he wolde breake and disanull the lawe thozow fayth, he answereth, to that myght be layde against, saying, we destroye not the lawe thozow fayth but maynteyne rather ye stablysh the lawe thozow fayth. That is to saye, we fulfill the lawe thozow fayth.

Sinne.

Sinne in the scripture is not called that outward wozke onely committed by the body, but all the whole busines and whatsoeuer accompanieth, moueth or spzreth vnto the dede in the outward dede, ꝛ that whence the wozkes spzinge, as vnbeleefe, pzonenes and redines vnto the dede in the grounde of the herte: with all the power, affections and appetites, wherewith we can but synne. So that we say, that a man then sinneth, when he is carried awaye he delonge into synne altogether as much as he is, of that pozsion inclynation and corrupte nature wherein he was conceyued and borne. For ther is none outward synne committed, excepte a man be carryed awaye altogether, with lyfe: soule, herte, body, lust and mynde ther vnto, the scripture loketh singularly vnto the herte, ꝛ vnto ꝓ rote and ozygynal fountayne of al synne, whyche is vnbeleefe in ꝓ botome of ꝓ hertes. For as fayth onely iustifieth and bringeth the spirite and iust vnto the outward good wozkes, euen so vnbeleefe onely damneth and keepeth out the spzete, pzouoketh the flesche and stereth vp luste vnto the euel outward wozkes, as happened to Adam and Eua in paradise. Genesis, iii.

For ꝓ thys cause Chzyst calleth sinne vnbeleefe, and that notably in the .xvi. Chapter of saint Johns. The spzete saye th he shall rebuke the wozlde of synne, because they beleue not in me. And Johan. viii. here sayeth. I am the lyght of the wozlde. And therfore in the, xii, of Johon, he bydde eth them, whyle they haue lyght to beleue in the lyght, that ye maye be the chylderen of lyght, for he that walcketh in darckenes wote eth not whether he goeth. Now as Chzist is the lyght, so is the ignozaunce of Chzist, that darknes wher of the speaketh, in which he that walketh, woteth not whether he goeth, that is, he knowethe not how to worke a good wozcke in the sight of god, or what a good wozcke is, and therfore in the .ix. he sayth, as long as I am in the wozlde, I am the lyght of the wozlde, but there commeth night when no man can wozche, which night is but ignozaunce of Chzist, in which no man can se to do any wozcke that pleaseth God: And Paul exhozteth, Ephe, iiii: that they walke not as other heathen whych are straungers from the lyfe of God, thzow the ignozaunce, that is in them. And again in the same chap. Put of (sayth he) the old man Which is corrupte thozow the lustes of errour: that is to saye ignozaunce. And Roman. xiii. Let vs caste away the dedes of darckenes, ꝓ is to saye of ignozaunce ꝛ vnbeleefe. And. i Pet. i. Fashion not your selues vnto your olde lustes of ignozaunce, ꝛ, i. John. ii: He that loueth his brother dwelleth in lyght, ꝛ he that hateth hys brother walcketh in darckenes, and woteth not whether he goeth for darkenes that blynded hys eyes. By lyghe he meaneth the knowledge of Chzist and by darknes, the ignozaunce of Chzist, for it is impossible that he that knoweth Chzyst truly, should hate his brother.

Further more, to perceaue this thing more clearly thou shalt vnderstād, ꝓ it is impossible to sine and se neat al, except a man breake the fyrst commaundement before. Now is the fyrst commaundement deuyded into two verses. Thy Lozd god is one god, and thou shalt loue the lozd god wt all thine hert, wt all thy soul, wt all thy power and wt all thy myght. And the whole cause why I synne against any inferyour precept, is that thys loue is not in myne hert, for were thys loue wzytten in my hert, and were ful and perfect in my soule, it wolde kepe myne hert from consenting to any synne. And the whole and onely cause why thys loue is not wzytten in our hertes, is that we beleue not the fyrst parte, that our lozd god is one god. For wyst I what these wozdes, one Lozde and one god meaneth, that is to saye, ꝓ I vnderstode that he made al, ꝛ ruleth al, and that what soeuer is done to me, whether it be good or bad, is yet hys wyl, ꝛ ꝓ only is the lozde that ruleth, and doth it, and wyst therto what thys wozde, myne, meaneth, ꝓ is to saye, ꝓ myne hert beleued and felt the infygnte benefytes and kyndnes of God to my warde, and vnderstod ād earnestly beleued the manyfolde couenauntes of mercy wher wt God hath bounde him self to be myne whole God altogether, wt al hys power, loue, mercy, ꝛ myght, then shoulde I loue hym wt al myne hert, soule, power, ꝛ myght, and of that loue euer kepe hys commaundements. So seye now that as fayth is the mother of al goodnes, ꝛ of al good wozkes, so is vnbeleefe ꝓ grounde rote of al euels ꝛ al euel wozkes. Fynaly, yf any man hath forsaken synnes is conuerted to put hys trust in Chzist, and to kepe the laws of God both fast ꝛ

synne, the cause is, that the flesh thozow negligence hath choked the spirite, and oppressed her and taken fro her ꝓ fode of her strenght with the fode of her meditacion in God and in hys wonderful deades, and in the manyfolde couenauntes of hys mercye.

Wherfore then before all the good wozkes as good frutes, there must nedes be fayth in the herte where ye they spzinge. And before all bad dedes as bad frutes, there must be vnbeleefe in the herte, as in the roote, fountayn, pyth and strenght of all synne. Whych vnbeleefe, and ignozaunce is called the heade of the serpent, and of the olde dzagon, which the womans sede Chzyst must treade vnder foote, as it was pzomised vnto Adam. Grace and gifte haue thys difference. Grace pzoperly is Goddes fauoure, benevolence or kind mynde, which of hys owne selfe, without deseruinge of vs, he beareth to vs, wherby he was moued and ordeyned to geue Chzyst vnto vs, wyth all hys other gyftes of grace. Gift is the holy ghost and hys wozcking. Gifte whome he powreth into the hertes of them, on whome he hath mercye, and whome he fauoureth. Though the gyft of the spirite, encrease in vs daply, and haue not yet theyr full perfectionnyes and though there remayne in vs yet euell lustes and synne, which fyght against the spirite, as he sayth here in the, vii, chapt. and in the, v, to the, Galathyans, and as it was spoken before in the, iii, Chapter of Genes, of the debate betwene the womans sede, and the sede of the serpent: yet neuerthelesse Goddes fauoure is so greate and so strong ouer vs for Chzystes sake that we are counted for full, hole and perfecte before God. For Godes fauoure towarde vs, which doth not her selfe, encreasing a lytle, ꝛ a lytle, as wt the gyftes, but reacheth vs hole and altogether in full loue for Chzystes sake oure intercessour and mediator, and because that the gyftes of the spirite and battayle betwene the spirite and euell lustes, are begonne in vs already.

Of thys now vnderstandest thou the, vii. Chapter, where Paull accuseth hym selfe as a synner, and yet in the, viii: chapt, sayeth, there is no dampnation to them that are in Chzyste, and that because of the spirite, ꝛ because the gyftes of the spirite are begon in vs. Sinners we are because the flesshe is not full hylye spirite, ꝛ because the gyftes of the spirite are begon in vs. Sinners we are and wozkefled. Nat withstandynge in as much as we beleue in Chzyst, and haue the earnest and beginninge of the spzete, and wold fayne be perfecte. God is so louinge and fauozable vnto vs, that he wyll not loke on suche synne, neyther wyll counte it for synne, but wyl deale wyth vs accozdynge to oure belefe in Chzyste, and accozdinge to hys pzomyses, which he hath bowne to vs, vntyll the synne be clayne and mozteyned by death.

Faythe is not mans opynion and dzeame, as some ymagyne and fayne, when they heare the stozye of the Gospell, wherby when they se that there is lowe no good wozkes nor mendement of lyuinge, though they heare, and yet can bable many thynges of fayth, then they fall from the right waye and say, faythe onelye iustifiethnot, a man must haue good wozkes also, if he wylde righteous and safe. The cause is when they heare the gospell or glad tydinges, they fayne of their owne strenght certayn imaginations, ꝛ thoughtes in their hertes, saiyng: I haue herd the gospell, I remēbze ꝓ storye, so I beleue. And ꝓ they counte right fayth, wich neuertheles as it is but mās imaginatiō ꝛ fayning, euen so pzofiteth it not, neither folowe ther any good werkes or mendement of lyfe. Fayth is a thing wrought by the holy gost in vs, which changeth vs, and maketh vs the sonnes of god, as thou redest in the .i. of Johan, and lyfteth ꝓ olde Adam, and maketh vs altogether newe in the herte, minde, will, lust, and in all oure affections and powers of the soule, the holy goste euen accompanyinge her and rulinge the herte. Faith is a lyuely thinge mighte in wozkinge, valeaunt and stronge, euer doinge, euer frutefull so that it is impossible that he which is endued therwith (vnlde not wozke alwayes good wozkes without ceasinge. He ax eth not whether good wozckes are to be done or not, but hath done them already, yer mes sion be made of them, and is alwaye doinge, for such is hys nature, now quicke fayth in hys herte, and lyfe ꝓ stelye mouinge of the spirite, dzyue hym, and stirre hym ther vnto. Who soeuer doth not good wozkes, is an vnbeleuing person and fayth lesse, and loketh rounde about, gropinge after fayth and good wozkes, and erre of god. Noteth not what fayth and good worckes meane, though he bable neuer so manye thynges of fayth and good wozkes.

Fayth is the mother of al good wozkes.

Right fayth is ꝓ wozkinge.

Fayth is then a lyuelye and stedfaste trust in the fauoz of god, wherwith we commit our selues al together vnto god, ꝛ that trust, is so surely grounded and sticketh so fast in our hertes, that a man wold not ones doute of it, thoughe he should dye, a thousand tymes therfore. And suche trust wrought by the holy goste thozow fayth, maketh a man glad, lusti, therefull and true herted vnto god and to all creatures. By it is the meanes whereof willingly without compulsion he is glad and redy to do good to euery mā, to do seruice vnto euerye man, to suffre all thinges, that god maye be loued and pzayed, which hath geuen hym such grace: so that it is impossible to separate good wozckes from fayth, euen as it is impossible to separate heate and burninge from fyre. Therfore take hede to thy selfe, and beware of thyne owne fantasies, and ymaginations, whyche to iudge of fayth and good wozckes wyll seme wyse, when indede they are stark blind ꝛ of al thinges most folysh. Saye god that he wyll wite fafe to wozke fayth e in thyne herte, or els shalte thou remayne euer moze faythlesse, fayne thou, ymagine thou, enfozce thou, wrastell thou wt thy selfe, and do what thou wylt or canst.

Faith is ye right gyfte of god.

Rightuousnes is euen fayth, and is called Goddes rightuousnes, or rightuousnes that is of value before god. For it is goddes gyfte, and it altereth a man, and chaungeth hym to a newe spiritual nature, and maketh him fre and lybeeall to paye euery mans dutie. For thozowe fayth is a man purged of his synnes, and obtaineth lust vnto the lawe of god, wherby he geueth god hys honoure, and payeth hym that he oweth hym, and vnto men he doth seruice wyllingly wherwith he coueteth can: and payeth euery man his dutie. Suche rightuousnes can nature, fre wyll and oure owne strenght neuer bringe to passe. For as no man can geue hym selfe fayth, so can he not take awaye vnbeleefe, how then can he take away any thig at all. Wherforce all is false ypocrysy and sinne, what soeuer is done without faithe, or in vnbelefe, as it is evident in the xiiii. Chapter vnto the Romaines, thoughe it appeare neuer so glozious of beautyfull outwardes.

Faith is ye ryghteousnes.

Flesche and spzite mayest thou not here vnderstande, as thought flesche were only ꝓ which pertayneth vnto vnchastite, ꝛ the spzite, which inwardly pertayneth to the herte: but Paul calleth flesh here, ꝓ as Chzist doth John iii. All ꝓ is borne of flesshe ꝓ is to wete the whole mā with lyfe, soule, body, witte, wil, reason & whatsoeuer he is, or doth. Wine ꝛ Wout: because that those al ꝛ al that is in man study after the wozlde ꝛ the flesshe. Cal flesche therfore what soeuer (as longe as we are without the spzitte of god) we thin he or speake of god, of fayth of good wozckes and of spiritual matters, Call flesh also all wozckes whyche are done without grace and without the wozking of the spzyte, how soeuer good holy and spzituall they seme to be, as thou mayest pzoue by the, v Chapter vnto the Galathians, where Paul numbzeth worshipping of Idoles, witchcraft, envy and hate, among the deds of the flesshe, and by the .viii. vnto the Romaynes, wher e he sayeth that the lawe by the reason of the flesh is weake. Whych is not vnderstande of vnchastite expressely, But of al synnes, and moost specially of vnbelefe, whych is a vyce most spirituall, and ground of all synnes.

And as thou callest hym which is not renewed with the spirite and borne agayne in Christ, flesshe: and all his wyes, euen the very mocions of his hert and mynde, hys lernyng, doctrine and contemplacion of hye thinges, hys preachinge, teaching and study in the scripture, buyldinge of churches, foundinge of Abbeyes, geuinge of almes, masse, matrence and what soeuer he doth, though it seme spirituell and after the lawes of god: So contrary wyse call hym spirituall, which is renewed in Christ and all hys dedes, which springe of fayth seme they neuer so grosse, as the washinge of the disciples fete, done by Christ and Peters spyninge after the resurrection, yea and all the dedes of matrimonye are pure spyrituall, yf they procede of fayth and what soeuer is done wyth in the lawes of God, though it be wrought by the body, as the very wyrkinge of shewes, and such like, how soeuer grosse they appeare outwarde. Without such understandinge of these wordes canst thou neuer understand thys epistle of Paul, nether any other place in the holy scripture. Take hede therfore, for who soeuer understandeth these wordes otherwyse, the same understandeth not Paull what soeuer he be. Nowe wyll we prepare our selues vnto the Epistle.

The.i.cha. For as much as it becommeth the preacher of Christes glad tydinges, fyrst throwe openinge of the lawe, to rebuke all thinges, and to proue all thinges synne, that proceade not of the spirite and of fayth in Christ, to proue all men sinners and chylderen of wrath by enheritaunce, and how that to synne is their nature, and that by nature they can noue other wyse do then synne, and therwith to abate the pryde of mannes and to bringe hym vnto knowledge of hym selfe, and to mystery and wretchednes, that he myght desyre helpe. Euen so doth Sainct Paull, and beginneth in the fyrst Chapter to rebuke vnbeleife and grosse sinnes which all men se, as ydolatry, and as the grosse synnes of the heathen were, and as the synnes nowe are of all them which lyue in ignoraunce without fayth, and without the fauoure of God, and say the. The wrath of the God of heauen appeareth throwe the gospell vpon all men for their vngodlynes and vnhoselynes. For though it be knowen and daylye vnderstande by the Creatures, that there is but one God, yet is nature of her self without the spirite and grace, so corrupt and so poysoned that, men neither can the ne him, nee worshyp him, neither geue hym his due honoure, but dyen de them selues and fall wythout ceasinge in to worse care, euen vntyll they come vnto worshipping of ymages and worckinge of shameful synnes, which are abhominable and against nature. And moreouer suffre the same vnrebuked in other, haninges, which are abhominable and against nature. and an. Another wate, yͤ some other good man wold pate foꝛ ẏ, ⁊ geue ẏ as moch as ẏ myghtest satisfy thine obligation w al. Of this wise hath christ made ẏ free from ẏ lawe, ⁊ therfoꝛe is this no wyld flesshely lyber tie, that thulde do nought, but that doth al thinges, and is free from ẏ crauinge ⁊ dette of the lawe.

The. vii. chapiter.

In the. vii. confirmeth he the same with a similitude of the state of matrimony. Fo when the husbande dyeth, the wyfe is at lyberte, ⁊ the one lowsed and departed from the other, not that ẏ woman thulde not haue power to marye vnto an other man but rather now fyzste of all is she fre, and hath power to marye vnto an other man wlych she coulde not do before, tyll she was lowsed from hyꝛ fyzst husband. Euen so are oure consciences bound and in daunger to the lawe vnder olde Adams the flesh, as long as he lyueth in vs. Foꝛ the lawe declareth that oure hertes are bound and that we can not disconsent from him. But when he is moztified and kylled by the spyzte, then is the conscience fre and at lyberte not so that ẏ conscience thal nowe nought do, but now fyzst of al cleuyth vnto another, that is to wete Chyzst, and bringeth foꝛthe the frutes of lyfe. So nowe to be vnder the lawe, is, not to be able to fulfyll the lawe, but to be detter to it, and not able to paye that wlych the lawe requyzeth. And to be lowse from the lawe, is to fulfyll it and to paye that wlych the lawe demaundeth, so that it can now hence foꝛth axe the nought.

To be vnder the lawe

To be louse from the lawe

Consequently Paul declareth moze largely the nature of synne and of the law, how that thozowe the lawe synne reuyueth, moueth hyꝛ self, and gatheroth strength. Foꝛ the olde man and coꝛrupte nature, the moare he is foꝛboden and kepte vnder the lawe, is the moare offended and displeased there wyth, foꝛ as moche as he cannot paye that wlych is requyzed of the lawe. Foꝛ synne is his nature and of hym self, he cannot but synne. Therfoꝛe is the lawe death to hym, foꝛmente and marterdome. Not that the lawe is euyl but because that the euyll nature cannot suffre that wlych is good, cannot abyde that the lawe thulde requyze of hym any good thynge, lyke as a syche man cannot suffre that a man thulde desyze of hym to runne, to lepe and to do other dedes of an whole man. Foꝛ wlych cause Sayncte Paul concludeth, that where the lawe is vnderstande and perceaued of the beste wyse, there it doeth no moare but vtter synne, and bryngeth vnto the knowledge of oure selues, and therby kylleth vs and make vs bonde vnto eternall damnacyon and detters of the euerlastyng wzath of God, euen as he wel seleth and vnderstandeth whose conscyence is truely touched of the lawe. In suche daunger were we yer the lawe came, that we knewe not what sinne ment, neyther yet knowe we the wzath of God vppon sinners, tyll the lawe hath vttered it. So seest thou that a mã must haue some other thinge, ye and a greter and a moze mighty thinge then the lawe, to make hym righteous and safe. They that vnderstande not the lawe on this wyse, are blinde and go to wozke pzesumptuously, supposyng to satisfye the lawe with wozkes. Foꝛ they knowe not that the lawe requyzeth a fre, a willinge, a lusty and a loupnge herte. Therfoꝛe they lenot Goddes ryght in the face, the bayle hangeth betwene and bydeth bys face, so that they cannot beholde the glozye of hys countenaunce, how that ẏ law is spiritual and requireth the hert. I maye of myne awne strength refrayne that I do myne enemye no hurte, but to loue him with all myne herte, and to put awaye wzathe clene oute of my mynd, can I not of myne awne strength I maye refuse money of myne awne strenght, but to put away loue vnto eyches out of myne herte, can I not do of myne awne strenght. To abstayne from adultery as concernynge the vttewarde dede, can I do of myne awne strenght, but not to despze in myne hert is as vnpossyble vnto me as is to chose. Whether I will longpz oꝛ thyrst, and yet foꝛ the lawe requireth. Wherfoꝛe of manes awne strength is the lawe neuer fulfylled, we must haue therunto goddes fauoure, and his spzite, purchased by Chzistes blode. Neuertheless when I espe a man maye do many thinges outewardlye clene agaynst his herte, we must vnderstande that man is but bziuen of dyuers appetites, and the greatest appetite ouer commeth the lesse, carpeth the man awaye violently with lyst. As when I despze vengeaunce, and feare also the inconueniẽce that is lyke to folow, if I feare be greater I abstayne, yf the appetite that desireth vengeaunce be greater, I cã not but pzosecute the dede, as wese by experience in many murtherars and theues, which though they be bzought into neuer so great perel of death, yet after they haue escaped, do euen the same agayne. And commen wemen pzosecut their lustes because feare ⁊ shame are away, wher other wlych haue the same apetites i their hertes, abstaine at the least way outwardly oꝛ wozke secretly being ouercome of feare and of shame, & so lyke wyse is it of al other appetites.

Fleshe spirit figh togeder

Further more he declareth, how the spzite and the flesche fyghte to gether in one man, and maketh ẽ ensample of him self, that we myght lerne to knowe how to wozke a right. I meane to kyl sinne in our lustes. He calleth both the spzete and also the flesche a lawe, because that lyke as the nature of Goddys lawe is to driue, to compell and to trauce, euen so the flesche driueth, compelleth, craueth and rageth agaynst the spzite, and will haue her lustes satisfyed. On the other syde dyeth the spzite, ergeth and fyghteth agaynst the flesche, and will haue his lust satisfied. And this stryfe dureth in vs, as longe as we lyue, in some moare and in some lesse, as the spzite oꝛ the flesche is stronger, and the yer man his owne selfe is bothe the spzite and the flesche, which fyghteth with his awne selfe vntyll sinne be vtterlye slayne, and we all together spirituall. In the. viii. Cha. he confozteth such fyghters that they despere not because of suche flesche, The. viii. ch. oꝛ lyse, thinke that they are lesse in fauoure of God. And he sheweth how ẏ the synne remaining in vs, hurteth not, foꝛ there is no daunger to them ẏ are in Chzist which walke not after the flesche, but fight agaynst it. And he expoundeth moze largely what the nature of the flesche and the spzite is, show the spzite cometh by Chzist, which spzite maketh vs spirituall, raseth, sucdureth and moztifieth the flesh, and certifieth vs ẏ we are neuertheles the sonnes of God, and also beloued though that sinne rage neuer so muche in vs, so longe as we folow the spzite and fight against sinne to kyl and moztifie it. And because nothig is so good to the moztifienge of the flesh, as ẏ crosse and tribulacion, he comfozteth vs in our passions ⁊ afflictions by the affistence of the spzite which maketh intercession to god foꝛ vs mightely with groninges ẏ passe mans vtterance, so that mãs speache can not comprehende them ⁊ with the mourning also of the creatures with vs, of greate desire that they haue, that we were lowsed from sinne ⁊ coꝛruption of ẏ flesh. So se we that these three Chapters. vi, vii, viii, do none other thinge so moche as to dzyue vs vnto the ryghte wozkes of faith, which is to kil the old man ⁊ moztifie the flesche. The. vi. vii. viii. chapters.

In the. ix. x. xi. Chapters, he treateth of Gods pzedestinacion, whence it spzyngeth altogether, whether we that beleue oꝛ not beleue, be lowsed from synne oꝛ not be lowsed. By whiche pzedestinacion oure iustifying and saluacion are cleane taken out of oure handes, and put in the handes of god onely which thinges is moost necessary of al. Foꝛ we are so weake and so vncertayne, that if it stode in vs there shoulde of a trueth no man be saued, the deuell no doubte would deceaue vs. But now is god sure that his pzedestinacion can not disceaue hym, nether any man withstande oꝛ let hym: and therfoꝛe haue we hope ẽ trust agaynst synne. But here must a marke be set vnto those vnquiet, busye and hye spzyminge spirites, how farre they shall go which fyzste of all bzinge hether their hye reasons and ẏ pignant wittes, and begi, first from an hye to seache botomles secretes of goddes pzedestinacion, whether they be pzedestinat oꝛ not. This do if ẏ wilt vnder stand These must nedes ether cast them selues doune headlonge into desperacion, oꝛ els cõmit the selues to fre chaunce careles, but folowe thou the oꝛdze of thys Epistle, and nosel thy self w Chzist ⁊ learne to vnderstand what the lawe ⁊ the gospel meane, ⁊ the office of both two ẏ thou mayest in the one know wel thy selfe, ⁊ how that thou hast of thy selfe no strenght, but to synne, ⁊ vd in the other the grace of Chzistes. And then se thou fyght against synne, and the flesche as the. viii. fyzst. Chapiters teache the. After that when thou facte come, to the. vii. Chapters and art vnder the crosse and sufferinge of tribulacyon, the necessyte of predestinacion wyl waxe swete, and thou shalt wel sele how pzecyous a thynge it is. Foꝛ except thou hadde borne the crosse of aduersyte and temptacyon, ẏ hast felte thy selfe bzought vnto the very bzimme of desperacyon, yea and vnto hel gates thou canst neuer medle with the sentence of pzedestynacion wyth oute thyne own harme, and with out secret wzath and grudgyng in wardly agaynst God, foꝛ other wyse it shal not be possyble foꝛ the to thynke that God is ryghteous and iuste. Therfoꝛe must Adam be wel moztyfied and the flesshely wyse bzought vtterly to nought, yer that thou mayst away with this thing, and drinke of stronge wyne. Take hede therfoꝛe vnto thy selfe, that thou dzynke not wyne, wyple thou art yet but a sucklyng. Foꝛ euery learninge hath hys tyme, measure and age, and in Chzyst is there a certayne chyldhod in which a man must be content wyth myldе foꝛ a season, vntyl he waxe stronge and growe vp a perfecte man in Chzist, and be able to eate of moze steonge meate. In the xii. Chapter he geueth exhoztations. Foꝛ this maner obserueth Paul in al his Epistles, fyzst he teacheth Chzyst and the fayth, then exhoztith he to good wozkes, and vnto continual moztyfieng of the flesche. So here teacheth he good wozkes in deade, ⁊ the true seruynge of God, and maketh al men Pzestes, to offer vp not moneye beastes as the maner was in the tyme of the lawe, but their owne bodyes with kyllyng and moztyfieng of the lustes of the flesche. After that he declareth the outwarde conuersacyon of christen men how they ought to behaue them selues in spiritual thynges, how to teache, preache and rule in the congregacyon of Chzyst, to serue one to another, to suffer al thinges pacyently, and to conuyct the wyche and vengaunce to god, in conclusyon how a Chzistẽ man ought to behaue hym selfe vnto al men, to frend, foe, oꝛ what soeuer he be. These are the right wozkes of a Chzysten man wlych fyzste out of fayth. Foꝛ faith kepeth not hol pdape, nether fulfilleth any man to be pyle, wher so euer he dwelleth. In the. xiii. he teacheth to honoure the wozde and temporal sword. Foꝛ though a mans lawe ordinaunce make not a man good before God, nether inclyne him in the herte, yet are they ozdened foꝛ the furderaunce of the comen welth, to maintain peace, to punish the euel and to defende the good. Therfoꝛe ought the good to honoure the temporal swerd and to haue it in reuerence, though as concernyng them selues, they nede it not, but wolde abstayne from euel of their owne accoꝛde, ye and do good with out mans law, but by the lawe of the spzite which gouerneth the herte, and gydeth it vnto al that is the wyl of god. The. xiii. cha. Loue is the fulfylling of the lawe.

Finally he comprehendeth and knitteth vp all in loue. Loue of her own nature bestoweth al that she hath and euer seweth her selfe on that which is loued. Thou nedest not to byd a kind mother to be louinge vnto the lawe, her onely sonne. Much lesse spiritual loue which hath eyes geuen her of God, nedeth mans lawe to teach her to do her dutie. And as in ẏ beginning he dyd put foꝛth Chzist as the cause and auctoure of our right wesses and saluacion, euen so here secretly he him foꝛth as an ensample to conteresayte. that as he hathe doneto vs, euen so thoulde we do one to another.

In the xiii. Chapter he teacheth to deale soberly with the conscience of the weake in the fayth which vnderstand not yet the lyberte of Chzist perfectly inough, ⁊ to fauour the of Chzisten loue, ⁊ not to vse the lyberty of the fayth vnto hynderaunce, but vnto the furtheraunce and edifienge of the weake. Foꝛ where such cõsideracion is not, there folowith debate and despzisenge of the Gospell. It is better therfoꝛe, to foꝛbeare the weake a wyle vntyll they waxe stronge, then that the learning of the Gospell should come altogether vnder fote. And such wozke, is the singular wozcke of loue, and where loue is perfect there must nedes be suche a respecte vnto the weake, a thinge that christ commanded and charged to be had aboue al thinges.

In the. xv. Chapter, he setteth foꝛth Chzist agayne to be folowed, if we also by hys ensample thoulde suffre other that are yet weake, as them that are fraple, open synners, vnlerned and vnexpert, and of loth some maners, and not to caste them awaye foꝛth with the, but to suffre them tyll they waxe better, and exhoꝛte them in the meane tyme. Foꝛ so deale Chzist in the Gospell, ⁊ now dealeth with vs dayly, suffering our imperfectnes, weaknes, conuersacion, and maners not yet fashioned after the doctryne of the Gospell, but smell of the flesche, ye and sometime breake out in outwarde dedes. After that to conclude with all he wisheth them encreasse of fayth, peace and hope of conscience, pzayseth them, and committeth them vnto God and magnifieth hys office and admistration in the Gospell, and soberlye, and with greate discretion desyzeth succoure aod ayde of them foꝛ the poore saynctes at Ierusalem, and it is all pure loue that he speaketh of dealeth with all. So finde we in thys pystle plentyously, vnto the vttermoost, what soeuer a chzi to ẏ Romayn man oꝛ woman ought to knowe, that is to wete, what the lawe, the Gospell, spirite, grace, fayth, righ nes is thodo sten man oꝛ woman ought to knowe, that is to wete, what the lawe, the Gospell, spirite, grace, fayth, righ nes is thodo euousnes, Chzyst, God, good wozkes, loue, hope, and the crosse are, and euen wherin the pythe of all that ze into al thy pertayneth to the Chzisten fayth consysteth, and how a Chzysten man ought to behaue him self vnto scripture, ye euery man, be he perfecte oꝛ a synner, good oꝛ bad, stronge oꝛ weake, frend oꝛ foe: and in conclusyon howe and the keye to behaue our selues both toward God, and towarde our selues also. And al thinges are pzofoundly grosshed ⁊ openeth ded in the scriptures, and declared with ensamples of hym selfe, of the fathers and of the pzophetes, that it, and dzinke a man can here desyze no moze. Wherfoꝛe it appeareth euidentlye, that Paules minde was to compzehẽ geth men de thefely in thys pystle all the whole learninge of Chzistes Gospell, and to pzepare an introduction vnto to the true all the olde testament. Foꝛ without doubte, who soeuer hathe thys pystle perfectly in hys herte, the same vnderstandeth the lyght and the effect of the old testament, wherfoꝛe let euery man w our exception exercise shi dinge of it, felfe there in diligently, and recozde it nyght and daye contynually vntyll he be fully acqaynted therwith. The last chapter is a Chapter of recommendacion, wherin he yet mingleth a good monycion that we The last cha shoulde beware of the tradicions and doctryne of men, which begyle the symple with sophistrye and leaning that is not after the Gospel and drawe them from Chzyste, and nosel them in weake ⁊ feble, ⁊ as Paul calleth them in the Epistell to the Galathians) in beggerly ceremonies foꝛ thentent that they would lyu ein fatre pastures and be in auctozitye and be taken as Chzist, yea and aboue Chzyste, and syt in the tẽple of God, that is to wite in the consciences of men where god onely, hys woozde, and hys Chzist oughte to syt. Cõpare therfoꝛe al maner doctryne of men vnto the scripture ⁊ se whether they agree oꝛ not. And cõmit thy self whole ⁊ al together vnto Chzist ⁊ so shal he w his holy spirit ⁊ wal his fulnes dwel in thy soul.

The somme and hole cause of the writing of this Epistle, is, to pzoue that a man is iustified by fayth onely: which pzoposytion who so denyeth, to him is not only this Epistle and al that Paul wzyteth, but also the holy scripture so lokked vp, that he shal neuer vnderstand it to his soules healthe. And to bzynge a man to the vnderstanding ⁊ healing that fayth only iustifieth: Paul pzouyth that the holy nature of mã is so poisoned and so coꝛrupte, yea so dead conserning godly liuing oꝛ godly thinking, ẏ it is impossyble foꝛ her to kepe ẏ lawe in ẏ sight of God, ẏ is to say, to loue it, ⁊ of loue ⁊ lust to do it as naturally as a mã eateth oꝛ dzinketh, vntil she be quickened againe ⁊ healed therow faith. And by iustifienge vnderstande none other thinge then to be reconciled to God ⁊ to be restored vnto his fauour, and to haue the synnes foꝛgeuen thee. As when I saye God iustifieth vs, vnderstand therby, that God foꝛ Chzistes sake, merites and deseruinges onely receaueth vs vnto his mercy, fauoure and grace, and foꝛgeueth vs our sinnes. And when I saie Chzist iustifieth vs, vnderstad therby that Chzist hath onely redemed vs, bought ẽ Iustifienge. delyuered vs out of the wzath of god and dampnation, and hath with his woozdes onley, purchased vs ẏ mercy, fauor, ⁊ grace of God: ẏ foꝛgeuenes of our sinnes. And when I saie that faith only iustifieth, vnderstand therby ẏ faith ⁊ trust in ẏ trueth of god ⁊ in ẏ mercy pzomised vs foꝛ Chzistes sake, ⁊ foꝛ his deseruings ⁊ wozkes only, doth quiet ẏ conscience ⁊ certifi her ẏ our sinnes be foꝛgeuen ⁊ we in the fauor of god

Furthermoze sett before thyne eyes Christes wozdes and thyne owne wozkes. Christes wozdes comfyte iustifye thee, and make satisfaction for thy synne, and thine owne woozkes not: that is to saye, quieteth thy conscience, and make thee sure that thy synnes are forgeuen thee, and not thyne owne wozkes. For the promise of mercye is made thee, for Christes wozkes sake, and not for thyne owne wozkes sake. Wherefore seing god hath not promysed that thyne owne wozkes shal saue thee, therefore fayth in thyne owne wozkes can neuer quiet thy conscience nor certifye thee before God (when god commeth to iudge or to take a recoueryng) that thy synnes are forgeuen thee. Beyonde al thys, myne owne wozkes can neuer satisfye the lawe or paye her that I owe her. For I owe the lawe to loue her with al myne herte, soule power and might. Which thinge to paye I am neuer able whyle I am compassed with flesche. No, I can not ones beginne to loue the lawe, except I be fyrst sure, by fayth that god loueth me, and forgeueth me. Finally, that we saye fayth onelye iustifieth ought to offende no man. For if thys be true, that Christ onely redemed vs, Christ onely bare oure synnes, made satisfaction for them, and purchased vs the fauoure of God, then must it nedes be true, that the truste only in Christes deseruing and in the promises of god the father made vs for Christes sake, doth onelye quyet the conscience, and certifyeth that the synnes are forgeuen. And when they saye, a man must repent, forsake synne, and haue a purpose to synne no more, as wyse as he can and loue the lawe of God. Ergo fayth onely iustifieth not, I answere, that and all lyke argumentes are nought, and lyke to this. I must repente and be sory, the Gospell must be preached me and I must beleue it or else I cannot be partaker of mercye which Christ hath deserued for me, Ergo Christ only iustifieth me not, or Christ only hath not made satisfaction for my sinnes. Be this is a naughtie argument, so is the other.

Now go to reader, and accordinge to the order of Paules writing, euen so do thou. First beholde thi false diligentlye in the lawe of God, and se there thy iust dampnation. Secondarelye turne thine eyes to Christ, and see there the exceadinge mercye of the moost kinde and louinge father. Thyrdly remembre that Christ made not this attonemēt that thou shouldest angre god again, neyther died he for thy synnes, that thou sholdest liue still in them, neither cleansed he ther, that thou shouldeste returne, as a swine, vnto thyne olde podell agayne. but that thou shouldeste bee a newe creature and lyue a newe lyfe after the wyll of God, and not of the flesche.

And be dylygent least thorow thyne owne negligence and vnthankfulnes, thou lose this fauoure and mercye agayne.

Fare well.

The ende of the prologe to the Romaynes.

To the Romayns

The Epistel of the Apostle Sayncte Paull to the Romayns.

Paul declareth his loue towarde the Romaines, sheweth what the Gospell is with the frute therof, & rebuketh the beestlynes of the flesche.

The fyrst Chapter.

PAull the seruaūte of Jesus Christ called to be an Apostle, put a parte to preache the Gospell of God, which he promysed afore by his Prophetes in the holy scriptures the make mencion of his sonne, the which was begotten of the seed of Dauid, as pertayninge to the flesche: and declared to bee the sonne of God, with power of the Holy goost the sanctifyeth, sence the time that Jesus Christ our Lorde rose agayne from deathe, by whome wee haue receaued grace & Apostleshyp to bring all maner Heathen people vnto the obedyence of fayth, that is in his name: of the which Heathen are ye a part also, which are Jesus Christes by vocacion.

To all you of Rome beloued of God & sayncte by callynge. b Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, & from the Lorde Jesus Christ.

First verely I thanke my God thorow Jesus Christ, for you all, because youre fayth is published throughout all the worlde. For God is my witnes, whom I serue with my spirite in the Gospell of his sonne, that without ceasynge I make mencion of you al wayes in my prayers, besechinge that at one tyme or other, a prosperous iorney (by the will of God) myght fortune me, to come vnto you. For I longe to see you, that I myghte bestowe among you some spyritual gyfte, to strenghte you with all: that is, that I might haue consolacion to gether with you, through the commen fayth, which both ye and I haue.

I wolde that ye shulde knowe brethren, howe that I haue often tymes purposed to com vnto you (but haue bē let hytherto) to haue som frute amonge you, as I haue amounge other of the Gentyles.

For I am detter both to the Grekes & to them which are no Grekes, vnto the learned and also vnto the vnlearned. Lyke wyse, as moche as in me is I am redy to preach the Gospel to you of Rome also. For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ because it is the power of God vnto saluacyō to al that beleue, namely to the Jew, and also to the Gentyle. c* For by it the ryghtwesnes which commeth of God, is opened, from fayth to d* fayth. As it is written: the Iuste shall lyue by fayth.

For the wrath of God apereth from heauen agaynst al vngodlynes, & vnrighteousnes of men which withholde the trueth in vnrighteousnes: seyng, what maye bee knowen of God, that same is manifeste among them. For God did shewit vnto them. So that hys inuisible thynges: that is to say, hys eternall power and godhead, are vnderstande and seue, by the wozkes from the creacion of the woold. So that they are wyth oute excuse, in as moche, as when they knewe God, they glorified him not as God, nether were thankfull but were full of vanities in their imaginacions, and their foolisshe hertes were blynded. When they counted themselues wyse, they became foles and turned the glory of the immortall God, vnto the similitude of the ymage of mortal man, and of bydes, and foure foted beastes, and of serpentes. Wherfore God lyke wyse gaue them vp vnto their hertes lustes, vnto vnclennes, to defyle their awne bodyes betwene them selues: which tourned hys truthe vnto a lye, and worshypped and serued the creatures more then the maker, which is blessed for euer. Amen. For this cause God gaue them vp vnto shamfull lustes. For eue their wemen dyd chaunge the naturall vse vnto the vnnatural. And lyke wyse also the men lefte the natural vse of the woman, and brent in their lustes one to another. And mā with mā wrought filthines, and receued in them selues the rewarde of their errour, as it was accordynge.

And as it semed not good vnto them to be a knowen of god, euen so god deliuered them vp vnto a leawd mynde, that they shuld do those thinges which were not comely, beinge full of all vnrighteous doynge, of Fornicacion, wickednes nes, couetousnes, malycyousnes, full of enuie, mozther, debate, disseyte, euell condycyoned, whisperers, backbyters, haters of god, doers of wzong, pzoude bosters, bzingers vp of euell thynges, disobedient to father ād mother, wout vnderstādig, couenaūt bzekears, vnlouig trucebzekers, mercyles. Which mē thogh they knew ỹ rightwesnes of god how ỹ they which comit such thiges are wozthy of death, yet not onely do the same, but also haue *pleasure i them that do them.

The Notes

a *Sainctes by callyng is as much to saye, as called to be sayntes, called to holines and holy liuige: for the scripture is accustomed to cal them that be a liue saintes, & it ought to be al one, to saye, a sayncte and a Chzysten man oz a Chzistian.

b *Geace be with you and peace. By grace, here vnderstand the fauour of god wherby he freely forgeueth synnes. By peace, the tranquylite of conscience pzoceadyng therof.

c *For by it the ryghtwesnes which cometh of god, is opened, that is by the pzechyng of the gospel, the imputacyon of ryghtwesnes wherwith God reputeth and pzonounceth vs rightwes freely thozow mercy, is euydently declared.

d *From fayth to fayth, that is from an vnperfect fayth to a perfect, from a weake fayth to astrōger, & from one bataple of fayeth to another, for as we haue escaped one ieopardy thozow fayth, another inuadeth vs, thozow whych we muste wade by the helpe of fayth also.

*To haue pleasure, in another mans synes is greater wickednes then to synne thy selfe.

¶ He rebuketh the Jewes, which as touching sinne are lyke the heathen/yea wozse then they.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

Perfoze arte thou inexcusable O man, whosoeuer thou be that iudgeste. For in ỹ same wherin thou iudgeste another, thou condempnest thy selfe. For thou that iudgest doest euen the same selfe thynges. But we are sure that the iudgment of god is accozdyng to truth, against them which cōmyt such thinges.

Thinckest thou thys O thou man ỹ iudgest them which do such thynges, & yet doest euen the very same, that thou shal escape ỹ iudgmēt of God? Eyther dyspisest thou ỹ ritches of his goodnes patience and longe sufferaunce, and remembrest not how ỹ the kyndnes of god ledeth the to repentaunce?

But thou after thyne herde herte that cannot repent, heapest ỹ to gether the treasur of wrath against the dai of vengeaūce, whē shalbe opened ỹ ryghtwes iudgement, of god bwhich will reward euery man accozdynge to hys dedes: that is to saye, Glapse, Honoure and immoztalite, to them whych continue i good doynge, & seke eternall lyfe. But vnto them that are rebellious ād disobey the trueth, ād folowe iniquytie, shal come indignacion and wzath, tribulacion and angupsshe vpon the soule of euery man that doth euyll: of ỹ Jewe fyrst, and also of the Gentyl. To euery man that doth good, shall come pzayse, honoure, and peace, to the Jewe fyrst, and also to the Gentyll. For ther is no parcialite vnto God. But whosoeuer hath synned with out lawe/ shall perisshe wout law: And as many as haue sined vnder the law, shalbe iudged bi ỹ lawe: c*For before God they are not ryghteous which heare the lawe: but the doers of the law shalbe iustified. For yf ỹ Gentyles which haue no law, do of nature the thynges contayned in the law: then they hauynge no lawe, are a lawe vnto them selues, which shew ỹ dedes of the law writen in their hertes: while their conscience bearethe witnesse vnto them and also their thoughtes, accusynge on another oz excusynge, at the dai whē god shal iudge ỹ secretes of mē by Jesus chzist, accozdīg to my gospel.

Beholde, thou arte called a Jewe, and trustest in the lawe and reioycest in god, and knowest his will, and hast experience of good, and bad, in that ỹ are informed by the lawe: and beleuest ỹ ỹ thy selfe arte a gyde vnto the blynde, a lyght to them whych are in darcknes, an informer of them whych lack discrecion, a teacher of vnlearned, which haste the ēsample of that which ought to be knowen, and of the treuth, in the lawe. But thou whych teachest another, teachest not thy self: Thou preachest a man shuld not steale: and yet thou stealest: thou sayst, am i shuld not cōmyt aduoutery? thou breakest wedlok. Thou abhorrest ymages, and robbest god of his honoure.

Thou reioycest in the law, and thozowe breaking the lawe, dishonourest the God. For the name of god is euell spoken of amonge the Gentiles thozowe you, as it is wzyten.

circumcision verely auayleth, yf thou kepe the lawe. But yf thou breake the lawe, thy circūcision is made vncircūcision. Therefoze yf the vncircūcised kepe the ryght thinges contayned in ỹ lawe: shal not his vncircūcisiō be counted for circumcision? And shall not vncircūcision which is by nature (yf it kepe ỹ lawe) iudge the, whiche beynge vnder ỹ letter and circūcisiō, dost trāgresse the lawe? For hee is not a Jewe, which is a Jewe outwarde. Nether is that thinge circumcision which is outwarde in the flesshe. But hee is a Jewe which is hid within, & the circūcision of the herte is ỹ true circūcisiō, which is ỹ spirite & not ỹ letter, whose pzaise is not of men, but of God.

The Notes

a *To iudge, here (as in many other places) signyeth to condemne other and esteame thy selfe rightwes.

b *Which wyl reward euery man accozdynge to his deades. This saieng may no man so vndersta̅d, as though wozkes dyd iustify before God: for the maketh he this whole Epistle saisse, which only beseeceth to pzoue that our sinnes are forgeuen freely through mercy, for Chzistes sake, and not for our deseruinges oz wozkes. Know ye therfore that. S. Paul dothhere ascribe iustifycatyō to wozkes, but describeth them haue rightwes, by the thing ỹ folloeth, that is by their feutes what they be. He wyl reward euery man &c, ỹ is to the rightwes wyll be geneyfe, and to the vnrighteowes payne.

c *For before God they are not righwes, &c, but the doares of the lawe shalbe iustified, that is, shal be pronounced iust and rightwes. This sentence is onely spoken to the reproue of the Jewes, settynge wolmal doare by them selues in the behaife of the law, which yet they kept not.

This thing saieth Paul to their charges, on thys wyse. It is not ynough for ỹ O thou Jewe to here the lawe only and to be a pzofessour therof, & a learner to it, but if thou wilt nedes be iustified & made rightwes in the syght of God by the lawe, as thou so greately crakest, then must thou kepe the lawe, not onely here it, now that doste thou not, but are spitte of the breaking of it, and therfore must thou haue another waye to be com rightwes in ỹ syght of god, then by the keping of the lawe, which is, as this whole Epistle both after and before playnely proueth fayth, that fastly beleueth sinnes to be forgeuen freely by Chzist, not for our wozkes oz deseruynges, no not when we haue done the best that we can. Luke. xvii.

And to this purpose doth. S. Ambrose wryting on this selfe same text expound Paul, sayeng, not they are rightwes which heare the lawe, but which beleue in Chzyste whoome the lawe pzomysed afterwarde playnelye, that to beleue in hym, is to do the lawe.

¶ She theweth what preferment the Jewes haue, & that both ỹ Jewes and Gentyls are vnder sinne, & are iustifyed only by the grace of God in Chzist.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

What preferment then hath the Jewe other what auauntageth circumcision? Surely very moche. First vnto them was committed the wozde of God. What then though some of them dyd not beleue, shal their vnbeleue make the promes of God wyth out effecte? god fozbid: Let god be true, ād a ll men lyars, as it is wzitten: that ỹ myghtest be iustifyed in thy sayinge, and shuldest ouercome, when ỹ arte iudged.

Yf oure vnrighteowesnes make the rightwesnes of God moze excellēt: what shall we saye? Is God vnrighteous wbych tāketh vengeaunce? I speake after ỹ maner of mē. God fozbid. For how then shall God iudge the wozlde? If the veritie of God appeare moare excellent thozow my lye, vnto his prayse, why ā I hence fozth iudged as a synner? and say not rather (as men cuyll speake of vs, and as some affyrme that we saie) let vs do euil ỹ good maye coine therof. Whose damnacyon is iuste.

What say we then? Are we better the they? No, i no wyse. For we haue alredy proued how ỹ both Jewes & Grekis are al vnder sine, as it is wzeite there is non righteous no not one: ther is none ỹ vnderstandeth, there is none ỹ seke th after god they are al gone out of ỹ waye, they are al vnprofitable/ther is none ỹ doeth good, no not one. Their throte is an ope sepulchre/ wyth their tonges they haue disceaued: the poyson of aspes is vnder their lyppes. Whose mouthes are full of curssynge and bytternes. Their fete are swyfte to sheed bloud. Destruccyon and wretchednes are in their wayes. And the way of peace they haue not knowen. There is no feare of God before their eyes.

*Ye and we knowe that whatsoeuer the lawe sayth, he saith it to them which are vnder ỹ lawe. That al mouthes maiebe stopped, and all the wozlde be subdued to God: because that by ỹ dedes of the lawe, shall no flesshe be iustifyed in ỹ sight of God. For by the law cōmeth the knowledge of synne.

Now verely is the ryghteowesnes that cometh of God declared with out fulfyllinge of the lawe/ hauynge witnes yt of the lawe and of the Pzophetes.

Tho

The ryghteweſnes no doute which: is good befoze God, cómeth by the fayth of Jeſus Chriſt, vnto all and vpon all that beleue.

Ther is no dyfference: foz all haue ſynned and lacke the prayſe that is of valoure befoze God: but * are iuſtified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Chriſt Jeſus, whom God hath made a ſeate of mercy throw faith in his bloude to ſhewe ꝑ ryghteweſnes which befoze him is of valoure. in ꝑ he forgiueth the ſines that are paſſed, which God dyd ſuffre to ſhewe at this tyme, the ryghteweſnes that is alowed of hi, that hee myght bee counted iuſt, and a iuſtifiar of hi which beleueth ō Jeſus. Where is the thi reioyſinge? It is excluded. Bi what lawe? bi the law: of woꝛkes? Naye: but by ꝑ lawe of fayth.

Therfoze wee holde ꝑ a man is iuſtifyed by fayth wout the dedes of ꝑ lawe. Is hee the God of the Jewes on'ly? Is hee not alſo ꝑ God of ꝑ Gentiles? Yes, euen of the Gentiles alſo. Foz it is God only which iuſtifieth circūciſion whiche is of fayth, and vncircūciſiō throw fayth. Do wee thē deſtroie ꝑ lawe throw fayth? God forbid. But wee rather maynitayne the lawe.

The Notes.

a * Are iuſtifyed freely by his grace. This ſayenge doeth. S. Ambroſe expounde on this wiſe: they woꝛcking nothing noz acquyting him any whit, are iuſtyfied by fauth alone, by the gyft of god. Thys woꝛd, alone, (although many be therwith vnruly offended) is alſo eupdently expreſſed by. S. Paul hym ſelfe, in theſe woꝛdes, freely wout the lawe, wout woꝛkes, it is a gyft and ſuch lyke, which ꝑ muſt marke, foz they are alone wh this foꝛeſaide exception of. S. Ambroſe, by fauth alone we are iuſtyfyed which ſayenge ſignyfieth this much. Onely by the beleefe wherw we beleue that the mercy of god graūted in Chriſtes bloude dothe ſaue vs, are wee pꝛonounced righteweſ. This woꝛd alone excludeth woꝛkes, not that thou ſhouldeſt not do theꝛfoz vnto al good woꝛkes commaunded in the ſcripture art thou bounde and called to walke in them, and muſt earneſtly ſtudie and endeuoure thy ſelf to leue none of them vndone: but that thou ſhuldeſt in no condycion thincke, that thou art therby iuſtyfyed oz made righteweſ befoze God.

The declareth by the exaꝛmple of Abrahaſm, ꝑ fayth iuſtyfyeth, and not the lawe, noz the woꝛkes

The.iiii. Chapter.

What ſhal we ſaye then, ꝑ Abrahā our father as pertayneynge to the fleſhe dyd finde? If Abraham were iuſtified by *dedes/ then hathe he wherin to reioyce: but not wyth God. Foz what ſayth ꝑ ſcripture? Abraham beleued God, and it was counted vnto him foz ryghteweſnes. To him ꝑ woꝛketh, is the reward not reckened of fauoure, but of duty. To him ꝑ woꝛketh not but beleueth on him that iuſtifieth the vngodly, is his fayth coūted foz ryghteweſnes. Euen as Dauid deſcribeth the bleſſednes of the man vnto whom God aſcribeth ryghteweſnes wythout dedes: * Bleſſed are they, whoſe vnrighteweſnes are foꝛgeuen and whoſe ſynnes are couered. Bleſſed is that man to whom the Lord inputeth not ſynne.

Came this bleſſednes then vpon ꝑ circūciſed oz vpon the vncircumciſed? We ſaye verely how that fayth was reckened to Abraham foz righteweſnes. How was it rekened? in the time of circumciſyon? oz in the tyme befoze he was circumciſed? Not in the tyme of circumciſion: but when he was yet vncircumciſed. And he receaued the ſigne of circumciſyon, as a ſeale of the ryghteweſnes which is by faith, which fayth he had yet beynge vncircumciſed: that he ſhulde be the father of all them that beleue, though they be not circumciſed, ꝑ righteweſnes myght be imputed to them alſo: and that he myght be the father of ꝑ circumciſed, not because they are circumciſed only: but because they walke alſo in the ſteppes of that fayth that was in oure father Abraham befoze the tyme of circumciſyon.

Foz the pꝛomes that he ſhuld be the heyꝛe of the woꝛlde, was not geuen to Abraham oz to hys ſeed throw the lawe: but throw the ryghteweſnes which cometh of fayth. Foz yf they which are of the lawe, be heyꝛes, then is fayth but vaine, and the pꝛomes of none effecte. Because the lawe cauſeth wrath. Foz where no lawe is, there is no tranſgreſſyon. a * Therfoze by fayth is ꝑ inheritaunce geuen ꝑ it might com of fauoure: ꝑ pꝛomes myght be ſure to all ſeed. Not to thē only which are of ꝑ law: but alſo to them which are of the faith of Abrahā, which is ꝑ father of vs all. As it is wꝛitten: I haue made the a father to many nations, euen befoze God whome thou haſte beleued, which quyckeneth the dead, and calleth thoſe thinges which be not, as though they were.

Which Abraham contray to hope, beleued in hope, that he ſhuld be the father of many nacyons, accoꝛdynge to ꝑ which was ſpoken: So ſhal thi ſede be. And he fayntred not i ꝑ fayth, noz yet cōſydered his owne body which was now dead, euen when he was almoſt an hūdreth yeare old: neither yet ꝑ Sara was paſt chylde berynge. He ſtakered not at the pꝛomes of God throwe vnbeleefe: but was made ſtronge in the faythe, and gaue honoure to GOD full certeyned, that what he had pꝛomyſed, that he was able to make good. And therfoze was it rekened to hym foz ryghteweſnes.

It is not wꝛytten foz hym onelye, ꝑ it was rekened to him foz righteweſnes but alſo foz vs, to whom it ſhalbe coūted foz ryghteweſnes, ſo we beleue on hym that rayſed vp Jeſus oure Lorde from death: Which was delyuered foz oure ſynnes, & roſe agayne foz to iuſtyfye vs.

The Notes.

a * Therfoze by fayth, &c. that ꝑ pꝛomes myght be ſure, that is therfoze are ye pꝛonounced righteweſ by fayethe (by whiche vnderſtande euen the Mercye of God, receaued by faith, that thy conſcience might be ſurely certified of the wil of God, and of the pꝛomiſes of the gospel that is of remiſſion of ſynnes, of reconciliation oz reputacion of righteweſnes, ād of the gyft of euerlaſting life, that these thinges ſhall ſurely be pꝛefoꝛmed, which were not poſſyble if the pꝛomes ſhulde depende oz hange on oure woꝛkes. Foz then ſhulde the conſcience be vnſure doutinge whether we had woꝛkes ynoughe, whether God would be merciful, whether the law which we knowe we haue tranſgreſſed, woulde condemne vs &c.

Now when doute fulnes remayneth in vs there remayneth alſo fearefulnes, by which cometh deſperacion and deeth: foz ſo longe as the lawe ſheweth vs ꝑ anger of God, feare deeth cā not be ouer cōe. Therfore muſt we nedes ſticke onely to fayth in the merciful pꝛomiſes of God ſurely certifieth ꝑ they ſhalbe fulfilled al thoughe our woꝛkes haue not deſerued ꝑ fulfillinges of them.

The power of fayth, hope & loue: how death raigned from Ada vnto Chriſt, by whome onely we haue foꝛgeuenneſſe of ſinnes.

The.v. Chapter.

Becauſe therfoze that we are iuſtifyed by faith, a * we are at peace with God throw our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: by whome we haue a wape in throwe fayth, vnto thys grace wherin we ſtand and reioyce in hope of ꝑ prayſe that ſhalbe geuen of god. Nether do we ſo onely: but alſo we reioyce in the trybulacyon. Foz we know that trybulacyon bꝛingeth patience/ pacyēce bꝛyngeth experyence, experyence bꝛyngeth hope. And b * hope maketh not aſhamed foz ꝑ loue of God is ſhed abꝛode in oure hertes by the holy gooſt, whyche is geuen vnto vs.

Foz when we were yet weake, accoꝛdynge to the tyme: Chriſte dyed foz vs whych were vngodly. Yet ſcarce wil any man dye foz a ryghtweſ man. Peraduēture foz a good manne durſte ſome dye. * But god ſetteth oute hys loue ꝑ he hath to vs, ſeynge ꝑ while we were yet ſinners, Chriſt died foz vs.

Muche moꝛe then now (ſeynge we are iuſtyfyed in hys bloude) ſhal we be ſaued from wrath throw hym.

Foz yf when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by ꝑ death of his ſonne: moche moꝛe, ſeynge wee are reconcyled, wee ſhalbe pꝛeſerued by his life.

Not only ſo, bue wee alſo ioye in God by ꝑ meanes of our Lorde Jeſus Chriſte, by whom wee haue receaued reconciliation. Wherefoze as by one man ſinne entred into the woꝛlde, & deeth by ꝑ meanes of ſine. And ſo deeth went ouer all men, in ſo muche ꝑ all men ſinned. Foz euen vnto the tyme of the lawe was ſine in ꝑ woꝛlde, but ſynne was not regarded, as longe as ther was no lawe: neuertheleſſe deeth raygned from Ada to Moyſes, euen ouer them alſo ꝑ ſined not, lyke tranſgreſſion as did Adam: which is the ſimilytude of him that is to come. But the gyfte is not lyke as ꝑ ſine. Foz yf throw the ſine of one, many bee deed: moche moꝛe plenteouſly by on many was ꝑ grace of God and gyfte by grace whiche grace was geuen by one man Jeſus Chriſt.

And ꝑ gyft is not ouer one ſine, as deth cā throw one ſine of one ꝑ ſined. Foz dānacion came of one ſine vnto cōdēnacion: but ꝑ gift came to iuſtify frō many ſynnes. Foz yf by the ſinne of one, deeth raygned by the meanes of one: moche moꝛe ſhall they which receaue abounda-ūce of grace and of the gifte of ryghtweſneſ/ raigne in lyfe by the meanes of one (ꝑ is to ſaie) Jeſus Chriſt.

Lyke wise then as by the synne of one condemnacion came on all men: euē so by the iustifyinge of one commeth the ryghtewesnes that bringeth lyfe vpon all mē. For as by one mannes dysobedience many became synners: so by ỹ obedience of on shal many be made ryghtes. But the *lawe entred in, that synne shoulde encrease. Neuertheles where aboundance of sinne was, there was moze plentcousnesse of grace. That as sin had rayned vnto death, euen so might grace raygne thorow righteousnes, vnto eternall lyfe, by the helpe of Jesu Christ.

The Notes.

a* To be at peace wt god is no nother thing then to haue tranquillite and rest in oure hertes toward god knowing assuredlye that we be accepted of him and do please him, which thing we fynde by fayth onely in that it receaueth forgeuenes of synnes, & geuenes of lyfe euerlastinge by mercy obtayned at Christes bloude. Oure awne workes cā bring no soch tranquilite, because they be vnsure and engender doubt, of which followeth desperacion and of it dampnacion. *b We are not ashamed of our hope for we are sure by the death of Christ that god loueth vs, & will bringe oure hope to passe.

Adās disobedience damned vs al, per we oure selues wrought euel. And Christes obedience saueth vs al per we our selues, worke any good.

The lawe encreaseth synne and maketh vs more naeue more gredy to do euel because ỹ law ministre the no power nor lust to that the biddeth, or to refraine from that the forbiddeth. Gala. iii. d

¶ For so much as we be deliuered thorow christes deth from synne, we must faction our selues to lyue as the seruauntes of god, and not after our owne lustes. The vnlyke rewarde of ryghtewesnes & synne.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

A Vhat shal we say then? Shal we contynue in sinne, ỹ ther maye be aboūdaūce of grace? God forbid: How shal we that are deade as touchyng synne, lyue any lenger therin? * Remembre ye not that al we which are baptised in ỹ name of Jesu Christe are baptised to die wt him? We are buryed wt him by baptime, for to dye ỹ lyke wise as Christ was raised vp frō deeth by the glory of the father, euen we so also shulde walke in a newe life. For if we be graft in death like vnto him: euē so must we be in the resurrection. That we must remembre that our olde mā is crucified wt him also, that the bodye of synne might vtterly be destroied, ỹ hēce forth we shoulde not be seruauntes of sinne. For he ỹ is dead, is iustifyed frō sinne. Wherfore yf we be ded wt Christ, we beleue that we shal liue wyth hī: remēbring ỹ Christ once raised frō death dyeth no more, deth hath nomore power ouer hī: for as touchig ỹ he died, he died cōcerning sinne, once. And as touchig ỹ he liueth, he liueth vnto god. Lyke wise imagē ye also, that ye are* dead concerning sinne, but are aliue vnto god thorow Jesus Christe oure Lorde. ✠ Let not sinne raigne therfore in your mortal bodies, that ye shuld therunto obey in the lustes of it. Nether geue ye youre membres as instrumentes of vnrighteousnes vnto synne: but geue your selues vnto God as they that are a lyue from deth. And geue your membres as instrumentes of rightewesnes vnto god. Let not sinne haue power ouer you. For ye are not vnder the lawe, but vnder grace. What then? Shall we synne, because we are not vnder ỹ lawe: but vnder grace? God forbyd. ✠ Remember ye not how that to whō soeuer ye commyt your selues as seruauntes to obey: his seruauntes ye are to whō ye obeye: whether it be of synne vnto death, or of obedience vnto rightwesnes? God be thanked, that though ye were once the seruauntes of synne, ye haue yet obeyed wyth herte vnto the forme of doctrine where vnto ye were delyuered. Ye are thē made free from synne, and are become the seruauntes of ryghtewesnes. I

I will speake grosly because of the infirmitie of youre flesche. As ye haue geuen youre membres seruauntes to vnclenes and to iniquitie from iniquitye vnto iniquitye: euen so nowe geue your members seruantes vnto ryghtwesnes, that ye maye be sanctifyed. For when ye were the seruauntes of synne, ye wer not vnder rightwesnes. What frute had ye thē in those thinges, wherof ye are now ashamed? For the ende of those thinges is death. But now are ye deliuered frō synne, & made ỹ seruātes of God, & haue youre frute that ye shuld be sanctified, ād the ende euerlastinge life. For the rewarde of synne is death: but eternall *life is the gifte of God, thorow Jesus Christ our Lord

a* To dye vnto synne is, not to obey the desires and concupiscences of synne.

Eternall lyfe is the deserueynge of Christ.

¶ Christ hath delyuered vs from the lawe and deth. Paul sheweth what the flesshe and outwarde man is, and calleth it the lawe of the membres.

The. vii. Chapter.

Remēbre ye not brethren (I speake to thē ỹ know ỹ lawe) how ỹ ỹ law hath power ouer a mā as long as it endureth? For the woman which is in subiection to a man, is bounde by ỹ lawe to the man, as long as he lyueth. If the man be dead, she is loused from the lawe of the man. So then yf while the man lyueth she couple her selfe wt an other man, she shalbe coūted a wedlocke breaker. But if the man be deed, she is free from the lawe: so that she is no wedlock breaker, though she couple her selfe with an other man.

Euen so yee my brethren,* are dead cōcerning the lawe by the body of Christ, that ye shoulde be coupled to an other (I meane to hym that is rysen agayne from death) that we should bring forth frute vnto god. For when we were in ỹ flesshe, the lustes of sinne which were stered vp by ỹ lawe, rained in our membres, to bring forth frute vnto death. But now are we delyuered from the lawe & dead frō ỹ wher vnto we wer i bōdage ỹ we should serue in a new cōuersacion of the spyrete, and not in the old conuersacion of the letter.

What shal we saye then? is the lawe sinne? God forbid: but I knewe not what sinne ment but by ỹ lawe. For I had not knowne what lust had meant, except ỹ lawe had saide, * ỹ shalt not lust. But sinne toke an occasiō by ỹ meanes of ỹ cōmaūdement & wrought in me al maner of concupiscēce. For verely wout ỹ lawe, sinne was dead. I once liued wout law. But whē ỹ cōmaūdemēt came sinne reuiued, & I was deed. And ỹ very same cōmaūdmēt which was ordeyned vnto lyfe, was foūde to be vnto me an occasion of death. For synne toke occasyon by the meanes of ỹ cōmaundemēt, & so disceaued me, & by ỹ selfe cōmaūdment slewe me. Wherfore ỹ lawe is holy, & ỹ cōmaūdement holy, iust ād good. Was ỹ thē which is good, made death vnto me? God forbid. Naye sinne was death vnto me, ỹ it might appere, how ỹ sine by ỹ meanes of ỹ whyche is good, haue wroght death i me: ỹ sinne which is vnder ỹ cōmaūdemēt might be out of measure sinful. For we know ỹ ỹ lawe is spirituall: but I ā carnal solde vnder sin, because I wot not what I do. For what I wolde, that do I not: but what I hate, that do I. If I do nowe that which I wold not, I graunte, to the lawe that it is good. So thē now it is not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth i me. For I know, that in me (that is to saye in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing. To wyl is present withe me, but I fynde no meanes to performe that which is good. For I do not that good thinge, whych I wolde, but that euell do I, which I wolde not. Finally yf I do that I wolde not, then is it not I ỹ do it, but sinne that dwelleth in me doth it. I fynde then by the lawe, that when I wolde do good, euell is present with me. I delyte in the lawe of god, concerning the inner man. But I se an other lawe in my mēbres rebelling agaynste the lawe of mi minde, and subduing me vn to the lawe of Sinne which is in my membres. O wretched man ỹ I am who shal delyuer me from this body of deathe? I thanke god thorow Jesus Christ oure lord. So then I my selfe in my mynde serue the lawe of god, and in my flesshe the lawe of synne.

The Notes.

a* Ire deed concerning the lawe, To be deed concerninge the lawe is to be made free from the lawe and from the burthen therof, and to receaue the spyrite by which we may do for the law. And the same is to be delyuered from the lawe of deth.

To be solde vnder synne, is to be made a bondmāne to the wyll of Sinne onely.

¶ The lawe of the spirite geueth lyfe. The spirit of God maketh vs gods children and heyers wt Christ. The aboundant loue of god cannot be separated.

The viii. Chapter. ✠

There is then no daunpnacion to them which are in Chryste Jesu, whych walke not after the flesh: but after the spirite. For the lawe of the spiryte, ỹ bringeth life thorow Jesus Christ, hath delyuered me from the lawe of synne ād death. For what the lawe coulde not do in as much as it was weake because of the flesh, that performed God and sent his sonne in the sinnefull flesshe and by* synne dampned synne in the flesh: that ỹ righteousnes required of ỹ lawe, myght be fulfilled in vs, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirite. For they ỹ are carnall, are carnallye mynded. But they that are spirituall, are goddly mynded. To be carnally mynded, is death, but to be spiritualy minded is life & peace.

*Synne is taken here for a synne offeringe after the vse of the hebrewe tonge.

&Because that the fleshly mynde is enmyte against god: for it is not obedient to ỹ lawe of God/nether can be. So then they ỹ are geuē to the flesh cannot please God. But &*ye are not geuen to the flesshe, but to the *spirete: yf so be that the spirite of God dwell in you. If ther be eny man that hath not ỹ spirite of Christ the same is none of hys. If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of synne: but the spirite is lyfe for ryghtewesnes sake. Wherfore yf ỹ spirite of him ỹ rayled vp Jesus from death, dwell in you: euen he ỹ rayled vp Christ from death, shall quycken your mortal bodyes, because ỹ his spirite dwelleth in you.

*ye are not geuen to the flesshe. To be geuen to the flesh, is to lyue in the worckes of the flesshe which are reherced Galat. v. &. C

+ Therfore brethren we are now detters, not to the flesshe, to liue after ỹ flesh. For yf ye lyue after the flesshe, ye must dye. But yf ye mortifye the dedes of the body by the helpe of the spirite/ye shall lyue. For as many as are led by ỹ spirete of God: they are the sōnes of god. For ye haue not receaued the spirete of bondage to feare eny moare, but ye haue receaued the spirete of *adoption wher by we cry Abba father. The same spirite certifyeth oure spirete that we are ỹ sonnes of God. If we be sonnes, we are also heyres, ỹ heyres I meane of God and heyres annexed wt Christ, yf so be ỹ we suffer to gether, ỹ we may be glorified to gether. +

+ For I suppose ỹ ỹ afflictiōs of this lyfe, are not worthy of the glory which shalbe shewed vpon vs. Also ỹ feruent desyre of ỹ creatures abydeth lokynge when ỹ sonnes of God shal appeare, because the creatures are subdued to vanyte agaynst their wil: but for his will whych subdueth them in hope. For ỹ very creatures shalbe delyuered from ỹ bondage of corruption into ỹ glorye-ous libertie of ỹ sonnes of god. For we know that euery creature groneth with vs also, and trauayleth in payne euen vnto this tyme

D Not they only, but euen we also wych haue the fyrste *frutes of the Spyrite mourne in oure selues and wayte for ỹ (adoption) and loke for ỹ deliuerance of oure bodyes. + For we are sauyd bi hope. But hope that is sene is no hope for how can a mā hope for ỹ which he seeth? But if we hope for that we se not, thē do we with patience abide for it.

Lyke wyse the spirite also helpeth oure infirmities. For we know not what to desyre, as we oughte: but the spirite maketh intercession mightely for vs with groninges, which cā not be expressed with tōg. And he that searcheth the hertes, knoweth the meaninge of ỹ spirite: for he maketh Intercessiō for ỹ saictes, according to ỹ pleasure of god. +

E + For we know that all thinges worke for the best vnto them that loue God whiche also are called *of purpose. For those whych he knew before, he also ordeyned before, that they shoulde be lyke fashioned vnto the shape of his sonne/that he myght be the fyrste begotten sonne among many brethren. Moreouer which he appointed before them also he called, and whiche he called, them also he iustified, which he iustifyed, the he also glorifyed. What shall we then saye to these thinges? yf God be on our syde/who can be against vs? which spared not hys owne sonne, but gaue hi for vs all: how shal he not wt hi geue vs al thigs also? Who shal lay any thing to ỹ charg of gods chosē? it is god ỹ iustifieth who shē shal condēne? it is Christ which F is dead/ye rather rise again, which is also on the right hand of god & maketh intercessiō for vs. Who shal separate vs from the loue *of god? shal tribulacion? or anguish? or persecution? other būger? ether nakednes? ether parel? ether swerd? As it is writen: for thy sake are we killed al day longe, and are counted as shepe apointed to be slayne. Neuertheles in all these thinges we ouercome strongly thorow hys help ỹ loued vs: for I am sure ỹ nether death, nether lyfe, nether Angels, or rule, nether power/ nether thinges presente, nether thinges to come, nether heygh, nether lowth, nether eny other creature shalbe able to depart vs from the loue of God, shewedde in Christ Jesu our Lorde. +

The notes.

(Adopcion) that is the inheritaunce promised by grace.

*We must suffre with Christ yf we shal rayne with him in glory.

*First frutes, a taste, and a certayne portion and not the full gifte of the spirite. *We are saued by hope ỹ is, we hope to be delyuered out of the corruption, of our bodies into the glory that Christ now is in: and therfore faint not in our trybulations.

C Paul cōplaineth vpon the hard hertes of ỹ Jewes that wolde not receaue Christ, and how ỹ Heathen are chosen in their steade

The .ix. Chapter.

I Saye the trueth in Christ, & lye not, in that wherof my conscyence beareth me wytnes in the holy goost, that I haue great heuynes and continual sorowe in my herte. For I haue wysshed mi selfe to be cursed from Chryste, for my brethren ād my kynsmen as pertayninge to the flesshe, which are the Israelites. To whome pertaineth the Adopcion, and the glorye, and the couenauntes and the lawe that was geuen, and ỹ seruice of God and the promyses: whose also are the fathers and they of whome (as concernynge the flesshe) Christe came, which is God ouer al thinges blessed for euer: Amen.

I speake not these thiges as though the wordes of god had take non effect. For they are not al Israelites which came of Israel: nether are they al childrē straynghte waye because they are the seede of Abraham. But in Isaac shall thy seed be called: that is to saye, they which are the childzen of the flesshe, are not ỹ childzen of God. But the childrē of promes are counted ỹ seede. For this is a worde of promes, about this time will I come, and Sara shall haue a sonne.

Nether was it so wt her only: but also when Rebecca was wt childe by one, I meane by our father Isaac, yer the childzen were borne, when they had nether done good nether bad: that the purpose of God which is by election, myghte stande, it was sayde vnto her, not bi ỹ reason of workes, but by grace of the caller: the elder shall serue the ponger. As it is wrytten: Iacob hee loued, but Esau hee hated.

What shall we saye then? is there anye vnrighteousnes wt God? God forbyd. For he saith to Moses: I wil shew mercy to whom I shewe mercy: & I wil haue compassiō on whō I haue compassiō. So lieth it not then in a mās wil or rūnyng, but in the mercy of God. For the scripture sayeth vnto Pharao euen for this same pleture haue I stered the vp, to shewe my power on thee, ād that my name might be declared thorow out all C the world. So hath he mercy on whom he wyll, and whome he wyll, he maketh herde herted.

Thou wilt saie then vnto me: why then blameth he vs yet? For who cā resist his wil? But O man, what art thou which disputest wt *God? Shal ỹ worke saye to the worcke man: why hast ỹ made me on this fashion? Hath not the potter power ouer the claye, euen of the same lompe to make one vessell vnto honoure, and another to dishonoure? Euen so, God willig to shew his wrath and to make his power knowe, suffred with long patience ỹ vesseles of wrath, ordeined to damnacion, that he myghte declare ỹ riches of his glori on ỹ vessels of mercy, whiche he had prepared vnto glory: that is to saie, vs whiche he cauled not of the Jewes only, but also of ỹ gentiles. As he saieth in Osee: I wyll call theym my people: and her beloued.

And it shal come to passe in the place where it was said vnto them, ye are not mi people: that ther shalbe called ỹ childzen of the lyuing god.

But Esaias crieth concernig Israel, thoughe the nombre of the childzen of Israel be as the sonde of ỹ sea, yet shal but a remnaunt be saued. He finysheth D the worlde verely, and maketh it shorte in rightwesnes. For a short word wyll God make on erth. And as Esaias said before: except the lorde of Saboth had lefte vs seede, we had bene made as Sodoma, ād had bene kyndled to Gomorra.

What shal we saye then? We saye ỹ the gentyles which folowed not righte welnes haue ouertake rightewelnes: I meane the rightewelnes which cometh of fayth. But Israel which folowed ỹ lawe of ryghtewelnes couldne not at-tayne vnto the lawe of ryghtwesnes.

and wherfore? Because the sought it not by fayth: but as it were by the wor-kes of the law. For they haue stombled at the stombling stone. As it is written:
Beholde I put in Sion a stombling
stone, and a rocke which shal make me saule. And none that beleue on hi shal be ashamed.

¶ The vnfaythfulnes of the Iewes, Two maner of ryghtwousnes.

The .x. Chapter.

BRethren, my hertes desyre & prayer to god for Israel is, they myght be saued. For I beare them recorde ỹ they haue a feruent mid to godwarde but not according to knowledg. For they are ignorant of the ryghtwesnes which is alowed before God, ād go about to stablish their owne ryghtwesnes, and therfore, are not obedyent vnto the ryghtwesnes which is of valewe before god. For * Christe is the ende of the lawe, to iustifie al that beleue.

Moses describeth the ryghtwesnes which cometh of the lawe, how that the man which doth the thynges of ỹ lawe, shal liue therin. But the ryghtwesnes which cometh of faith, speaketh on this wyse. Saye not in thine hert, who shall ascende into heauen (ỹ is nothynge els then to fetche Chryst downe) other who shal ascende into the depe? (ỹ is nothig els but to fetch vp Christe from death) But what saith ỹ scripture? The word is nye thee, euen in thy mouthe and in thyne herte.

Thys word is the worde of * faith which we preache. For if thou shalte knowledge vñ thy mouth ỹ Iesus is ỹ Lorde, and shalte beleue with thine hert that God raysed him vp from death ỹ shalte be saue. For the beleue of ỹ herte iustifieth, and to knowledg vñ ỹ mouth maketh a man safe. For ỹ scripture sayeth: whosoeuer beleueth on him shal not be ashamed.

There is no dyfference betwene the Iewes and the Gentiles: For one is Lord ouer all which is ryche vnto all ỹ call on him. For whosoeuer shall call on the name of the Lorde, shalbe safe. But how shal they call ōhi vpō whō they beleued not? how shal they beleue on him of whō they haue not herde? how shal they heare with out a preacher? And howe shal they preache * except they be sent: As it is written: how beautyfull are ỹ feete of them which bringe glad tydynges of peace, and bringe glade tydynges of good thinges. But they haue not alowed to the Gospel. For Esaias sayth Lorde who shall beleue oure sayinges? So then fayth cometh by the worde of God. But I aske: haue they not herde? No dout, their sounde went out into all lōdes, and their wordes vnto the endes of the worlde. ✣

But I demaunde whether Israell dyd knowe or not? First Moyses sayth: I will prouoke you to enuy, by them that are no people and by a foolishe natiō I will anger you. Esaias after ỹ, is bolde and sayth: I am founde of thē ỹ sought me not: ād haue appered to thē ỹ asked not after me. And against Israel he sayth: al daye long haue I stretched forth my handes vnto a people ỹ beleueth not, but speaketh against mee.

The Notes

*Christ is the ende of the lawe, that is, Christ is ỹ fulfilling of the lawe: so that who so hath him & beleueth ỹ he with shedyng of hys bloud hath washed away synnes and ouer with ouer come death and hell, and obtayned the fauour of hys father for al that thus beleue, is counted ryghtwes although he do not in deade satisfye the lawe.
*Though fayth iustifye from synne and though Christ deserueth the rewarde promysed vnto thē promps made on the condycyō ỹ we embrace Christes doctryne and confesse hym with workes dede So that we are iustifyed to do good workes, ād in them to walke to the saluacion promysed.
b *Except they be sent, ỹ is, except the word be geuen them of God: Except they be sent: ye wil aske of whom? Verely of him which is the owner of ỹ gospell, that is God. Of him be they sent, whyche preache Christ truely without the desire of vaine glorye or gaynes of the same maner doth Christ prouyde ỹ his sent of hys father: because he spake to the glory of hys father not of himselfe. John vii. But such as vnder the pretence of preaching the Gospel preache mens traditions whereby they seke the praise of them selues, are false Apostles, and sent of Antychrist not of Christ.

¶ All the Iewes are not caste away therfore paule warneth the gentyles that be called not to be hyghminded, nor to despise the Iewes, for the iudgementes of god are depe and secrete.

The .xi. Chapter.

I Saye then: hath God caste away his people? God forbyd. For euen I verely am an Israelite, of the seade of Abraham, and of the trybe of Beniamin. God hath not cast away his people whiche he knewe before. Eyther wot ye not what the scripture saith by the mouth of Helias how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, sayeng: * Lorde they haue kylled thy prophetes, and dygged downe thyne aulters: and I am lefte onely and they seke my lyfe. But what saith the answere of God to hym agayne? I haue reserued vnto me vii. thousand mē which haue not bowed the knee to Baall. Euen so is there a remnaunt left thorow ỹ election of grace. If it be of * grace, then is it not of workes. For then were grace no more grace. If it be of workes thē is it no more grace. For then were deseruing no lenger deseruing what thē? Israel hath not obtayned, ỹ he sought. No but yet ỹ electiō hath obteined it. The rēnaunt are blynded, according as it is written. * God hath geuen them the spirite of vnquietnes: eyes that they should not se, and eares that they shoulde not heare vnto thys daye. * And Dauid sayeth: Let their table be made a snare to take them with all, and an occasion to saule, and a rewarde vnto them. Let their eyes be blynded that they se not, & euen * bowe downe their backes.

B I say then: haue they therfore stombled that they shoulde, but saule onely? God forbid, but thorow their saule is saluacion happened vnto the gentiles, for to prouoke them vñ all. Wherfore if the saull of them be the riches of the world & the minishinge of them, the riches of the gentyles: How much more shoulde it be, so if they all beleued. I speake to you gentiles, in as muche as I am the Apostle of the gentyles, I wyll magnifye myne office, that I might prouoke them which are my flesh: & might saue some of them. For if the casting awaye of thē be the reconcilinge of the worlde: what shall the receauinge of them bee, but lyfe again frō death? For yf one peace be holy ỹ whole hepe is holy. And yf ỹ tote be holy, ỹ braunches are holy also

Though some of the braunches be broken of, and thou beynge a wyld olyue tree, art grafte in amonge them, and made partaker of the rote and fatnes of the oliue tree, bolt not thy selfe agaynst the braunches. For yf thou bolt thy selfe, remember that thou bearest not the rote, but the rote thee. Thou wilte saye then: the braūches are broken of, ỹ I myght be grafte in. Thou sayst wel: because of vnbeleue they are broken of, and thou standest stedfast in fayth. ¶ Be not hye mynded, but feare seynge ỹ God spared not the naturall braunches, lest vaply he also spare not the.

Beholde the kindnes and rigorousnes of God: on them which fell, rigorousnes: but towardes thē, kyndnes: yf ỹ continue in his kyndnes: Or els ỹ shalt be hewen of, and they yf they byde not styll in vnbeliefe, shalbe grafted in agayne. For God is of power to graffe them in agayne. For yf thou wast cut out of a naturall wilde olyue tree, & wast grafted contrarye to nature in a true olyue tree: how moche more shall ỹ naturall braunches be grafted in their awne olyue tree agayne.

I wolde not that this secrete shulde be hyd from you my brethren (lest ye shuld be wyse in youre awne conseytes) that partly blyndnes is happened in Israel, vntyll the fulnes of ỹ gentyles be come in: and so all Israel shalbe saued. As it is written: * There shal come out of Sion he that doth deliuer, and shal turne away ỹ vngodlynes of Jacob. And this is my couenaūt vnto thē, when I shall take away their synnes. As cōcerning the gospell they are enemyes for youre sakes: but as touchinge ỹ election they are loued for ỹ fathers sakes.

For verely the gyftes and callinge of God are soche, that it cannot repent him of thē: for loke as ye in tyme passed haue not beleued God, yet haue now obtayned mercy thorow their vnbeleefe: euen so now haue they not beleued ỹ mercy which is happened vnto you, ỹ they also may obtaine mercy. God hath wrappedde all nacyons in vnbeleue, ỹ he myght haue mercye on all.

D O the depnes of the aboundaunt wysdome and knowledge of God: how vnsercheable are his iudgmentes, and his ways past fyndig out: for who hathe knowen the the mynde of the Lorde? Or who was hys counseller? other who hath geuen vnto him fyrst, that he might be recompenced agayne? For of him, and thorow him, and for him are al thinges. To him be glorye for euer: Amen.

The notes.

* To bowe downe their backes, dothe not onelye signifye that they should be brought vnder of the gentiles and oppressed with al kindes of euel: but that they should not onelye looke vp to call on the lorde vnto sure beleefe of hert.

The seuere conuersation loue, and workes of suche as beleue in Christ.

The xii. Chapter.

A I Beseche you therfore Brethren, by the mercyfulnes of God, that ye make your bodies a quicke Sacrifice, holye and acceptable vnto God: which is youre reasonable seruing of God, and fashion not your selues lyke vnto this worlde: but be ye chaunged in youre shape/by the renuing of youre wittes, that ye maye fele, what thinge is good, that acceptable/ and perfecte will of god is. For I say (thorow the grace that vnto me geuen is) to euery man amonge you, that no man esteme of him selfe more then it becommeth him to esteme, but that he discretly iudge of him selfe, accordinge as God hath dealte to euery man the measure of fayth.

As we haue manye membres in one body, and all membres haue not one office: so we beinge manye, are one bodye in Christe, and euerye man among our selues/ one an others membres. ✠

✠ Seinge that we haue diuers giftes accordynge to the Grace that is geuen vnto vs: if eny man haue the gyfte of * prophesy, let him haue it, that it be agreinge vnto the fayth. Let him that hathe an office wayte on his office. Let hym that teacheth take hede to his doctrine Let hym that exhorteth geue attendaūce to hys exhortacion. If eny man geue, let him do it with singlenes. Let hym that ruleth, do it with dylygence. If any man shewe mercye/ let hym do it w̄ cheerfulnes. Let loue be without dissimulacion. Hate that which is euell, and cleue vnto that whyche is good. Be kinde one to another with brotherly loue. In geuinge honour, go one before another. Let not that busines which ye haue in hāde, be tedious to you. Be feruente in ỹ spyrite. Applie youre selues to the time. Reioyce in hope. Be patient in tribulacion. Continue in prayer. Distribute vnto the necessyte of the saynctes and be readie to harboure. Blesse them which persecute you: blesse but curse not. Be mery with them that are mery. Wepe with C them that weape. Be of lyke affection one to wardes another. Be not hie minded: but make your selues equal to the of the lower sorte. ✠ Be not wise in youre awne opinions. Recōpence to no manne eupl. Prouyde afore hande thinges honest in the sight of al men. If it be possyble, how be it of youre parte/ haue peace with al men. Dearly beloued auēge not youre selues, but geue roume vnto the wrath of God. For it is writtē: vengeaunce is myne, and I will reward sayth the Lorde. Therfore yf thyne enemy honger, fede him, yf he thurst, gyue him drinke. For in so doing, thou shalt heape * coles of fyre on his hed. Be not ouercōe of eupl: but ouercome euil with goodnes. ✠

The notes.

A The obedience of men vnto theyr rulers. Loue fulfylleth ỹ lawe. It is now no tyme to folowe ỹ workes of darcknes.

* Coles that is thou shalt kyndle hym and make him to loue.

* Prophesye is taken here for ỹ expounduynge of scripptures: which in darke places must be expounded, that it agree to the open places, and general artycles of the fayth.

The. xiii. Chapter.

LEt euery soule submit him A selfe vnto that auctorite of the hyer powers. For there is no power but of god. The powers ỹ be, are ordeined of God, Wh̄osoeuer therfore resisteth power/ resisteth the ordinaunce of God. And they that resiste, shal receaue to them selfe dāpnacyon. For rulers are not to be feared for good workes, but for euyll. Wilt thou be without feare of the power? Do wel then: so shalt thou be praysed of the same. For he is the minister of God, for thy welth. But and yf thou do eupll, then feare: for he beareth not a sweard for nought, but is the minister of God, to take vengeaunce on the, that do eupl. Wherfore ye muste needes obey obeye, not for feare of vengaunce only: but also because of * conscience. And euē for this cause paie ye tribute. For they are Goddes ministers, seruing for the same purpose.

Geue to euery man therfore his dewtie: tribute to whō tribute belōgeth: custōe to whō custome is due: feare to whō feare belōgeth: honoure to whō honour pertayneth. * Owe nothing to any mā: but to loue one another. For he ỹ loueth another, fulfilleth the lawe. For these cōmaūdementes: Thou shalt not cōmit aduoutry: ỹ shalt not kill, ỹ shalt not steale: ỹ shalte not beare false wytnes: ỹ shalt not desire & so forth (if there be any other cōmaūdemēt) they are all coprehended in this saieng: Loue thyne neyghboure as thy selfe. Loue hurteth D not hys neighboure. Therfore is loue the fulfilling of the lawe. ✠

* This also we knowe, I meane the seasō, how ỹ it is tyme ỹ we shuld now awake out of slepe. For now is our saluacīō nerer then when we beleued. The night is passed & the daye is come nye. Let vs therfore caste awaie ỹ dedes of darckenes, & let vs put on the (armour) of lighte. Let vs walke honestlye as it were in ỹ daye lyght: not in eating and drinkynge: nether in chamburyng and wantonnes, nether in strife ād enuieng: but put ye on the Lord Iesus Christ. * And make not prouision for ỹ fleshe, to fulfil the lustes of it.

* Though thou were of power to resist the powers yet were thou dampned in thy conscience if thou dyddest it because it was against godes commaundements.

Loue is the fulfyllyng of the lawe. Christe whiche is our saluacion is now nerer then when we loked for hym in the olde testament. (Armoure) of lyght, fayth, hope, loue, the feare that God, trueth al that the lyght of godes worde teacheth.

C The weake ought not to be despyted. No man shulde offende anothers cōscience. Agayne, for outewarde thynges shulde no man cōdempne another.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

A Hym * that is weake in the faith receaue vnto you, not in disputinge & troublynge his conscience. One beleueth ỹ he maye eate al thinge. Another which is weake eateth herbes Let not him that eteth dispise him that eateth not/ and let not him which eateth not, iudge hym that eateth. For god hath receaued hym.

What arte thou that iudgest another manes seruaunt? Whether he stande or faule/ that pertayneth vnto his master: yee, he shal stande. For God is able to make him stande.

This man putteth dyfference betwene daye & daye. An other mā cōsīteth al dayes alyke. See that no mā wauer i his awne meanynge. Hee ỹ obserueth one daye more thē an other, doeth it for the Lords pleasure. And he that obserueth not one daye moare thē an other, doeth it to please the Lorde also. Hee that eateth, dothe it to please the Lorde, for hee geueth God thankes. And hee that eateth not, eateth not, to please ỹ Lorde vnto all, & geueth God thankes. For B none of vs lyueth his awne seruaunt: ne ther doeth ayye of vs die his awne seruaunt. If wee lyue, wee lyue to bee at ỹ Lordes will. And yf wee dye, wee dye at the Lordes will. Whether wee lyue therefore or dye wee are ỹ Lordes. For Christ therefore dyed, & rose agayne, & reuined that hee myght bee Lorde both of deed and quicke.

But why doest thou thē iudge thy brother? Other whi doest ỹ despise thy brother? We shalbe al broughte before the iudgment seat of Christ. For it is writē as truly as I liue saith ỹ lord, all knees shal bowe to me, and all tōges shal geue a knowlede to god. So shal euery one of vs geue acomptes of hi selfe to god. Let vs not therfor iudge one āother eny C more. But iudge this rather, ỹ no man put a stombling blocke, or an occasiō to faule in his brothers way. For I know & am ful certified in the Lorde Iesus ỹ ther is nothing comen of it selfe: but vnto hym that iudgeth it to be comen. If thy brother be greued wythe thy meate, now walkest thou not charitablye. Destroye not hym with thy meat, for whome Christ dyed. Cause not youre treasure to be euel spoken of. For the kingdom of god, is not meate & drinck, but rightuousnes, peace and ioye in the holy goost For whosoeuer in these thinges serueth Christ pleseth wel god, & is comended of men. Let vs folow those thinges which make for peace, ād thinges wherby one may edifie an other: destroy not ỹ worke of god for a litel meates sake. Al thinges are pure: but it is euil for ỹ mā, wich eateth wt hurt of his conscience. It is good neyther to eate flesshe neyther to drynke wyne, nether eny thyng, wherby thy brother stombleth, eyther falleth, or is made weake. Hast thou fayth: haue it with thy selfe before God. Happy is he that condempneth not him selfe in ỹ thynge whyche he alloweth. For he that maketh conscience, is dāned if he eate: because he doth it not of faith. For what so euer is not of fayth, ỹ same is synne.

a* Him that is weake &c. He is weake that is sone offended and hath lytell profeted in that weyknowledge and liberte of christ, whych he got with hys bloude: And he is stronge that knoweth the libertie of a christen man, that to the cleane all thynges are leane: and which douteth not as. S. Imbrose fayth writing on this chapter that all thinges arets bee eaten, that are ordened for mans vse: which thinge he proueth by this open text of Genes. all thinges are erceding good that God made, and thereof arguyeth that they are not be refused. He addeth moreouer, For nether Enoch sayth he which fyrst pleased god nor Noe which at ỹ floud was only found righteous nor Abraha ỹ frind of God, or Isaac or Jacob those rightwes ỹ Godes frindes, amongest whō was also Loth, or other rightewes men are ready to haue abstained frō these. He meneth meates, whether they be fische or of flesh. b* Our treasure is our knowleg. So do as agaynst conscience is dānable. And all that is not of fayth is synne.

¶ The ensyrmpte and fraylnes of the weake ought to be done with all loue and kyndnesse, after the ensample of Christ.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

A WE which are strong, ought to beare the fraylnes of the which are weake and not to stonde in oure awne conseites: Let euery mā please his neighboure vnto his welth, and edifikinge. Christ pleased not him selfe: but as it is writte: *The rebukes of the which rebuked thee fell on me. *What soeuer thinges are wrytten afore tyme, are written for oure learning, that we thorow patience and comforte of the scripture, myght haue hope.

B The god of patience and consolacion, geue vnto euery on of you, ỹ ye be lyke mynded one towardes another after the ensample of Christ Jesu: that ye all agree myndege to gether, maye with one mouth prayse god ỹ father of oure Lorde Jesus. Wherfore receaue ye one another as Christ receaued vs, to ỹ prayse of God. And I say that Jesus Christe was a minister of ỹ circumcision for the trueth of God, to confirme the promyses made vnto the fathers. And let the gentyles prayse God for his mercy as it is written: For this cause I wil prayse the amōg the gentyles, & syng i thy name. And agayne he sayth: reioyse ye gentyles, with his people. And agayne, prayse the Lorde al ye gentyles, & laude him all nations. And in another place Esayas sayth: ther shal be the rote of Jesse, and he that shal rise to raygne ouer the gentyles: in him shall the gentyles trust. The god of hope fil you wyth all ioye and peace in beleuing: ỹ ye maye be ryche in hope thorowe the power of the holy goost. *

C I my selfe am full certified of you my brethren, that ye your selues are ful of goodnes and fylled wyth all knowelege, and are able to exhorte one another. Neuertheles brethren I haue som what boldly wrytten vnto you, as one that putteth you in remembraunce, thorow the grace that is geuen me of God, that I shulde bee the mynyster of Jesu Christ among the Gentyles, & shuld minister the glad tydinges of God, that ỹ gentyles myght be an acceptable offering sanctyfyed by the holy goost. I haue therefore where of I maye reioyse in Christ Jesu i those thinges which perteine to god. For I dare not speake of eny of those thynges whych Christ hath not wrought by me, to make the gentyles obedient, with worde and dede, in myghty synges and wonders, by the power of ỹ spyrete of god: so that from Jerusalem and the coostes round about vnto Illyricum. I haue fylled all countres wyth the glad de tydynges of Christ.

D So haue I enforsed my selfe to preache the gospell, not where Christe was named, lest I shuld haue bylt on ā other mannes foundacyon: but as it is wrytten. To whome he was not spoken of, they shall seaud, they that heard not, shall vnderstande. For thys cause I haue bene ofte let to come vnto you: but now seyng I haue no more to do in these coūtres, and also haue bene desyrous E many yeares to come vnto you, when I shal take my iourneye into Spayne, I wyll come to you. I trust to se you in my iorney, and to be brought on my way thytherward e by you, after that I haue somwhat enioyed you.

Now go I vnto Jerusalem, & minister vnto the sayntes. For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certayne distribucion vpō ỹ poore *sayntes which are at Jerusalem. It hath pleased them verely, and their debters are they. For yf ỹ Gentiles be made partakers of their spirituall thinges, their durye is to mynyster vnto them in carnall thinges. When I haue performed this, and haue brought them this frute sealed. I wil come backe agayne by you into Spayne. And I am sure when I come, that I shal come wt aboūdaūce of the blessinge of ỹ Gospel of Christe. I beseche you brethrē for our Lord Jesus Christes sake, and for ỹ loue of ỹ spyrete, that yee helpe me in my bulynes wt youre prayers to God for me, that I maye be delyuered from them which beleue not in Jesus, and ỹ this my seruice, which I haue to Jerusalem, maye be accepted of ỹ sayntes, ỹ I maye come vnto you wt ioye, by ỹ will of God, and maye wt you be refreshed. ¶ The fyrst Chapter.

A PAul by vocacyon an Apostle of Jesus Christ thorowe the wyll of God, & brother Sostenes.

Vnto the congregacion of God which is at Cozinthum. To them that are sanctifyed in Christ Jesu, a* sayncte̅s by callynge, with all that call on the name of oure Lorde Jesus Christ in euery place, both of theirs and of oures.

Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Christ.

* I thanke my God alwayes on youre be halfe, for the grace of God which is geuen you by Jesus Chryst, that in all thinges ye are made ryche by him, in all lerninge and in all knowledge, euen as the testimony of Jesus Christ was confermed in you, so that ye are behynde in no gyft, and wayte for the appearyng of our Lord Jesus Christ which shall strenght you vnto the ende, that ye maye be blameles in the daye of oure Lord Jesus Christ. & For God is fayth full by whoome ye are called vnto the fellowshyp of his sonne Jesus Christ oure Lorde. ¶ I beseche you brethren in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speake one thynge and that there be no dissencion amounge you: but be ye knyt to gether in one mynde & in one meanyng: ¶ It is shewed vnto me (my brethren) of you, by them that are of the house of Cloe, that ther is stryfe amonge you. And this is it that I meane: how that comenlye amonge you, one saith: I holde of Paul, another I holde of Apollo, the thyrd I holde of Cephas: the fourth I holde of Christ. Is Christ deuided? was Paul crucified for you? other were ye baptised in the name of Paul? I thanke God that I christened none of you, but Crispus & Gayus, lest eny shulde saye that I had baptised in myne awne name. I baptised also the house of Stephana. Furthermore knowe I not whether I baptised eny man or no. For Christ sent me not to baptyse, but to preache the Gospell, not wyth wysdom of wordes, lest the crosse of Christ shulde haue bene made of none effecte. For the preaching of the crosse is to them that perish folishenes, but vnto vs which are saued it is the power of god. For it is wrytten: I wyll destroye the wysdome of the wyse, and wyl cast away the vnderstandynge of the prudente. Where is the wyse? where is the scribe? where is the searcher of this worlde? Hath not God made the wysdome of this worlde folishnes?

For when the worlde thorowe wysdome knew not God, in the wysdome of God: it pleased god thorow folishnes of preachynge to saue them that beleue. For the Jewes requyre a sygne, and the Gzekes seke after wysdome. But we preach Christ crucified, vnto the Jewes an occasion, of falling, and vnto the Grekes folyshnes: but vnto them whiche are called bothe of the Jewes, and b* Grekes, we preach Christe the power of God and the wisdome of god. For the folishnes of god is wiser then men: and the weakenes of God is stronger then men. Brethren loke on youre callinge how that not many wyse men after the flesh, not many myghtie, not many of hye degree are called: But god hath chosen the folyshe thynges of the worlde, to confounde the wyse.

And

And God hath chosen the weake thinges of the worlde, to confound thinges which are myghtie. And vyle thinges of the world, and thinges which are despised, hath god chosen, ye and thinges of no reputacion, for to bring to naught thinges of Reputacion, that no Flesshe shoulde reioyce in his presence. And vn to hym pertayne ye, in Chryste Jesus, which of god is made vnto vs wisdom, and also righteousnes, and sanctifying and redemption. That accordinge as it is written: he which c* reioyceth, shuld reioyce in the Lorde.

¶ It is not eloquence, & glorious paynted wordes of worldly wisdome, that can edyfye & conuert soules vnto Christ, but the playne wordes of the scripture, for they make mencion of hym, and hys crosse.

¶ The. ii. Chapter.

A AND I brethren when I came to you, came not in gloriousnesse of wordes or of wisdom, shewing vnto you the testimony of God. Neyther shewed I my selfe that I knewe any thig among you, saue Jesus Christ, euen the same that was crucified. And I was amonge you in wekenes, and in feare, and in muche tremblinge. And my wordes and my preachinge was not w̄ entisinge wordes of mans wi dom: but in shewinge of the spirite and of power, that your faithe shulde not stand in the wysdomme of men: but in the power of God.

That we speake of, is wysdom amōge them that are perfect: not the wysdō of this world, nether of ẏ rulers of thys world (which go to nought) but we speke the wysdome of God whiche is in secrete and lyeth hyd, whiche God ordeyned before the worlde vnto oure glorye: which wildō none of ẏ rulers of ẏ worlde knewe. For had they knowen it, they wold not haue crucified the lord of glory. But as it is written: The eye hath not sene, and the eare hath not heard, nether haue entred into the herte of manne, the things which god hath prepared for them that loue hym.

But God hath opened them vnto vs by his spirite. For the spirite searcheth all thynges, ye the bottome of Gods des secretes. For what man knoweth ẏ thinges of a man: saue ẏ spirite of a mā which is w̄in him. Euen so the thinges of God knoweth no mā, but ẏ spirite of god: & we haue not receued the spirite of ẏ world: but the spirite which cometh of God, for to knowe the thynges ẏ are geuen to vs of god, which thynges also we speake, not in the compynge wordes of mannes wysdome but with the compynge wordes of the holy goost, makyng spirituall comparysons of spiritu all thynges. For the naturall man perceaueth not the thinges of the spirite of God. For they are but folishnes vnto hi nether can he perceaue them, because he is spiritually examined. But he that is spirituall, discusseth all things: yet he him selfe is iudged of no mā *. For who knoweth the mynde of the Lord, o- ther who shal informe him? But we vnderstande the mynde of Christ.

The Notes

Perfect are they that vnderstande the lawe, kepeth and workes thrulye, and profesſe them.
The spirite vnderstandeth godly thinges. The natural man that is not renued in Christ cā not perceaue the thynges of God.
¶ Paul rebuketh the sectes and authors therof. Christe is the foundacyon of hys church. No man ought to reioyce in men, but in God.

The. iii. Chapter

AND I could not speake vn to you brethren as vnto spyritual: but as vnto carnall, euen as it were vnto babes i Christ. I gaue you mylke to drinke and not meate. For ye then were not strong, no nether yet are. For ye are yet carnall. As longe verely as there is amonge you enuy enge, stryfe and dissencyon: are ye not carnall, and walcke after ẏ maner of men? As lōge as one sayth, I holde of Paull, & another I am of Apollo, are ye not carnal? What is Paul? What thynge is Apollo? Only mynisters are they by whome ye beleued, euen as the Lord gaue euery mā grace. I haue plāted, Apollo watred: but God gaue the encrece. So the, nether is he that planteth enye thinge, nether he that watreth, but god ẏ gaue

the encreace. ℣e that plaunteth and he ꝑ watereth, are nether better thē ꝑ other. ¶ Euery man yet shal receaue his reward accoꝛding to his labours. ℣e are Goddes labourers, ye are goddes husbandry, ye are goddes building. Accoꝛdynge to the grace of god geuen vnto me, as a wyse buylder haue I laid foũdacion. And another buylt theron: But let euery mā take hede how he buildeth vpon. Foꝛ other foundacion can no mā laye, then that which is layd, whych is Jesus Christ. If any mā buyld on this foundacion, golde, silner, pꝛecious stones: timber, haye oꝛ stuble: euery mans woꝛke shal appeare.  Foꝛ the daie shal declare it, and it shall be shewed in fyre. And the fyre shal trie euery manes woꝛke what it is. If any mans woꝛke that he hath buylt vpon, byde, he shall receaue a reward. If any manes woꝛke burne, he shal suffer losse, but he shalbe sake hi selfe: neuertheles yet as it were thoꝛow fyre.

✠ Are ye not ware that ye are ꝑ temple of God, and how that the spyꝛte of God dwelleth in you? If any mā defile the temple of god him shal god destroy foꝛ ꝑ tẽple of god is holy, which temple ye are. Let no man declare him selfe. If any man seme wyse among you, let him be a fole i this woꝛld, that he maie be wise. Foꝛ the wisdome of this woꝛld is folishnes with god. Foꝛ it is written he compasseth the wise i their craftines. And agaie/ God knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse that they be vaine. Therfoꝛe let no man reioyce in menne. Foꝛ all thynges are youres/ whether it be Paull/ether Apollo, ether Cephas: whether it be the woꝛld, ether lyfe, ether death, whether they be pꝛesente thynges oꝛ thynges to come: all are youres: and ye are Christes, and Christ is goddes. ✠

The notes,

 Foꝛ the daie shal declare it &c. Daie here signifieth the tyme when God bringeth to lyght ꝑ thing that is hyd. By fire vnderstande exquisite perfect true Judgmente, the which, when it hath opened ꝑ fawte and errour, affliction oꝛ fearthinking and repentyng doth folow. S. Paule so teacheth here of pꝛeachers that succeaded him when he was departed from the Coꝛynthians. ℣e had layde a good foundacion, let other take hede, saithe he, what they builde theron. If they builde thinges woꝛthy foꝛ Christ their woꝛke wil remayne and abyde euē whē it is seene in the lyght, which the thinge he signifyeth when he sayth, foꝛ thee daye shall declare it. But ꝑ they bꝛenge in Jewyshe facyons, they shal happely deceaue foꝛ a time but at lenght their death shalbe apenedas soone as it ꝑs begonne to be examyned with trus and syncere Judgement, which is signifyed by this woꝛde fyre. This doth Erasmus expounde this place in hys annotacyon vpon thys woꝛkes. Haye and stoble, pꝛouing also by ꝑ aucthoꝛitie of S. Jmyose, Jerome, and other olde aucthoꝛes, that it maketh nothing but purgatoꝛy, though manye haue wꝛongfully labouꝛed to wꝛest it to that purpose. The pꝛeachers are but ministers. Jugement belongeth onely vnto god.

The iiii. Chapter.

LEt mē thys wyse esteme vs euen as the Ministers of Christ/ and disposers of the secretes of God. Furthermoꝛe it is required of ꝑ disposers, that they be founde faythfull.* With me is it but a veꝛye small thinge that I should be judged of you, eyther of (mans day) No I iudge not myne owne selfe. I know nought by my selfe, yet am I not therby iustified. It is the lord that iudgeth me. Therfoꝛe iudge nothinge befoꝛe the time vntyll the Lozde come, which wyll lyghten thinges that are hyd in darknes, and open the consels of the herts. And then shal euery man haue prayse of God. ✠

The Apostles are ministres.

These thinges bꝛethren I haue described in myne owne Parson, and Appollos, foꝛ your sakes, that ye myghte learne by vs, that no man counte of hi selfe, beyond that which is aboue wꝛite, that one swel not agaīst another foꝛ any mans cause. Foꝛ who pꝛefeꝛreth thee? Oꝛ what haste thou, that thou hast not receaued it? ✠ If thou haue receaued it, why reioycest thou as though thou haddest not receaued it? Nowe ye are full, nowe ye are made rich: ye raygne as Kinges without vs: and I wolde to God ye did raygne, that we might raigne with you.

I se thincke that God hath set foꝛthe vs which are Apostels, Foꝛ the loweste of al, as it were men apointed to death. Foꝛ we are a gasinge stocke vnto the woꝛlde, and to the Angels, and to men. We are foles foꝛ Christes sake, and yea are wyse thoꝛow Christe. We are weake, and ye are strong. Ye are honozable and we are despysed. Euen vnto thys daye we honger and thyrst, and are naked and aze buffeted wyth fistes, and haue no certeyn dwellyng place/ and laboure wozckinge withe oure owne handes, we are reuyled, and yet we blesse. We

we are persecuted, & suffer it. We are euel spoken of, and we praie. We are made as it were the filthines of ꝑ woꝛld the of scowrynge of al thinges, euen vnto this tyme.

I wꝛite not these thinges to shame you: but as my beloued sonnes I warne you. Foꝛ though ye haue ten thousand instructours in Christ: yet haue ye not many fathers. In Christ Jesu, I haue begotten you thꝛow the Gospel. Wherfoꝛe I desire you to folowe me. Foꝛ this cause haue I sent vnto you Timotheus, which is my deare sonne & faithfull in the Lozde, which shall put you i remembꝛaunce of my wayes whyche I haue in Christ, euen as I teache euerye wher in al congregations. Some swel as though I wold come no moze at you. But I wyl come to you shoztely, if god will: and wyll know, not the wozdes of them which swel/ but the power: foꝛ the kingdome of god is not in wozdes, but in power. What wyl ye? Shal I come vnto you with a rodde, oꝛ els in loue ād in the spꝛet of mekenes?

The notes

* Faithful is he that pꝛeacheth his master, not him selfe.
Mannes haye, is mannes wysdome.
¶ After what maner Paule curseth the man, that had cōmytted foꝛnycatyon w̄ hys mother in lawe.

The. v. Chapter

¶ THere goeth a comen saieng that there is foznication among you and suche foꝛnication as is not once named among the gentiles: that one shulde loue his fathers wyfe. And ye swel and haue not rather sozowed, ꝑ he which hath done this deade, myghte be put from amonge you. Foꝛ I verely as absent in bodye, euen so pꝛesente in spꝛet haue determined al redy (as thoughe I were pꝛesente), of hym that hath done this deade, in ꝑ name of our lozd, Jesu Chꝛyste, when ye are gathered together, ād my spꝛite, with the power of the Lozde Jesus Christe, to delyuer him vnto* Sathan, foꝛ the destrucyon of the flesh/ that the spꝛete may be saued in the daie of the Lozde Jesus.

Youre reioysinge is not good: know ye not that lytle leuen sowꝛeth ꝑ whole lumpe of dowe.

Do urge therfoꝛe the olde leuen/ that ye maye be new dowe, as ye are swete breed. Foꝛ Christ oure elder lambe is offered vp foꝛ vs. Therfoꝛe let vs kepe holy daye/ not with olde leuen, nether with the leuen of maliciousnes and wickednes: but with the swet breed of purenes and truthe. ✠

I wꝛote vnto you in a pistle that ye shuld not company with foꝛnicatours. And I meante not at all of the foꝛnicatours of this woꝛlde, ether of the couetous, oꝛ of extoꝛsioners, ether of the idolaters: foꝛ then must ye nedes haue gon out of the woꝛld. But now I wꝛyte vnto you, that ye cōpany not to gether, yf eny that is called a bꝛother be a foꝛnicatoꝛ, oꝛ couetous, oꝛ a woꝛshipper of images, ether a raylar, eyther a dꝛonckard, oꝛ an extoꝛcionar: w̄ hym that is soche se that ye eate not. Foꝛ what haue I to do, to iudge them which are wythoute? Do ye not iudge them that are within? Them that are wythout God shall iudge. But awaye fꝛom amonge you that eupll person.

The notes

* Excommuncation is to destroye flesshlye wysdome that the spꝛite may be founde in ꝑ doctrine of Chꝛyst.
If any that pꝛofesseth christ be suchē as other Chꝛysten man maye beare hym company.

¶ He rebuketh them foꝛ going to lawe together before the Hethen/ and reproueth vnclennesse.

The. vi. Chapter.

HOw dare one of you hauyng ye busines withe another to go lawe vnder ꝑ wycked/ ād not rather vnder the saynctes? Do ye not know ꝑ ye saynctes shall iudge the woꝛlde? If the woꝛlde shalbe iudged by you: are ye not good ynough to iudge smal trifles: know ye not howe ꝑ we shall iudge ꝑ angels? How moch moaze maie we iudge thynges that pertayn to ꝑ lyfe? If ye haue iudgementes of woꝛldely matters, take them which are despysed in the congregacyon, ād make the iudges. This I saye to youre shame. Is ther vtterly no wyse man among you? What not one at all/ ꝑ can iudge betwene bꝛother & bꝛother, but one bꝛother goeth to lawe with another: & ꝑ vnder ꝑ vnbeleuers. Nowe therfoꝛe there is vtterly a faute amonge you, because ye go to lawe one with another. Wy rather suffer ye not wrōg? wy rather suffer ye not your selues to be robbed? nay ye your selues do wrōg, & robbe: & ye ye brethre. Do ye not remēbre how that ye vnrighteous shall not inherete the kingdome of God? Be not deceaued. For neither fornicatours, neither worshippers of ymages, neyther whoremongers / nether weaklynges, Theese such like haue no parcion christ nether abusers of them selues wyth the mankinde, nether theues/ nether couetouse, nether dronkerdes, nether cursed speakers, nether pillers, shal inherete the kingdome of god. And suche were ye verely: but ye are washed: ye are sanctyfyed: ye are iustified by the name of ye lord Iesus, & by the spyrite of oure God.

C Sanctifieng & iustifies' cometh by Christe and hys spyrite.

All thinges are lawful vnto me: but al thinges are not profitable. I maye do al thinges: but I wil be brought vnder no mās power. Meates are ordeined for the bely, & the belly for meates: but god shal destroie both it and them. Let not ye body be applied vnto fornycacion, but vnto the lorde, and the lorde vnto the body. God hath raised vp the Lord, & shal rayse vs vp by his power.

D ✝Other remēbre ye not/ that your bodyes are the *membres of Christ? shall I nowe take the membres of Chryst, & make them the membres of an harlot? God forbid. Do ye not vnderstad that he which coupleth him self with an harlot is beco me one body? For two (saith he) shalbe one flesh. But he that is ioyned vnto the lorde, is one spyrite.

Flie fornycacyon. All sinnes ye a man doth, are without the bodi, But he that is a fornicatour, sinneth against his awne body. Ether know ye not how ye your bodyes are the temple of the holye goost, which is in you, whom ye haue of god, and how that ye are not your owne? For ye are dearly bought. Therfore glorifie god in your bodies and in youre spyrites, for they are Goddes. ✝

C Of mariage, vyrginite and widdoheade.

A The.vii. Chapter.

As cōcernig ye thiges wher of ye wrote vnto me: it is good for a man, not to touche a woman.

Neuertheles to auoyde fornycacyon, let euery mā haue his wife: and let euerye woman haue her husbande. Let the mā geue vnto the wife due beneuolēce.

Lykewyse also the wyfe vnto the mā: The wyfe hath not power ouer her awne body: but the husband. And lyke wyse the husbande hath not power ouer his awne body: but the wyfe. Wyth drawe not youre selues one frō another, except it be wt consent for a time/ for to geue youre selues to fastynge and prayer. And afterwarde come agayne to the same thyng, lest Satan tēpte you for your incontinencie. ✝

Thys I saye of fauoure, & not of commaundemet. For I wold that al mē were as I my selfe am: but euery man hath hys proper gyfte of God/ one after this manner, another after that. I saye vnto the vnmaried men & wyddowes: it is good for them yf they abyde euen as I do. But and yf they cannot abstayne, lett them marry. For it is better to marry then to *burne.

Vnto the maried commaunde not I, but the Lord: that the wyfe seperate not her selfe from the man. If she seperate her selfe, let her remayne vnmaried or be reconsiled vnto her husbande agayne. And let not the husbande put away his wife from him.

To the remnaunt speake I ād not the Lorde. If eny brother haue a wife ye beleueth not, yf she be content to dwell with hym, let him not put her awaye, & the woman which hath to her husbande an infidell, yf he consente to dwel wt her let her not put him awaye. For the vnbeleuig husbād is sāctified by ye wife, & ye vnbeleuing wife is sanctified by ye husbād. Or els were your childre vncleane: but *now are they pure. But & if ye vnbeleuing departe, let hi departe. A brother or a sister is not in subiection to soch. God hath calleth vs in peace. For how knowest thou o woman whether thou shalte saue that man or no? Other how knowest thou o man whether thou shalt saue that woman or no? but euen as god hath destributed to euery man.

As the Lorde hath called euery person, so let him walke: ād so ordeine I in all congregacions. If any man be called beyng beinge circumcised, let him adde nothing therto. If any be called vncircūcised: let hi not be circūcised. Circūcisiō is nothig, vncircumcision is nothinge, but the keping of the commaundementes of God is all together.

D Let euerye man abyde in the same state wherin he was called. Arte thou called a seruaunt? care not for it. Neuertheles yf thou mayest be free, vse it rather. For he ye is called in the Lorde beinge a seruaunte is the lordes freman. Likewyse he that is called beinge free, is Christes seruaunt. Yee are dearely bought, ✝* be not menes seruauntes. Brethren let euery man, where in he is called, there in abyde with God. ✝As concerninge virgins, I haue no commaundemente of the Lorde: yet geue I counsel as one that hath obtayned mercye of the Lord to be faythfull. I suppose that it is good for the present *necessity. For it is good for a man so to be. Art thou bounde vnto a wyfe? seke not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? seke not a wife. But

E ād if thou take a wyfe thou sinnest not. Lykewyse if a virgin marie, she sinneth not. Neuertheles suche shal haue trouble in theyr flesh: but I fauoure you.

This saye I brethren, the tyme is shorte, it remayneth that they which haue wyues, be as though they had none, and they that wepe, bee as though they wepte not, and they that reioyce, be as though they reioyced not: and they that bye, be as thoughe they possessed not: & they that vse this world, be as though they vsed it not. For the fassyon of this worlde goeth away. I wolde haue you without care. The syngle mā careth for the thinges of the Lord, how he maye please the Lorde. But he that hath maryed, careth for the thinges of ye world/ how he maye please hys wyfe. There is

F difference, betwene a virgin ād a wife. The syngle woman careth for the thynges of the Lorde, that she maye be pure both in body, ād also in spirite. But she that is maried, careth for the thinges of the worlde, how she may please her husbande, This speake I for your profyt, not to tangle you in a snare: but for that which is honest & comely vnto you, and that ye may quietly cleave vnto the lorde without separation.

If any man thinke that it is vncomly for his virgin, yf shee passe the tyme of mariage, and if so nede requyre, let hym do what hee lysteth, hee sinneth not, let them be coupled in mariage. Neuertheles he that purposeth surely in hys hert hauinge none neade: But hathe power ouer hys owne wyl: and hath so decreed G in his herte, yt he wyll keape his vyrgin, doeth well. So than he that ioyneth his virgin in mariage, doeth well. But he that ioyneth not his virgin in mariage, doth better. The wyfe is bounde to the lawe as lōg as her husband lyueth.

If her husband slepe, she is at lyberte to mary with whom she wyll, only in the Lorde. But she is happyar yf shee so abyde in my iudgmente. And I thynke verely that I haue the spyrete of god.

The notes.

a *To burne after S. Ambrose, is, when the wil cōsenteth to the lust of the flesh.

b *How are they pure, Not that children are cleans ād pure by nature, for that were against the Apostle him self, which proueth Rom. v. that al are vnder original sinne, and naturally the children of Goddes wrath, as Ephe ii. But hys meaninge is here, that lyke as al thinges are cleane vnto the cleane Tit. i: Euen so to a Christen mā an vnchristē wyfe is cleane, so that he maye be conuersaunte wyth her, & not offende in so doing, and that the children of them are not to be reputed as vnlawful, and vncleanne, c *We not menes seruauntes. To be the seruauntes of men here is, to do anye thynge for the fauoure of men, by which they fal from ye fauour of God, while they despysynge Christ do hange on men, and more regarde mennes preceptes and ordinaunces the the verye institucyons of God, yea, than God hym selfe.

This forbiddeth S. Paule here, and not that we shoulde deny to be seruauntes to oure masters to whom we be bounde accordinge to the common ordre apoynted in common weithes.

To these we are straytly commanded in sundry places of the scripture to be obedyent wioute ād dissēcion in al thinges aggreable to Goddes holy worde.

* If a man haue the gyft, chastyte is good, yt muste quietly to serue god. For the maried haue ofte moch trouble, but yf the minde of the chaste be combered with other worldly bulines, what helpeth it? yf yt maried be the more quiet mynded therby, what hurteth it? Nether of it selfe is better then the other, or pleaseth god more the ye other. Nether is outward circumcision or outwarde baptyme worth a pynne of them selues, saue that they put vs in remēbrāce to kepe the couenaunte made betweene vs & God.

The rebuketh them ye vse their liberte to ye slaūder of other, and sheweth how mē ought to behaue them towarde such as be weake.

C The.viii. Chapter

Of speake of thiges dedicate vnto idoles, we are sure ye we al haue knowledg. Knowelege maketh a mā swell but loue edifyeth: yf any mā thinke ỹ he knoweth any thinge, he knoweth no thing yet as he ought to know. But yf any Man loue God/the same is knowen of him.

To speake of meate dedicate vnto ydoles, we are sure that there is none ydolle in the worlde, ād that ther is none other God but one. And though there be that are called Goddes, whether in Heauen either in earth (as ther be goddes many and lordes many): yet vnto vs is there but one God/which is the father, of whō are all thinges, and we in him: and one Lord Iesus Christe, by whome are all thynges and we by him. But euery man hath not knowledge. For some suppose that ther is an Ydoll vnto this houre, and eate as a thynge offered vnto the ydole/ & so their consciences beynge yet weake, are defyled. Meate maketh vs not acceptable to God. Neither if we eate are we the better: Neither yf we eate not, are we the worsse.

In all outwardes we muste haue a respecte to our neibours wealthe.

But take hede that youre libertye cause not the weake to falle. For yf some man se thee which hast knowledge, sytt at meate in the ydoles temple, shal not the cōsciēce of him which is weake, be bolde dened to eate those thynges which are offered to the Ydole. And so thorow thy knowledge shall the weake brother perishe for whom Christe dyed. When ye sinne so againſt the brethren, and wound their weake Consciences ye synne againſte Christ. Wherfor yf meate hurte my brother, I wyl eate no flesche while the worlde standeth, because I wyl not hurte my brother.

The argumēt what it doeth

¶ Loue forbeareth the thynge that she maye do by the law. Exhorteth them to runne on forth in the course that they haue begonne.

The.ix. Chapter.

AM I not an Apostle? Am I not free? haue I not sene Iesus Christ our Lorde? Are ye not my worke in ỹ Lorde? If I be not an Apostle vnto other/yet am I vnto you. For the seale of myne Apostleship are ye in ỹ Lord. Myne āswere to them that aske me, is this. Haue we not power to eate and to drynke? Either haue we not power to leade about a sister to wife/as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lorde & Cephas? Either only I and Barnabas haue not power thys to do? Who goeth a warfare any tyme at hys owne coste? who planteth a vyneyarde, and eateth not of the frute? Who feadeth a flocke and eateth not of the mylke?

Saye I these thinges after ỹ maner of men? Or saith not the lawe the same also? For it is writen in the law of Moyses: Thou shalt not mosseł ỹ mouth of ỹ ore that treadeth out the corne. Doth God take thought for oxen? Either saith he it not al to gether for our sakes? For our sakes no doute this is writtē: that he which eateth shulde eate in hope, ād that he which threscheth in hope, shuld be partaker of his hope. If we sow vn to you spirytuall thinges: is it a greate thinge: yf we repe your carnall thinges?

The preacher hath ryghte thinges ynough for his labour

If other be partakers of this power ouer you, wherfore are not we rather?

Neuertheles we haue not vsed this power: but suffer all thinges leste we shulde hynder the gospell of Christ. Do ye not vnderstande how that they which minister in the temple, haue their fyndynge of the temple. And they whyche waite at the aulter, are partakers with the aulter. Euen so also dyd the Lorde ordaine, that they which preache ỹ Gospel, shulde lyue of the Gospel. But I haue vsed none of these thinges.

Neither wrote I these thinges that it should be so done vnto me. For it were better for me to die, then that anye man shulde take this reioysing from me. In that I preache the gospel. I haue no thinge to reioyce of. For necessite is put vnto me. Woo is it vnto me if I preach not the Gospel. If I do it w a good wil, I haue a rewarde. But if I do it againſt my wil, an office is committed vnto me. What is my reward then? Verely that when I preache the Gospel, I make the Gospel of Christ free, that I misuse not mine auctorite in the gospel.

For though I be free from al men, yet haue I made my selfe seruaunt vnto al men, that I might winne the more. To al men, that I might winne the moo. Unto the Iewes, I became as a Iew, Unto the Iewes, I became as a Iew, to winne the Iewes. To them that were vnder vnder ỹ lawe, was I made as though I hadde bene vnder the lawe, to wynne them that weare vnder the law. To the that weare without law, became I as though I had bene without lawe (when I was not without lawe as per tayning to god, but vnder a lawe as cōcerning Christ) to winne them that were with out lawe. To the weake became I as weake/ to winne the weake. In all thinges I fashioned my selfe to al me, to saue at the lest waye some. And this I do for the Gospels sake, that I myghte haue my herte therof.

Parceaue ye not how that they which runne in a course, roune all/yet but one receaueth the rewarde. So runne that ye maye obtayne.

Euery man that prayeth masteries, abstayneth from all thinges. And they do yt to obtayne a corruptible crowne: but we to obtaine an vncorruptible crowne. I therfore so renne/not as at an vncertayne thing. So fyght I not as one ỹ beateth the ayer, but I tame my body, & bringe it into subiection, lest after that I haue preached to other I my selfe shuld be a cast awaye.

Paul prayeth him selfe an Apostle equal to the best in that ỹ spite beareth recorde to his preachinge & in that as many were by him conuerted as by the other Apostles.

He feareth them with the ensamples of the old testament, and exhorteth them to a Godly conuersation.

The.x. Chapter.

A latter end of the Testament, for all it is the new testament.

BRetheren I wolde not that ye shoulde be ignoraunte of this: how that oure fathers were all vnder a cloud. And al passed thorowe the sea, and were all baptised vnder Moyses, in the cloude and in the Sea: and did al eate of one spiritual meate, and did all drincke of one maner of spiritual drincke. And they dranck of that spirituall rocke that folowed them, whiche rocke was Christ. But in many of the had god no delyte. For they were ouerthrowen in the wildernes.

These are ensamples to vs that we shulde not lust after euel thinges, as they lusted. Neither be ye worshippers of images as were some of the according as it is writen:

worlde

The people sate downe to eate and drincke, and rose vppe agayne to playe

Neither let vs commit fornicacion as some of them committed fornication. ād were destroyed in one daye .xxiii. thousād. Neither let vs tempte Christ as som of them tepted, ād were destroyed of serpentes. Neither murmure ye as some of them murmured and were destroyed of the destroyer.

Num. xxv. Psalm. cvi.

All these thinges happened vnto the for ensamples, and were wryten to put vs in remembraunce, whome the endes of the worlde are comen vpon. Wherfore let hym that thincketh he standeth, take hede least he fall. There hath none other temptacion take you, but such as foloweth the nature of man. But God is faythfull, which shall not suffre you to be tempted aboue youre strenghte: but shall in the myddest of the temptacion/ make a waye to escape out.

Wherfore my deare beloued, flee from worshyppinge of idoles.

I speake as vnto wyse men which haue discretion, iudge ye what I saye. Is not the cup of blessinge, which we blesse partakynge of the bloude of Christ? is not the breade which we breake, partakynge of the body of Christ? because that wee (though we be many) yet are one bread and one body in as muche as we are all partakers of one bread. Beholde Israel which walketh carnally. Are not they which eate of the sacrifice partakers of the aulter.

Cuppe Wine

What saye I then? ỹ the image is any thinge? or that it which is offered to Images is any thyng? Naye, but I saye, that these thynges whiche the gentyles offer, they offre to deuels, & not to god. And I wolde not that ye should haue fellowshyp wyth the deuels. Ye can not drincke of the cuppe of the Lorde, & of the cup of the Deuels. Ye can not be the partakers of the Lordes table, & of the table of Deuelles. Either shall we prouoke the Lord? Or are we stronger then he? All thynges are lawful vnto me but all thynges are not expedient. All thinges are lawfull to me, but all thinges edifie not. Let no man seke hys owne profyte, but let euery man seke anothers welth.

We haue professed euery man to seke anothers welth

What soeuer is sold in ỹ market, ỹ eat and aske no questions for cōscience sake

For

For the earth is the lordes, and all ỹ ther in is, if any of the which beleue not, bid you to a feast, & if ye be disposed to go, G what soeuer is set before you, eate askig no question for conscience sake. But and if any man say vnto you: this is dedicate vnto idolles, eate not of it for hys sake that shewed it, and for hurtinge of conscience. The earth is the Lordes, and all that therin is. Conscience I say, not thyne: but the cõscience of that other. * For why shulde my lybertie be iudged of ãother mannes conscience. For if I take my parte with thankes, why am I euel spoken of, for that thing wherfore I geue thanckes.

Whether therfore ye eate or drincke, or whatsoeuer ye do, do al to the prayse of God. ✠ See that ye geue none occasion of euell, neither to the Iewes, nor yet to the gentyles, neyther to the congregacyon of God: euen as I please all men, in all thinges, not sekinge myne owne profit, but the profyt of man, ỹ they might be saued. Folowe me as I do Christ.

The notes.

* We should be so ful of loue and so circumspecte, that we should geue none occasyon vnto the ignoraunte for to speake euel of vs for our lybertie, and for doynge that which we may lawfully do before God.

* Loue seketh her neybours profyte.

He rebuketh them for the abuse and misordre that they had about ỹ sacrament of ỹ bodye & blonde of Christ. & bringeth the againe to ỹ first institucion.

The.xi. Chapter.

I Commende you brethren ỹ ye remember me in all thinges and kepe the ordinaunces euen as I deliuered them to you. I wold yee knew that Christ is ỹ head of euery mã. And the man is the womans head. And God is Christes head. Euery man praiinge or prophesyinge hauing ani thyng on his head, shameth hys head. Euery woman that prayeth or prophesieth bare headed, dishonesteth hyr head. For it is euen al one, ãd the very same thige euen as though she were shauen. If the woman be not couered, let her also be shoren. If it be shame for a womã to be shorne or shauen, let her couer her head.

A man ought not to couer his head, for as moche as he is the Image and glorye of god. The womã is the glory of ỹ mã. For ỹ mã is not of the womã, but ỹ woman of the man. Nether was the mã created for the womans sake: but the Woman for the mans sake. For thys cause ought the womã to haue * power on her heade, for the Angeles sake. Neuertheles nether is the mã wyth out the woman, nether is the woman wythout the man in the Lord. For as the woman is of the man, euen so is the mã by the woman: but all is of god. Iudge in youre selues whether it be cõlye that a woman praye vnto god bare headed. Or els doth not nature teache you, ỹ yt is a shame for a man, yf he haue longe heare: and a prayse to a womã yf she haue longe heare. For her heare is geuen her to couer her with all. If there be many men among you that lusteth to striue, let hi knowe that we haue no suche custome, nether the congregacions of god.

Thys I warne you of, and cõmende not that ye come to gether: not after a better maner but after a worse. ✠ First of al when ye come to gether in the congregacion. I heare that there is dissencyon among you: and I partely beleue it. For ther must be sectes among you, ỹ they which are parfect amõg you might be knowen. When ye come to gether, a The Lordis supper. man cannot eate the lordes supper. For euery man begynneth afore to eate hys owne supper. And one is hongry, and a nother is dronken. Haue ye not houses to eate and to drinke in? Or els despyse yee the congregacõ of god, and shame them that haue not. What shall I saye vnto you? shall I praise you? In thys praise I you not. ✠

✠ That whiche I deliuered vnto you I receaued of the Lorde. For the Lorde Iesus the same nyghte in which he was betraied, toke bread: and thanked and brake, and sayd. Take yee, and eate yee: this is my body which is broke for you. The institucion of ỹ Sacramente.

* This do ye in the remembraunce of me. After the same maner he toke ỹ cup whẽ supper was done, sayig: this cuppe is the newe testamẽt in my blonde: This do as oft as ye drinke it, in remẽbraũce of me. For as often as ye shall eate this bread, and drinke this cup ye shal shew the the Lordes death, tyll he come. Wherfore whosoeuer shall eate of this bread, or drincke of this cup vnworthely, shalbe gylty of the body and blond of the Lorde. Let a man therfore examen him selfe, and so let hym eate of the bread and drincke of the cup. For he that eateth or drynketh vnworthely, eateth and drinketh hys owne damnacyon, because he maketh no difference of the Lordes body: For this cause many are weake & sycke amonge you, & many slepe. If we haue truly iudged our selues, we shold not haue bene iudged. But whẽ we are iudged of the Lorde, we are chastened, because wee shoulde not bee dampned wyth the worlde. Wherfore my brethren when ye comme to gether to eate, tary one another. If any man hunger, let him eate at home, that ye come not together vnto condẽnacio. Other thinges will I set in order when I come.

The notes

* Power is as moche to saye, as a sygne that the woman is in subiectcyon and hath an heed ouer hyr.

The dyuersyrye of the gyftes of the holy goost, geuen to the confort and edyfyyng of one another, as the members of a mans body serue one another

The.xii. Chapter.

IN spyritual thynges brethren I wolde not haue you ignorant. ✠ Ye knowe ỹ ye were gentyles, and wẽt youre wayes vnto domme ydoles, euen as ye were ledde. Wherfore I declare vnto you that no man speaking in the spyrite of God, defieth Iesus. Also no mã can say that Iesus is the Lorde: but ỹ holy goost. There are dyuersites of gyftes verely, yet but one spyrite. And ther are differences of admynystracyons, & yet but one Lorde. And there are dyuers maners of operations, and yet but one God whych worketh all thinges that are wrought in all creatures. The gyftes of * the spirite are geuen to euery manne, to profyte the congregacion. To one is geuen thrõw the spirite/ ỹ vterãce of wisdõ. To an other is geuẽ the vtteraunce of knoledge by the same spirite. To an other is geuen fayth, by the same spirite. To an other the giftes of healynge, by the same spyrite. To an other power to do miracles. To an other prophecye. To an other iudgement of spirites. To another diuers tonges. To another the interpretacion of tonges. And these all worcketh euen the selfe same spirite, diuidyng to euery man seuerall gifres, euen as he wyll. *

For as the bodye is one, and hathe many membres, and all the membres of one body, though they be many, yet are but one bodye: euen so is Chryste. For in one spirit, are we al Baptised to make one bodye, whether wee be Iewes or Gentyles, whether we be bound or free, and haue all dronncken of one spirite. For ỹ body is not one membre, but many. If the fote saye: I am not the hand, therfor I am not of the body: is he therfore not of the bodye? and if the eare say, I am not the eye: therfore I am not of the bodye: is it therfore not of the bodye. If all the bodye were an eye, where were than the eare? If all were hearing where were the smellyng? But now hathe God dysposed the membres euerye one of them in the bodye, at hys owne pleasure. If they were all one mẽbre: where were the body? Now are there many membres, yet but one body. & ỹ eye cãnot say vnto ỹ hãd I haue no nede of the: nor the head also to the fete/ I haue no nede of you, Ye rather a great deale those membres of the bodi, which seme to be moost feble, are moost necessary

And vpon those membres of the bodye, whiche we thincke least honeste, put wee moost honesty on, & our vngodly partes haue most beuty on. For our honest mẽbres neade it not. But God hath so disposed the bodye, and hath geuen moste honoure to that parte whiche lacketh, leaste there shoulde be any stryfe in the bodye, but ỹ the membes shoulde indifferently care one for another. And yf one membre suffre: al suffer with him, if one mẽbre be had in honor, al membres be glad also.

Ye

Ye are the body of Chryst, and mem bres one of another. And God hathe also ordened in the congregacion, first the Apostles/secondarelye Prophetes, thyrdly teachers, then them that do miracles: after that the gyftes of healyng helpers, gouernors, diuersitie of tōges.

Are all Appostels? Are all Prophetes? Are all teachers? Are all doers of miracles? haue al the giftes of healing? Do all speake with tonges? Do all interprete? Couet after the beste gyftes. And yet shewe I vnto you a moare excellent waye.

The nature and conditions of loue.

The.xiii. Chapter. ✣

A Thoughe I spake wyth the tonges of men and angels, and yet had no loue, I were euen as sounding brasse: or as a tinckelynge cymball.

And though I could prophecy, and vnderstand all secretes, and al knowledge: yea, yf I had a*al fayth, so that I coulde moue mountaynes out of their places, and yet had no loue, I were nothig.

And though I bestowed all my goodes to fede the poore, and though I gaue my bodye euen that I burned, and yet had no loue, it profiteth me nothig.

Loue suffereth long and is curteous: loue enuieth not. Loue doth not frowardly, swelleth not, dealeth not dishonestly, seketh not her owne, is not prouoked to anger, thinketh not euell, reioyceth not in iniquite: but reioyceth in the trueth: suffreth al thynges: beleueth all thinges, hopeth al thinges, endureth in all thinges. Though that prophecyeng fayl, other tonges shal cease, or knoweledge vanish awaye, yet loue falleth neuer awaye.

For oure knoweledge is vnperfecte and our prophesienge is vnperfecte.

But when that which is perfecte, is come, then that which is vnperfecte, shal be done away. When I was a chylde, I spake as a chyld, I vnderstode as a child, I imagined as a child. But assone as I was a man I put awaye childeshnes. Now we se in a glasse, euen i a darke speakyng: but then shal we se i face to face. Now I know vnperfectly: but then shal I know euen as I am knowē. Now bydeth fayth, hope, and loue, euen these thre, the cheefe of these is loue.

The notes.

a* All fayth is as muche to say as so strong fayth.
b* The cheefe of these is loue. Not cōcerning iustification, but concerning the applienge of al thinges to the profet of the congregation. Nothing letteth some one peculyar thing diuersely referred to be nowe inferiorno vnto superyor to another. Loue concernyng prouyding for the necessitie of thy neighboure is cheafe and aboue fayth. But cōcernig the obtaynynge of iustification and saluacyon dothe fayeth exceade loue.

¶ Paul sheweth that the gifte of prophesy, interpretynge of preachinge excelleth the gyft of tongs, and how they both ought to be vsed

The.xiiii. Chapter.

Sloure for loue and couet spirituall giftes: and most cheefely for to prophecy. For he that speaketh with tonges speakethe not vnto men, but vnto god. For no man heareth him. How be it in the spirit he speaketh misteries. But he that a*prophecyeth, speaketh vnto men, to edifieng, to exhortacyon and to cōfort. He that speketh with tonges, profiteth hym selfe: he that prophecyeth, edifieth the congregacyon. I wolde that ye all spake wyth tonges, but rather that yee prophecyed. For greater is he that prophesieth, then he that speaketh wt tonges, excepte he expounde it also: that ỹ congregacion maye haue edyfienge.

Now brethren, yf I come vnto you speakynge with tonges: what shall I profite you, except I speake to you, other by reuelacion or knowledg, or doctrine.

Moreouer when thinges without lyfe: geue sounde: whether it be a ppe or an harpe: except they make a distinction in the soundes: how shal it be knowē what is ypped or harped? And also yf the trompe gene an vncertayne voyce, who shall prepare hym selfe to fyghte? Euē so lyke wyse when ye spake wt tonges, excepte ye speake woordes that haue signyfication, howe shall it be vnderstand what is spoken? For ye shal but speake in the ayer.

Many kindes of voyces are in the worl de and none of them are with out signification: If I know not what ỹ voice meaneth I shalbe vnto him that speaketh, an aliant, & he that speaketh shalbe an alient vnto me. Euen so ye (for as moch as ye couet spyrituall giftes) seke that ye maye haue plentye vnto the edifyinge of the congregacion.

Wherfore let him that speaketh wt tonges praye that he maie interpret also. If I praye wt tonges my spyrite prayeth: but my mynd is without frute What is it then? I will praye with the b* spirete, and will praye with the mynde also. I will singe with the spirete/and will singe with the mynde also.

For els when ỹ blessest with the spirete, how shall he that occupieth the rowme of the vnlearned, saye Amen at thy geuinge of thanckes, seynge he vnderstandeth not what thou sayst. Thou verely geuest thankes well/but ỹ other is not edified. I thank my God, I speake wt tonges moare then ye al. Yet had I leuer in the congregacion, to speake fyue wordes with my mynde to the instruccyon of other rather then ten thousand wordes with the tonges.

Brethren/be not chyldren in wytte. How be it as concernyng maliciousnes be chyldren but in witte be perfect.

In the lawe it is written with other tonges, and with other lippes will I speake vnto this people, and yet for all ỹ, will they not heare me, sayth the Lord. Wherfore, tonges are for a sygne, not to them that beleue: but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophesyinge serueth not for the that beleue not: but for them whych beleue.

If therfore when al the congregacion is come to gether, and all speake wt tonges, there come in they that are vnlerned or they which beleue not: will they not saye that ye are oute of youre wittes? But and yf al prophesy, and there come in one that beleueth not, or one vnlearned, he is rebuked of all men, and is iudged of euery man: and so are the secretes of his hert opened, and so falleth he doune on hys face, and worshippeth God, and sayth that God is with you in dede.

How is it then brethren? When ye come to gether, euery man hath his songe, hath his doctrine, hath his tonge, hath his reuelacion, hath his interpretacion. Let all thinges be done vnto edifyinge If eny man speake wt tonges, let it bee two attonce or at the most thre attonce and that by course/ and lett another interprete it. But yf there bee no interpreter, lett him kepe silence in the congregacion, & let him speake to hi selfe and to God.

Let the prophetes speake two attonce, or thre attonce/ and let the other iudge. If any reuelation be made to a nother ỹ sitteth by, let ỹ first holde hys peace. For ye maye al prophecy one by one, ỹ al maye learne, & al maye haue cōfort. For the spirites of ỹ Prophets are in ỹ power of the Prophetes. For God is not cause of stryfe: but of peace, as he is i al other cōgregatiōs of ỹ saites Let youre wyues kepe silence in the cōgregacions. For it is not permitted vnto them to speake: but lette them be vnder obedience, as sayth the lawe. If they will learne eny thing, let them aske their husbandes at home. For it is a shame for wemen to speake in the congregacion. Spronge the word of God frō you? Ether came it vnto you only? If eny man chinke hym selfe a Prophete, ether spirituall: let him vnderstande, what thynges I wryte vnto you. For they are the commaundementes of the Lord. But and yf eny man be ignorant let hym be ignorant. Wherfore brethren couet to prophesye, and forbyd not to speake with tonges. And let al thinges be done honestly and in order.

1. Timo. ii. c Genes. iii. c

a* Prophesying is here taken for expoundynge.
b* To speake wt tonges, or with the spirite, is to speake that other vnderstand not as Priestes saye their seruyce. To speake wt the mynde is to speake that other vnderstande, as when the preacher preacheth.

The resurrection of the deade.

The xv Chapter. ✣

BRetheren as pertayning to the Gospell which I preached vnto you, whych ye haue also accepted and in the whiche ye continue, by the whiche also ye are saued: I do you to wete after what maner I preached vnto you, yf ye kepe it, except ye haue beleued in vayne. For fyrst of all I deliuered vnto you that whych I receaued how how that Christ dyed for our sinnes, agreynge to the scriptures: and that he was buried, ād that he rose againe the thirde daye accordig to the scriptures, and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the twelue. After that he was sene of moo then fyue hundreth brethrē attōce

of which many remaine vnto this daie, and manye are fallen a slepe. After that appered he to Iames / then to all the Apostles.

B And last of all he was sene of me, as
of one that was borne out of due time.
For I am ỹ lest of All ỹ apostles whiche am not worthye to be called ā Apostle, because I persecuted ỹ congregation of God. But by the grace of God I am ỹ
I am. And his grace which is in mee / was not i vaine: ✠ but I labored more aboundauntly then they all, yet not I /
but the grace of God which is with me.
Whether it were I or they, so we preа-che, and so haue ye beleued.

✠ If Christ be preached how that he rose from the dead: how saye some that are among you / that there is no resurrection of the dead. If there be no rysynge againe of the dead: then is christe
C not rysen. If Christ be not rysen / then is our preaching in vayne, & your faith is also in vayne. Ye and we are founde false witnesses of god. For we haue testifyed of god, how that he raysed vp Christ whome he raysed not vp, yf it be so that the dead ryse not againe. For if the dead ryse not againe, thē is Christ not rysen againe. If it be so that Christ rose not, then is your fayth in vaine, ād yet are ye in youre sinnes. And there to they which are fallen a slepe in Chryst are perished. If in thys life only we beleue on Christ, then are we of al men the miserablest.

But nowe is Christe rysen from the dead, & is become the first frutes of thē that slepe. For by a man came death, & by a man came the resurrection of the dead. For as by Adam al die: euen so by Christ, shal al be made alyue, and euery man in his owne ordre. ✠ The fyrste is Christe, then they that are Chrystes at his comming. Then commeth the end, when he hath deliuered vp the kingdōe
to god ỹ father, whē he hath put doune all rule, auctorite ād power. For he must raygne tyll he haue put his enemies vn der his fete. The last enemy that shalbe destroied, is death. * For he hath put all thiges vnder his fete. But whē he saith al thiges are put vnder hi, it is manifest
ỹ he is excepted, which dyd put al thiges vnder hi. When al thiges are subdued vnto hi, then shal ỹ sōne also hi selfe be subiecte vnto him that put thynges vn
der hym, ỹ God mate beal in all thiges.
Ether els what do they which are baptysed ouer the dead, yf the dead rise not at al? Why are they thē * baptised ouer
the dead? Ye and why stande we i ieo-pardy euery houre? But our reioysige which I haue in Christ Iesu our lord, I dye dayly. That I haue fought w beastes at Ephesus after the maner of men, what auauntageth it me / if ỹ deed rise not agayne? Let vs eate ād drinke for morow we shal die. Be not disceued, E euyll speakynges, corrupte good manners. Awake truelye oute of slepe / & synne not. For some haue not ỹ know ledge of god. I speake thys to your rebukes.

But some man wil saye: how aryse
the deed? with what bodies come they?
Thou foole, that which thou sowest, is not quickned except it dye. And what sowest thou? Thou sowest not that bo dye ỹ shalbe: but bare corne (I meane ether of whete, or of some other) & God geueth it a body at his pleasure, to eue
ry seede a seuerall body.

F ✠ All flesh is not one maner of flesh but there is one maner flesshe of men, another manner flesshe of beastes, another maner flesh of fyshes, and another of byrdes. There are celestyall bodies, and there are bodyes terrestryall. But the glory of the celestiall is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one maner glorye of the Sunne & another glory of the Moone / and another glory of the starres. For one starre differeth from another in glory. So is the resurrection of the dead. It is sowē in corruption, and ryseth againe in in-corruption. It is sowen in dishonoure, and ryseth in honor. It is sowen in we-kenes, and ryseth in power. It is sowen
a natural abody, and ryseth a spirituall body. There is a natural body & ther is a spirituall body: as it is writtē: the first man Adam, was made a lyuyng soule,

and the last Adam was made a quickening spirite. How be it, that is not firste which is spirytuall: but that whyche is naturall, and then that whyche is spy-rytuall.

✠ The fyrste man is of the erth, erthy:
G And the seconde man is the Lorde frō heauen. As is the erthy, suche are they that are erthy. And as is the heuenly, suche are they that are heuenly. And as we haue borne the image of the er-thye, so shal we beare the image of the heuenlye,

This saye I brethren, that b * flesh and bloud cānot inheret ỹ kingdom of god.
Nether doth corrupcion inheret vncorrupcion. Behold I shewe you a mistery.
We shall not all slepe: but we shall all be chaunged, and that in a moment, and in the twyncling of an eye / at the sounde of ỹ last trompe. For the trompe shall blowe, and the deed shall ryse incorruptible, and we shalbe chaunged. For this corruptyble must put on incorruptybilite: and this mortal must put on immor-talite.

When this corruptible hath put on incorruptibilite, ād this mortal hath put on immortalite: then shal be brought to passe the sayinge that is writtē.
Death is cōsumed into victory. Death where is thy stynge? Hell where is thy victory? The stynge of death is synne:
the strength of synne is the lawe. But thankes be vnto God, which hath geuen vs victory, thorow oure Lorde Iesus Christ. Therfore my deare brethren, be ye stedfast and vnmouable, alwayes ry-che in the workes of ỹ Lord, for as mo-che as ye knowe how that youre labour is not in vayne in the Lorde.

The notes

a * Baptised ouer the deathe, Some men saye, that in token of the generall resurrection certen Chrys-ten men were baptysed ouer dead mens graues, sygnifyeng, that the same dead men should ryse again.

b * Flesh and bloud cannot enherite the kingdome of God. Oure belefe is that there shalbe a generall resurrection of the flesh, accordyng to the scripture Esay. xxvi. Dan. xii. Job. xix. Jhon. v: Neuertheles it shall be pourged from al corruptyon, and be chā ged to immortalyte, for it must be a vncorrupt flesh ỹ shal inheret the kyngdome of god.

C He putteth them in remembrance of the gatherynge for the Poore Chrysten at Jerusalem, and conclu-deth his Epistle with the salutations of certayn lo-uynge brethren.

C The. xvi. Chapter.

OF the gatherig for the saynctes, as I haue ordeyned in the congregacions of Galacia, euen so do ye. Upon some sondaye let euery one of you put aside at home and lay vp what soeuer he thinketh mete, that there be no gatherynges when I come. When I am come / whosoeuer ye shall alowe by youre letters, them wyll I sende to bring youre liberalite vnto Jerusalem.
And yf it be mete that I go / they shall go wyth me. I wyll come vnto you after I haue gone ouer Macedonia. For
I will go thorow out Macedonia.
W you paraūeture I wyl abyde a whyle: or els winter, that ye may bringe me on my waye whyther soeuer I go.

I wyl not se you now in my passage: but I trust to abyde a whyle with you, yf God shall suffre me. I wyll tary at Ephesus vntyll whitsontyde. For a greate dore & a frutefull is opened vn
to me: and ther are many aduersaries.
C If Timotheus come, se that he be with out feare w you. For he worketh ỹ work of the Lorde as I do: Let no man despyse him: but conuaye hym forthe in peace, that he maye come vnto me. For
I loke for hym w the brethren.

Of speake of brother Apollo: I greatly desyred him to come vnto you with the Brethren, but his mynde was not al to come at thys time. How beit he wil come when he shall haue cōueniente time. Watche ye, stonde fast in the fayth, quyte you lyke men, & be stronge. Let all youre busynes be done in loue.

Brethren, ye knowe ỹ house of Ste-phana, how that they are the fyrst frutes of Achaia, and that they haue appoynted them selues to mynister vnto the sainctes: I beseech you that ye be obedient vnto soche and to all that helpe and labour. I am glad of the commynge of Stephana, Fortunatus ād Achaicus:
for that whych was lackynge on youre parte, they haue supplied. They haue cō forted my spirite and youres. Loke therfore that ye knowe them that are suche.

The congregations of Asia salute you. Aquila and Priscilla salute you muche in the Lord, and so doth the congregation that is in theyr house. All the bretheren grete you. Grete ye one another with an holy kysse. The salutacion of me Paul wyth myne owne hande. Yf anye manne loue not the Lorde Jesus Chryste, * the same be Anathema maranatha. The Grace of the Lorde Jesus Chryst be wich you all.

My loue be wyth
you all in Chryst
Jesu.

The ende of the fyrst epistle to the Corithias.

Sent from Philyppos by Stephana, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus, and Tymotheus.

The ii Epistle of Saint Paul the Apostle vnto the Corinthians.

The consolation of God in trouble. The loue of Paul towarde the Corynthyans, and hys excuse for he came not vnto them.

The fyrst Chapter.

A PAule an Apostle of Jesus Chryst, by the will of God, and brother Tymotheus.

Vnto the congregacion of God, whych is at Corinthum wyth all the sainctes, whych are in all Achaia. Grace be wyth you & peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Chryst.

Blessed be God the Father of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, the father of mercy, and the God of al comfort, which comforteth vs in all oure tribulacion, in so much that we are able to comforte them whiche are troubled, in what soeuer tribulacion it be, with the same comforte, wherwith we our selues are comforted of God. For as the * afflictions of christ are plenteous in vs, euen so is our consolacion plenteous by Christ.

B Whether we be troubled for your consolation, and saluacion, which saluacion sheweth her power in that yee offer the same afflictions, which we also suffer, or whether we be comforted for your consolacyon and saluacyon: yet oure hope is stedfaste for you, in as muche as we knowe how that as ye haue your parte in afflictions, so shal ye be partakers of consolacion.

Brethren I woulde not haue you ignorant of our trouble/ whych happened vnto vs in Asia. For we were greaued out of measure passing strength/ so greately that we despeared euen of life. Also we receaued an answere of death in our selues/ & that because we shuld not put our trouste in our selues: but in god whiche raiseth the deed to life againe, which deliuered vs from so great a death & doth deliuer. On whom we trust, yet herafter he wyll delyuer, by yelpe of youre prayer for vs, that by the meanes of many occasions, thankes maye be geue of many on our behalfe, for the grace geuen vnto vs.

C Our reioycting is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in singlenes and godly pureness and not in fleshly wisdome, but by the grace of god we haue had our conuersacion in the world, and most of al to youwards. We write non other thinges vnto you, then that yee reade & also knowe. Yea and I trust ye shall finde, vs vnto the ende, euen as ye haue founde vs partlye: for we are youre reioycyng, euen as ye are ours in the day of the Lorde Jesus.

And in this confidence was I minded the other tyme to haue come vnto you that ye myght haue had yet one pleasure moare and to haue passed by you in to Macedonya, and to haue come agayne out of Macedonia vnto you, and to haue bene ledde forth to Jewrye warde of you/ when I thus wyse was minded, D thus dyd I vse lyghtnes. Or thinke I carnallye those thinges whiche I thincke, that with me shulde be  yea yea, and naye naye. God is faythfull: For our preaching to you, was not yea and naye. For Goddis Sonne Jesus Christ which was preched amog you by vs (that is to saye, by me and Siluan9, and Timotheus) was not yee and naye: but in him it was yee:

for

For all the promises * of God, in him are yee, and are in him Amen, vnto the laude of god thorowe vs. For it is god which stablisshed vs and you in Christ, and hath annoynted vs, which hath also sealed vs, and hath geuen the ernest of the spirite into oure hertes.

* yee yea, and naye naye is here put for vnstablenes inconstauntnes, leyenyng or slytting of wyth wordes.

* All the promyses of God are geuen vs onlye for Christes sake.

He sheweth the cause of hys absence & forgeueth them to forgeue the man that was fallen & to receaue him agayne wyth loue.

The.ii. Chapter.

A I Call God for a recorde vnto my soule, that for to fauer you with al I came not eny more vnto Corinthum. Not that we be lordes ouer youre fayth: but helpers of your ioye. For by fayth ye stande. But I determined this in my selfe, that I wold not come agayne to you in heuynes. For yf I make you sorye, who is it that shuld make me glad, but the same whych is made sorye by me. And I wrote this same epistle vnto you, lest yf I came, I shuld take heuynes of them, of whom I ought to reioce. Certaynly this confidence haue I in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in great affliccion and anguysshe of hert I wrote vnto you with manye teares: not to make you sorye, but that ye might perceaue the loue whiche I haue, most specially vnto you.

B If eny man hath caused sorow, the same hath not made me sory, but partely: lest I shulde greue you all. It is sufficient vnto the same man that he was rebuked of many. So that now contrary wyse ye ought to forgeue him and comforte him: lest that same person shuld be swalowed vp with ouer moche heuynes. Wherfor I exhorte you that loue may haue strenght ouer him. For this cause verily dyd I write, that I myght know the proofe of you, whether ye shulde be obedient in all thynges. To whom ye forgeue eny thyng, I forgeue also. And verely yf I forgaue eny thynge, to whom I forgaue it, for youre sakes forgaue I it, in the roume of Christ, C lest Satan shuld preuent vs. For his thoughts are not vnknowen vnto vs.

When I was come to Troada for Christes Gospels sake (and a great dore was opened vnto me of the Lorde) I had no rest in my spirite, because I found not Titus my brother: but take my leaue of them and went away into Macedonia. Thankes be vnto god which alwaies geueth vs the victory in Christ, and openeth the sauer of his knowlege by vs in euery place. For we are vnto god the swete sauour of Christ, both amonge them that are saued, and also among them which perish. To the one parte are we the sauour of deth vnto death: & vnto the other part are we the sauor of life vnto life. And who is mete vnto these thinges? For we are not as many are which choppe & chaung the word of God: but euen out of pureness, and by the power of God, as in the sight of god so speake we in Christ.

The prayseth the preachyng of the Gospel aboue the preachyng of the lawe.

The.iii. Chapter.

A WE begin to praise oure selues agayne. Nede we as some other, of Epistles of recommendacion vnto you, or letters of recommendacion from you? Ye are our Epistle written in oure hertes, which is vnderstand and red of all men, in that ye are knowe howe that ye are the Epistle of Christ, ministred by vs and written not wyth ynke: but wyth the spirite of the lyuing God/ not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the herte.

B * Such trust haue we thorowe Christe to God ward, not that we are sufficient of oure selues to thinke any thynge, as it were of oure selues, but our ablenes commeth of God, which hath made vs able to minister the new Testament not of the letter, but of the spirite. For  the * letter killeth: but the spirit geueth life. If * the ministracion of death thorowe the letters figured in stones was glorious, so that the children of Israell coulde not beholde the face of Moses for the glory of hys countenaunce (which glorie neuertheles is don away) why shal not the ministracion of the spirite be much more glorious? For if the * ministring of condemnacion be glorie: much more doth the ministracion of righteousnes exceede in glo tye. ✠ For no doute ꝑ which was there glorified, is not once glorified i respecte of this exceadyng glory. Then if * that whiche is destroied was glorious, moche moare shal ✠ that which remayneth, be glorious.

Seing then that we haue such trust, we vse great boldnes ✠ do not as Moses, which put a vayle ouer hys face ꝑ the chyldren of Israel shulde not se for what purpose ꝑ serued which is put awaie. But their mides were blided. For vntil this daye remaineth ꝑ same couering vntaken away in ꝑ old testamẽt whẽ they read it, which i Christ is put awaie. But euen vnto thys daye when Moyses redde, the vayle hangeth before their hertes. Neuertheles whẽ they turne to the Lord, the vayle shalbe taken away. The Lord no doute is a spirite. And where the spirite of the Lorde is, there is libertie. But we all beholde the glori of the Lord with hys face open, and are chaunged vnto the same similitude, frõ glory to glorye, euen of the spiritie of ꝑ Lorde.

The notes.

a The letter killeth. s c. The letter here and in the xi. of the Romaines. d. and in diuerse other places of the scripture, signifieth the lawe or olde testament. And that the spirite, the Gospell or ne we testament: And so doth S. Austyn expounde them in soundrys places of his boke, which he wrote of the letter and the spirite: And Erasmus also both in his Paraphrasis and Annotacions. Because ꝑ lawe kylleth vs ghostly, and therupon condemneth vs, therfore sayth the Apostle rightfully that it killeth, and ꝑ Gospel because it pronounceth vs rightwesse by Christ ꝺ giueth vs that by him we are iustyfyed from al thinges wherof we could not be iustyfyed by the lawe. Act. xiii. f. doth therfore bring life. As for ſoth as by the letter wil vnderstande the lyteralI sence, & by ꝑ spirit, ꝑ spirituall, canno lerned or chrysten mã alow. For these wordes * letter * ministration of death, * ministryng of condempnacyon and * that whiche is destroyed & gonefy all one thyng: And these. ✠ spirit, ✠ ministratiõ of ꝑ spirit, and ministratiõ of ryghtwesnes * ✠ which remayneth, be they very contrary. Now wordes meanyng one thynge, must haue one interpretation. And by some of the spirit cannot the lyteral sence be vnderstande, nor by som of the last the spyrytuall: ergo neither by these wordes, letter or spyrite: sith the letter is all one with the spirite, and the spyrite with the latter.

¶ A true preachere is dyligent, he corrupteth not the worde of God, he preacheth not hym selfe, but seketh the honor of Christ yea though yt be with ꝑ losse of hys lyfe.

The iiii. Chapter.

THerfore seing that we haue such an office, euen as mercy is come on vs, we fainte not: but haue cast from vs the cloakes of vnhonestye/ and walke not in craftines, ne ther corrupte we the worde of God: but walcke in open trueth, and reporte oure selues to euery mans conscience in the sight of god. ✠ if our gospel be yet hid, it is emõge them that are loste, in whome a the god of thys world hath blynded ꝑ mindes of them which beleue not, leaste the lyghte of the glorious gospel of Christ which is the image of God shuld shyne vnto them.

* For we preache not our selues/ but Christ Jesus to be the Lord, and oure selues your seruauntes, for Jesus sake. For it is God/ that commaunded the lyghte to shyne out of darknes, whiche hath shyned in oure heartes, for to geue the lyghte of the knowledge of the glorye of GOD, b in the face of Jesus Christ.

But we haue thys treasure in earthe vessels ꝑ the excellẽt power of it might appeare to be of God and not of vs. We are troubled on euery syde, yet are we not without shift. We are in pouerty: but not vtterly without som what. We are persecuted, but are not forsake. We are cast downe/ neuertheles we perishe not. And we alwayes beare in our bodyes the dienge of the lorde Jesus, that the lyfe of Jesu myght appeare in our bodyes. ✠

For we which lyue, are allwayes deliuered vnto death for Jesus sake, that the lyfe also of Jesu might appeare in oure mortall flesh. So then death worketh in vs/ and lyfe in you. ✠ Seynge thẽ that we haue ꝑ same spirite of faith, accordinge as it is wrytten: I beleued, and therfore haue I spoken. We also beleue, and therfore speake. For we knowe that he whych rayſed vp the Lorde Jesus, shall rayse vp vs also, by the meanes of Jesus, and shall set vs w you. For all thynges do I for youre sakes, that the plenteous grace by thanckes geuen of manye, maye redounde to the prayse of God.

Wherfore we are not wery, but though our * outwarde mã perish, yet ꝑ inward mã is renewed daie by daie. For our excedig tribulatiõ which is momentany and light, prepareth ā exceading ✠ an eternall waighte of glory vnto vs/ while we loke not on ꝑ thiges which are sene, but on ꝑ thiges which are not sene. For thiges which are sene, are temporall: but thiges wich are not sene, are eternal.

The notes.

a The god of thys world. Sathan is Gods mynister, and can do no more then that he appointeth hym to do. Neuertheles Christe calleth him the prince of this world. John. xiiii. And here the Apostle calleth hi ꝑ god of this world because ꝑ ꝑ world doth comenly forsake the true god, & serueth hi. For vnto whome so euer we obeye, we make him our god: as Paul calleth the bely their god, that are earthly mynded, ād serue their owne bely. Phyl. iii.

b* (In the face of, Jesus Christe) That is to saye, in the knowledge of Jesus Christ, not in the face of Moses, which is the knowledge of the lawe. For by Christ come we to the knowledg of God. Mat, xi Jhon. i, and. vi.

c* That he calleth the outwarde man, he some tyme calleth the olde man, some tyme the flesh. What the flesh signifieth shall ye fynde in the prologe to the Romaynes, the, xi, leafe.

¶ The rewarde for suffering trouble.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

WE know suerly yf oure erthy mãcion wherin we now dwel were destroyed/ that we haue a building ordeyned of God, an habitacion not made with handes, but eternall in heauen. And therfore sygh we, desyring to be clothed with oure mansion which is from heauen: so yet yf that we be founde clothed, & not naked. For as longe as we are in this tabernacle, we sigh ād are greued, for we woulde not bee vncloathed, but woulde bee cloathed vppon, that mortalite myght be swalowed vp of lyfe. He that hath ordeyned vs for this thyng, is God: which very same hath geuen vnto vs the ernest of the spirite.

Therfore we are alway of good chere, & knowe well ꝑ as longe as wee are at home in the body, we are absent from God. For we walke in fayth and se not. Neuertheless we are of good comfort, and had leuer to be absent from the body and to be present with the Lord. Wherfore, whether we be at home or from home, we endeuour our selues to please hi. For we must al appeare before ꝑ iudgement seate of Christ, that euery mã may receaue the workes of his body according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

✠ Seinge then that we knowe, how the Lorde is to be feared, a we fare fayre w men. For we are knowen well ynoughe vnto God. I trust also that we are knowen in youre consciences.

We prayse not oure selues agayne vnto you, but geue you an occasyon to reioyce of vs, ꝑ ye may haue some what agaist thẽ which reioyce in ꝑ face, & not in ꝑ hert. For if we be to feruent, to God are we to feruẽt. If we kepe no measure for youre cause keape we measure. For the loue of Christ constrayneth vs, because we thus iudge, yf one be deade for all, that then are all deade, and that he dyed for all, that they whyche lyue should e not henceforth lyue vnto theim selues, but vnto hym which dyed for thẽ and rose agayne. ✠

Wherfore henceforth knowe we no man after the flesh. In so much though we haue knowen Christ after the flesh, nowe henceforthe knowe we hym so no more. Therfore if any man be in Christ, he is a newe creature. Olde thynges are passed away, beholde all thynges are become new. Neuertheles all thynges are of God, which hath reconcyled vs vnto hym self by * Jesus Christ, and hath geuen vnto vs the office to preach the atonement. For God was in Christe, and made agreement betwene the worlde and hym selfe, and imputed not their synnes vnto them: and hath commited to vs the preachinge of the atronement Now then are we messengers i the rowme of Christe, euen as though God did beseech you throw vs. So prayse we you in Christes stede, ✠ that ye be at one with God: for he hath made hym b to be sinne for vs which knewe no synne, that we by hys meanes shuld be that righteousnes which before god is alowed.

A newe creature.

The notes

a We fare fayre with men. That is, we play not the tyrauntes with curſynges and excommunycacyons, nether vse we violence malycyously among the people, but feare god and intreate the people louyngly, to draw them vnto Christ.

Ch ystes seruauntes seke Chystes will, and lyue not at theyr owne pleasure, but a hys.

* The atonement betwene God and man in Christ/ is the Apostles office to preache.

b To be synne for vs: that is to saye, to be sacrifyce for oure synnes, for synne in the scripture is some tyme taken for the sacrifyce of synne, As Deut. xiii. the prestes eate the synnes of the people, And Rom. viii. By synne he damned synne in the flesh.

¶ An exhortacyon to receaue the worde of God wt thankesginge, and admonement of lyfe. The diligence of Paul in the gospel, and how he warneth them to eschue, the company of the heathen.

The. vi. Chapter.

Cas helpers therfor exhorte you, that ye receaue not the grace of God in *vayne. For he saith: I haue herd the in a tyme accepted: & i ỹ daye of saluacion, haue I succored thee. Beholde, nowe is that wel accepted time: behold now is that day of saluacion. Lett vs geue no man occasion to euel, ỹ in oure office be founde no faute: but in al thynges let vs behaue our selues as the mynisters of God.

In moche pacience, in afflictions, in necessytye, in angusse, in stryppes, in prysonment, in stryfe: in laboure, in watchinge, in fastinge, in pureues, in knowledge, in long suffering, in kyndnes, in the holy goost in loue vnfayned, in the wordes of trueth, in the power of God, by ỹ armoure * of rightewesnes of ỹ ryght hande & on ỹ lyfte, in honoure & dishonour, in euel report & good report, as deceauers & yet true, as vnknowen, & yet knowen: as dyenge, & beholde we yet lyue: as chastened, & not killed: as sorowynge, & yet alwaye merye: as poore, & yet make many riche: as hauing no thyng/ & yet possessing all thinges. ℞

O ye Corinthyans, oure mouthe is open vnto you. Oure hert is made large: ye are in no straite in vs, but are in a straite in your awne bowelles. I prosmyse you lyke reward (as vnto me, as my children) open. Set your selues ther fore at large, and ℞ beare not a straungers yoke with the vnbeleuers. For what fellowshyp hath ryghtewesnes with vnryghtewesnes? What company hath light wt darknes? What concorde hath Christ with Belial? Eyther what parte hath he that beleueth, with an infidell? howe agreeth the temple of God with ymages? And ye are the temple of ỹ lyuinge God, as sayde God. * I wyll dwell among the & walke among them: & wylbe their God: & they shalbe my people. Wherfore come out from among them, & separate youre selues (sayth the Lorde) and touche none vncleane thinge: so wyll I receaue you, & wilbe a father vnto you/ & ye shalbe my sonnes & daughters, sayeth the Lord almyghty.

¶ Wherfor they exhorte to receaue the promyse of God thankfully. The Corinthyans are commended for their obedience and loue to ward Paul.

¶ The. vii. Chapter

Synge that we haue suche promyses derelye beloued, let vs clense oure selues frō all fylthynes of the flesh and spirite, & grow vp to full holynes in the feare of God. Understande vs, we haue hurte no man: we haue corrupt no man: we haue defrauded no man: I speake not this to condempne you, for I haue shewed you before, that ye are in our hertes, to dye and lyue with you. I am very bolde ouer you, and reioyce greatly in you. I am fylled with cōforte & am exceading ioyouse in al our tribulatiōs. For whe we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on euery syde. Outwarde was fightinge, inwarde was feare. Neuertheles God that cōforteth the abiect comforted vs at the cōmyng of Titus.

And not wyth his commynge onely: but also wyth the consolacyon wherw he was comforted of you. For he tolde vs youre desyre, your mourninge, your feruēt minde to me ward: so that I now reioyce the more. Wherfore though I made you sory wyth a letter, I repente not: though I did repent. For I perceaue that the same Epistle made you sory though it were but for a season. But I nowe reioyce not that ye were sory, but ỹ ye so sorowed that ye repented. For ye sorowed godly: so that in nothynge ye were hurt by vs. For godly sorow causeth repentaunce vnto saluacion not to be repented of: when worldly sorow causeth death.

Beholde what diligence, this godly sorow that ye toke hath wroughte in you: yea it caused you to cleare your selues, it caused indignacyon, it caused feare, it caused desyre, it caused a feruent minde, it caused punishement, for in all thinges ye haue shewed youre selues ỹ ye were cleare in that mater. Wherfore though I wrote vnto you, I dyd it not for his cause that did hurte, neyther for his cause that was hurte: but that oure good mynde which we haue toward you in the syght of god, might appeare vnto you:

Therfore we are comforted, because ye are comforted: yea and exceedingly the more toyed we, for ỹ ioy that Titus had because his spirite was refreshed of you al. I am therfore, not nowe ashamed though I bosted my self to him of you. For as al thiges which I preached vnto you are true, euen so is oure bosting that I bosted my selfe to Titus with al founde true. And nowe is his inwarde affeccion moare aboundaunte towarde you, when he remembreth the obedience of euery one of you: howe wt feare and trembynge ye receaued hym. I reioyce that I maye be bolde ouer you in all thinges.

¶ He putteth them in remembraunce to helpe the poore saincte at Ierusalem, according as the Macedonians did.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

Do you to wit brethren, of ỹ grace of God which is geuen in ỹ congregations of Macedonia, howe ỹ the aboundaūce of their reioyclig is, ỹ they are tryed wt much tribulation. And therto though they were exceding poore yet haue they geuen exceadynge richly, & ỹ singlenes. For to their powers (I beare record) yea & beyond their power, they were willyng of their owne record, & praied vs wt great instaūce, ỹ we wold receue their benefit, & suffer the to be partakers wt other i ministring to ỹ saincte. And this they did, not as we loked for: but gaue theyr owne selues first to ỹ lord, & after vnto vs by ỹ will of god: so ỹ we could not but desire Titus to accomplisshe the same beniuolēce among you also/ euē as he had begōne.

Now therfore, as ye are ryche in all parties, in faith/ in worde, i knowledge in al feruentnes, and in loue, whiche ye haue to vs: euen so se ỹ ye be pleteous in this beniuolence. This sate I not as commaūding: but because other are so feruēt, therfor proue I your loue/ whether it be perfect or no. Ye know the liberalitie of our lord Jesus christ, which though he were riche yet for your sakes became poore, that ye thorow his powertie/ might be made ryche.

And I geue councell here to. For this is expedient for you, which began me, not to do only: but also to wyl a yeare ago. Now therfor perfourme the dede: that as there was in you a redynes to wyll, euen so ye maye perfourme the dede, of that which ye haue. For if there be first a wyllynge mynde, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

It is not my mynde, that other be fett at ease, and ye brought into combraunce, but that ther be egalnes now at this tyme, that youre aboundaunce maye succour their lackes, ỹ their aboundaūce maye supplie your lacke: ỹ ther maye be equalite, agreing to that whych is writen * He that gathered much: had nether the more aboundaunce, and he that gathered lytle, had neuertheles. Thankes be vnto god/ wh put in the herte of Titus, ỹ same good mind toward you. For he accepted the requeste, yea rather he was so wel wyllyng, that of hys owne accorde/ came vnto you. Exo. xvi.

We haue set wyth hym that brother whose laude is in the gospell/ throwout all ỹ congregations: & not so only/ but is also chosen of ỹ congregations, to be a felow wt vs in our iourney concerninge this beneuolence ỹ is mynistred by vs vnto the prayse of ỹ Lorde and to stirre vp your prompte mynd. For thys we eschue, that eny man sholde rebuke vs in thys plenteous distribucation that is ministred by vs, & therfore make prouision for honest thynges, not in the syght of God onely, but also in ỹ syght of men.

We haue sente with them a brother of oures whome we haue proued dyligent in many thinges, but nowe muche more dyligente. The greate confydence which I haue in you hath caused me this to do: partly for Titus sake, whyche is my felow āde helper as concerning you, partely because of other whych are our brethren, and the messengers of the congregacios. and the glory of Christ: wherfore shew vnto them proffe of your loue and of the reioycinge ỹ we haue of you/ that the congregacions maye se it.

¶ In thys chapter dothe he the same, that he did in the Chapter goynge before, that is, moueth them to helpe the poore Brethren at Ierusalem.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

For the ministrige to ỹ* saintes is but superfluous for me to write vnto you: for I know your redines of mide wher of I bost my selfe vnto the of Macedonia, & saye that Achaia was prepared a yeare ago, and youre feruentnes hath prouoked many. Neuertheisse yet haue I sente these brethren, lest oure reioysinge ouer you shuld be i vaine in this behalfe, and that yee (as I haue sayde) prepare youre selues, lest paraduenture if they of Macedonia come with me, and finde you vnprepared, the bost that I made in this matter, shulde be a shame to vs. I saye not vnto you.

* What saintes ỹ scripture, Luke act. &c

Wherfore I thought it necessary to exhorte the brethren, to come before hand vnto you, for to prepare your good blessing promised afore, that it might be rede: so that it be a blessing, and not a defrauding. + This ye remembre, howe ỹ he which soweth litle shal reape litle, and he that soweth plenteously shall reape plenteously. And let euery man do according as he hath purposed i his hert, not groudgingly, or of necessite. For God loueth a cheareful geuer.

Gen. xxxv.

God is able to make you riche in al grace, that ye in al thynges hauing sufficient vnto ỹ vtmost, maye be riche vnto al good workes (as it is written.*

* Psal. cxl.

He hath spared abroade and hath geuen to the poore, his rightwelnes remayneth for euer. He that fideth the sower sede, shal minister bread for fode, & shal multiplie youre sede and increase the frutes of your rightwelnes + ỹ on all partes, ye maye be made riche in all singlenes, which causeth thorow vs, thankes geuinge vnto God.

For the office of this ministracyon, not only supplieth ỹ nede of ỹ saintes: but also is abundaunte herein, that for this laudable mynistrig, thākes might be geuen to god of many, which prayse god for the obedience of your professig the gospell of Christe, and for your singlenes in destributing to them ād to al men, and i their praiers to god for you longe after you, for ỹ aboundaūte grace of God geuen vnto you. Thankes be vnto god for his vnspeakeable gifte.

C The. x. Chapter.

I Paul my selfe beseche you by the meknes of Christe, which when I am present a monge you am of no reputacion, but am boulde toward you being absente. I beseche you that I nede not to be bould when I am present (with that same cōfidēce, where vpō I am supposed to be boulde) against some which repute vs as though we walked carnally. Neuertheless though we walke compassed with the flesshe, yet we warre not fleshly. For the weapens of oure warre are not carnal thinges, but thinges mighty in god / to caste downe strong holdes, wherwith we ouer throw imaginacions, ād euery hie thing, that exalteth it selfe against the knowledge of God, and bringe into captiuite al vnderstanding to the obedience of Christ, and are ready to take vengaunce on all disobedience, when youre obedyence is fulfilled. Loke ye on thiges after ỹ vtter appearaunce.

If any man trust in him selfe that he is Christes, let the same also conspyre of him selfe, that as he is Christes, euē so are we christes. And though I shulde bost my selfe some what moare of oure auctorite which the Lorde hath geuen vs to edifie and not to destroye you, it shulde not be to my shame. This say I, lest I shulde seme as though I went a boute to make you afraid with letters. For the Epistles (saith he) are stronge: but his bodely presence is weake, and his speache is rude. Let hi that is suche thinke on this wise, that as we are i wordes by letters when we are absent, such are we in dedes when we are present.

For we cannot finde in our hartes to make oure selues of the numbre of thē, or to compare our selues to them, which laude them selues, neuertheles while they measure them selues with them selues, and compare them selues with thē selues, they vnderstand nought. But we will not reioyce aboue measure: but according to ỹ quantite of the measure which God hath destributed vnto vs, a measure that reacheth euen to you.

For

For we stretche not out oure selues beyond measure, as though we had not reached vnto you. For euen to you haue we come with the gospell of Christ, and we bost not oure selues out of measure in other mens labours. Ye ād we hope / when youre fayth is increased amonge you / to be magnified accordynge to oure measure / more largely, and to preache the gospell in those regions which are beyonde you: and not to reioyce of ỹ whych is by an other mans measure prepared al redy. Let him ỹ reioyseth / reioyse in the* Lord. For he ỹ prayseth him selfe, is not alowed: but whom the Lorde prayseth.

* Let euery man reioyse in that Christ dyed for him, and not in the holynes of hys awne workes.

C Paul (vnder sufferaunce) commendeth him selfe, and defendeth his auctorite against the false prophetes.

The. xi. Chapter.

Would to God, ye could suffre me a lytell in my folishnes: ye and I praie you for beare me. For I am gelous ouer you with godli gelousye. For I coupled you to one man, to make you a chaste virgin to Christ. But I feare lest as the serpent begyled Eue thorow his sutteltie, euen so youre witnes shulde be corrupte from the singlenes that is i Christ. For yf he that cōmeth, preache a nother Jesus then him whome we preached: or yf ye receaue an other spyrite thē that which ye haue receaued: other another gospell then that ye haue receaued, ye myght right well haue bene content. I suppose that I was nor behynde the cheife Apostles. Though I be rude in speaking, yet I am not so in knowledge. Now be it amōge you we are knowen to the vtmost what we are in all thynges. Dyd I ther i synne / be cause I submytted my selfe, that ye might be exalted, and because I preached to you ỹ gospel of God free? I robbed other congregacions, and toke wages of them to do you seruice wt al. And when I was present, with you, and had nede, I was greuous to no man for ỹ which was lacking vnto me, the brethren whiche came from Macedonia, supplied: and in all thynges I kept my selfe ỹ I shuld not be greeuous to you: and so will I keape my selfe. If the trueth of Christ be in me, thys reioycinge shal not be take frō me in the regions of Achaia. Wherfore because I loue you not, god knoweth. Neuertheles what I do / that wyll I do to cut awaye occasion from them yn whiche desyre occasyon, that they myghte be founde lyke vnto vs in that wherin they reioyce. For the false Apostles, are disceatful worckers, and fassio them selues lyke vnto the Appostles of Christ. And no meruell, for Satan him selfe is chaunged into the fassion of an angell of lyght. Therfore it is no great thynge thoughe hys ministers fassion them selues as though they were the ministers of rightuousnes: whose end shal be accordinge to their deades. I saye againe, lest anye man thincke that I am folysh: or els euen nowe take me as a fole, that I maye boast my selfe a lytle. That I speake, I speake it not after ỹ wayes of the Lord, but as it were folyshly, whyle we are now come to bostinge. Seinge that manye reioyce after the flesshe, I wil reioyce also. + For ye suffre fooles gladly / because that ye your selues are wyse. For ye suffre euē if a man bringe you into* bondage: if a man deuoure, if a man take: yf a man exalte him selfe: if a man smite you on the face. I speake as concernig rebuke, as though we had bene weake.

A prophesy in Christes and ỹ Pipes ye.

Faults equalled with ỹ chiefe.

How be it wherin soeuer eny man dare be bolde (I speake folisshly) I dare be bolde also. They are Ebrues, so am I: They are Israelites, euē so am I. They are the seede of Abraham, euen so am I. They are ỹ ministers of Christ (I spe ake as a foole) I am moare: In laboures moare aboundant: In stryppes aboue measure: In prison moare plenteously: In deathy ofte. Of the Jewes fyue tymes receaued I euery tyme. xl. stryppes, saue one. Thryse was I beten with rodes. I was once stoned. I sufferod thryse shipwracke. Nyght and daye haue I bene in the depe of the see, In iorneyinge often: in perels of waters: i perels of robbers: in ieopardies of myne awne nacion: in ieoperdies amonge the heathen. I haue bene i perels i cities, in perels in wildernes, in perels in the see, i perels amōg false brethren, in labour & trauel, i watchig oft, in honger, in thirst, in in fastinges often, in colde and in nakednes. And beside the thinges which outwardly happen vnto me, I am combred daily, and do care for all congregacions. Who is sicke, and I am not sicke? Who is hurte in the fayth and my hert burneth not? If I must nedes reioyce, I will reioyce of myne infirmityes.

The Notes.

* To moche meknes and obedience is not alowed in the kyngedome of God, but al must be according to knowledge.

¶ Paul is taken vp into the thyrde heauen, and hereth wordes not to be spoken of.

The. xii. Chapter.

IT is God and father of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, whych is blessed for euermore, knoweth that I lye not. + In the citie of Damascon, the gouerner of the people vnder king Aretas, layde watche in the citie of the Damascens, and wolde haue caught me, and at a wyndowe was I let doune in a basket thorow the wall, and so scaped his handes.

It is not expedient for me (no dout) to reioyce. Neuertheles I wil come to visions and reuelacions of the Lord. I knowe a man in Christ aboue. xiiii. yeares agone (whether he were in the body I can not tell, or whether he were out of the body I cannot tell, God knoweth) whych was taken vp in to the thyrd heauen. And I knowe the same man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell God knoweth) how that he was taken vp into Paradyse, and heard wordes not to be spoken, which no man can vtter. Of this man will I reioyce, of my self wil I not reioyce, except it be of myne infirmities. And yet though I wolde reioyce, I shuld not be a fole: for I wolde saye the trouth. Neuertheles I spare, lest eny man shulde thinke of me aboue that he seythe me to be, or heareth of me.

And lest I shuld be exalted out of measure thorow the aboundance of reuelacyons, ther was geuen vnto me a * vnquietnes of the flesshe, the messengers of Satan to buffet me: because I shuld not be exalted out of measure. For this thinge besought I the Lord thryse that it myght departe from me. And he sayd vnto me: my grace is sufficient for the. For my strength is made perfect thorow weakenes. Very gladly therfor wil I reioyce of my weknes, that the strength of Christ maye dwel in me. + Therfor haue I delectacion in infirmites, in rebukes, in nede, in persecutions, in anguysh, for Christes sake. For when I am weake, then am I stronge.

I am made a fole in boosting my selfe: Ye haue compelled me: I ought to haue be commended of you. For in nothig was I inferyoure vnto the chefe Apostles, thoughe I be nothing, yet the tokes of an Apostle were wrought amonge you with al pacience, with signes, and wonders and mightie dedes. For what is it where in ye were inferiors vnto other congregatios except it be therin that I was not greuous vnto you. Beholde I owe the third time I am redy to come vnto you: and yet wyl I not be greuous vnto you For I seke not yours, but you. Also the childre ought not to laie vp for the fathers and mothers: but the fathers and mothers for the children.

I wyl very gladly bestowe, and wil be bestowed for your selues: though the more I loue you, the lesse I am loued againe. But be it that I greued you not: neuertheles I was craftie and toke you with gyle. Dyd I pyll you by any of them which I sent vnto you? I desired Titus, and with him I sent a brother. Dyd Titus defraude you of anye thig? walked we not in our spirite? walked we not in like steppes? Again thinke ye that we excuse oure selues? We speake in Christe in the syghte of God.

But we do all thynges dearly beloued for youre edifieng. For feare lest it come to passe, that when I come, I shal not fynde you such as I wolde: and I shalbe fou̇nd vnto you such as I wold not: I feare lest there be founde amog you debate, enuieng, wrath, strife, backbytinges, whisperinges, swellinge and disorder, I feare lest when I com agayne, god bringe me lowe amounge you, and I be constrained to bewaile manye of them which haue sinned al ready, and haue not repented of the vnclennes, fornicacion and wantonnes which they haue committed.

The notes.

a * Unquietnes of the flesshe is here the violent withstanding and agaynsaying and cursed persecuting of euell me which cōtinually troubled him, hyndred against his preaching. This was the minister of Satan: that as it had bene with buffetes vexed him. His aduersaries which with their blasphemouse & contrarious teaching dyd disquiet and tormente him, destroing as fast as he edified, were the verye pricke and disquietnesse of the flesshe, from whiche he desireth the Lorde to be delyuered.

¶ He promyseth to come vnto them and exhorteth them to ordre them selues that he maye fynd them perfect and of one minde.

The. xiii. Chapter.

NOw come I the third time vnto you * in the mouth of two or three witnesses shall euerye thinge stande. I tolde you before, and tell you before: and as I saide when I was present with you the seconde time, so write I now beinge absente to them which in tyme past haue sinned, and to al other: that if I come againe, I will not spare, seing that ye seke experience of Christ which speaketh in me, which amog you is not weake, but is mighty in you. And verely though it came of weakenes that he was crucified, yet liueth he thorowe the power of God. And we (no dout) are weake in him: but we shal lyue with hym, by the might of God amonge you.

Proue your selues whether ye are in the faith or not. Examen youre owne selues: know ye not your owne selues how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be cast awaies? I trust that ye shal know that we are not cast awaies. I desire before god that ye do non euel: not that we shoulde seme commendable but that ye shuld do that which is honeste: and let vs be counted as lewde persones. We can do nothinge against the trueth, but for the trueth. We are glad when we are weake, and ye strong. This also we wische for, euē that ye were perfect. Therfore write I these thinges beinge absent, lest when I am present, I shulde vse sharpnes according to the power which the lorde hath geuen me, to edifie, and not to destroie. Finally ye brethren fare ye well, be perfecte, be of good comforte, be of one mynde, liue in peace, and the God of loue and peace shal be with you. Grete one another in an holy kisse. All the * sainctes salute you.

The grace of oure Lord Jesus Christ and the loue of God, and the felloshippe, of the holy goost be with you all Amen.

The Epistle of

Sayncte Paul the Apostle vnto the Galathians.

¶ Paul reproueth them because they were fallen away from the Gospel, sheweth his owne conuersyon, magnyfyeth his office and Apostleshyppe, and declareth hymselfe to bee equall with the hye Apostles.

The fyrst Chapter.

PAul an apostle not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ, and by God the father whiche raised hi frō death: and all the brethren which are with me.

Vnto the congregations of Galacia. Grace be with you and peace from God the father, and from oure Lorde Jesus Christe, whiche gaue him selfe for oure sinnes, to delyuer vs from this presēte euel worlde, thorow the wyl of god our father: to whome be praise for euer and euer Amen.

I maruaile that ye are so soone turned from hym that called you in the grace of Christ, vnto another Gospell, which is nothyng els / but that there be some whiche trouble you, and intende to peruert the Gospel of Christ. Neuertheles though we our selues, or an angell from heauen, preache any other Gospel vnto you, then that whiche we haue preached vnto you, holde hym as a cursed. As I said before, so saie I now againe, yf any man preache any other thing vnto you, then that ye haue receaued, hold him accursed. Preach I mans doctrine or Godes? Other go I about to please men? if I studyed to please men, I were not the seruaunt of Christe.

+ I certifie you brethren, that the Gospel

gospel which was preached of me, was not after the maner of men, neither receaued I it of man, neither was I taught it: but receaued it by the reuelacion of Jesus Christ. For ye haue herde of my conuersacyō i tyme paste, in the Jewes wayes, how that beyond measure I persecuted the congregacion of God, and spoiled it: and preuayled in the Jewes lawe, aboue many of my companions, which were of mine owne nacion, & was a much more feruent mainteyner of the traditions of the elders.

But when it pleased god, which seperated me from my mothers wombe, & called me bi his grace, for to declare his sonne by me, that I should preache hym among the heathē: immediatly I cōmuned not of ỹ matter w* fleshe & bloud, neither returned to Jerusalem to them which were Apostles before me: but wēt my waye into Arabia, and came againe vnto Damasco. Thē after thre yeare I returned to Jerusale to se peter, & abode wt hi. xv. daies, no nother of ỹ Apostles sawe I, saue James ỹ Lordes brother. The thinges which I write, beholde god knoweth I lye not.

After that I went into the costes of Siria & Cilicia & was vnknowen as touchinge my persō vnto ỹ cōgregatiōs of Jewry, which were in Christ. But they herde only ỹ he whiche persecuted vs in tyme past, now preacheth the fayth which before he destroyed. And they glorified god one my behalfe.

The notes.

Saule though he came longe after the Apostles, yet had he not his auctorite of Peter, or of any, ỹ went before him. Neither brought he with him letters of recommendation or bulles of confirmation. But the confyrmation of his apostleshyp was the word of god & conscience of men, & the power of the spyrite that testyfyed wyth him by miracles and manyfold gyftes of grace.

a*Flesh & bloud here signyfye men or mens cōsel.

Thē withstandeth Peter in the face & proueth that the law's circumcysiō are not necessary to saluatiō.

The. ii. Chapter.

Then, xiiii. yeares thereafter I went vp againe to Jerusalem w Barnabas, & toke with me Tytus also. Yee and I went vp by reuelation & cōmuned w them, of the gospel, which I preache amonge the Gentiles: but betwene our selues, with them whiche were counted chefe, lest it shuld haue bene thought that I should rune or had runne in vayne. Also Titus which was wyth me, though he were a Greke, yet was not cōpelled to be circumcised, and ỹ because of icommers beyng false brethren whyche came in amonge other to spye out oure libertie which we haue i Christ Jesus, ỹ they myght bring vs i to bondage. To whom we gaue no rowme, no not for the space of an houre, as concerninge to be brought into subiecyon: and that because that the trueth of the Gospell myght continue with you.

Of them which semed to be great (what they were in tyme passed it maketh no matter to me: God loketh no mans person) neuertheles they which semed great, added nothyng to me. But contrary wyse, when they sawe that the Gospell ouer the vncircūcision was committed vnto me, as the Gospel ouer the *circumcisyon was vnto Peter: for he that was mighty in Peter in the Apostle shippe ouer the circumcisyon, the same was myghty in me amonge the Gentyles: and therfore when they perceaued ỹ grace that was geuen vnto me, then James, Cephas, and John, which semed to be pylers, gaue to me and Barnabas ỹ right handes, and agreed with vs, that we shuld e preache amonge the heathen; and they amonge the Jewes: warninge only that we shulde remember the poore. Which thinge also I was diligent to do.

And when Peter was come to Antioche, I withstode him in the face, for he was worthy to be blamed. For yer that certayne came from James, he eat wyth the Gentyls. But when they were come, he withdrue and separated him self, fearynge them whych were of the circumcysyon. And the other Jewes dissembled likewise, in so moche that Barnabas was brought in to their simulacion also. But when I sawe, that they went not the right way after the trueth of the Gospel, I sayde vnto Peter before all men, yf ỹ beynge a Jewe, lyuest after the maner of the gentyles, & not as do ỹ Jewes, why why causest thou the Gentiles to lyue as do the Jewes? We which are Jewes by nature, & not sinners of the gentiles, knowe that a man is not iustified by the *deades of the lawe: but by the faith of Jesus Christ. And therfore we haue beleued on Jesus Christ, that we might be iustified bi the faith of Christ, & not by the dedes of the lawe: because that by the dedes of the lawe no flesshe can be iustified.

*Hebrewes ỹ mistake the right faith of ỹ gospell.

If then whyle we seke to be made rightwes by Christ, we our selue ar founde sinners, is not then Christe ỹ ministre of sinne? God forbid. For if I build agayne that which I destroied, thē make I my selfe a trespasser? *But I thorowe the lawe am dead to the lawe: ỹ I myght liue vnto god. I am crucified wyth CHRYSTE. I lyue verely: yet now not I, but Christ lyueth in me. And the lyfe which I now lyue in ỹ flesh, I liue by the faith of the sonne of God which loued me, and gaue him selfe for me. I despise not the grace of god. For if rightwesnes com of ỹ law, thē Christ died in vaine.

The notes.

a*But I thorowe the lawe am dead to the lawe, ỹ is, by the lawe of lyberte is grace graunted i Christ, I am delyuered from the law of bondage, mynistred by Moses, and from the burthen & curse therof.

Thē rebuketh the vnstedfastnes of ỹ Galathians thewynge the vnperfectenes of ỹ lawe, & declareth neuertheles that it was not geuen for naughte.

The. iii. Chapter.

O folysshe Galathians: who hathe bewytched you ỹ ye shuld not beleue ỹ trueth? To whom Jesus Christe was described before ỹ eyes, and amonge you crucified. This onelye wolde I learne of you, receaued ye the spyrite by the dedes of the law, or els by preaching of the faith? Are ye so vnwyse? that after ye haue begonne in the spyrite ye wold now end in the flesh? So many thinges ye haue suffered i vaine, yf that be vain. Which ministred to you the spyrite, & worketh miracles among you doth he it thorow ỹ dedes of the lawe, or by preaching of ỹ faith? *Euen as Abraham beleued God, and it was accounted to hi for rightwesnes. Vnderstande therfore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

Genesis. xv. Rom. iii. a

For the scripture sawe afore hand, that God wold iustifye the Heathen thorow faith, and therfore shewed before hande glad tydynges vnto Abraham: In thee shall all nacyons be blessed. So then they which be of faith, are blessed wyth faithfull Abraham. For as many as are vnder the deades of the lawe, are vnder malediccyō. For it is wryten cursed is euerye man that contynueth not in all thynges which are written in the boke of the lawe, to fulfyll them. That no man is iustifyed by the lawe in the syght of God, is euident. For the iuste shall lyue by fayth. The lawe is not of fayth: but the man that fulfilleth the thinges contayned in the lawe (shall lyue in them). But Christ hath deliuered vs from the curse of the law, and was made and* a curse for vs. For it is wryten: cursed is euerye one that hangeth on tree, that the blessynge of Abraham myght come on ỹ Gentiles thorow Jesus Christ, and that we might receaue the promes of the spyrite thorow fayth.

Brethren, I wyll speake after the maner of me. Though it be but a mans testamēte yet no man despyseth it, or addeth eny thing therto, whē it is once allowed. + To Abraham & hys seed were the promyses made. He sayth not in the seedes, as many: but in thy sede, as i one which is Christ. This I saye that ỹ law whych begonne after warde, beyonde iiii. C. & xxx. yeares, doth not disanul ỹ testament, that was confirmed afore of God vnto Christward, to make the promes of none effect. For yf the inheritaunce come of the lawe, it commeth not to promes. But god gaue it vnto Abraham by promes.

Wherfore then serueth ỹ law? The law was added because of transgressyon (tyll the seed came to whych the promes was made) and it was ordeyned bi Angeles in the hande of a mediatoz. A mediatoz is not a mediatoz of one. But God is one. Is the lawe then agaynst ỹ promes of God? God forbyd. Howbeit yf ther had bene a lawe geuen which coulde haue geuen lyfe: then no doute ryghtwesnes shuld haue com by ỹ law: But ỹ scripture concludeth al thinges vnder synne, ỹ ỹ promes by ỹ fayth of

Jesus

Jesus Christ shulde be geuen vnto the ỹ beleue. ✣ Before that fayth came, we were kepte and shut vp vnder the lawe vnto the faith which shuld afterwarde be declared.

Wherfore the lawe was our scole-master vnto the tyme of Christ, that we myght be made righteous by faith. But after that faith is come, now are we no longer vnder a scole maister. For ye are all the sonnes of God by the fayth which is in Christ Jesus. For al ye that are baptised, haue put on Christ. Now is there no Iewe nether gentile: ther is nether bonde nor free: there is nether man nor woman: but ye are al one thinge in Christ Jesu. If ye be Christes, then are ye Abrahams sede, and heires by promes.

The notes. *Christ was accursed for our sakes, that is: he was punyshed and slayne for oure synnes.
*The lawe geueth no lyfe but threatneth death.
a To be vnder a scole master, & to be vnder the lawe are both one, and are expounded in the prologe to ỹ Romaynes, the leaffe. lxii
Paul sheweth ỹ through Christ we be delyuered frō ỹ lawe, & rebuketh ỹ vnthankefulnes of the Galathians.

The. iiii. Chapter. ✣

A AND I saie that the heyr̄ as longe as he is a child, differeth not from a seruaunt, though he be lord of al, but is vnder tuters and gouerners, vntil the time appointed of the father. Euen so we, as longe as we were children, were in bondage vnder the ordinaunce of the worlde. But when ỹ* time was ful come, God sent his sonne borne of a woman and made bound vnto the lawe, to redeme them which were vnder the lawe: ỹ we thorowe electyon myght receaue the inheritaunce ỹ belongeth vnto ỹ naturall sonnes. Because ye are sonnes, God hath sent the spyrite of his sonne into our hertes, which crieth Abba father. Wherfore now, ỹ arte not a seruaūt, but a sonne. If thou be ỹ sonne, ỹ arte also the heire of God thorow Christe. ✣

B Not withstandinge, when ye knew not god ye did seruice vnto thē, which by nature were no Goddes. But now seynge ye know god (yea rather are knowen of god) how is it ỹ ye tourne againe vnto ỹ weake & bedgarly ceremonies, wher vnto againe ye desire afresh to be i bōdage? Ye obserue dayes, and monethes, and tymes, and yeares. I am in feare of you least I haue bestowed on you labour in vayne.

Begarlye ceremonyes.

Brethren I beseche you, be ye as I am: for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurt me at all. Ye knowe, how thorowe infyrmitie of the flesh, I preached the Gospell vnto you at the fyrste. And my temptacion which I suffered by reason of my flesh, ye despised not, neither abhorred, but receaued me as an Angel of God: yea as Christ Jesus. How happy were ye then? for I beare you recorde ỹ if it hadde bene possible ye would haue plucked out your owne eyes, and haue geuen them to me. Am I therfore become youre enemy, because I tell you the trueth?

Infirmyte & temptacyō are persecution, rebuke & ỹ crosse.

They are gelous ouer you amysse. Yea, they intende to exclude you, that ye shoulde be feruent to themwarde. It is good alwayes to be feruente, so it be in a good thinge, and not onely when I am present wyth you.

My lytle children (of whom I trauaple in byrth agayne, vntyl Christ be fashioned in you) I wold I were with you nowe, and could chaunge my voyce: for I stande in a dowte of you. Tell me ye that desyre to be vnder the lawe, haue ye not hearde of the lawe? ✣ For it is written that Abraham had two sonnes, the one by a bond mayde, the other by a free woman. Yea and he which was of the bond woman was borne after the flesh: but he which was of the free woman was borne by promes. Which thynges betoken mysterye. For these women are two testamentes, the one from the mount Sina, which gendreth vnto bondage which is Agar. For mount Sina, is called Agar in Arabia, and bordreth vpon the cytye, which is now Jerusalem, and is in bondage wyth her children.

But Jerusalem: which is aboue is free, which is the mother of vs all. For it is written, Reioyce thou baren, that bearest no Children, breake forth and crye, thou that trauelest not. For the desolate hath many moo children then she which hath an husbande. Brethren we are after the maner of Isaac, children of promes. But as then he that was borne carnally, persecuted hi that was borne spirtually. Euen so is it nowe. Neuertheles what saith ỹ scripture? put away the bonde woman and her sonne. For ỹ sonne of the bonde woman shall not be heyre wt the sonne of ỹ free woman. So then brethren we are not children of the bond woman: but of the free woman.

The notes

a That twelue com, was the time of Christes commynge wherin made an ende of the lawe, & deliuered vs from the burthen therof.

He laboureth to drawe them away from circumcision, shewyng them the battayl betwyxt ỹ spyrite & the flesh, and the frutes of them both.

C The. v. Chapter.

I STAND faste therfore in the lybertye wherwith Christ hath made vs free, & wrap not your selues agayne in the yoke of bondage. Behold I Paul saye vnto you, that if ye be circumcised, Christ shal profyt you nothinge at al. I testifie agayne to euery man which is circumcised that he is bounde to kepe the whole lawe. Ye are gone quite from Christ as many as are iustified by the lawe, and are fallen frō grace. We loke for, and hope in ỹ spyrite to be iustified thorow faith. For in Jesu Christ, nether is circumcision, anye thing worth, other yet vncircūcisiō, but *fayth which by loue is mighty in operacion. Ye dyd rūne wel: who was a let vnto you, that ye shoulde not obeye the trueth? Euen ỹ councel that is not of hi that called you. A lytle leuen doth leuen the whole lompe of dowe.

I haue truste towarde you in ỹ Lorde, that ye shuld be none other wise minded. He that rebuketh you, shal bere his iudgment what soeuer he be. Brethren yf I yet preach circumcision: why do I then yet suffer persecution? For then had the offence which the crosse geueth, ceased. I wolde to God they were seperated from you, which trouble you. Brethren ye were called into (lybertye) only let not youre libertie be an occasiō vnto the flesshe, but in loue serue one another.*

For al the lawe is fulfylled in one worde, whych is this: thou shalt loue thyne neyghbour as thy selfe. If ye byte and deuour one another: take hede les ye be consumed one of another.

✣ I saye walke in the spyrite, and fulfyl not the lustes of the flesshe. For the flesshe lusteth contrarye to the spirite, and the spyrite contrary to the flesshe. These are contrary one to the other, so that ye cannot do that whych ye wolde. But & yf ye be led of ỹ spyrite, then are ye not vnder the lawe. The dedes of the flesshe are manifest, which are these, aduoutrie, fornication, vnclenness, wantānes, D idolatrye, witchecraft, hatred, variaunce, zele, wrath, stryfe, sedition, sectes, enuying, murther, dronkennes, glottony, and soche like of the which I tell you before as I haue tolde you in time past, that they whych commyt soche thynges, shall not inherite ỹ kyngdome of God. But* ỹ frute of the spyrite is, loue, ioye, peace, long sufferinge, gentelnes, goodnes, faythfulnes, meaknes, temperancy. Agaynst suche ther is no lawe. C They that are Christes, haue crucifyed ỹ flesshe with the appetites and lustes. ✣

✣ If we liue in the spyrite, let vs walke in the spyrite. Let vs not be vayne glorious, prouokig one another, & enuieng one another.

The notes.

C to commyt suche dedes maketh vs vnder dampnation of the lawe
*The frute of the spyrite. These dedes testify that we are not vnder the dampnation of the lawe.
C He exhorteth them to brotherly loue, and one to beare with another. In the ende he warneth them to beware of circumcision.

C The. vi. Chapter.

BRethren, yf eny man be fallen by chaunce into eny faute: ye whych are spirituall, healpe to amende him in ỹ spyrite of meknes: considering thy selfe, lest thou also be tempted. Beare ye one anothers burthen, and so fulfyll the law of Christ. If eni man seme to hym self that he is somwhat, whē in dede he is nothinge, the same deceaueth him selfe in hys imagination. Let euery man proue his awne worke, and then shal he haue reioysynge in hys awne selfe, & not in another. For euery man shall beare his awne burthen.

Let him that is taught i the worde, minister vnto hym that teacheth hym, i al good thinges. Be not *deceaued, God is not mocked.

For what soeuer a mā soweth, that shal he reape. He that soweth in his flesshe shal of ẏ flesh reape corruptiō. But he that soweth in the spirite, shal of ẏ spirite reape lyfe euerlastinge. Let vs not be wery of wel doinge. For when the time is come, we shal reape w̄ oute wetines. While we haue therfore time, let vs do good vnto al men, and specyallye vnto them whyche are of the housholde of fayth.

Beholde howe large a letter I haue writen vnto you with mine owne hand. As many as desyre with outwarde appearaunce to please carnally, they constraine you to be circumcised, onelye because they wolde not suffer persecucyō with the crosse of Christe. For they the selues whyche are circumcysed, kepe not the lawe: but desyre to haue you circumcysed, that they might reioyce i your flesshe.

God forbyd that I shoulde reioyce, but in ẏ crosse of our Lord Iesu Christ, wherby the worlde is crucyfied as touchyng me, and I as touching ẏ world. For in Christ Iesu neither circūcysyon auayleth any thing at al, nor vncircumcisyon: but a *new creature. And as many as walke accordig to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy, and vpon Israel that pertayneth to god. From hence forthe, let no man put me to busynes. For I beare in my bodye ẏ markes of the Lorde Iesu.

The grace of
oure Lorde Iesu Christ be with your spirite
Amen.

¶ The Epistle

of Saint Paul the Apostle vnto the Ephesians.

¶ The euerlasting ordinaunce and election of God in sauing all men thorowe Christ Iesus hys sonne. Men are ordened vnto good workes. The dominion of Christ.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

PAule an Appostle of Iesus Chryst, by the wyll of God. ¶ To the sainctes, whych are at Ephesus, and to the whyche beleaue on Iesus Chryst. Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Iesus Chryst. Blessed be God the Father of oure Lorde Iesus Christe, whiche hath blessed vs w̄ all maner of spiritual blessynges in heuenly thynges by Chryste, accordinge as he had chosen vs in hym, before the foundacion of the worlde was layde, that we shoulde be sainctes, and without blame before hym, thorowe loue. And ordeyned vs before thorow Iesus Chryste to be heyers vnto hym selfe, accordīg/to the pleasure of hys wyl, to the prayse of the glorye of hys grace, wherwith he hathe made vs accepted in the beloued.

By whom we haue redemption thorow hys bloude, euen the forgeuenesse of sinnes, accordīg to the riches of his grace, which grace he shed in vs aboundauntlye in all wysdom, and prudence. And hath opened vnto vs the *mysterye of his wyl, acordīg to hys pleasure, and purposed the same in hym selfe/ to haue it declared when the tyme were ful come, that all thynges, both the thinges which are in heauen, and also the thynges which are in earthe shoulde be gathered together, euen in Chryste, that is to saye, in hym in whome we are made heyres, and were therto predestinate acordinge to the purpose of hym whyche worketh al thinges, after the purpose of hys owne wil: ẏ we which before trusted in Chryste, should be vnto the prayse of hys glory.

In whom also yͤ (after that ye hearde ẏ worde of trueth, I meane the Gospell of youre saluacyon, wherin ye beleued) were sealed wyth the holy spyrite of promes, whych is the ernest of oure inheritaunce, to redeme the purchased possession, vnto ẏ laude of hys glory.

Wherfore euen I (after that I heare de of the fayth which ye haue in the Lorde Iesu, and loue vnto al the saynctes) cease not to geue thankes for you, makīge mencion of you in my prayers, that the god of oure lorde Iesus Chryst and the father of glory, might geue vnto you the spirite of wysdome, and open to you the knowledge of hym selfe, and lyghten the eyes of your myndes, that ye myght knowe what that hope is, where vnto he hath called you, and what the ryches of his glorious inheritaunce is vpon ẏ sainctes, ād what is the exceading greatnesse of hys power in vs wardē, whyche *beleue accordynge to the workynge of ẏ hys myghty power, which he wrought in Chryste, when he rayled hym from ẏ the dead, and set hym on his ryght hand in heuenly thinges, aboue all rule, power, and myght and dominacyon, and aboue al names that are named, not in this worlde only, but also in the worlde to come: and hath put all thynges vnder his fete, and hath made him aboue al thinges, the heed of the congregacyō which is his body and the fulnes of him ẏ fylleth all in all thinges.

* Fayth ys the worke of God onelye, euen as was that rayssyng vp of Christ.

¶ Paul sheweth them what maner of people they were before their conuersion, and what they are now in Christ.

The. ii. Chapter.

ANd you hath he quyckened also that were dead in trespasse and synne, in the which in time passed ye walked, accordynge to the course of this worlde, and after the gouernor that ruleth in the ayer, the spirite ẏ now worketh in the childrē of vnbelefe, amōge whych we also had oure conuersacyon in tyme past, in ẏ lustes of oure flesshe/ and fulfylled the wyll of the flesshe and of the mynde: and were *naturally the chyldren of wrath, euē as wel as other. But God which is ryche in mercy thorow his greate loue wherwyth he loued vs/ euen when we were dead by synne/ hath quyckened vs to gether in Christ (for by grace are ye saued) and hath rayled vs vp together and made vs sit together in heauenly thinges thorowe Christ Iesus, for to shewe in tymes to come the exceading riches of his grace, in kindnes to vswarde in Christ Iesu. For by grace are ye made safe, thorowe fayth, and that not of youre selues. For it is the gift of God, and commeth not of workes, least anye man shoulde boaste hym selfe. For we are hys worcke manshyppe created in Christ Iesu vnto * good workes, vnto the which God ordeyned vs before that we shoulde walke in them.

Wherfore remembre that ye beinge in tyme passed Gentiles in the flesshe, ād were called vncircumcision to the which are called circumcision in the flesh, wich circumcision is made by handes: Remēbre I saye, that ye were at that tyme w̄out Christ, and were reputed aliantes from the comen welth of Israel and were straungers from the *testamentes of promes, and had no hope, and were without God in thys worlde. But now in Christe Iesu/ ye which a while ago were farre of, are made nie by the bloud of Christ.

For he is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken downe the *wall, that was a stopps betweane vs, ād hath also put away thorow hys flesh *ẏ cause of hatred, that is to say ẏ lawe of commaundementes, contayned in the law written, for to make of twayne one newe man in hym selfe so makīg peace: and to reconcile both vnto god in one body, thorow his crosse, and slewe hatred there by: and came and preached peace to you which were a far of, to them that were nye. For thorow him, we both haue an open waye in/ in one spirite vnto the father.

Now therfore are ye no more straungers and forayners: but citezyns with ẏ housholde of God: and are buylte vpon the *foundacion of the Appostles and Prophetes. Jesus Christ being ẏ head corner stone, in whome, euery buildīg coupleth together, groweth vnto an holyke temple in the Lorde, in whom ye also are built together, and made an habitacyon for God in the spirite.

a* The promises of mercye in Christes blonde are made vs on that condition that we kepe the lawes loue one another as Christ loued vs.

b* The Gentyles tyll Christ came, were not vnder the couenaunt of mercy, but the Jewes onely.

c* Christes law that was the wall and cause of hate betwene the Jewes and gentyles, is taken away: In whose stede is Jesus come to loue one another as Christ loued vs.

d* The cause of hatred betwene the heathen and the Jewes. For by the lawe wold the Jewes be better then the heathen But now that they both haue one spirite thrw Christ without the lawe, ȳ hatred hath an end, and the one is euen as the other in Christ.

e* Foundacion is the word of God.

f* Temple in the epistles of the apostles signifieth the congregation of faithfull, holye and vertuous men. Sometymes it signifieth the hert of euery Christian, as in .ii. Cor. vi. d. & i Cor. iii. and. vi. d.

¶ He weyeth the cause of his preferment: despiseth ȳ he wold not to fayne because of hys trouble and prayeth god to make them stedfast in his spirite.

The .iii. Chapter.

For this cause I Paul am i the bonde of Jesus Christ for youre sakes which are heathen: If ye haue hearde of the mynystracion of the grace of god, which is geuen me to youwarde. For by reuelacio shewed he this misterye vnto me as I wrote aboue in fewe wordes, wher by when ye reade ye may know, myne vnderstanding in the mistery of Christ, wich mistery in times passed was opened vnto the sonnes of men, as it is now declared vnto hys holy apostles and prophetes by the spirite: that the Gētiles shoulde be inheritours also, and of the same bodye, and partakers of hys promes that is in Chryste, by the meanes of the gospell, wherof I am made a minister, by the gyfte of the grace of god, geuen vnto me thorowe ȳ workinge of hys power.

Vnto me the least of al saynctes, is this grace geuen, that I shuld preache among the Gentiles the vnsercheable ryches of Chryst, and to make all men see what the fellowshippe of the misterye is, which from the beginning of the worlde hath ben hid in God, whych made al thinges thorow Jesus Chryst, to the entent that now vnto the rulers and powers in heauen myght be knowen by the congregation, the many folde wysdom of god, according to the eternal purpose which he purposed in Chryst Jesu our Lorde, by whome we are bolde to drawe nyghe in ȳ trust which we haue by fayth on hī.

Wherfore I desire that ye fainte not because of my tribulations for your sakes: which is your prayse.

For this cause I bowe my knees vnto the father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is in earth: that he wolde graunt you according to the riches of his glory, that ye maye be strengthed with myght by his spirite in ȳ inner man that Christ maye dwell in youre hertes by faith/ ȳ ye beinge rooted and grounded in loue / myghe be able to comprehende with all saynctes, what is ȳ bredeth and length, depth and heith: and to know what is ȳ loue of Christ, which loue passeth knowledge that ye myghte be fulfylled with all maner of fulnes which commeth of God.

Vnto him that is able to do exceadinge abundantly, aboue al that we aske or thincke accordinge to the power that worcketh in vs her prayse in the congregacion by Jesus christ, thorow all generations from tyme to tyme. Amen.

The notes.

Where true fayth i Christ is, there is loue to ȳ nye boure. And fayth and loue maketh vs vnderstande al thynges. Fayth vnderstandeth the secretes of god, and the mercy that is geuen her in Christ. And loue knoweth her dutie to her neighboure, and ca[illegible] pyece all lawes and ordinaunces and knoweth how fare forth they are to be kepte, and when to be dispensed with.

¶ He exhorteth them vnto meknes, sofe suffering vnto loue and peace, euerye one to serue and edify another with the gifte that God hath geuen him, to beware of straunge doctrine, to lay a side the olde conuersacion of greyne lustes, and to walke in a newe life.

The .iiii. Chapter.

Therfore which am in bondes for the Lordes sake exhorte you, ȳ ye walke worthy of the vocation where with ye are called, in al hūblenes of mind, and meknes, at diligce suffering, forbearing one another thorowe loue, and that ye be diligent to kepe the vnitie of the spirete in the bond of peace being one body, & one spirite euē as ye are called in one hope of your callynge. Let there be but one Lorde, one faith/ one baptime: one God and father of al which is aboue al thorow al, and in you all.

Vnto euery one of vs is geuen grace, according to the measure of the gyfte of Christ. Wherfore he sayth: He is gone vp an hye and hath ledde captiuitie captiue, & hath geuen gyftes vnto men. That he ascended: what meaneth it, but that he also descended first into the lowest partyes of the erth? He that descended, is euen the same also that ascended vp, euen aboue al heaues, to fulfyll all thinges. And the very same made some Apostles, some Prophetes, some Euangelistes, some Shepherdes, & some Teachers: that the saynctes myght haue all thynges necessary to worcke and minister with all, to the edifying of the body of Christ, tyll we euery one (in ȳ vnitie of faith, and knowledge of ȳ sonne of God) growe vp vnto a parfayte man, after the measure of * age of the fulnes of Christ. That we hensforth be no more children, wauering and carryed with euerye wynde of doctrine, by the wyles of men and craftynes, wherby they laye awayte for vs to deceaue vs. But let vs folowe the trueth in loue, and in all thinges growe in him which is the head, that is to say Christ, in whome all the body is coupled and knyt to gether, in euery ioynt, wherwith on mynystreth to another (according to the operacyon as euerye parte hath his measure) & increaseth the body/ vnto the edifying of it selfe in loue.

This I saye therfore, and testifye in ȳ Lorde/ that ye hence forth walke not as other Gentiles walke, in vanytye of their mynde, blinded in their vnderstandinge, beynge straungers from the lyfe which is in God thorow the ignorancy that is in them, because of the blindnes of their hertes, which beynge past feling, haue geuen the selues vnto wantannes, to worcke all maner of vnclennes, euen with greedines. But ye haue not so learned Christ, yf so be ye haue hearde of him & are taught in him, euē as the truth is in Jesu. So then as concerning the conuersacion in tyme past, laye from you that olde man, which is corrupt thorow the deceauable lustes/ & and be ye renued in the spirete of your myndes, and put on that newe manne, which after the ymage of God is shapen in righteousnes and true holynes.

Wherefore put away lienge, and speake euery man truth vnto his neighboure, for as much as we are membres one of another. Be angrye but sinne not: let not the sonne go downe vppon your wrath, neither geue place vnto the back byter. Let him that stole, steale no more, but let him rather labour with his handes some good thinge, that he maye haue to geue vnto him that needeth.

Let no filthie communication proceade out of youre mouthes: but that which is good to edifie withal, when nede is: that it may haue fauour with ȳ hearers. And greue not the holye spirite of god, by whom ye are sealed vnto ȳ day of redempcio. Let al bitternes, scarsnes and wrath, roring and cursid speakyng be put away from you, with all malyciousnes. Be courteous one to another and mercyfull, forgeuing one another, euen as God for Christes sake forgaue you.

The notes.

* Wher fore the true mynysters of the congregatiō serue. Euen to make vs perfecte men i the ful knowlede of Christ.

a* Be angry, Christ was angry at the blyndnes of the Jewes. Mat. xxiii. And so was Moses at the idolatry of the Israelites: Exo. xxxii. and at the leprycyon of Chor, Dathan and Abiron, Nu. xvi. Nevertheles thys anger or wrath was but a vertuous zele, vnto the glo[illegible] of God, thou mayest se by Phineas, Nume. xxv. by Mathathias: Machabeo. ii. Is for malice or vnlawful wrath, yt is forbydden, as yt followeth here in thys Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth ȳe to beware of vnclennes, couetousnes, folysh talkynge & false doctryne: to be circumspecte, to anoyde dyssolutenesse, to reioyce & to be thankefull towarde god/ to submyt the selues one to another. He teacheth how women shuld obey their husbandes, & how to vprygly men ought to intreate theyr wyues.

The .v. Chapter.

Be ye folowers of god as deare children, and walke in loue euē as Christ loued vs, and gaue hym selfe for vs, an offeringe and a sacrifice of a swete sauer to God. So that fornicacion and all vnclennes or couetousnes be not once named amonge you as it be commeth saynctes: nether filthynes, nether folysshe talkynge, nether geyting, which are not cōly: but rather geuinge of thankes.

For this ye knowe that no vnhoremonger, ether vncleane person, or coueteous person, which is the worshiper of images, hath eny inheritaunce in the kingdome of Christ and of God. Let no man deceaue you with vayne wordes.

For therow such thynges commeth the wrath of God vpon the chyldren of vnbeleefe. Be not therfore companyons wyth them. Ye were once derckenes, but are now lyght in the Lorde.

As a like as chyldren of lyght. For ¶ frute of ¶ spyrete is in all goodnes, ¶ righteusnes & trueth. ✠ Accept that which is pleasynge to the Lorde: and haue no felloshipe wyth the vnfrutful workes of darcknes: but rather rebuke the.

Ignorafficis cauth of cuel lyuynge.

For it is shame euen to name those thinges which are doune of them in secrete: but all thinges, when they are rebuked of the light, are manifest. For what soeuer is manifest, that same is light. wherfore he sayeth: awake thou that slepest, & stonde vp from death, and Christ shall geue the lyght.

✠ Take hede therfore that ye walke circumspectly, not as fooles: but as wyse redeming ¶ tyme: for the dayes are euil.

Wherfore, be ye not vnwyse, but vnderstand what the will of the Lorde is, & be not dronke wt wine wherin is excesse: but be fulfylled wyth the spyrete, speakinge vnto your selues in psalmes and hymnes, and spyritual songes, singinge and makinge melodie to the Lorde in your hertes, gyuyng thankes alwayes for all thynges vnto God the father, in the name of oure Lorde Jesus Christ: submittyng youre selues one to another in the feare of God. ✠

Wemen submyt your selues vnto your awne husbandes, as vnto ¶ Lorde. For the husband is the wyues head euē as Christ is the head of the congregacion, and the same is the saueoure of ¶ body. & herfore as the congregacion is in subiect on to Christ, likewyse let the wyues be in subiection to their husbandes in all thinges. Husbādes loue youre wiues, euen as CHRYSTE loued the congregacion, and gaue him selfe for it, to sanctify it, and clensed it i the fountain of water therow the word to make it vnto him self, a glorious congregacion wtout spott or wrinckle or any such thinge: but ¶ it shoulde be holy and without blame.

So ought men to loue their wyues, as their awne bodyes. He ¶ loueth hys wyfe, loueth him selfe. For no man euer yet hated his awne flesshe: but norisheth & cherisheth it, euen as the Lorde doth ¶ congregacō. For we are members of his body, of hys flesshe, & of his bones. For thys cause shall a man leaue father & mother, and shal continue with his wyfe/ & two shalbe made one flesh. This is a great secrete, but I speake betweane Christ and the congregacō. Neuertheless do ye so that euery one of you loue his wife truely euē as him selfe. And let the wife se that she feare her husbande.

How chylderen shoulde behaue them selues toward their fathers & mothers. Likewise fathers towarde their Children, Seruauntes toward their masters agayne maisters toward ther seruantes, an exhortacyon to the spirytual batell and what wepons Christen men shoulde fight wythall.

¶ The .vi. Chapter.

Children obey youre fathers and mothers in the Lorde: for so is it ryght. Honoure thy father and mother, that is the fyrst commaundemēt, that hath eny promes, that thou mayst be in good estate, and lyue longe on the erthe. And ye fathers moue not youre chyldren to wrath/ but bryngе them vp with the nurture and informacion of the Lorde. Seruauntes be obedient vnto youre carnall maisters, with feare & trēbling in sigilnes of your hertes, as vnto Christ: not with seruice in eye syghte, as men pleasers: but as the seruauntes of Christ, doynge the wyll of God from the herte with good wil, seruing ¶ Lorde, and not men. And remember ¶ what soeuer good thinge eny man doeth ¶ shall he receaue agayne of the Lorde, whether he be bond or fre. And ye maysters, do euen the same thynges vnto them puttynge awaye threateninges: and remember that euen youre mayster also is in heauen, nether is ther eny respecte of person with hym.

✠ Finally my brethren/ be stronge in ¶ Lord & in ¶ power of hys myght. Put on the armoure of God, ¶ ye may stande stedfast agaynst the crafty assautes of the deuel.

For we wrestle not againste flesshe and blonde: but against rule, against power, and agaynste worldely rulers, of the derckenes of this worlde agaynst spirytuall wickednes, for heauenly thinges.

For thys cause take vnto you ¶ *armoure of God, that ye maye be able to resyst in the euyll daye, and stande perfecte in al thinges.

Stande therfore, and your loynes girde aboute with veritie, hauing on ¶ brest plate of righteousnes/ and shod wyth shoes prepared by the gospel of peace. Aboue al take to you the sheld of faith, wherwith ye may quenche al ¶ fyrye dartes of the wicked. And take the helmet of saluacyon, and the swerde of the spyrete, which is the worde of god. ✠ And pray al wayes with al maner prayer and supplicacion: and that in ¶ spyrete: and watch ther vnto with all instance & supplicacion for al sainctes and for me, that vtteraūce may be geuen vnto me/ that I maye open my mouth boldly, to vtter the secretes of the gospell, wherof I am messenger in bondes, that therin I may speake freely, as it becōmeth me to speake.

But that ye maye also know what condicyon I am in and what I do, Tychicus my deare brother & faithfull mynister in the Lorde, shall shewe you of al thinges, whome I sent vnto you for the same purpose, that ye might knowe what casse I stande in, and ¶ he might comfort your hertes. Peace be with the brethren and loue with faith, from God the father and from the Lord Jesu Christ. Grace be with all thē which loue our Lorde Jesus Christ in purenes. Amen.

¶ Sent from Rome vnto ¶ Ephesyans by Tichicus.

¶ The Epistle of Sainct Paule the Apostle vnto the Philippians.

He exhorteth them to encrease in loue, in knowledge, and experience of godly thinges maketh mention of his presonment at Rome, is glad to here Christ preched, is content ether to dye or lyue, and prayeth the to leade a godly conuersacyon, to be of one mynde, and to feare no persecution.

a* Grace be with you and peace from God our father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

I thancke my God wyth al remembraunce of you alwayes in all my prayers for you, and praye with gladnes, because of the fellowshyp whiche ye haue in the gospel from the fyrst day vnto now: and am surelye certifyed of this, that hee whiche beganne a good worcke in you/ shall go forthe with it, vntyl the daye of Jesus Christ, as it becommeth me so to iudge of you all, because I haue you in my hert and haue you also euery one cōpanions of grace with me, euē in my bōdes, as I defend and stablysh the gospel

For God beareth mee recorde how greatly I longe after you, all from the very hert rote in Jesus Christ, and this I praye that youre loue maye encrease more and more in knowledge, and in al fealing, that ye myght accepte thinges moost excellente, that ye myght be pure/ and such as should hurte no mans cōscience, vntyll the day of Christe, fylled with the frutes of ryghtuousnes, which frutes come by Jesus Christe vnto the glory and laude of god. ✠

cion and that of god. For vnto you it is geuen that not only ye should beleue on Christ: but also* suffer for his sake, ād
haue euen the same fight, which ye sawe
me haue and now heare of me.

Perswasion is a token of saluacyon, to the true beleuers

Therefore if there be any consolacion in Christ, if there be any comfortable
loue, if there be any felow-shyp of the spirite, if ther be any compassion of mercy: fulfyl myne ioye, that ye drawe one waye hauing one loue being of one accord, and of one min-de, that nothinge be done thorow strife or vayne glory, but that in mekenes of mynde, euery man esteame other better

mynde be in you/that was in Christ Je su: which beinge in the shape of God, ād

Wherfore my dearely beloued, as ye haue alwayes obeyed not when I was present onelye, but nowe muche more in myne absence, euen so worke out youre

Yea ād though I be offered vp vppon that as a sonne with the father, so with me hath he bestowed he his labour vppon the gospell. Him I hope to sende assone as I know how it wil go with me. I trust in þ Lord/ þ I also my selfe shal come shortly. I supposed it necessary to send brother Epaphroditus vnto you, my companion in labour and felow soudier/youre Apostle and mynyster at my ne-des. For he longed after you, and was ful of heuines, because that ye had herd say that he should be sicke. And no doute

he was sicke, and that nye vnto death.
But god had mercye on him: not on hi
only, but on me also lest I shulde haue sorow vpon sorowe. I sēt him therfore the diligentlyer, that when ye shoulde se him ye might reioyce againe, & I might be lesse sorowful. Receaue him therfor in the lord wt al gladnes, & make moch of such: because that for þ work of christ he wēt so far, þ he was nye vnto death, & re garded not his life to fulfil þ seruice whi-

C The iii. Chapter.

MOreouer, my brethren reioyce in the Lorde. It greueth me not to writte one thing ofte to you. For to you it is a sure thing. Beware of dog ges, beware of cuyl workes. Beware of dissencion. For we are circūcision which * worship God in the spirete, and reio-yce in Christ Iesu and haue no confide-ce in the flesche: though I haue wher-of I myght reioyce in the flesche. If eny other man thinketh that he hath wher of he might trust i þ flesh: mooch more I circūcised þ eight day of þ kinred of Israel,
of the tribe of Beniami, an hebrue borne of the hebrues: as concerninge þ la-we, a Pharisaye, and as concerninge fer-uentnes, I persecuted the congregatiō, and as touching the righteweshes whi-
che is in the law, I was vnrebukeable.

But the thinges that were vauntage vnto me, I counted losse for Christes sake. Yee I thinke al thinges but losse for þ excellent knowledges sake of Christe Iesu my Lorde. For whom I haue cōunted al thinges losse, & do iudge the but dounge, that I might winne Christ, & might be founde in him, not hauinge mine awne ryghtewesnes which is of þ la

th which is in Christ. I meane the rightewesnes which cōmeth of God thorow
fayth in knowinge him and the vertue of the resurrection, and the fellowship of his passions that I myght be cōformа-ble vnto his (death) yf by eny meanes I myght attayne vnto the resurrection of þ dead. Not as though I had al redy atay ned to it, ether were all redy perfect: but I folowe, yf that I maye cōprehende þ wherin I am cōprehended of Christ Je su. Brethren I counte not my selfe that I haue gotten it: but one thinge I saye
I * forget that which is behind & stret-

and preace vnto that marke apoynted/

ge of God in Christ Iesu. Let vs ther-C fore as many as be perfect, be thus wise
mynded: & yf ye be other wyse mynded,
I praye God open euen this vnto you:
Neuertheles se in that wher vnto we are cōe, let vs procede by one rule, þ we maye be of one accord. * Brethren be folowers of me, & loke on them which walke
euen so, as ye haue vs for an ensample.
For many walke (of whō I haue tolde you often and now tell you weping) þ
they are þ enemies of þ crosse of Christ,
whose ende is dampnacion whose god is their bely, ād whose glory is to their shame, which are worldy mynded.

But our conuersation is in heaue/ frō
If we be lyke Christ in conuersatiō we shall be lyke hī in glorye.
whence we loke for a sauioure, euen the Lord Jesus Christ, which shall chaunge oure vyle bodies, that they maye bee fassioned lyke vnto his glorious body, according to the worcking, whereby he is able, to subdue all thinges vnto hym selfe. ☞

*We worshippe god in spyrite thorowe fayth and loue, we reioyce that Christ hath redemed vs & trust not in our workes. Christ only is our ryghteousnes & for hys sake our synnes are forgeuen: And for hys sake oure good workes are acceptable which els we are damnable for ỹ synne that is in them.

¶ He saluteth certayne of them, exhorteth them to be of honest conuersation, & thanketh thē because of ỹ prouision, ỹ they made for hī being in prison.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

Therfore my bretheren deare lye beloued and longed for, my ioye ād croune, so continue in the Lord ye beloued.

I praye Euodias and beseche Synticches, that they be of one accorde in the Lorde. Yea and I beseche the faythfull yoke felow, helpe the women which laboured with me in the gospell/ and with Clement also, and with other my labour felowes, whose names are in the boke of lyfe. ✣Reioyce in the Lorde alwaye, and agayne I saye reioyce. Let your softenes be knowen vnto all men. The Lorde is euen at hande. Bee not careful: but in al thiges shewe your petitiō vnto god in prayer and supplication, with geuinge of thanckes. And the peace of God whiche passeth all vnderstandinge, kepe your hertes and mindes in Christ Jesu. ☞

Furthermore bretheren, what soeuer thynges are true, whatsoeuer thynges are honest, what soeuer thiges are iust, what soeuer thinges are pure, whatsoeuer thinges pertayne to loue, what soeuer thinges are of honest reporte: if there be any vertuous thinge: or there be any laudable thig, these same haue ye in youre mynd, which ye haue both lerned and receaued, herd and also sene in me: those thinges do, and the god of peace shal be with you. I reioyce in the Lord greatly that now at the laste ye are reuiued agayn to care for me, in that wherin ye were also careful, but ye lacked opportunite. I speake not because of necessitye. For I haue lerned in what soeuer estate I am, therewith to be contente.

I can both cast downe my selfe, I cā also exceade. Euery where and in al thinges I am instructed, both to be ful and to be hongrye, to haue plentye and to suffer nede. I can do al thiges thorowe the helpe of Christ which strengtheneth me: Not withstandinge ye haue well done, that ye bare parte with me in my tribulacion.

Ye of Philippos knowe that in ỹ beginning of the Gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no cōgregacion bare parte wt me as concerning geuing & receauing, but ye onely. For when I was in Thessalonia ye sent once ād after warde againe vnto my nedes: not ỹ I desire gifres: but I desire abundaūce frute on youre parte. I receaued all, & haue plentie. I was euē filled after ỹ I had receaued of Epaphroditus, that which came frō you, an*odour ỹ smelleth swete, a*sacrifice accepted and pleasaunte to god. My god fulfill al youre nedes thorow his glorious riches i Jesu Christ. Vnto god and oure father be prayse for euermore. Amen. Salute all the sainctes in Christe Jesu. The bretheren which are with me, grete you. All ỹ saintes salute you: ād most of al they which are of the emperours houshold.

The grace of our Lord Jesu Christe be with you al. Amen.

The Epistle of

Saincte Paul the Apostle to the Collossians.

¶ He geueth thankes vnto god for theyr faith, loue & hope, prayeth for their increase, & sheweth how we are ỹ kyngdome of God, optayned by Christ, whiche is the heade of the congregacyon.

The fyrst Chapter.

Paule an Apostle of Jesu Christe by the will of God, and brother Timotheus.

To ỹ sainctes which are at Colossa, and bretheren ỹ beleue in Christ.

Grace be wyth you and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

We geue thākes to God ỹ father of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, alwaies prayeng for you sence we herde of your*faith whych ye haue in Christ Jesu, and of ỹ loue whych ye beare to all saynctes for the hopes sake which is layd vp in store for you in heuen, of which hope ye haue herde before by the true worde of the Gospell, which is come vnto you euen as it is into all the worlde, and is frutefull, as it is amonge you, from the fyrst daye in the which ye herd of it, & had experience in the grace of God i the truth, as ye learned of Epaphra oure deare felowe seruaunt, which is for you a faithful minister of christ which also declared vnto vs youre loue which ye haue i the spyrete.

✣For this cause we also, sence the daye we herde of it, haue not ceasyd prayinge for you, & desyringe ỹ ye myght be fulfilled with the knowledge of his will, i all wisdome and spyretuall vnderstandyng, that ye might walke worthy of ỹ Lorde in all thynges that please beynge frutefull in all good workes and encreasynge i the knowledg of God, strengthed wyth all myghte, thorowe hys glorious power vnto all pacience and longe suffering with ioifulnes ✣ geuinge thankes vnto the father which hath made vs mete to bee partakers of the inheryptaunce of saynctes in light.

Which hath deliuered vs from the power of derknes, & hath trāslated vs into the kyngdomme of hys dere sonne, in whom we haue redemption thorowe hys bloud, ỹ is to say/ the forgeuenes of synnes wheych is the ymage of the inuisyble God, fyrst begotten of all creatures. For by him were all thynges created, thinges that are in heauen, and thinges that are in erth: thinges visyble and thinges inuisyble, whether they be mate, dye or lord hip, ether rule or power. All thinges are creatyd by him, and in hym and he is before all thynges, and in him all thinges haue their beynge.

And he is the head of the body, that is to wit of the congregacio: he is ỹ beginnyng and fyrste begotten of the deade, that in all thinges he myght haue ỹ preeminence. For it pleased the father ỹ in him shuld all fulnes dwel, & by him to reconcile all thinge vnto hym selfe, and to set at peace by him thorow the bloud of his crosse, both thinges in heauen ād thinges in earth.

And you (which were in times paste straungers and enemies, because your myndes were set in euel workes) hath he now reconsiled i the body of his flesh thorow death, to make you holy, vnblamable ād wout fault in his owne sight, if ye continue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moued away frō the hope of the gospel/ wher of ye haue herd how ỹ it is preached amōg all creatures which are vnder heauen wher of I Paul am made a minister.

Now ioye I in my*sufferinges wht che I suffer for you, and fulfill ỹ which is behinde of the passions of Christe in my flesh for his bodies sake which is ỹ congregacion wher of I am made a minister accordynge to the ordinaunce of God which ordinaunce was geuen me vnto you warde, to fulfill the worde of god that mistery hid sence the worlde beganne, and sence the beginninge of generatiōs: but now is opened to his saintes/ to whome God wolde make known the glorious riches of this mistery amonge the Gentiles, which riches is Christ in you, the hope of glory, whome we preache, warninge al men/ and teachinge all men in all wisdome, to make all men parfect in Christe Jesu. Wherin I also laboure and stryue, euen as farforth as his worckynge worketh in me mightely.

The Notes.

*Passions or sufferinges of Christ is the passions which we must suffer for his sake. For we haue professed and are appoynted to suffer with Christe. John.xv. As my father sent me, so sende I you. A true Apostle wolde haue al men perfecte ỹ knowledge of Christ and of his doctryne.

¶ What greate care Saul tooke for al congregations. Herby he teacheth the to be stedfast in Christ, to beware of false teachers & worldly wisdom, & describeth ỹ false Prophetes.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

Wold ye knew what fightinge I haue for youre sakes and for them of Laodicia, and for as many as haue not sene my person in ỹ flesshe, that their hertes myght be comforted and knit to gether in loue, and in al ryches of full vnderstandinge, for to know

knowe the mystery of God the father & of Christ, in whom are hyd al the treasures of wysdome & knowledge. This I saye lest eny man shuld begile you with entysige wordes. * For though I be absent in the flesshe, yet am I present wyth
1.Corin.v.b you in the spirite, ioyinge and beholdynge that order that yee keape/and youre stedfast fayth in Christ. As ye haue therfore receaued Christ Jesu the Lord, euen so walke, rooted and buylt in him & stedfaste in the fayth, as ye haue learned: & therin be plentyous in geuynge thankes.
* Beware lest eny man come and spoyle you thorow philophy & disceatful vanitie, thorow ỹ traditions of men, & ordinaunces after the worlde/and not after Christ. For a * in him dwelleth all ỹ fulnes of that godhed bodily, & ye are cõplete in him wyche is the head of al rule and power, in whõ also are circumcised wyth circũcision made wyth out hãdes, by puttynge of the synfull bodye of the flesshe thorow the circumcision that is in Christ, i that ye are buryed with him thorow baptime, in whom ye are also ryssen agayne thorow fayth, that is wrought by the operacion of God which rayssed him from death.

And ye which were dead in synne thorowe ỹ uncircumcision of youre flesshe, hath he quyckened wyth hym and hath forgeuen vs al our trespaces, & hath putte oute the b * hand wrytynge ỹ was agaynst vs, contayned in the lawe written: and ỹ hath he take out of the way & hath fastned it to his crosse, & hath spoyled rule & power, and hath made a shewe of them openly/ & hath triumphed ouer thẽ in his awne person.

Let no man therfore trouble youre consciences aboute meate and drincke, or for a pece of an holy day/as the holy daye of the newe mone, or of the Sabboth dayes, which are nothig but shadowes of thinges to come: but c * ỹ body is in Christ. Let no man make you chote at a wronge marke which after is awne imagiacion walketh in the humblenes and holynes of angeles, things which he neuer saw: causeleese puft vp with his fleshly mynde/ & holdeth not ỹ heed, where of al the body by ioyntes & couples receaueth norisshmente and is knyt to gether, and encreseth wyth the increasyng that commeth of God.

Wherfore yf ye be dead wyth Christ from ordinaunces of the worlde, why as though ye yet liued in the worlde, are ye ledde with traditions of them that saye Touche not/tast not, handel not, which al perishe wyth the vsynge of them, and are after the commaundmentes and doctrynes of men: which thynges haue the symylytude of wysdom i chosen holynes & humblenes, & in ỹ they spare not ỹ body, and do ỹ flesshe no worshyp vnto hys nede.

The notes.

a * In hym dwelleth all the fulnes of the godheade bodely, that is, bereft and in deade, not in shadowes: so that when ye haue hym ye ought not to folowe the shadowe of Moyses lawe, or ths ceremonies and iudgemynges of mannes wisdome. The trueth is now euidently. Let vs forsake all your sences, ye maye not now beholde fygures and doubtful prompyses.

b * The lawe is our handwrytinge in that the conscience setteth to her seale subscribeth & consenteth that the lawe is iust, and we synners, which lawe cõcerning dampnation is taken away thorow fayth in Christ.

c * The body is in Christ, that is, the truth and very performaunce is in Christ, whom the shadowes did prefygure.

He putteth them in remembraunce of the spirituall resurrection, to laye aside all maner of corrupte lyuing, to be ryghtefull in al godlynesse and vertu, and sheweth all degrees their dutye

¶ The.iii. Chapter. ✣

f ye be then ryssen agayne wyth Christ seke those thiges which are aboue, where Christ sytteth on the ryght hande of God. Set youre affeccion on thinges that are aboue, & not on thiges which are on the earth. For ye are dead, and youre lyfe is hyd wyth Christ in God. When Christ wyche is oure lyfe, shall shewe him selfe/then shall ye also appere with him in glory. ✣

These wordes must be diligẽtly marked.

Mortify therfore your membres which are on the earth, fornicacion, vnclennes, vnnaturall lust, euill concupiscence, and coueteousnes which is worshyppinge of ydoles: for which thinges sakes ỹ wrath of God cometh on the childzen of vnbeleefe. In wyche thinges ye walked once, when ye lyued in them.

But now put ye also awaye frõ you al thinges: wrath, fearsnes, maliciousnes, cursed spaking/filthy speaking out of youre mouthes.

✣ Now therfore as electe of God, holy
¶ and beloued, put on tender mercy/kyndnes, humblenes of myndes, meknes, lõge suffringe, forbearinge one another, and forgeuynge one another, yf any mã haue a quarel to a nother: euẽ as Christ forgaue you/ euen so do ye. Aboue all these thinges put on loue, which is ỹ bonde of perfectnes. And the peace of God rule in youre hertes, to the which peace ye are called in one body. And se that ye be thankfull. Let the worde of Christ dwel i you plenteously in al wysdome. Teache and exhorte youre awne selues, in Psalmes, and hymnes, ãd spirytuall songes which haue fauour with theym, synginge in youre hertes to the lord. And al thinges (what soeuer ye do in worde or dede) do in the name of the Lorde Jesu geuing thankes to God ỹ father by him. ✣

* Wyues submyt youre awne selues vnto your awne husbandes, as it is Eph.v.d comly in the Lord. Husbandes loue your wyues and be not bytter vnto them.

Chyldren obeye youre fathers and mothers in al thinges, for that is wel pleasyng vnto the Lorde. Fathers rate not your chyldzen/lest they be of a desperate myndе. * Seruauntes be obedyent vnto youre bodyly masters in all thinges: not wyth eye seruyce as men pleasers, but i synglenes of hert, fearing god And whatsoeuer ye do, do it hertely, as though ye dyd it to the Lord, and not vnto men: for as moche as ye knowe that of ỹ Lorde ye shall receaue the rewarde of inheritaunce, for ye serue the Lorde Christ. But he that doth wronge shal receaue for the wrong that he hath done: for ther is no respect of persons with God. Ye masters do vnto your seruauntes that which is iust and equal, seinge ye knowe that ye also haue a master in heauen.

He exhorteth them to be feruent in prayer, to walke wisely vnto them that are not yet come to the true knowledg of Christ, and saluteth them.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter

of Saincte Paul the Apostle to the Thessalonians.

¶ The.i. Chapter.

¶ He thanketh God for them, that they are so stedfaste in faith & good workes, & receaue the gospell wt such earnestnes.

PAul, Syluanus and Timotheus. Unto the congregacion of the Thessalonians, in God the father/and in ỹ Lorde Jesus Christ.

Grace be with you and peace from God oure father / and from the Lorde Jesus Christ.

We geue God thankes al way for you all, makyng mencio of you in our praiers with oute cealynge, and call to remembrauce your worke in the fayth, & labour in loue and perseuerauce in the hope of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, in the sight of god our father, because we know bzethren beloued of God howe that ye are electe. For oure Gospell came not vnto you in worde only, but also in power, and also in the holy goost and in moche certaynetye, as ye knowe after, what maner we behaued oure selues amõge you, for your sakes. And ye became folowers of vs and of the Lorde, & receaued the word in moch affliccio, with ioye of the holy goost: so ỹ ye were an ensample to all that beleue in Macedonia ād Achaia. For from you sounded out the worde of the Lorde/not in Macedonia and in Achaia only: but youre faith also which ye haue vnto God, spred her selfe abroade in all quarters, so greatly that it nedeth not vs to speake eny thinge at all. For they them selues shewe of you what maner of entrynge in we had vnto you, & how ye tourned to God frõ images, for to serue the lyuing & true God/ and for to loke for his sonne from heauen, whom he raised from death: I meane Jesus which delyuereth vs from ỹ wrath to come,

¶ He putteth them in remembrauce of the godlye conuersacion that he led among them when he preached the gospel vnto them, thanketh god ỹ they receaue his worde so frutefully, & excuseth his absens.

¶ The.ii. Chapter

FOr ye your selues know bzethren of oure entrauce in vnto you, how that it was not in vayne: but euē after that we had suffered before and were shamfully entreated at Philippos (as ye well knowe) then were we bolde in oure God to speake vnto you the Gospell of God/wt moche stryuynge. Our exhortacyon was not to blynge you to errour, nor yet to vnclennes, neither was it wyth gyle: but as we were allowed of God, that the Gospel should be cõmytted vnto vs: euē so we speake, not as though we ētēded to please mē: but God, which seeth our hertes. Neither was our cõuersacio at eny time wt flatering wordes, as ye wel know nether in cloked couetousnes god is record: nether soght we prayse of mē, nether of you, nor yet of eny other when we myghte haue bene chargeable as the Appostles of Christe, but we were tender amonge you, euen as a norsse cherissheth her childeren, so was our affeccyon toward you: our good will was to haue dealte vnto you, not ỹ Gospell of God only: but also oure awne soules, because ye were deare vnto vs.

✣ Ye remember bzethren oure laboure, & trauayle: ✣ For we labored day & nyght because we wolde not be greuous vnto eny of you, and preached vnto you the Gospell of God. Ye are witnesses, & so is God, how holy and iustly & vnblameably we behaued our selues amonge you that beleue: as ye knowe howe ỹ we exhorted and comforted and besought euery one of you, as a father his childre ỹ ye would walke worthi of God, wyych hath caled you vnto hys kingdō & glory

For this cause thanke we God without ceasyng, because that when ye receaued of vs the worde wherwyth God was preached, ye receaued it not as the worde of man: but euen as it was in dede, the worde of God, wyych worketh in you that beleue. ✣ For ye bzethren became folowers of ỹ cõgregacions of God which in Jewry are in Christ Jesu: for ye haue suffered lyke thinges of youre kinsmen, as we oure selues haue suffered of the Jewes. Which as they killed the Lorde Jesus and their awne Prophetes, euē so haue they persecuted vs and

and are cõtrary to all men and forbyd vs to preach vnto ỹ Gentyles, ỹ they might be saued, to fulfill their synnes al waye. For the wrath of God is come on them, euen to the vtmost.

For as muche bzethren as we are kepte from you for a season, as concerning the bodely presence, but not in the herte, we enforced ỹ more to se you personally with great desire. And therfore we wolde haue come vnto you, I Paul once and againe: but Satan withstode vs: for what is our hope or ioye, or crowne of reioysinge? are not ye it in ỹ presence of oure Lord Jesus Christ at his commynge? yes ye are oure glorye and ioye.

¶ He sheweth how greatly he was reioyced whē Tymothe toulde him of their fayth & loue.

The.iii. Chapter.

WHerfore sence we could no lenger forbeare / it pleased vs to remain at Athens alone, & sēt Timotheus our bzother ād minister of god, and our laboure felow in the gospell of Christ, to stablisshe you and to comforte you ouer youre faith, that no man should be moued in these afflictyōs. For ye youre selues know that we are euen appointed there vnto. For verely when I was with you, I tolde you before ỹ we shuld suffer tribulacion, euen as it came to passe, and as ye know. For this cause when I could no lenger forbeare, I sēt that I might haue knowledge of your fayth/lest happly the tempter had tempted you, and that oure laboure had bene bestowed in vayne.

But nowe lately when Timotheus came from you vnto vs, and declared vnto vs youre faith and your loue and howe that ye haue good remembrauce of vs all ways/desiring to se vs as we desire to se you. Therfore bzethren we had cõsolacion in you, in all oure aduersite & necessite, thorow your faith. For now are we aliue, if ye stande stedfast in the Lorde. For what thankes can we recõpence to god againe for you, ouer all ỹ ioye that we ioye for your sakes before oure God: while we, nighe & daye praie exceadingly that we myghte se you presently, and myght fulfyl that which is lacking in your fayth

God hym selfe oure father, and oure Lorde Jesus Christ gyde oute journeye vnto you: and the Lorde encrease you & make you flow ouer in loue, one toward an other, and towarde all men, euen as we do toward you, to make your hertes stable and vnblameable, in holynes before God our father, at the comming of oure Lorde Jesus Chryst wyth all hys saincte.

¶ He exhorteth the to stedfastnes, to kepe them selues frõ sinn. & vnclenly cõuersation, to loue one ano'her, rebuketh rydelnes, & speaketh of the resurrection.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter. ✣

FUrthermore we beseech you bzetheren, and exhorte you in the Lorde Jesus/that ye increase more and more, euen as ye haue receaued of vs, euen as ye oughte to walke and to please god. Ye remembre what commãdementes we gaue you in our Lorde Jesu Chryste. For this is the wyll of God, euen that ye shoulde be holy, and that ye should absteyne/from fornicacion, that euerye one of you shoulde knowe howe to kepe hys vessel in holynes & honour, and not in the lust of concupiscence, as do the heathen, whiche knowe not God, that no man go to farre and defraude hys bzother in bargapning: because the Lorde is auenger of all suche thinges, as we told you before tyme and testified. For god hath not called vs vnto vncleanes: but vnto holynes. He therfore that despyseth, despiseth not man, but god which hath sent his holy spirite amonge you. ✣

✣ But as touchinge bzotherly loue ye nede not that I write vnto you. ✣ For ye are taught of god to loue one another. Yea and that thinge verely ye do vnto all the bzetheren which are thorow out al Macedonia. We beseche you bzetheren that ye encrease more and more, & ỹ ye studie to be quiet, and to medle with youre owne busynes, and ✣ to worke wt youre owne handes, as we commanded you: that ye may behaue your selues honestlye toward them that are wythout, and ỹ nothinge be lackinge vnto you. ✣

haue no hope. For yf we beleue that Jesus dyed, and rose agayne: euen so them also which slepe by Jesus/ will god bringe agayne wyth him. And thys saye we vnto you in the worde of the Lorde, that we which lyue & are remaynynge in the commynge of the Lorde, shal not come yer they which slepe. For the Lord him self shal descend from heauen with a showte and the voyce of the Archaungell and trompe of God. And the dead in Christ shal aryse fyrst: then shal we which lyue and remayne, be caughte vp wyth them also in the cloudes, to mete the Lorde in the ayer. And so shall we euer be wyth the Lorde. Wherfore cõfort youre selues one another with these wordes.

The enformeth them of the daye of dome and commynge of the Lorde, exhorteth them to watch, & to regarde soch as preach Gods worde amonge them

The.v. Chapter.

A Of the tymes & seasons brethren ye haue no nede that I wryte vnto you: * for ye youre selues know perfectly, that ỳ daye of ỳ lord shal come, euen as a theffe in ỳ night. When they shall saye peace and no daunger/ then commeth on them soden destruccyon, as ỳ trauaylynge of a woman wyth chylde, and they shall not scape. But ye brethrẽ are not in darckenes, that ỳ daye shoulde come on you as it were a theffe. * Ye are all the chyldren of lyght, and ỳ chyldren of ỳ daye. We are not of the nyght nether of darckenes.

1. Pet. iii. Apo. iii & xvi.

Therfore let vs not slepe as do other: but let vs watche & be sober. For they that slepe slepe in the nyght: and they ỳ be dronken, are dronken in the nyght.

But let vs which are of the daye, be sober, armed with ỳ brest plate of fayth and loue, and with hope of saluacion as an helmet. For God hath not apoynted vs vnto wrath: but to obtayne saluacion by the meanes of oure Lorde Jesu Christ which dyed for vs: that whether we wake or slepe, we shuld lyue together with him.

B Wherfore comforte youre selues together, and edifie one another, euen as ye do. & We beseche you brethrẽ, that ye know them which laboure amonge you & haue the ouerspyght of you in ỳ Lorde, and geue you exhortacion, that ye haue them the more in loue, for their workes sake, and be at peace wyth them.

& We desyre you brethren, warne them that are vnruly, comforte the feble mided, forbeare the weake, haue cõtinual patience toward all men, se that non recompence euel for euell vnto any man, but euer folow that wich is good, both amonge your selues and among al men. Reioyce euer. * Praye continually. In all thynges geue thanckes, For this is the will of God in Christ Jesu toward you.

Quenche not that b * spirite. Despyse not prophecieng. Examen all thinges, & kepe that which is good. Abstayne frõ al suspicious thynges. The very god of peace sanctifie you throughout. And I praye God, youre whole spirite, soule, & body/ be kepte fautelesse vnto the comminge of oure Lorde Jesus Christe. & Faythfull is he which called you: which wyll also do it. Brethren, praye for vs. Grete all the brethren, with an holy kysse. I charge you in the Lorde that this epistle be red vnto all the holy Brethren.

The grace of the Lorde Jesus Christ. be with you: Amen.

The notes

* Praye contynually. Lyke as he that is in prison, despyseth euer to be delyuered, whether he be eatyng, dyrnking or slepinge: and as he that is sicke, despyreth alway to be whole. Euen so doth euery Christen man praye continually ye euen whan hee semeth not to praye. For prayer consisteth not in moche babyng. Math. vi. but in syrrytes and verrte. The ii Epistle of Saynct Paul the Apostle to the Thessalonians.

He thanketh god for ther fayth & loue, and prayeth for the encrece of the same

The.i. Chapter.

PAul, Siluanus and Timo the vs.

1 Vnto the congregacion of the Thessalonians, whych are in God oure father, and in the Lorde Jesus Chryst.

Grace be wyth you and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jesus Chryst.

2 We are bounde to thancke God all wayes, for you brethren as it is meete, because that your fayth groweth exceadingly, and euery one of you swymmeth in loue towarde another betwene youre selues, so that we oure selues reioyce of you in the congregacions of God, ouer your patience and fayth in al yor persecutions & tribulacios ỳ ye suffre, which is a token * of the rightuous iudgment of God, that ye are counted worthy of ỳ kingdom of God, for which ye also suffre. It is verely a rightuous thinge with god, to recompence trybulacion to them that trouble you: and to you whych are troubled, rest with vs whẽ the Lord Jesus shall shewe him selfe from heauen, wyth hys mighty Angeles, in flamming fyre, rendringe vengeaunce vnto them that know not God/ and to them that obey not vnto the gospell of our Lorde Jesus Chryste, whiche shalbe punished wyth euerlastinge dampnacion, from ỳ presence of the Lorde, and from the glorye of hys power/ when he shal come to be glorified in hys saynctes, & to be maruelous in all them that beleaue: because oure testimonye that we had to you/ was beleued euen the same daye ỳ we preached it. * Wherfore we praye all wayes for you: that our God make you worthy of the callynge, and fulfylle all delectacion of goodnes, and the worcke of fayth wyth power: that the name of our Lorde Jesus Christ maye be glorified in you/ & ye in him, throughe the grace of our God and of the Lorde Jesus Christ.

Ye shewyth them that the daye of the lord shal not come till the departinge from the fayth come fyrst, and therfore exhorteth thẽ not to be deceaued but to stand stedfast in ỳ thinges ỳ he hath taught them.

The.ii. Chapter.

WE beseech you brethrẽ by A ỳ commyng of oure Lorde Jesu Christ, and in that we shall assemble vnto him, that ye be not sodenlye moued from youre mynde and be not troubled nether by spyrete, nether by wordes/ nor yet by letter, which shuld seme to cõe frõ vs, as thoughe the daye of Cryste, were at hand. * Let no man deceaue you by eny meanes, for the Lorde commeth not, except ther come a departynge fyrst, & that a * that synfull man be opened, the sonne of perdicion which is an aduersarie/ & is exalted aboue al that is called God, or that is worshipped: so ỳ he shall b * syt as God in the temple of God, and shewe him selfe as God.

Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I tolde you these thinges? B And now ye know what withholdeth: reuelacion, that he might be vttered at his tyme. For the mystery of the iniquite doeth all ready worcke: tyll he which now onlye letteth, be taken out of the waye. And then shall that wicked be vttered, whom the Lord shall consume * with the spyrete of his mouth, and shal destroy it with the apperaunce of his commynge euen him whose comming is by the worckinge of Satan, with all b * lyinge power, sygnes and wonders, and in al deceauablenes of vnrighteousnes, amonge them that perisshe: because thei receaued not the * loue of the truth, that they myght haue bene saued. And therfore God shal sende them strounge delusion, that they shulde beleue lyes: that all they myght be damned which beleued not the truth but hadde pleasure in vnrighteousnes. But we are bounde to geue thankes alwaye to God for you brethren beloued of the Lord, for because that God hath from the begynnyng chosen you to saluacion, throughe sanctifyinge of the spyrete, and throughe beleuing the trueth, wher vnto he called you by oure Gospell, to obtayne the glorye ỳ commeth of oure Lorde Jesus Christe.

✠ Therfore brethren stande fast/ & kepe the ordinances which ye haue lerned: whether it were by our preachinge or by epistle. Our Lorde Jesus Christe him selfe, and God oure father whyche hath loued vs, & hath geuen vs euerlasting consolacyon and good hope thorowe grace, comforte youre hertes and stablysh you in all doctryne & good doinge. ✠

The notes.

The. iii. Chapter.

a FUrthermore brethren praie for vs, that ỹ worde of god maye haue free passage and be glorified, as it is wt you: and that we maye be delyuered from vnreasonable and euill men. For al men haue not fayth: but the lord is faythful, whiche shall stablisshe you, and kepe you from euyll. We haue confydence thorow the Lorde to you ward, that ye both do, and wyll do, ỹ which we commaunde you. And the Lorde gyde youre hertes to the loue of God & pacience of Christ.

b ✠ We requyre you brethren in the name of oure Lorde Jesu Chryste, that ye wyth drawe youre selues from euerye brother that walketh inordynatly, and not after the institucion whyche ye oughte to folowe vs.
Ye youre selues know how ye ought to folow vs. For we behaued not oure selues inordinatly amonge you.
Neyther toke we breade of anye man for nought: but wrought with labour and trauayle night and daye, because we wolde not be greuous to eny of you: ✠ not but that we had auctorityе, but to make our selues ā ensample vnto you, to folow vs. For when we were with you, this we warned you of, that if there were anye which woulde not worke, that the same shoulde not eate. c

We haue hearde saye (no doubt) that there are some which walke among you inordinatlye, and worcke not at all, but are busi bodies. Them that are such we commaund and exhorte by our lord Jesu Christe/ that they worcke with quietnes and eate theyr owne breade: ✠ Yetherin be not werye in well doinge. ✠ If anye man obeye not our sayinges, sende vs worde of hym by a letter: and haue no company wyth hym, that he maye be ashamed. And count hym not as an enemy: but warne hym as a brother.

The very Lorde of peace, geue you peace alwayes, by al meanes. The Lord be wyth you all. The salutacion of mee Paull, with myne owne hande. This is d the token in all the epistles: So I write. The grace of our Lorde Jesus Christe be wyth you all. Amen.

The fyrst Epistle of Sayncte Paul the Apostle vnto Tymothe.

The exhorteth Tymothy to wayte vpon hys office: namely, to see that nothing be taught but goddes worde. &c. He sheweth also wherfor the lawe is good, and telleth hys swete and glad tydynges, ỹ Christ Jesus, came into the world to saue synners.

The fyrst Chapter.

PAule an Appostle of Jesus Christ by the commaundement of God our sauioure, and Lorde Jesus Christe which is our hope. Jesus, Christ

Unto Timothe hys naturall sonne in the faith.

Grace/ mercy and peace from God oure father and Lord Jesus Christ our Lorde.

As I besoughte the to abyde styl in Ephesus when I departed into Macedonia, euen so do, that thou commaund soure that they teach no other wise: neyther geue hede to fables & genealogies which are endles, & bryde doutes more then godly edifienge which is by fayth: for the end of ỹ cōmaundemēt is loue ỹ commeth of a pure herte and a good cōscience, and of faith vnfayned: from the which thinges some haue erred/ & haue turned vnto vayne iangelynge because they wold be douctours i the scripture, and yet vnderstād not what they spea ke, nether wherof they affirme. Loue is the end of the co maundemēt and mark in scripture it.

✠ We knowe that the lawe is good, yf a man vse it lawfully, vnderstandig this, howe ỹ the lawe is not geuē vnto a righteous man, but vnto ỹ vnryghteous and disobedient to the vngodly and to sinners, to the vnholy & vncleane to murtherers of fathers & murtherers of mothers to manslears & whore mōgers: to them that defile them selues wt mankynde: to menstelers: to liers and to periured, and so forth if there be any other thinge that is contrary to holsom doctrine/ accordinge to the Gospel of the glorye of the blessed god, which gospel is committed vnto me. Iouin. lib. i. de iust. et iur. c.

And I thancke Christe Jesus oure Lorde which hath made me stronge: for he counted me true, and put me i office when before I was a blaspemer, and a persecuter, and a Tyraunt. But I optayned mercy, because I did it ignorantly thorow vnbelefe. Neuerthelater the grace of oure Lorde was moare aboūdaunt with faith and loue whiche is in Christ Jesu. ✠

✠ This is the true saiynge and by all meanes worthy to be receaued, that Christ Jesu came into the world to saue sinners/ of whome I am chefe. Not wt standynge for thys cause was mercy geuen vnto me, that Jesus Christ shuld shewe on me al long pacience, vnto the ensample of them which shall in time to come beleue one him vnto eternal life. So then vnto god kyng euerlastinge, inmortall, inuisible, and wyse only, be honoure and prayse for euer āden euer. Amen. The ground of the fayth. Paull is an ensample ỹ no dispeareth that can repente.

This commaundement commit I vnto ỹ sonne Timotheus, according to ỹ prophesies which in tyme past were prophisied of thee, that thou i them shuldest fyght a good fyght, hauyng fayth and good conscience which some haue put away from them, and as cōcernyng fayth haue made shypwracke. Of whose nombre is Himeneus & Alexander whych I haue delyuered vnto Satan that they might be taught not to blaspheme.

The exhorteth to praye for al men. He wil not haue women to be ouer costly araied nor to teache i the congregation/ but to be in sylence, and obeye their husbandes.

The. ii. Chapter.

EXhorte therfore, that aboue all thynges, prayers, supplicatiōs, intercessions & geuyng of thankes be had for all men: for kinges, and for all ỹ are in auctorite, that we may lyue a quyet and a peasable lyfe, in al Godlynes and honestie. For that is good and accepted in the syght of God oure saui our, whych* wyll haue all men saued, and come vnto the knowledg of the truth. For ther is one God, and one (mediator) betwene God and man, which is the man Christ Jesus, which gaue him selfe a raunsome for all men, that it shuld be testified at his time, where vnto I am ordayned a preacher and an Apostle: I tell the trueth in Christ and lye not being the teacher of gentyles i fayth & veritie. ✠ a b c d

I wyll therfor that the men praye euerye where, lyfting vp pure handes wyth oute wrath, or dowting. Likewyse also the wemen that they araye them selues i comlye apparell with shamfastnes and discrete behauour, not with broyded heare other golde, or pearles, or costly arayment: but with such as becommeth wemē that profesſe the worshippyng of God thorow good workes: ✠ Let the woman lerne i sylence with al subiection. I suffre not a woman to teache, nether to haue auctorite ouer the man: but for to be in silence. For Adā was fyrste formed, & then Eue. Also Adam was not deceaued, but the womā was deceaued, & was in transgression. 1. Cor. xiiii.

notwithstandynge thorowe bearynge of chyldren they shalbe saued/so they cõtynue in fayth,loue and holynes with discrecion.

¶ What maner a man a bysshoppe or ppest ought to be,& what condition his wyfe & chyldren shuld haue. The ppoperties also requyred in a deacon or mynister and in his wyfe.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

THis is a true saige: If a mã couet the a* office of a Bisshop he desireth a good worke. Yea & a Bysshope muste be fautelesse,the husbande of one wyfe,sober, discrete,honestly apparelled, harberous,apt to teache,not dronken, no fyghter,not geuen to fylthy lucre:but gentle, abhorrynge fyghtynges/ abhorrynge coueteousnes,and one that ruleth his awne house honestly,hauinge chyldren vnder obedience with al honestie. For yf a man cannot rule his awne house,how shal he care for the congregacion of God. He may not be b* a yonge scoler,lest he swel and fall into ỹ iudgemente of the cupll speaker. He must also be well reported of among them which are without forth,lest he fall into rebuke & snare of ỹ cupll speaker.

Lykewyse must Deacons be honest, not double tonged,not geuen vnto muche drinkyng,nether to fylthy lucre:but hauyng the misterye of the fayth in pure conscience. And let them fyrst be proued, and then let them minister,yf they be fonde fautlesse.

The wyues of the ppestes & Deacons

Euen so must their wyues be honest, not cupll speakers:but sober and faythfull in all thynges. Let the Deacons be the husbandes of one wife,& such as rule their chyldren well,and their awne housholds: For they that mynister well get them selues good degree and great bolde in the faith,which is in Christe Iesu.

These thynges write I vnto thee,trustinge to come shortly vnto thee:but ãd yf I tarie longe,that then thoumayest yet haue knowledge howe thou oughtest to be haue thi selfe in ỹ house of god/ which is the congregacion of the lyuenge GOD,the pyller and ground of trueth.

And without naye great is that misterye of godlynes:God was shewed in the flesh,was iustifyed in the* spirit,was seene of Aungels,was preached vnto the Gentyles was beleued on in earthe and receaued vp in glorye,

The notes.

a* Bysshoppe is as much to saye as a fearer,a ouerseer,or ouerseer,which when he espyeth to leade Christes flocke with the lode of healthe,ỹ is wyth hys holy worde,as the bysshoppes dyd in Paules time,espyeth a good worke,and the verye office of a bysshop. But he that desireth honour gapeth for lucre,thyrsteth greate rentes,seeth preeminence,pompe,pompously counteth about auoydeth of all thinges wythout wode,rest and hertes ease, Chapels,parkes,lordshippes:pardones, &c. despyseth not to worke,muche les a good worke and is nothinge lesse then a bysshop as saynt Paul here vnderstandeth a Bisshoppe.

¶ Here ypocrysye eft of the latter tymes rebuketh Timothy to the diligẽt readyng of ỹ holy scriptures.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter

THe spirite speaketh euidently, that in the latter tymes some shall departe from the fayth,& shall geue hede vnto spirites of errour,ãd deuelysh doctrine of them which speake false thorowe Ypocrysye,and a* haue their consciences marked with an hote iron,forbyddinge to mary,ãd commaũding to abstayne frõ meates which god hath created to be receaued wyth thankes geuinge,of them which beleue and knowe the trueth. For all the creatures of god are good,ãd nothing to be refused ,if it be receaued with thankesgeuinge. For it is sanctified by the worde of God and prayer. If thou shalt put ỹ brethren in remembraunce of these thinges,thou shalt be a good minister of Iesu Christ,which hast bene norished vp in the wordes of the faith ãd good doctrine which doctrine thou hast contynually followed. But cast away vngostly and olde wyues fables.

Exercyse thy selfe vnto godlynes, For bodyly exercise profyteth lytle: but godlynes is good vnto all thynges,as a thinge whiche hathe promyses of the lyfe that is now,and of the lyfe to come. This is a sure saieng,& of all partes worthi to be receaued. For therfor we labour & suffre rebuke,because wee beleue in the lyuinge God/ whiche is the Sauioure of all man,but specially of those that beleues

Tyll I come,geue attendaunce to reding/to exortacio and to doctryne. Despise not that gifte that is in thee,whiche was geuẽ thee thorow prophecy and wt the b* laienge on of the handes of an elder. These thinges exercise,ãd geue thy selfe vnto thẽ,that it maye be sene how thou profetest in all thinges. Take hede vnto thy selfe and vnto learnynge, and continue therin. For if thou shalte so do thou shalte saue thy selfe and them that heare the.

The notes.

a* Haue their consciences marked wt an hote iron. As theues and euel doers are marked in the handes or other places of the body, with hote irons to the intent that their naughtines may by that marke be openly knowen euer after:euen so are the cõsciẽces of false teachers marked,in ỹ they be wytnesses to thẽ selues,that for their belyes sakes and delyte of fylthy lucre, they hide the trueth & stablishe lyes.

¶ He teacheth how he shal behaue hym self in rebukynge al degrees. And of the order concernynge widdowes.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

REbuke not an elder: but exhorte him as a father,and ỹ yonger men as brethren, ỹ elder wemẽ as mothers, the yonger as sisters, with all purenes. Honoure widdowes, whyche are true widowes. If any widdowes haue children or nevues, let thẽ lerne first to rule their owne houses godly ãd to recompence their elders. For that is good and acceptable before god. She that is a very widow and frendles,putteth her trust in god,and contynueth in supplication and praier night and day. But she that liueth in pleasure/ is dead euen yet aliue. And these thinges commaunde,that they may be wt out faute. If ther be eny that prouideth not for his owne and namely for them of his houshold,the same denyeth the faith,ãd is worse then an infidel.

Let no widdow be chose vnder thre score yere olde,and such a one as was ỹ wyfe of one man,and wel reported of in good workes:if she haue norished children,if she haue bene liberal to straũgers, yf she haue washed the sayntes fete,yf she haue ministred vnto them which were in aduersitye,yf she were contynually geuẽ vnto all maner good workes/the yonger widowes refuse. For when they haue begonne to were wantonne to the dyshonoure of Christ,then wyl they mary,hauynge * damnacyon,because they haue broken their first fayth. And also they learne to goo from house to house ydlye:yee not ydle only,but also tryflyng & besy bodyes,speakyng thynges which are not conuenyent.

What ouer be vsed amongest vs yf god be the ree by dishono red it ought to be broken

I will therfore that the yonger wemen mary and bere chyldren,and gyde the house,and geue none occasyon to the aduersari to speake cupll. For many of them are all redy turned backe,and are gone after Satan. And yf eny man or woman that beleueth haue widdowes, let them minister vnto them,and let not the congregacion be charged:ỹ ye maye haue sufficient for them that are widowes in deade.

The elders that rule well are worthy of doble honor,most specialy they which labour in the worde and teachyng. For the scripture sayth:thou shalt not mouscle the mouthe of the ore that treadeth out the corne. And the labourer is worthy of his reward. * Agaynst an elder receaue none accusacion:but vnder two or thre wytnesses. Thẽ ỹ synne/rebuke openly,ỹ other maye feare.

He sheweth that thorow the aboundaunte mercy of God we are begotten agayne to a lyuelye hope, and how fayth must be tryed: how the saluacion in christ is no newes, but a thing prophecyed of olde: He exhorteth them to a godly conuersacyon, for so much as they are now borne anew by the worde of God.

Blessed be God the Father of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, which thorow hys aboundaut mercy begat vs agayn vnto a lyuely hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from deathe, to enioye an enheritaunce immortall and vndefyled, and that perisheth not/ reserued in heauen for you, which are kepte by the power of GOD thorowe faith, vnto saluacyon, whiche saluation is prepared alreadye to bee shewed in the last tyme, in the whiche time ye shall reioyce, though now for a season (if nede require) ye are in heuines thorow manifolde temptacions that youre fayth ones tryed, being muche more precious then golde that perisheth (though it be tryed with fyre) might be founde vnto laude glory & honour, at the appering of Jesus Christ whom ye haue not seene & yet loue him, in whom (though now, though ye se him not yet do you beleue: and reioyce with ioy, vnspeakable and glorious: receauynge the ende of youre fayth, the saluacion of youre soules.

Of which saluacion haue the prophetes enquyred & searched/ which prophesied of the grace that shuld come vnto you/ searchyng when or at what tyme of the spirite of Christ which was in them, shuld signifie/ which spirite testified before, the passions that shulde come vnto Christ, and the glory that shulde folowe after: vnto which prophetes it was declared, that not vnto themselues but vnto vs, they shuld minister the thinges which are nowe shewed vnto you of them which by the holy goost sent downe from heaue, haue preached vnto you the thynges which the angels desyre to beholde.

Wherfore gyrde vp the loynes of your myndes, be sober, & trust perfectly on the grace that is brought vnto you, by the declaryng of Jesus Christ/ as obedient children, not facionyng youre selues vnto your olde lustes of ignorance: but as hee which called you is holy euen so be ye holy in all maner of conuersacyon, because it is writte. Be ye holy, for I am holy.

And yf so bee that ye call on the father which without respect of person iudgeth accordyng to euery mannes * workes, se that ye passe the tyme of your pilgremage in feare. † For as muche as ye knowe how ye were not redemed with corruptible syluer and golde from youre vayne conuersacion whiche ye receaued by the traditions of the fathers: but with the precious bloude of Christe/ as of a lambe vndefyled & without spot, which was ordeyned before the worlde was made: but was declared in the last tymes for youre sakes, which by his meanes haue beleued on God that raysed him from death, and glorifyed hym, that youre fayth & hope myght be in God.

And for as muche as ye haue purifyed your soules thorow the spirite, in obeying the trueth for to loue brotherly without fayning, se that yee loue one another with a pure herte feruentlye.

For yee are borne a newe not of mortall seade but of immortall, by the word of God which lyueth and lasteth for euer.

For all flesh is as grasse, and all the glorye of mā is as the floure of grasse. The grasse wytherith, & the floure falleth away but the word of the Lord endureth euer. † And this is the word which by the gospel was preached among you.

¶ The.ij. Chapter.

WHerfore laye aside al malycyousnes and all gyle/ and dissimulation, and enuie & all backebytyng: & as newe borne babes, desyre that reasonable mylke, wich is without corruption, that ye may growe ther in. If so be that ye haue tasted how pleasaunt the lorde is, to whome ye come as vnto a lyuinge stoone disalowed of men, but chosen of god and precious: and ye as liuing stones/ are made a spirituall house, and an holy prestehode for to offer vp spirytual sacrifice, acceptable to GOD by Jesus Christ.

Wherfore it is conteyned in the scripture: behold I put in Sion an head corner stone, electe and precious: and he that beleueth on him, shal not be ashamed.*

Vnto you therfore which beleue/ he is precyous but vnto them which beleue not the stone/ which the buylders refused, the same is made the head stone in the corner, and a stoone to stomble at, and a rocke to offend them which stomble at the worde, and beleue not that wheron they were set. But ye are a chosen generacio, a royal prestehode, an holy nacion, & a peculier people, that ye shulde shewe the vertuos of hi that calleth you out of darkenes, into his marueylos light which i time past were not a people, yet are now the people of god: which were not vnder mercy but now haue obtayned mercye. †

Derelye beloued, I beseche you as straungers and pylgrems/ abstayne from fleshly lustes, which fight against the soule/ and se that ye haue honest conuersacion among the gentyles, that the which backbyte you as euill doers, may see your good workes and prayse God a in the daye of visitacion.

Submitte your selues vnto all maner ordynaūce of man for the Lords sake, whether it be vnto the king as vnto the chefe head, other vnto rulers as vnto them that are sent of him, for the punishmente of euyldoers, but for the laude of them that do well. For so is the will of God, that ye put to silence the ignorauce of the folyshe men: as free, and not as hauynge the lyberte for a cloake of malycyousnes: but euen as the seruantes of God. † Honoure all men. Loue brotherly fellowshippe. Feare god/ & honour the kinge.

Seruauntes obeye youre masters with all feare, not onely if they be good and curtious: but also though they bee frowarde. For it is thanckworthye yf a man for conscience toward god endure grefe sufferinge wrongfully. For what prayse is in it, if when ye be bufferted for your faultes, ye take it paciently. But & if whē ye do wel ye suffre wrong, & take it paciently thē is there thanke with god.

For hereunto were ye verely called for † Christ also suffered for vs, leuing vs an ensample that yee should folowe his steppes, which dyd no synne, neither was there gyle founde in hys mouthe, which whē he was reuiled not reuiled a gayn, whē he suffered, he threatened not, but cōmitted the cause to hym that iudged righteously, * which hys owne selfe bare oure synnes in his bodye on the tree, that we shoulde be delyuered from synne and shoulde lyue in righteousnes. By whose stryppes ye were healed. For ye were as shepe going astraye: but are now returned vnto shepherde and bysshop of your soules.

(The notes.)

* We be the church and the obedyence of the hert is the spirytual sacrifice: Bodely sacrifice must be offered to oure neyghboures for if thou offerest it to god thou makest a bodely idole of hym.

a In the daye of vysitacyon. So doth Peter cal that tyme in whych god vouchsafeth whyls inspyrati o to cal a man to bett er lyuynge.

¶ How wyues ought to ordre themselues toward their husbandes, and in their apparel. The duetye of men toward theyr wyues. He exhorteth all men to vnitye and loue and patiently to suffre trouble. Of true baptym.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

LIke wyse let the wyues bee
a in subiection to their husbā des that euen they which beleue not in the worde, maye withoute the worde be wōne by the conuersacion of their wyues: while they beholde youre pure conuersatiō coupled with feare. Whose apparell shall not be outewarde wyth broyded heare, and hanging on of gold,
ether in putting one of glorious appar-rell: but let the hyd mā of the hert be vncorrupte, wyth a meke and quiet spirite, which spirite is before God a thing mu-che set by. For after this maner in the olde time did the holy wemen whiche trusted
in god, tyer them selues, and were obedient to their husbandes, euen as Sab ra obeied Abraham, and called hi Lord:
whose daughters ye are as longe as ye do wel, not beinge afrayde of euery tha-dowe.

Likewise ye men a*dwel with them
according to knowledge. b*geuing ho-noure vnto the wife, as vnto the weker vessell, and as vnto thesin that are heyr
res also of the grace of lyfe, that youre prayers be not let.

✠ In conclusion, be ye al of one minde,
c one suffer with another, loue as brethre
be pitifull, be courteous, not rendringe
euyl for euyl, nether rebuke for rebuke,
but contrary wise blesse, remembring
that ye are ther vnto called, euen that ye shulde be heyres of blessinge. If any man lōge after life, and loueth to se good daies, let hym refraine his tonge from euell, &
his lyppes that they speake not gyle.
Let him eschue euyll and do good: let him seke peace, and ensue it. For the eyes of the Lord are ouer the righteous, and his eares are open vnto their pray
ers. But the face of the lorde beholdeth them that do euel.

Moreouer who is it that wil harme you, if ye folowe that which is good.
Notwithstandinge happye are ye if ye suffre for righteousnes sake. Yea and feare not thoughe they seme terrible to you neyther bee troubled: but sanctifye
the Lorde god in your hertes.

Bee readye alwayes to geue answere to euery man that asketh you reason of the hope that is in you, and that withe mekenes and feare, hauing good conscience, that when they backbite you as euil doers, they maye be ashamed, for as much as they haue falsely accused your good conuersacion in Christ.

It is better (if the wyl of God be so)
d that ye suffre for wel doinge, then for euell doinge. ✠ For as much as Christe hath ones suffered for synnes, the iuste
for the vniuste, for to bringe vs to God,
and was killed as pertayning to the flesh
but was quickened in the spirite.

In whiche spirite he also wente and preached vnto the spyrites that were in prison, which were in tyme passed disobedient when the longe suffering of god
abode exceadinge patiently in the days of Noe, whyle the arke was a preparin-ge wherin fewe (that is to saye, viii. soles) were saued by water which signifyeth ✠ baptysme that nowe saueth vs, not the puttinge awaye of the filth of the flesh,
but in that good conscience consenteth
to GOD, by the resurrection of Jesus Christe, whiche is on the righte hand of god: ✠ and is gone into heauen, angeles, powers and mightes and subdued
vnto him,

The notes.

a* To dwel with them is, wyth kyndnes, with the despysinge of pleasures and of ambycion, with the decking of the inner man, wyth mekenes and demurenes of a quyet spirite, wyth loue and reuerēce, to order them: Not accordynge to oure wylful ōsmaundement and lust, but accordige to knowlege: appoyntinge them to do nothyng but that is expedy-ent, and fauouryng them in nothyng that may hurte or corrupte honest condytions & manners.

b* Geuynge honour vnto the wyfe. Erasmus in hys annotacyons noteth out of S. Hierome, that to geue honour here is not to bowe the knee to them
nor to decke them wyth golde or pretious stones
but to abstaine from fleshly lustes.

c* By baptym ther do ryters learned interpreters vnderstande the bloud and passion of Christ by a figure takinge the signe for the thinge signified ther
by, for this doth Baptyme signifye vnto vs, besides other thinges, that as we are there washed wyth water
so are oure sinnes washed away with the bloudy of Christes bloude.

The exhorteth men to cease from sinne, to spende
the worse tyme in vice, to be sober & apt to prayer, to loue eche other, to be patiēt in trouble, & to beware that no man suffer as an euell doer, but as a Christē mā
and not to be ashamed.

The.iiii. Chapter.

FOr as moche as Christ hath suffred for vs in the flesh,
a arme youre selues lyke wise with the same mynde:
for he which suffereth in the flesshe, ceaseth from synne, that he hence forwarde shulde liue as moche time as remayneth in the flesh: not after the lustes of men but after the wyll of God.
For it is sufficient for vs that we haue spent the time that is past of the lyfe, after the wyll of the gentyles, walkyng in wantonnes, lustes, dronckennes, in eatyng, drinkyng and in abhominable Idolatrie.

And it semeth to thē a straūge thin-ge that ye runne not also with them vnto the same excesse of ryote, and therfore speake they euyll of you, whych shall b geue a comptes to hym that is redy to iudge quik and deed. a* For vnto this purpose verelye was the Gospell preached vnto the deed that they shulde be iudged lyke other men i the flesshe, but shulde lyue before God i the spirite. The ende of all thinges is at hande.

✠ Be ye therfore discrete and sober, that ye may be apt to prayers. But aboue al thynges haue feruent loue among you.
For loue coureth the multitude of syn-nes. Be ye herberous one to another, and that without grudgynge. As euery man hath receaued the gyfte, minister the sa me one to another, as good ministers of the manyfolde grace of God. If eny man
c speake let him talke as though he spake the wordes of God. If eny man minister, let him do it as of the abylite wich God ministreth vnto him. That god in all thynges maye be glorified thorow
Jesus Christ/ ✠ to whom be prayse & dominion for euer and while the worlde standeth: Amen.

Dearely beloued be not troubled in this heate, which now is come among you to trye you as though some straun-ge thinge had happened vnto you: but reioyce in as much as ye are partakers of Christes passions, that when his glory appeareth, ye may be merry and glad.
If ye be rayled vpō for the name of Christ happy are ye. For the spirite of glory & of God resteth vpon you. On their parte
he is euell spoken of: but on your parte
D he is glorifyed.

Se that none of you suffre as a murtherer/or as a theke, or an euell doer, or as a busi body in other mens maters. If eny mane suffre as a christen man, let hym not be ashamed: but let hi glorify God on this behalfe for the time is come that iudgement must begin ne at the house of god*. If it first begin ne at vs, what shal the ende be of them which beleue not the gospell of god? &
if the righteous scarcely bee saued, wher
shal the vngodly and the synner apeare.
Wherfore let them that suffer accordig
to the wyll of God, commyt their soules to him with well doyng, as vnto a faith-full creature.

The notes.

a* For vnto thys purpose was the gospell preached vnto the deade. &c. As certayne lerned expositours wyll that he here calleth preachinge of the gospell, vnto the dead, in the chapter goynge next before he calleth the preachinge to the spirytes that were in prison: which thynge (say they) signifyeth as much as vnto the wicke also, or spyrites in prison, came the saulue or medesyne of the Gospel and of the glad tidinges of Christes passion, wherby they were losed the strength therof being so wythy that they were therwyth brought forth of prison to immortalitye.
And because it myghte haue beene wmaruyled,
how the soules of these blessed came forth of prison whether compassed wyth they bodyes or onely in pure substaunce of the spirite, therfore sayth he that they should be iudged lyke other men in the flesh
that is when al other men shalbe iudged in the flesh.
But shoulde lyue before God in the spirite which signifyeth that in the meane season tyll the iudgemēt come shall they soules lyue and reioyce before god thorow Christ.

* If the sonnes of god must be all scourged and none may be saued, but thorowe the same, fyre Christ went thorowe, what shal the dampnacyon of the dis obedient and vnbeleuers be.

¶ The ii. Epistle of Sainct Peter.

¶ For so much as the power of god hath geuē the al thinges pertayning vnto lyfe, he exhorteth them to flye the corruption of worldly lust, to make their callynge sure with good workes, & frutes of fayth. He maketh mencyon of hys owne wath reclayminge the Lorde to be the true sonne of God: as hee hym selfe hath sene vpon the mount.

¶ The first Chapter.

SYmon Peter a seruaunt & A
ā Apostle of Jesus Christ, to them which haue optayned lyke precious faith w̄ vs in the righteousnes that commeth of our God and sauioure Jesus Christ.

Grace with you, and peace be multiplyed in the knoweledge of god, and of Jesus oure Lorde. Accordinge as hys godly power hath geuen vnto vs all thinges that pertayne vnto life and godlynes, thorow the knowledge of hym that hath called vs by vertue and glorye by the meanes wherof, are geuen vnto vs excellente and moost greate promyses, that by the helpe of them ye shoulde bee partakers of the godlye nature, in that ye flie the corruption of worldly lust.

And here vnto geue all dilygence: in B
your fayth *ministre vertu, and in vertu knoweledg, and in knoweledge temperaunce, and in temperance patience, in patience godlynes, in godlynes brotherly kindnes, in brotherly kindnes loue. For if these thinges be amonge you and are plenteous, they wyll make you that ye neither shalbe ydle nor vnfruteful in the knoweledge of our Lord Jesus christ. But he that lacketh these thinges is blinde and gropeth for the waye with his handes, and hath forgotten ỹ he was purged from his olde synnes.

Wherfore brethren geue the more C diligence for to  make your callinge and electiõ sure. For if ye do such thinges, ye shall neuer erre. Ye and by this meanes ān entring in shalbe ministred vnto yow aboundauntly into the euerlasting kingdome of our Lorde and sauiour Jesus Christ.

Wherfore I will not be negligente A to put you alwayes, in remembraunce of suche thinges though that ye know the, youre selues and be also stablished in ỹ present truth. Not withstandig I thynke yt mete (as longe as I am in hys *tabernacle) to stere you vp by puttig you in remembraunce for as much, as I am sure how that the time is at hande ỹ I muste put of my tabernacle, euen as oure Lorde Jesus Christ hath shewed me. I wil enforce therfore, that one eye C sight ye might haue wherwith to stere vp the remembraunce of these thynges after my departinge.

*For we folowed not deceuable fables whē we opened vnto you the power and commynge of oure Lorde Jesus Christe, but with oure eyes we sawe hys maiesty: euen then verely when he receaued of God the father honoure and glorye, and when there came suche a voyce to him from the excellent glory. *This is my deare beloued sonne in whome I
Mat. xvii. iii. Mar. ix. haue delite. This voyce we herde when it came from heauen, beinge with him i the holy mounte.

We haue also a righte sure worde D of prophecy where vnto if ye take hede as vnto lighte that shinethe in a darcke place, ye do well, vntill the daye dawe & the daye sterre aryse in your hertes. & So that ye first know this: that no prophecy in the scripture hath eny priuate interpretacion. For the scripture came neuer by the will of man: but holye men of God spake as they were moued by ỹ holy goost.

C He prophecyeth of false teachers, & sheweth their punyshment.

The.ii. Chapter.

THere were false prophetes amonge the people, euen as there shall be faulse teachers amonge you: whiche priuely shall bringe in dampnable sectes / euen denyenge the LORDE that hathe bought therm, and bringe vppon them selues swifte dampnation, and manye shall folowe their dampnable wayes / by which the waye of trueth shal be euell spoken of, and thorow * couetousnes shall they make marchaundies of you, whose iudgment is not farre of, and their dampnation slepeth not.

For if God spared not the angels ỹ A synned / but cast them downe into hell / & deliuer them into chaynes of derckenes / to be kept vnto iudgement: nether spared the olde worlde, but saued Noe the eyght preacher of rightwesnes and brought in the flud vpon the worlde of vngodly, and turned the cities of Sodom and Gomor into asshes: ouerthrew the, dampned theim, and made on theim an ensample vnto al that after shuld lyue vngodly. And iust Lot vexed with vncleanly conuersation of the wicked, delyuered he. For beynge righteous a dwellinge among them in seing and hearing vexed his righteous soule from daye to daye with their vnlawful dedes. The Lord knoweth how to deliuer the godly oute of temptacion, and how to reserue the vniuste vnto the daye of iudgmente for to be punyshed: namely them ỹ walke C
after the flesshe into lust of vncleannes, & dispise the rulers. Presumptuous are they & stubburne and feare not to speake euell of them that are in auctorite. Whē the Angels whiche are greater both i power ād might / receaue not of ỹ Lord rayling iudgment agaīst them. But these as brute beastes, naturally made to be taken & destroied, perishe thorow their owne destitution, & receaue the rewarde of vnrighteousnes.

They counte it pleasure to lyue deliciously for a season. Spottes they are and filthines, lyuinge at pleasure, & in disceyuable wayes, feasting with you, hauinge eyes ful of aduoutry, and that cannot cease to sinne, begylynge vnstable soules. Hertes they haue exercysed wyth couetousnes. These are cursed chylderen, and haue forsaken the righte waye / * and are gone astraye folowynge the waye of Balam the sonne of

They promes them liberte, and are them selues ꝑ bonde seruauntes of corruption. * For of whom soeuer a man is ouercome vnto ꝑ same is he in bondage. For yf they, after they haue escaped from the fylthines of the world thorow the knowledge of the Lorde and of the sauioure Jesus Christ, are yet tangled agayne therin and ouercome: then is the laste ende worse then the begynning. For yf it had ben̄e better for them, not to haue * knowne the waye of righteousnes then after they haue known it, to turne from the holy commaundement geuen vnto the. The notes.

* False prophetes muste nedes be amongeste vs ād also peruaile, and that because we haue no loue to the trueth.

ii. Thessa. ii. And couetousnes is the father of them, and false preachyng confydence in wordes is ꝑ tokenynge of Christ.

Be ware. Wherfore they men to be ware of such as would make them beleue, that the daye of the Lorde were slacke in commynge: yea yeth them to leade a godly lyfe, & so loke verely for the comynge of the Lorde, whose longe tarienge is saluation, and because he would haue no man lost, but would receaue all men to repentaunce.

¶ The.iii. Chapter

This is the second epistle that I now write vnto you beloued/ wherwith I stere vp, and warne youre pure myndes, to cal to remembraunce the wordes whych were tolde before of the holye Prophetes, and also the commaundment of vs ꝑ Apostles of ꝑ Lorde and sauioure.

This first vnderstand that there shall come in the last daies, mockers, whyche will walcke after their owne lustes and saye: where is the promes of hys comynge? For sence the fathers dyed, all thinges cōtinue in the same state wher in they were at the begynninge. This they knowe not (and that wyllingly) how we that the heauens a great whyle ago were, and the earth that was in the water appeared vp oute of the water, by the worde of God: by the which thinges the worlde that then was perished, ouerflowinge with the water. But the heauens wherby and earth whiche are now, are kept by the same word in store/ and reserued vnto fyre, against the day of iudgment and perdition of vngodly men.

2. Tim. iii. 2. Tim. iii.

Dearely beloued, be not ignorant of this one thinge, how that one daye is with the Lorde, as a thousand yeare/ and a thousand yeare as one daie. The Lorde is not slacke to fulfyll his promes/ as some men counte slackenes: but is patient to vs warde, and wolde haue no man lost, but wolde receaue all men to repentaunce.

¶ 1. Thess. v. 2 Pete. iii. & 1. Joan. ii.

* Neuertheles the daye of the Lord will come as a theefe in the nyght, in ꝑ which daye the heauens shall perish w̄ terrible noyse, and the elemens melt w̄ heate, and the earth with the workes ꝑ are therin shall burne.

If all these thinges shall perishe, what maner persons ought ye to be in holy cōuersacion and godlynes looking forād hastinge vnto the commynge of the daye of God, in which the heauens shal perishe with fyre, and the elementes shalbe consumed with heate. * Neuertheles we loke for a newe heauen and a newe erth accordyng to hys promes, wherin dwelleth righteousnes. 2 Pete. iii. & Apoc. xxi. & Esai. lxv.

Wherfore dearely beloued, seinge that ye loke for suche thinges, be diligent that ye maye bee founde of hym in peace without spotte and vndefyled. And suppose that the longe sufferinge of the Lorde is saluacion, euen as oure derely beloued brother Paul, accordīg to the wisdome geuen vnto him, wrote vnto you, yea, almoost in euerye epistle, speaking of such thinges among which are many thinges harde to be vnderstōde, whiche they that are vnlearned and vnstable peruert, as they do other scriptures vnto their owne destruction. Ye therfore beloued, seyng ye know it before hande, beware lest ye be also plucked a waye with the errour of the wycked, and fall from youre owne stedfastnes: but growe in grace and in the knowledge of oure Lorde and sauioure Jesus Christ. To whōe be glory bothe now and for euer. Amen.

¶ The i. Epistle of Sayncte Johu the Apostle.

¶ True witnes of the euerlastyng worde of God. The bloude of Christ is the purgacyon from synne. Woman is without synne.

The fyrst Chapter.

That whiche was from ꝑ begynnynge, whych we haue heard, which we haue sene w̄ oure eyes/ whych we haue looked vpon, & our handes haue handled, of the word of ꝑ life. For ꝑ life apered, & we haue sene & bear wytnes, and shewe vnto you that eternal lyfe, which was with the father, and appered vnto vs. That which we haue sene and herde, declare we vnto you, ꝑ ye maye haue felloushipe with vs & that oure felloushype maye be withe the father and his sonne Jesus Christe. And thys write we vnto you/ that your ioye maye be full.

And this is the tydynges whych we haue heard of him & declare vnto you/ that God is lyght, and in him is no derknes at all. If we saye that we haue felloshipe with him and yet walke in derknes, we lye, and do not the trueth. But and yf we walke in (light) euen as he is lyght, then haue we felloshipe with him, and the bloud of Jesus Christ his sonne clenseth vs from all synne.

(lyghte) is doctrine Christ. Dieu. i. d Esa. l. d:

If we saye that we haue no synne, we deceaue oure selues and trueth is not in vs. If we * knowledge oure synnes, he is faithfull and iust, to forgeue vs oure synnes, and to clense vs fro al vnrighteousnes. If we saye we haue not synned/ we make him a lyar and his word is not in vs.

The notes.

John here as in hys gospel, and as Paul and Peter in theyr Epystles, teacheth fyrst ꝑ iustifieng of faith & that al mercy commeth by Christ only wythout all other respecte, and then what our duetye is to do agayne for ꝑ kindnes sake John. viii.

* If we confes oure synnes god which cannot lye, hath promised to forgeue them.

¶ Christ is our aduocate. O true loue, and how it is tryed.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

My lytell children, these thinges write I vnto you, that ye sinne not: if eny mā synne, yet we haue an aduocate wyth the father, Jesus Christ, whych is righteous: and he it is that obteineth grace for oure sinnes: not for our synnes only: but also for the synnes of all the worlde. And herby we are sure that we knowe hym, yf we kepe his * commaundementes. He that sayth I know hym, & kepeth not hys commaundementes is a liar, and the verity is not in hym. Whosoeuer kepeth his worde, in him is the loue of God perfect in dede. And therby knowe we that we are in him. He that sayeth he bydith in him, ought to walcke euen as he walked.

Brethren I wryte no new commaundemente vnto you: but that olde Commaundement which ye heard from ꝑ beginnynge. The olde commaundemente is the worde which ye heard from ꝑ beginnynge. Agayne a newe commaundemente I wrytte vnto you, a thinge ꝑ is true in him and also in you: for the derknes is past/ & ꝑ true light now shineth. He that saith how that he is in the lyghte, and yet hateth hys brother, is in derknes euen vntyll this tyme. He that loueth hys brother/ abydeth in the lyght & ther is none occasyon of euyl in hym. He that * hateth his brother, is in derknes, and walketh in derknes: and cannot tell whyther he goeth, because that derknes hath blynded his eyes.

Babes I wryte vnto you how that ourre synnes are forgeuen you for his names sake. I wryte vnto you fathers, how that ye know hi that was from the beginnyng. I wryte vnto you younge men, how that ye haue ouercome ỹ wicked. I wryte vnto you litell childrē, howe that ye know ỹ father. I wryte vnto you fathers, how that ye know hym ỹ was from the beginnynge. I wryte vnto you younge men, how that ye are stronge ād the wozde of God abideth in you and ye haue ouercome that wycked.

Se that ye loue not the wozld, nether the thynges that are in the wozlde. If eny man loue the wozlde, the loue of the father is not in hym. For all that is in ỹ wozlde (as the lust of the flesche, the lust of the eyes, and the pryde of goodnes) is not of the father, but of ỹ wozlde. And the wozlde vanysheth awaye and ỹ lust therof: but he that fulfylleth the will of God, abydeth euer.

Lytell chyldren it is the last tyme/ & as ye haue herde how that *Antichrist shal come euen now are there many Antichristes come alredye. Wherby we knowe that it is ỹ last tyme. They went oute from vs/but they were not of vs. For yf they had bene of vs, they wolde no doute, haue continued with vs. But that forthwith that it myghte appere, ỹ they were not of vs.

And, ye haue an oyntment of the holy goost and ye knowe all thynges. I wrote not vnto you, as though ye knew not the trueth: but as though ye knewe it, and knowe also that no lye commeth of trueth. Who is a liar but he that denyeth that Jesus is Christ? the same is the Antichrist that denyeth the father & the sonne. Whosoeuer denyeth ỹ sonne, the same hath not the father. Let therfore abide i you that same which ye herde from the begynnynge. If that which ye herde from the begynnynge, shall remayne in you, ye also shal continue in the sonne, and in the father. And this is the promes ỹ he hath promysed vs eue eternall lyfe.

This haue I written vnto you, concernynge them that disceaue you. And the anoyntynge whych ye receaue of hym, dwelleth in you. And ye nede not ỹ anye mā teache you: but as the anoyntynge teacheth you al thinges, and is true, and is no lye/ād as it hath taught you eue so abide therin. And now babes abide in hi ỹ whē he shal appere, we may be bold and not be made ashamed of him at hys cōmīg. If ye know that he is righteous, know also that he which followeth righteousnes, is borne of him.

The notes

*He that hateth, is in darkenes and knowethe not what Christ hath done for him but he that loueth is in lyghte, and worketh what Christ hath done.

*Here ye se that Christ and synne can not dwell together, for Christes spyrite kyteth agaynst sine.

¶ The synguler loue of god toward vs: howe we agayne loue one another.

The.iii. Chapter.

Behold what loue the father hath shewed on vs that wee shulde be called the sonnes of god. For this cause the wozlde knoweth you not because it knoweth not him. Dearly beloued/now are we ỹ sonnes of God, & yet it doth not appere what we shalbe. But we know that when it shal appeare, we shalbe like him. For we shal se hym as he is. And euery man that hath thys hope in him, purgeth hym selfe, euen as he is pure. Whosoeuer committeth sine cōmitteth vnrighteousnes also/for sine is *vnrighteousnes. As many as abide in hi sinne not: whosoeuer sinneth, hath not sene him, nether hath knowen him.

Babes, let no man disceaue you. He that doeth righteousnes, is righteous/ euē as he is righteous. He that cōmitteth sinne, is of the deuil: for the deuel sinneth sence the beginning. For this purpose appeared ỹ sōne of god, to lowse ỹ wozkes of ỹ deuill. Whosoeuer is borne of god sinneth not: for his seed remayneth in him, and he cannot sinne, because hee is borne of god. In thys are the childre of God knowen, and the children of the deuil. Whosoeuer doth not righteousnes is not of GOD, nether loueth ye not his brother.

For this is the tidinges that ye herde from ỹ beginning that ye shuld loue one another not as Cayn which was of the wycked and slewe his brother. And wherfore slewe he hi? Because hys owne wozkes were euel, ād his brothers good. Maruayle not my brethren though the wozld hate you. We knowe that we are translated from *death vnto life, because we loue the brethren. He that loueth not his brother, abydeth in death. Whosoeuer hateth his brother, is a manslear. And ye know that no manslear, hath eternal life abiding i hi.

Herby perceaue we loue: that he gaue his life for vs: and therfore ought we also to geue our liues for the brethren. Whosoeuer hath this wozldes good & seith his brother haue neade: and shutteth vp his cōpassiō from him: how dwelleth the loue of God in him? My babes let vs not loue in wozd, nether in tonge, but with the dede and in verite: & for* therby we knowe that we are of the verite, and can before hi quiet our hertes. But if oure hertes cōdempned vs, god is greater then oure hertes, and knoweth all thinges. Beloued, if oure hertes condempne vs not, then haue we truste to godwarde: and what soeuer we aske we shal receaue of him: because we kepe his commaundementes, & do those thinges which are pleasyng in his sight.

And thys is his commaundemente that we beleue *on the name of his sōne Jesus Christe, and loue one another, as he gaue commaundemente. And he that kepeth his commaundementes, dwelleth in hym, and he in hym: and therby wee knowe that there abydeth in vs of the spryte which he gaue vs.

The notes

*He ỹ loueth, is escaped death. He that loueth not, is in death and a murtherer and hath not eternall lyfe.

*By loue we know ỹ we are in verueth, & haue quiet conscyences to God warde.

*Fayth & loue is the fyrst commaundement, and al cōmaūdementes, and he that hath them wt God ād hath his spryte.

¶ Dyfference of spyrites, and howe ỹ spryte of God maye be knowne frō the spryte of errour. Of the loue of God and of our neyghboures.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Beloued, beleue not euery spryte but proue the spyrites whether they be of God or not, for many false Prophetes are gone out into ỹ wozld. Herby shall ye know ỹ spryte of god. Euery spryte ỹ cōfesseth ỹ Jesus Christe is come in ỹ flesche, is of God. And euery spryte which confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in ỹ flesche, is not of god. And this is the spryte of a* Antichrist of whom ye haue herde, howe that he shulde come: and euen now alredy is he in the wozlde.

Lytel chyldren, ye are of God & haue ouercome them: for greater is he ỹ is in you, then he that is in the wozlde. They are of the wozld, and therfore speake they of the wozlde, and the wozlde heareth them. We are of God. He that knoweth god, heareth vs: he that is not of god, heareth vs not. Herby know we ỹ spryte of verite & the spryte of errour.

Beloued, let vs loue one another: for loue commeth of God. And euery one ỹ loueth is borne of God, and knoweth God. He that loueth not, knoweth not God: for God is loue. In this appered the loue of God to vs ward, because that God sent his only begotten sonne into the wozlde, that we might liue thorow him. Herin is loue, not that we loued God but that he loued vs and sent his sonne to make agrement for our sinns. Beloued, if God so loued vs, we ought also to loue one another. No man hath sene God at enye time. If we loue one another, God dwelleth in vs, ād his loue is parfect in vs. Herby know we: ỹ we dwell in him and he in vs: because he hath geuen vs of his spryte. And we haue sene and do testifye that the father sent the son, which is ỹ saueour of the wozlde. Whosoeuer confesseth that Jesus is the sonne of God, in him dwelleth God, & he i God. And we haue known and beleued ỹ loue that God hath to vs. GOD is loue, and he that dweleth in loue, dweleth in God, & God in him. Herin is the loue perfect in vs. ỹ we shuld haue trust in the daye of iudgement: for as he is, euen so are we in thys wozld. Ther is no fere in loue but parfect loue casteth out all feare, for fere hath paynfulnes. He that feareth, is not parfect in loue.

We loue hym, for he loued vs fyrst. If a mā say, I loue God, and yet hate his brother he is a lyar. For how can he ỹ loueth not his brother whom he hath sene/loue God whome he hath not se-nee. And this commaundement haue we of hym: that he whych loueth God, shulde loue his brother also. ☞ ¶ Colowe God is to kepe his commaundementes. Fayth ouercommeth the worlde. Euerlastinge lyfe is in ỳ sonne of god. Of ỳ synne vnto death.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

WHosoeuer beleueth that Jesus is Christe, is borne of God. And euery one ỳ loueth him which begat, loueth him also whych was begotte of him: In this we knowe ỳ we loue ỳ children of God, whē we loue god & kepe his cōmaundementes. This is the loue of God that wee kepe his commaundementes, & his cōmaundementes are not greuous. ☞ For all that is borne of God, ouercōmeth ỳ world. And this is ỳ victory ỳ ouercōmeth the worlde, euen our fayth. Who is it ỳ ouercometh ỳ worlde: but he which beleueth that Jesus is the sonne of God.

This Jesus Christ is he that came by water and bloud not by water only: but by water and bloud. And it was ỳ spyrite that beareth wytnes, because the spyrite is trueth.

(For ther are thre whych beare record in heuen, ỳ father, the word, & the holy goost. And these thre are one) For ther are thre wich bere record (in earth) the spyrite, and water, & bloud: and these thre are one. If we receaue the wytnes of men, the wytnes of God is greater.

For thys is the wytnes of God, whych he testifyed of his sonne. He that beleueth on the sonne of God, hath the wytnes in him self. ☞ He ỳ beleueth not god, hathe made him a lyar, because he beleued not the record that God gaue of his sonne. And thys is ỳ recorde how ỳ god hath geuen vnto vs eternall life, & this lyfe is in his sonne.

¶ He that hathe the sonne, hathe lyfe: and he that hath not the sonne of God hath not lyfe.

These thinges haue I written vnto you that beleue on the name of ỳ sonne of God that ye maye knowe how that ye haue eternall lyfe, and that ye maye beleue on the name of the sonne of God. And this is the truste that we haue in hi that if we aske any thyng accordyng to hys wyll, he heareth vs. And if we know that he heare vs what soeuer wee aske, we knowe that we shal haue the petitions that we desyre of hym.

If anye man se his brother synne a synne that is not vnto death, let hi aske, and he shal geue him life for theym that sinne not vnto death. There is a synne vnto death, for which saye I not that a man shulde praye. All vnrighteousnes is sinne, and ther is sine not vnto death.

We know that whosoeuer is borne of god, sinneth not: but he that is begotten of GOD kepeth him self, and that wicked toucheth him not. We knowe that we are of God, and that the world is all together set on wickednes. We knowe that the sonne of god is come, & hathe geuen vs a mynde to knowe hym whiche is true: and wee are in him that is true, thorow his sonne Jesus Christ. This same is very god, & eternal life. Babes kepe your selues from ymages.

Amen.

Fayth is our victory.

Synne vnto death.

¶ The iij Epistle of Sayncte John.

¶ He wryteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyseth ỳ her children walke in trueth, exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth them to beware of such deceuers as denye that Jesus Christ came in the flesche, prayeth the to continue in the doctrine of Christ, & to haue nothing to do with them that bringe not thys learnyng.

The elder to the electe ladye and her children which I loue in the trueth: and not I only, but also all ỳ knowe ỳ trueth, for ỳ truthes sake which dwelleth in vs, & shalbe in vs for euer.

With you be grace, mercy, and peace from God the father and from the lorde Jesus Christ the sonne of the father, in truth and loue.

I reioyced greatly, that I found of thy children walking in truethe, as we haue receaued a commaundemente of ỳ father. And now beseche I thee lady, not as though I wrote a new commaundement vnto thee, but ther same which we had from the beginninge, that we shuld * loue one another. And this is the loue that we shulde walke after hys commaundemente.

This commaundement is (that as ye haue heard from the beginnyng) ye shulde walke in it. For many deceauers are entred into ỳ worlde, which confesse not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesshe. This is a deceauer and an Antichrist. Loke on youre selues, that we loose not that we haue wrought: but that we may haue a full reward. Whosoeuer transgresseth and bydeth not in the doctryne of Christe, hath not God. He that endureth in the doctryne of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne,

If ther come eny vnto you and bringe not this learninge, him receaue not to house: nether byd him God spede. For he that byddeth him God spede, is partaker of his euyl dedes. I had many thinges to wryte vnto you, neuertheless I wolde not write with paper and ynke but I trust to come vnto you and speake w̄ you mouth to mouth, that our ioye maye be full. The sonnes of thy electe syster grete thee: Amen.

Law is the synne of man.

The. iij. Epistle Of Saincte Johan.

¶ He is glad of Gayus, that he walketh in ỳ truth, exhorteth them to be louing vnto the poore Christen in theyr persecution, theweth the vnkinde dealyng of Diotrephes, and the good report of Demetrius.

The elder vnto the beloued Gayus, whom I loue in the trueth. Beloued, wyshe in all thynges that thou prosperedest and fayredest wel, euen as ỳ soule prospereth. I reioyced greatlye when the brethren came and testifyed of the trueth that is in thee howe thou walkeste in trouble. I haue no greater ioye the to here how ỳ my sonnes walke in verytie.

Beloued ỳ doest faithfully what soeuer ỳ doest to the brethrē, and to straūgers, which beare witnes of thy loue before all ỳ congregacion. Whiche brethren when thou bringest forwardes of their iorneye (as it beseemeth God) thou shalte do well: because that for my names sake they wēt forth and toke nothig of ỳ Gentyles. We therfore ought to receaue such, that we also might be helpers to the trueth.

I wrote vnto the congregacion, but Diotrephes, whiche loueth to haue the preeminence among them receaueth vs not. Wherfore if I come, I wyll declare his dedes which hee doth, iestinge on vs wyth malycious wordes, neyther is therwith contente. Not onely hee hym selfe receaueth not the brethren: but al so hee forbiddeth them that would, and thrusteth them out of the congregacio.

Beloued, folow not that which is euell, but that whiche is good. Hee that doeth well is of god: but he that doethe euell seyth not God. Demetrius hathe good reporte of all men and of the truth yea and we our selues also beare recorde, and yee knowe that oure recorde is true.

I haue many thinges to wrytte: but I wyll not with ynke and penne wrytte vnto thee. For I trust I shall shortelye see thee, and we shall speake mouthe to mouth. Peace be wyth thee. The louers salute thee. Gre te the louers by name.

¶ The Epistle of Saincte Paule vnto the Hebrues.

¶ How God dealte louingly with them of the olde tyme, in sendig them his prophetes, but much more mercy hath he shewed vs in that he sent vs his owne sonne. Of the most excelent glory of Jesus Christ wheych in all thynges is lyke to hys father.

The fyrst Chapter.

GOd in time passed dyuersely and manye wayes, spake vnto the fathers by the prophetes but in these a laste dayes he hath spoken vnto vs by his sonne, whome he hath made heyre of all thinges by whome also hee made the worlde. Which sonne beinge the brightnes of his glorye, and very image of his substaunce, bearinge vp al thinges withe the worde of his power/ hathe in his owne parson, purged oure synnes, and is sytten on the ryght hand of the maiestie on hygh, and is more excellent then the aungeles, in as much as he hath by enheritannce obtayned an excellenter name then haue they.

Chryste hath purged oure synne.

For vnto which of the aungeles, sayde

he at any time: Thou art my sonne, this daye begat I thee. And agayne, I wyl be his father, and he shalbe my sonne. And agayne, whē he bringeth in the first begotten sonne into the worlde, he saith: ℭ And all the angeles of God shall worshippe him. And of the angeles he saith, He maketh hys angeles spirites, and his ministers flames of fyre. But vnto ỹ sonne he saith: God, thy seate shal be for euer & euer. The scepter of thy kingdome is a right scepter. Thou hast loued righteousnes, and hated iniquitie. Wherfore God which is thy God, had anoynted thee with the oyle of gladnes aboue thy felowes.

Oyle of gladnes is the holy goost.

And thou Lorde in the beginnge hast layde the foundacion of the earth. And the heauens are the worckes of thy handes. They shall perish but thou shalt endure. They all shall waxe old as doth a garment: and as a vesture shalte thou chaunge them, and they shall be chaunged. But thou arte alwayes: and thy yeres shall not fayle. Vnto whiche of the angeles sayd he at any time: Sitte on my right hād, tyl I make thyne enemyes thi foote stole: Are they not al mynistring spirites, sēt to ministre, for theyr sakes which shalbe heyres of saluacion.

The notes.

a ✠ Of these later dayes pehaue. Esa. i. a. Etcerne vtterite

ℭ He exhorteth vs to be obedient vnto the new law which Christe hath geuen vs and not to be offended at the infyrmities: lowe degree of Christe: because it was necessary that for our sakes he should take suche an humble state vpon hym, that he myght helpe vnto his brethren.

ℭ The. ii. Chapter.

Therfore we oughte to geue the more hede to ỹ thiges ỹ we haue herd lest we perish. For if the worde which was spoken by angels was stedfast, so that euery transgression and disobedience, receaued a iust recompence to rewarde, how shall we escape if wee despise so great saluacion, which at the first began to be preached of the Lorde hym selfe, and afterward was confirmed vnto vs by them that herde it. God beating witnes therto, both with signes and wonders also, and with diuers myracles, and giftes of ỹ holy goost acordig to hys owne will. He hath not vnto the āgeles put in subiection ỹ world to come, whereof we spake, but one in a certayne place wytnesseth sayenge.

What is man, that thou art mindful of him? After thou haddeste for a season, made him lower then the angeles: thou crounest him with honoure and glorye, and hast set hi aboue the workes of thy handes. Thou hast put al thinges in subiection vnder his fete. In ỹ he put al thinges vnder him, he left nothinge ỹ is not put vnder him. Neuertheles we yet se not al thinges subdued, but him ỹ was made lesse then the angels we se ỹ it was Jesus, which is crouned w̄ glorye and honoure for the suffering of death: that he by the grace of God, shulde tast of death for al men.

For it became him, for whom are all thinges and by whom are all thiges, after that hee had brought many sonnes vnto glory, ỹ he shulde make the Lorde of their saluacion perfect thorow sufferinge. For he that sanctifieth and they which are sanctified, are al of one. For whych cause he is not a shamed to call them brethren sayenge: I wil declare thy name vnto my brethren, and in ỹ middes of ỹ congregacion wil I prayse thee. And agayne: I wil put my truste in hym. And agayne: beholde here am I and the chyldren which God hath geuen me.

For as much then as the chyldren were partakers of the flesshe and bloud, he also him selfe likewise to toke parte with them, for to put doune thorow death, hi ỹ had lordshyp ouer death, that is to say the deuyl, and that he might deliuer the which thorow fere of death were al their life time in daunger of bondage. For he in no place taketh on him ỹ angels: but the seed of Abrahā taketh hee on him. Wherfore in al thinges it became hym to be made like vnto his brethren, ỹ hee might be merciful, & a faithful hie Preest in thinges cōcernynge god, for to purge ỹ peoples sines. For in ỹ he him selfe suffered & was tempted, he is able to succker them that are tempted.

The notes

✠ Miracles are called signes, because they be a signe, token ād an euident proofe, that the thing ỹ is preached is gods worde.

ℭ He requireth vs to be obedient vnto the word of Christ, which is more worthy then Moses. The punishment of such as wyl nedes harden their herte.

The sabboth or rest of the Christen: punishment of vnbeleuers: the nature of the worde of god.

ℭ The. iii. Chapter.

Therfore holy brethren, partakers of the celestiall callynges consider the embassadour and hye preest of oure profession Christe Jesus, which was faythfull to him that made hi, euē as was Moyses in al his house.

And yet was this man counted worthy of more glory then Moyses: Inasmoche as he whych hath prepared the house, hath more honoure in the house. Euery house is prepared of some mā. But he that ordeined all thiges, is god.

And Moyses verely was faythfull in all his house, as a minister, to beare witnes of those thiges which shuld be spokē afterwarde. But Christ as a sōne, hath rule ouer the house whose house are we, so that we hold fast the confydence and the reioysynge of that hope, vnto the ende.

Wherfore as the holy goost sayth: to daye yf ye shall heare his voyce, harden not youre hertes, after the rebellion in the daye of temptacion in ỹ wyldernes, where youre fathers tepted me, proued me, and sawe my workes. xl. yeare longe.

Wherfore I was greued with the generacyon ād sayde. They erre euer in their hertes: they verely haue not knowen my wayes so ỹ I sware in my wrathe, ỹ they shuld not enter into my rest.

Take hede brethren, that there be in none of you an euyll herte in vnbeleefe, that he shuld departe from the lyuynge God: but exhorte one another daply, whyle it is called to daye, leste enye of you were hard herted thorow the deceytfulnes of synne.

fast subtāce of fayth.

We are partakers of Christ yf we kepe sure vnto the end the ✠ fyrst substance, so longe as it is sayd: to daye yf ye heare hys voyce, harden not youre hertes, as when ye rebelled.

For some, when they heard rebelled: howbeit not al that come out of Egipt vnder Moyses. But wyth whō was he displeased, xl. yeares? Was he not displeased wyth them that synned whose carkases were ouerthrowen in the desert? To whom sware he ỹ that they shuld not enter into his rest: but vnto them that beleued not? And we se they coulde not enter in, because of vnbeleefe.

ℭ The. iiii. Chapter.

Let vs feare therfore least any of vs forsaking the promes of entring into his rest should seme to come behynde, for vnto vs was it declared, as wel as vnto them. But it profited not them that they hearde the worde because they which heard it, coupled it not wyth ✠ fayth, but we which haue beleued, do enter into hys rest, as contrariwyse he sayd, to the other I haue sworne in my wrath, they shall not enter into my rest. And that spake he verely longe after ỹ the worckes were made, and the foundacion of the world layde. For hee spake in a certayne place of the seuenthe daye on thys wyse: And god dyd rest the seuēth day from all his workes. And in thys place agayne: They shall not come into my rest.

Seynge therfore it folowth that some must enter therinto, and they to whom it was fyrst preached, entred not therin for vnbeleefes sake. Agayne he appointed in Dauid a certayne present daye after so longe a tyme, sayinge as it is rehearsed: this daye yf ye heare his voyce, be not hard herted. For yf Josue had geue the rest, then wolde he not afterwarde haue spokē of another day. There remayneth therfore yet a rest to the people of god. For he that is entred into his rest, doth ✠ cease from hys awne workes as God dyd from hys.

Let vs studye therfore to enter into that rest lest any man faull after the same ensample, into vnbeleefe. For the worde of god is quicke, and mighty in operacyon and sharper then any two edged swerd: and entreth thorow, euen vnto the deuydinge a sonder of the soule and ỹ spirite, and of the ioyntes and the marye: & iudgeth the thoghtes and the intentes of ỹ hert nether is ther any creature inuisible in ỹ syght of him. For al thinges are naked and bare vnto the eyes of him, of hi whom we spake.

✠ Is fayth is the grounde of al grace: euen so is vnbeleefe the rote of al sinne.

✠ Sinne is one worke, from which al wulde cease ỹ enter into the rest of a quiet conscience in Christ.

Christ is oure hye preest and sete of grace, more excellent, then the hye preestes of the olde lawe.

The.v. Chapter.

A Synge then that we haue a great hye preest which is entred into heue (I meane Jesus ye sone of god) let vs holde our profession. For we haue not an hie preest, whiche can not haue compassion on oure infirmities: but was in al poinctes tepted, like as wee are but yet without synne. Let vs therefore go boldly vnto the seat of grace, that we may receaue mercye, and finde grace to helpe in tyme of nede.

For euery hye preest that is take amog men is ordened for men, in thinges pertayning to god: to offer giftes and sacrifices for sinnes: which can haue compassion on the ignorant, and one that is out of the waye, because he him selfe is compassed with infirmitie, for B which infirmities sake he is bounde to offer for sinnes as wel for his owne part, as for the peoples. And no man taketh honoure vnto him self, but he that is called of God, as was Adam.

Euen so lyke wise, Christ glorified not him selfe, to be made the hye preest: but he that sayde vnto hi, thou art my sonne, this day begat I thee, glorified hi. As he also in another place speaketh: thou art a preest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. Which in the dayes of his flesshe, did offer vp prayers & supplycations, with stroge C crieng & teares vnto hym that was able to saue hi fro death & was also herd, because of his godlines. And though he were Goddes sonne, yet learned he obedience by those thinges which he suffered, & was made parfait, & the cause of eternal salvacion vnto al them that obey hi, is called of God an hie preest, after the order of Melchisedech. Wherof we haue many thinges to say, which are herd to be vttered: because ye are dul of hearig. For whe as cocernig the time, ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede again that we teache you the first principales of the word of god, and D are become such as haue nede of milke, & not of stroge meate: for euery one that is fed with milcke, is inexperte in the word of righteousnes. For he is but a babe. But stroge meat belogeth to them that are parfect which thorow custome haue their wittes exercysed, to iudg both good & euil also.

The goeth forth with the thinge that he begane in the later ende of the.v. Chap. and exhorteth them not to faint but to be stedfast and patient: for so much as god is sure of his promes:

The.vi. Chapter. E

Therfore let vs loue the doctrine pertayning to the beginninge of a Christen man, & let vs go vnto perfection, and now no more laye the foundacion of repentaunce from dead workes, and of fayth towarde God, of baptyme, of doctrine, and of layenge on of handes. and of resurrection from death, and of eternall iudgement. And so will we do if we repente.  For it is not possible that they which were ones lighted, and haue tasted of the heauenly gift and were become partakers of the holye goost, and haue tasted of the good word of god, and of the power of the worde to come: yf they faule, shoulde bee renewed agayne vnto repentaunce: for as muche as they haue (as cocerning them selues) crucified the sonne of god a fresh makige a mocke of hym. B

For that earth which drincketh in the rayne that commeth often vppon it, and bringeth forthe herbes meete for them by whom it, receaueth blessinge of God, but that grounde whyche beareth thornes and byers is reproued, and is nye vnto cursing: whose ende is to be burned. Neuertheles deare frendes, we trust to se better of you, and thinges which accompanye saluacion, though we thus speake. For god is not vnrighteous that he should forget your worke and labour that proceadeth of loue, which loue ye shewed in his nam which haue ministred vnto the saynctes, and yet mynistre. Yea, and we desire that euery one of you shew the same dylygence, to the stablysshing of hope euen vnto the ende: that ye faynte not but C folow them which thorow fayth and patience, inherete the promises.

For when god made promes to Abrahā because he had no greter thyng to swere by he sware by him selfe, saynge: Surely I will blesse thee, and multiply thee in dede. And so after that he had taried a longe time, he enioyed the promes. For verely men sware by him that is greter then they selues, and an oth to confirmig the thig is is among them an ende of al strife. So god willing very aboundantly to shew vnto the heires of the promes the stablenes of his counsayll, he added an oth D by two immutable thinges (in whyche it was vnpossible that god shoulde lye) we might haue parfect consolatiō, whiche haue fled, for to hold fast the hope that is set before vs, which hope we haue as an anker of the soule both sure and stedfast. Which hope also entreth in vnto those thynges which are within the vayle whither the fore runner is for vs entred in, I meane Jesus that is made an hye preeste for euer, after the order of Melchisedech.

The notes,

 For it is not possible that they which were ones lyghted &c. This text dyspyteth no possibilyte of mercy in god, but the impossibilyte of repentance in suche men as malycyously forsake the truth, blaspheme Christ, take parte against the holy goost. For the ceuth is that with the Lorde there is mercy plenteous redemption. Psal. cxxx. So that whosoeuer calleth vpon his name shalbe saued. Joelis. Roman. x. Now they that forsake the truth, blaspheming christ and taking part against the holy goost can not repent: for yf synners wolde conuerte and cal vpon god, hee shoulde be sure of remyssion.

He compareth the preesthode of Christ vnto Melchychedech, but to be farre more excellent.

A The.vii. Chapter

This Melchisedech kynge of Salem (which beynge preest of the most hie god) met Abraham, as he returned agayne from the slaughter of the kynges and blessed hym: to whō also Abrahā gaue tethes of al thinges) first is by interpretacion kinge of righteousnes: after that he is kyng of Salem, that is to say, kynge of peace. Without father, without mother, without kinne, & hath neither beginninge of his tyme nether yet ende of his life: but is likened vnto the sone of God and contynueth a preest for euer. Consyder what a man this was vnto whom the Patriarche Abraham gaue tythes of the spoyles. And verely those children of Leui, which receaued the office of the preestes, haue a commaundemēt to take according to the lawe, tythes of the people, that is to say, of their brethre, yet though they spronge out of the loynes of Abraham. But he whose kynred is not counted among the receaued tythes of Abra- B ham and blessed hym that had the promyses.

And without all naye sayinge, he whych is lesse, receaueth blessynge of him whiche is greater. And here men that dye, receaue tythes. But there he receaueth tythes of whom it is witnessed, that he liueth. And to say the trueth, Leui him selfe also which receaueth tythes, paied tythes in Abraham. For he was yet in the loynes of his father Abrahā whē Melchisedech met him.

If now therfore perfeccion came by the preesthod of the Leuites (for vnder that preesthod the people receaued the lawe) what nede it further more that another preest shulde rise, after the order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaron? Now no dout, yf the preesthod be trāslated, then of necessitie muste the lawe be translated, also. C

For he of whom these things are spoken pertayneth vnto another tribe, of which neuer mā serued at the aultre. For it is euident that oure Lorde sprange of the tribe of Juda, of whych tribe spake Moses nothinge concerninge preesthod. And it is yet a more euydent thige, yf after the similitud of Melchisedech ther arise another preest, whych is not made after the lawe of the carnall commaundemēt: but after the power of the endeles lyfe. For he testifieth: thou arte a preest for euer, after the order of Melchisedech. Then the cōmaundemēt that went afore, is disanulled, because of the weakenes and vnprofytableness. For the lawe made nothynge parfecte: but was an introduccyō of a better hope, by whych hope, we draw nye vnto God.

And for this cause it is a better hope, that it was not promised with out āothe. Those preestes were made without an othe, but this preest with an othe, by D hym that sayde vnto hym, The Lorde sware, and will not repent: Thou arte a preest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. And for that cause was Jesus a stablysshar of a better testament.

And amonge them many were made preestes, because they were not suffred to endure by the reason of death. But this man, because he endureth euer, hath āeuer lastynge preesthod. Wherfore he is able also euer to saue thē that cōe vnto God by him, seynge he euer lyueth, to make intercessyon for vs.

Suche

Suche an hye preest it became vs to haue which is holye harmeles/vndefyled, separate from synners, and made hier then heauen, which needeth not dayly (as ponder hye Preestes) to offre vp sacrifice/fyrste for hys owne synnes, and the for the peoples synnes. For that did he at once for all when he offred vp him selfe. For the loue maketh men preestes, which haue infirmitie: but the worde of the othe that came sence the law maketh the sonne preste, which is perfecte for euermore.

Christe ones sacrificed purged al sinnes

¶ The office of Christ in more worthy then the preste s office of the olde lawe, which was vnperfect and therfore abrogate.

¶ The.viii. Chapter

A Of the thinges which we haue spoken this is the pyth: that we haue suche an high preeste that is syten on the ryght hande of the seate of mage.tie in Heauen, and is a minister of holy thinges and of the very tabernacle which God pight and not man. For euerye hye preeste is ordeyned to offer giftes and sacrifices, wherfor it is of necessite that this man haue some what also to offre. For he were not a preeste yf he were on the earth, where are preestes that accordinge to the lawe offer gifB tes/which preestes serue vnto the ensample and shadowe of heauenly thinges: euen as the aunswere of god was geuen vnto Moises, when he was about to fynisshe the tabernacle. Take hede sayde he/that thou make al thinges accordyng to the patrone shewed to thee in the mount.

Now hath he optayned a more excellente office in as muche as he is the mediatour of a better Testamente, whiche was made for better promyses. For if yͤ first Testament had bene fauteles: then C shoulde no place haue bene sought for yͤ second. For in rebukyng them he sayth. Beholde the dayes wyll come (sayth the Lorde) and I will finish vpon the house of Israell, and vpon yͤ house of Juda a new testament: not lyke yͤ testament yͤ I made with theyr fathers at yͤ tyme, whē I toke them by the handes to leade them out of the lande of Egipte/for they continued not in my testament/and I regarded them not sayth the Lorde.

For this was the testament that I wyll make with the house of Israel: After those dayes saith the Lorde: I wyll put my lawes in their myndes, and in their hartes I wyll write them, and I will be their God, and they shal be my people. And D they shal not teache, euery man his neyboure, and euerye man his brother, sayenge: know the Lorde: for they shal know me, from the leest to the most of them: for I wyl be mercyfull ouer their vnrighteousnes, and ouer their sinnes and iniquites. In that he saieth a new testament, he hath abrogat the olde. Nowe yͤ whiche is disanulled and waxed olde, is redy to vanysshe away

¶ The profites and vnprofitnes of yͤ olde testament and how farre the newe excelleth it.

The.ix. Chapter.

That first tabernacle verelye had A ordinaunces, and seruynges of God, and worldly holines. For ther was a fore tabernacle made wherin was the candelstike and ō table and the shew bread which is called holy. But with the seconde vaile was there a tabernacle, which is called holyest of al, which had the golden senser and ō arke of the testament ouerlaide round about with golde, wherin was the golden pot with Manna, and Aarons rodde that sprounge and the tables of the testament. Ouer the arke were the Cherubyns of glory shadowing the seate of grace. Of which thinges we will not now speake particularly.

When these thinges were thus ordeined, the Preestes went al waies into B first tabernacle and executed the seruice of God. But into the seconde wente the hie preest alone, once euery yeare: and not without bloude, whych he offered for hi selfe, and for the ignorannce of the people. Wherby the holy gooll this signified that the way of holy thiges, was not yet opened, while as yet yͤ first tabernacle was standing. Which was a symilitude for the time then present, in which were offered gyftes & sacrifices yͤ coulde not make yͤ minister perfecte, as pertayning to yͤ coscience with only meates & drinkes & diuers washinges and iustifienges of the flesche, which were ordeined vntyl yͤ time of reformacion.

But

But Christ beinge an hye preest of good thinges to comme, came by a greater and a more parfecte tabernacle, not made with handes: that is to saye, not of thys maner buyldyng, neither by the bloud of gotes and calues: but by his awne bloud he entred in once for al into the holy place, & founde eternall redemption. For yͤ bloud of oxen and of gotes and yͤ D ashes of an heyfer, when it was sprinkled, purified the vnclene, as touchynge the purifyinge of the flesche: howe muche more shal the bloud of Christ (which thorow yͤ eternall spyrte, offered him selfe without spot to God) pourge youre consciences from dead workes for to serue the lyuinge God?

And for this cause is he the mediator of the newe testamente, yͤ thorow death which chaunced for the redemption of those transgressyons that were in yͤ fyrst testament, they which were called, might receaue the promes of eternall inheritaunce. For wherseuer is a testamēt, E ther must also be the death of hym that maketh the testament. For the testamēt taketh auctoritie whē men are dead: for it is of no vaine as longe as he yͤ made it, is a lyue. For whyche cause also, neyther that fyrst testamēt was ordened without bloud. For when all the commaundementes were redde of Moses to al yͤ people, he toke the bloud of calues and of gotes, with wāter and purple woolle and isope, and sprinckled both the boke, & al the people/saying: this is the bloude of the testament which God hath appointed vnto you. Moreouer/he sprenF ckled the tabernacle with bloud also, and Exody. xxi. c and. xxiiii. c all the ministringe vessels. And also almost all thynges, are by the lawe pourged with houte, and with out sheadinge of bloud is no remissyon.

It is then nede that the similitudes of heauenly thynges be purifyed with such thinges: but the heauenly thinges thē selues are purified with better sacrifyces then are those. For Christe is not entred into the holy places that are made with handes, which are but similitudes of true thinges: but is entred into very Roman. vi. b. 1 Peter. iii. d heauen, for to appere now in the sight of God for vs: not to offer hym selfe often, as the hye preest entreth into the holy place euery yeare with straunge bloud, for G then must he haue often suffered since yͤ woold began. But now in the ende of yͤ woold, hath he appered once, to put sinne to flyght, by the offeringe vp of him selfe: And as it is apointed vnto men yͤ they shall once dye, and then commeth yͤ iudgement, euē so Christ was once offered to take away the synnes of many, and vnto them that loke for hym, shall he appeare agayne without synne vnto saluacyon.

The olde lawe hath no power to clense away sinne but Christ did it with offering of his body ones for all. An exhortatyon to receyue this goodnes of god thankfully with patience and stedfast faith.

The.x. Chapter.

For the lawe which hath but A yͤ shadowe of good thinges to come, and not the thinges in their awne fassiō can neuer with yͤ sacrifices which they offer yeare by yeare continually, make the commers therunto parfayte. For wold not then those sacrifyces haue ceased to haue bene offered, because that yͤ offerers once purged shulde haue had no more consciences of sinnes. Neuertheles in those sacrifyces is ther mencion made Leuit. xvi. e. of synnes euery yeare. For it is vnpossyble that the bloud of oxen and of gotes shuld take away synnes.

Wherfore when he cōmeth into yͤ worlB de, he sayth. Psal. xxxix. b Sacrifyce and offeringe thou woldest not haue: but a bodie hast thou ordeyned me. In sacrifyces & synne offeringes yͤ hast no lust. Then I sayde: Lo I come, in yͤ chefest of yͤ boke it is writen of me, that I shulde do thy wyll, O God. Aboue, when he had sayd sacrifice and offeringe/& burnt sacrifices and synne offerynges thou woldest not haue nether hast alowed (which yet are offered by the lawe) and then sayde: Lo I come to do thy wyll, O God: he taketh away the fyrst to stablithe the latter. By yͤ which will, we are sanctyfied: by yͤ offeringe of yͤ body of Jesu Christe once Christes body is but ons offered for all.

And euery preest is redy dayly ministrig & ofte times offereth one maner of offerig which cā neuer take away sines: but thys mā after he had offered one sacryC fice for sines, sat hi doune for euer on yͤ right hand of God, and from hence forth tarieth

tarpeth tyll his foes be made his fote stole. For with one offeringe hath he made parfect for euer the that are sanctifyed. And the holy goost also beareth vs recorde of thys, euen when he tolde before: This is the testament that I will make vnto them: after those dayes sayth the Lorde. I wil put my lawes in their hertes, and in their mynde I wyl wryte the, and their synnes and iniquities wyll I remember no moare: And where remissiō of these thinges is/ther is no moare offeringe for synne.

Seynge brethren that by the meanes of the bloud of Iesu, we maye be bolde to enter into that holye place, by ỹ newe and lyuinge waye which he hath prepared for vs, through the vayle, that is to saye, by hys flesshe. And seyng also that we haue an hye preest whiche is ruler ouer the house of God, let vs drawe nye vnto a true herte in a full faith, sprinckeled in oure hertes from an euyl conscience, and washed in our bodies wyth pure water: and let vs kepe the profession of oure hope, with out wauerynge (for he is faithfull that promised) and let vs consider one another, to prouoke vnto loue, and to good workes: and let vs not forsake the felowshyp that we haue amōge oure selues, as the maner of some is: but let vs exhorte one another, and that so much the moare, because ye se that the daye drawethe nye.

For yf we synne willingly after ỹ we haue receaued the knowledge of ỹ truth, ther remaynet hy no moare sacrifice for synnes but a fearfull lokinge for iudgement, and violent fyre, which shall deuoure the aduersaries. He that dispyseth Moses law, dyeth wyth out mercy vnder two or three witnesses. Of howe much sorer punishment suppose ye shal he be counted worthye, whiche treadeth vnder fote the sonne of God: and counteth the bloude of the testamēt as an vnholy thynge wherwyth he was sanctified, and doth dishonoure to ỹ spirite of grace. For we knowe him that hath sayde: vengeaunce belongeth vnto me/ I will recompence sayth ỹ Lorde. And agayne: the Lord shal iudge hys people It is a fearfull thinge to fall into *ỹ handes of the lyuinge God.

Call to remembraunce the dayes that are passed, in the which after ye had receaued light/ye endured a greate fight of aduersities/partly while al me wondred & gased at you for the shame & tribulacion that was done vnto you/and partly while ye become companiōs of them which so passed their time. For ye suffered also wt my bondes, and toke wt ioye the spoilinge of youre goodes, and that with gladnes: knowing in your selues how that ye had in heauen a better and an enduringe substaūce. Cast not awaye therfor your confidēce which hath great reward to recompence. For ye haue nede of pacience, that after ye haue done the will of God, ye myght receaue the promes. For yet a very lytel whyle, and he ỹ shall come wyl come, and wyl not tarye. But the iust shal liue by faith. And if he withdraw him selfe my soule shal haue no pleasure in him. We are not whiche withdraw oure selues vnto dampnacion, but partaine to faith, to the wynnig of the soule.

The.xi. Chapter.

a *Faith is a sure confidence of thinges which are hoped for, & a certaintie of thiges which are not sene. By ỹ elders were wel reported of. Thorow faith we vnderstand that the worlde was ordeined by ỹ word of god ād that thinges which are not sene, were made of thinges which are not sene. By fayth, Abel offered vnto God a moare plenteous sacrifice thē Cain: by which he obtained witnes that he was righteous. God testifienge of his giftes: by whiche also he beinge dead, yet speaketh.

By faith was Enoch translated that he shuld not se death: nether was he founde: for God had taken him awaye. Before he was taken away, he was reported of, ỹ had pleased God: but wout faith it is vnpossible to please hī. For he ỹ cōeth to god must beleue ỹ god is, & ỹ he is a rewarder of them ỹ seke him.

By

By fayth Noe honored God after that he was warned of thinges which were not sene, and prepared the arke to ỹ saueing of his housholde, thorow the which arke, he condempned the worlde, and became heyre of the righteousnes which commeth by fayth.

By faith Abraham/when he was called obeyed/to go oute into a place, which he shuld afterwarde receaue to inheritaunce: and he went out, not knowinge whether he shuld go.

By fayth he remoued into the lande that was promysed him, as into a straunge countre, and dwelt in tabernacles: and so dyd Isaac and Jacob heyres wt him of ỹ same promes. For he loked for a citie hauing a foundacion whose buylder and maker is God.

Thorow fayth Sara also receaued strength to be wt chyld and was deliuered of a childe when she was past age, because she iudged him faithful which had promysed.

And therfore spraunge therof, one (& of one which was as goodas deed) so many in multitude, as ỹ starres of the skye, and as the sond of the see shore which is innumerable.

And they all dyed in fayth, and receaued not the promyses: but saw thē a farre of, and beleued them and saluted thē and confessed that they were straungers, and pilgrems on the earthe. They that saye soch thynges declare ỹ they seke a countre. Also yf they had bene mynd full of that countre, from whence they came oute, they had leasure to haue returned agayne: but now they desyre a better, that is to say a heauenly. Wherfore God is not ashamed of them euen to be called their god: for he hath prepared for them a cyte.

By faith Abraham offered vp Isaac, when he was tempted, ād he offered him beinge hys only begotten sonne, which had receaued the promyses of whom it was sayde, in Isaac shall thy seed be called: for he consydered that God was able to rayse it vp agayn frō deeth. Therfore receaued he him, for an ensample. In fayth Isaac blessed Jacob & Esau, concerninge thinges to come.

*By fayth Jacob when he was a dienge blessed bothe the sonnes of Joseph, and bowed hym selfe towarde the toppe of his scepter.

By fayth Joseph when he dyed/ remembred the departinge of the childrē of Israell, and gaue commaundemente of hys bones.

*By fayth Moses when he was borne, was hyd thre moneths of hys father and mother, because they saw he was a proper Chylde: nether feared they the kynges commaundement.

By fayth Moses when he was great, refused to be called the sōne of Pharaos doughter/and chose rather to suffre aduersitie wyth the people of God, then to enioy the pleasures of synne for a season, and esteamed the rebuke of Cryste greater riches then the treasure of Egipte. For he had respecte vnto the rewarde.

By fayth he forsoke Egipte and feared not the fearcenes of the kynge. For he endured euen as he hadde seane hym which is inuisyble.

*Thorowe fayth he ordeyned the easter lambe, and the effusion of bloud, leaste he that destroyed the fyrste borne, shoulde touche them.

*By fayth they passed thorowe the reade sea, as by drye lande, which when the Egipcians had assayed to doo, they were drowned.

*By fayth the walles of Jericho fell downe after they were compassed about seuen dayes.

*By fayth the harlot Raab perished not wyth the vnbeleuers, when she had receaued the spyes to lodging peasibly.

And what shall I moare saye, the time wolde be to short for me to tel of Gedeon, Barach and of Sampson, and of Jephthae: also of Dauid and Samuell, and of the Prophetes: Which thorow fayth subdued kingdomes, wroght righteousnes/obtayned the promyses, stopped the mouthes of lyons, quenched the violence of fyre, escaped the edge of the swearde/ of weake were made strōg, waxed valiant in fyght, turned to flight the armyes of the aliantes. And the wemen receaued theyr deade, raysed to lyfe agayne.

Other were racked, and wolde not be delyuered/that they might receaue a better relurrectiō. Other tasted of mockinges, and scourginges, moreouer of bondes and preslonnemente: were stoaned, were hewen asunder, were tempted, were slayne with swerdes, walcked vp & downe in shepes skinnes, in gote skinnes, in nede, tribulacion and veration, which ỹ world was not, worthy of: they wandred in wyldernes, in mountaynes, in dennes and caues of the earth.

a ✻ Fayth and truste in Christ onely is the lyfe and quietnes of the conscience and not trust in workes, how holy soeuer they apeare: workes can not set the hert at rest because we euer thincke they be not enow nor yet good enow, but to fearwe, and so falle we to mistrusting, after which, folowith dispayring and so dampnation, yf we leaue not the cōfidence i them, and sticke to fayth, which can receaue beleue without mystrust that Christes workes on ỹ crosse hath fully purged clensed vs & reconsiled vs to al ouer sinnes

☞ An erthortacio to be patient & stedfast in trobles & aduersitie: vpon hope of euerlasting rewarde. & to mend ourselues in the new testament aboue the olde.

¶ The.xii. Chapter.

Wherfore let vs also (seinge that wee are compassed wt soo greate a multytude of witnesses) laye awaye all ỹ presseth downe, and the synne that hangeth on, and let vs runne wt pacyence vnto the battel that is set before vs, lokinge vnto Jesus the auctour and finisher of our fayth, whiche for the ioye that was set before hym, abode the crosse, & despised ỹ shame, & is set downe on the right hande of the trone of god. Consider therfore how that he endureth suche speakinge against hym of sinners, lesse ye shoulde be weeried and fainte in your myndes. For ye haue not yet resisted vnto bloudshedinge, striuing against synne/and haue forgoten the consolacyon/whiche speaketh vnto you as vnto Children/my sonne despise not the chastenynge of the Lorde, neythere fainte when thou art rebuked of hym, for whome the Lorde loueth, him hee ✻ chastneth: ye and he scourgeth euerye sonne that he receaueth.

If ye endure chastenynge, God offereth hym selfe vnto you as vnto sonnes. What sonne is that whō the father chasteneth not? If ye be not vnder correctiō (where of all are partakers) then are ye bastardes and not sonnes. Moreouer seynge we had fathers of our flesh whiche corrected vs, ād we gaue them reuerence: shulde we not much rathere bee in subiection vnto ỹ father of spretual gifte that we might liue? and they verely for a fewe dayes, nurtered vs after their owne pleasure: but he learneth vs vnto that which is profitable, that we might receaue of his holines. No maner chastysing for the present tyme seineth to be ioyous, but greuous: neuertheles afterward, it bringeth the quiet frute of righteweslues, vnto them whiche are therin exercysed.

Stretch forthe therfor againe the hāds whych were let doune, and the weake knees and se that ye haue straight steppes vnto your fete/lest eny halting turne you out of the waye: yee let it rather be healed. Embrace peace wt al men and holynes: with out the which no man shal see the Lorde. And loke to, that no man be destitute of the grace of God, & that no rote of bitternes springe vp ād trouble, and therby manye bee defyled: & that ther be no fornicatour/or vncleane person, as Esau, which for one brekfast sold his byrthryght. ✻ a Ye know how that after warde when he wolde haue inhereted ỹ blessynge, he was put by, and he founde no meanes to come thereby agayne: no though hee desyred it with teares.

✻ For ye are not come vnto ỹ mounte that can be touched, and vnto burninge fyre nor yet to myste and darcknes and tempest of wedder, neither vnto the sound of a trompe and the voyce of wordes, whiche voyce they that hearde it, wished awaye: that the communicacyō should not be spoke to the. For they were not able to abyde ỹ which was spoke. If a beast had touched ỹ mountaine, it must haue bene stoned, or thrust thorowe wt a dart: euen so terryble was the syght which appered. Moyses sayd, I feare & quake. But ye are come vnto the mount Sion & to ỹ citie of the liuinge god, the celestiall Jerusalē: & to an innumerable sight of angels & vnto the cōgregacio of ỹ firste bozne sonnes, which are writtē i heauē ād to God the iudge of al, and to ỹ spretes of iust and parfecte men, and to Jesus the mediatour of the new testament, and to the sprinckling of bloude ỹ speaketh better then the bloud of Abel.

See that ye dysspyse not him that speaketh. For yf they escaped not which refused hym that spake on earth: moch more shall we not escape, yf we turne awaye frō him that speaketh frō heauen: whose voyce then shouke the earth, and now declareth sayinge: yet once more will I make, not the earth only/but also heauē. No dout that same that he saith, yet once more, sygnifyeth the remouyng away of those thinges whiche are shaken, as of thinges which haue ended their course: that the thinges whiche are not shaken, may remayne.

Wherfor if we receaue a kingdome which is not moued we haue grace, wherby we maye serue god and please hym with reuerence and godly feare. For our god is consumynge fyre.

The notes.

a ✻ This text maketh not against repentaunce that is done in season. Esau repented to late, and therfore profited not. When sentence of iudgement is geuen then hath repentance no place. The dampned in hell shal wepe and repent, but in vayn: for then is ỹ tyme of repentinge paste. The blessynge whych Isaac gaue was vndoubted, done by the inspyratiō of the holy goost, & geuen in steade of a determynat sentence, and therfore must needes be ratyfyed and might not be called agayne, but and if Esau before the blessing geuen had chaunged hys maners & had hertely & earnestly repēted hym, he had surely not bene reproued of God. This shoulde seame to be ỹ very meaning of thys texte. And verely Erasmus maketh a like exposycion hereof in hys Paraphrasis. He exhorteth vs vnto loue, to hospitality, to thynke vpon such as be in aduersite, to maintayn wedlocke to auoyde couetousnes, to make moch of them ỹ preache gods worde, to beware of straunge learninge, to be content to suffer rebuke with Christ, to be thākeful vnto god, and obedient vnto our heades.

The.xiii. Chapter. ✣

Let brotherly loue cōtinue. Be not forgetful to lodge straungers. For therby haue diuers receaued angels into their houses vnwares. Remember them that are in bōdes, & rue as though ye were bounde wt them. Be mindefull of the which are in aduersitie, as ye which are yet in your bodies. Let wedlock be had in peace in all poyntes, and let the chamber be vndefiled, for whore keepers and aduoutrers God will iudge. Let youre conuersacyon be wt out couetousnes and be contente with ỹ ye haue all readye.

For he verely sayde: ✻ I will not fayle thee, nether forsake thee: that we maye boldely saye, the Lorde is my helper, ād I will not feare what man doeth vnto me. Remembre them whiche haue the ouersight of you, which haue declared vnto you the word of God, the end of whose conuersacion see that ye loke vppon, and folowe theyr faith.

Jesus Christe yesterdaye and to day and the same continueth for euer. ✣

✻ Be not caryed about with dyuers and straunge learning. For it is a good thinge that the hert be stablished with grace and not with meates whiche haue not profited them that haue had theyr pastyme in them. We haue an auster wher of they maye not eate which serue in the tabernacle. ✻ For the bodyes of those beastes whose bloude is broughte into the holy place by the hye preest, to purge sinne, are burnt wout the tētes. Therfore Jesus, to sanctifye the people with his owne bloud, suffered wout the gate. Let vs go forth therfore out of the tētes, and suffre rebuke with him, for here haue we no continuinge Citye: but wee seke one to come.

For by hym offer we the sacrifyce of laude alwayes to god that is to saye, ỹ frute of those lippes which confesse his name. To do good and to distribut forget not, for wyth suche sacrifices god is pleased. ✣ ✻ Obeye them, that haue the ouersight of you, submytte your selues to them, for they watch for your soules, euen as they that muste geue accompte that they maye do it with ioye, and not with grefe. For that is an vnprofitable thinge for you, praye for vs. Wee haue confidēce because we haue a good conscience in al thinges, and desyre to liue honestly, I desyre you therfor somwhat the more abounduantlye, that ye so do that I may be restored to you quickly.

The god of peace that brought agayn from death our lorde Jesus, the greate shepherde of the shepe thorow the bloud of the euerlastinge testament, make you perfecte in all good workes, to do hys wyl, worcking in you, that which is pleasaunt in his syght thorow Jesus Christ.

To

To whome be prayse for euer whyle the worlde endureth: Amen. ✠

I beseche you brethren, suffer ỹ wordes of exhortacyon: for we haue written vnto you in feawe wordes: know ỹ brother Timothe, whom we haue sent frō vs, with whom (if he come shortely) I wyl se you. Salute them that haue the ouerlight of you, & al ỹ saīctes. They of Italy salute you. Grace be with you all: Amen.

¶ The Epistle of Sayncte James.

¶ He exhorteth to reioyce in trouble, to be feruente in prayer with stedfast beleue, to loke for al good thinges from aboue, to forsake al vyce, & thankfully to receaue the worde of god, not onely hearynge it & speakynge of it, but to doo therafter in dede. True religion & deuocyon what it is.

The. first. Chapter.

a JAmes the seruaunt of God & of the lorde Jesus Christ, sendeth greetynge to the .xii. trybes whiche are scattered here ād there. ✠ My brethrē counte it exceadynge ioye when ye fal into diuers temptacions for as muche as ye knowe how that the tryenge of your faith bringeth pacience: and let pacience haue her perfecte worke, that ye maye be perfecte & sounde, lacking nothing.

If any of you lacke wisdom, let hym aske of God which geueth to al men indifferently, and casteth no man in ỹ teth and it shalbe geuen hym. But let hym aske in faith and wauer not. For he that douteth is lyke the waaues of the sea, tost with the winde and caryed with violence: Nether let that man thinke that he shal receaue any thing of the lord. A waueringe minded man is vnstable in al his b wayes. b* Let the brother of lowe degree reioyce in that he is exalted, and the rich in that he is made lowe. For euen as the floure of the grasse shal he vanish awaye. The sunne riseth with heate, and the grasse withereth, and his flower falleth away, and the bewte of the fashion of it perisheth: euen so shall the riche man perish with his aboundaunce.

Happye is the man that endureth in temptacion, for whē he is tryed, he shal receaue the crowne of lyfe, whiche the Lorde hath promised to them that loue hym. ✠

Let no man saye when he is tempted that he is tempted of God. For* God tempteth not vnto euell, neythere tempteth he any man. But euerye man is tempted, drawne awaye, and entised of his owne concupiscence. Then when lust hath conceaued, she bringeth forth sinne, and sinne when it is fynished bringeth forth death.

Erre not my deare brethren. ✠ Euery good gifte, and euery perfect gift is from aboue and commeth downe frō the father of lyghte with whome is no variablenes, nether is he chaunged vnto darcknes. Of his owne wyll begat he vs with the worde of lyfe, that we should be the first frutes of his creatures.

Wherfore deare brethren, let euery man, be swift to heare, slow to speake and slowe to wrath. For the wrathe of man, worketh not that which is righteous before god.

Wherfore laye apart al filthines, al superfluite of malicyousnes, ād receaue with mekenes the worde that is graffed in you, which is able to saue youre soules. ✠

And se that ye be doers of the worde and not hearers onely, deceauing your owne selues with sophistrye. For if any heare the worde, and doo it not, hee is lyke vnto a man that beholdeth his bodylye face in a glasse. For as sone as he hath looked on him selfe he goeth his waye and forgetteth immediatlye what his fashion was. But who so loketh in the perfecte lawe of lybertie, and continueth therin (if he be not a forgetful hearer but a doar of the worcke) ỹ same shalbe happy in his dede.

If any man amonge you seme deuout, and refrayne not his tonge: but deceaue hys owne hert, thys mānes deuocyō is in vaine. Pure deuocyō & vndefiled before god ỹ father, is this: to visit the fatherles and widdowes in their aduersite, and to kepe hym self vnspotted of the world.

The notes

a* Sound after the hebrues signifyeth hym, which inlaweng the worldome of the chyldren of this worlde, ād the procuring for his owne profet, lyueth alimpis lyke, and without blame. Suche a one was Jacob of whome Genes. xxv. d:

b* In Christ were all lyke good and euen seruauntes eche to other for Christes sake, euery man in his office. And he that taketh more on hym then that of whatsoeuer degre he be of, is a false Christen and an apostata from Christ.

c* God tempteth not vnto euell. Almighty god hath euer tempted, and proued hys electe, by trouble & persecution, and by muttering them wyth outward plages: neuer ỹles he doth it not vnto euel, but for good namely, because he loueth them, and will haue their faith exercised. Thus tempted he Abraham. Genes. xxii. And the Israelytes. Deu. viii. As for the temptation that we pray in the Pater noster to be delyuered from it is the lust and concupiscense of our flesh, wherby we are entised vnto euell.

Che forbydeth to haue any respecte of persōs, but to regarde ỹ poore, as well as the ryche, to be louinge & mercyful, and not to boaste of fayth where no dedes are: for it is but a dead fayth, where good workes follow not.

The. ii. Chapter.

BRethrē haue not the faith of oure Lorde Jesus Christ ỹ Lorde of glory i respecte of persones. If ther come into youre company a man wt a golden rynge and in goodly aparell, and ther come in also a poore man in vyle rayment, and ye haue a respecte to hym ỹ weareth the gaye clothing, and saye vnto him. Syt thou here in a good place: and saye vnto the poore, stande ỹ there or sit here vnder my fote stoll: are ye not parciall in youre selues, and haue iudged after euyll thoughtes.

Harken my deare beloued brethren. Hath not God chosen the poore of this worlde, which are ryche in fayth, & heyres of the kingdome whych he promysed to them that loue hym. But ye haue despysed the poore. Are not ỹ rych they which oppresse you, and they which drawe you before iudges. Do not they speake euil of that good name after which ye be named.

If ye fulfyll the royall lawe accordynge to the scripture which saith. Thou shalt loue thie neyghboure as thy selfe, ye do well. But yf ye regarde one person more then annother, ye commyt synne, & are rebuked of ỹ lawe, as transgressours. Whosoeuer shal kepe the whole lawe, & yet fayle in one poynt, he is giltie in all. For he that sayd. Thou shalte not commyt aduiterye, sayd also: thou shalt not kyll.

Though thou do none aduiterye, yet yf thou kyll, thou arte a transgressor of the lawe. So speake ye, ād so do, as they that shalbe iudged by the lawe of libertye. For ther shalbe iudgement merciles to him that sheweth no mercy, ād mercy reioyseth agaynst iudgement. ✠

What auayleth it my brethren, though a man saye he hath fayth, when he hath no dedes? & Cā fayth saue him? If a brother or a sister be naked or destitute of dayly foode, ād one of you saye vnto them: departe in peace, god send you warmnes ād foode: not withstandinge ye gene thē not those thinges which are nedful to the body: what helpeth it? Euen so fayth, yf it haue no dedes, is dead in it selfe.

Ye and a man might saie: thou hast fayth, & I haue dedes: shew me thi faith, by thy dedes: and I wil shewe ỹ my faith by my dedes: Beleuest thou that ther is one God? Thou doest wyll. The deuils also beleue and tremble.

Wilt thou vnderstande O ỹ vayne man that fayth without dedes is dead? b* Was not Abraham oure father iustified throw workes whē he offered Isaac his sonne vpon the aulter? thou seyste that faythe wroughte wyth hys dedes, and through the dedes was the fayth made perfect: & the scripture was fulfylled whych sayeth: Abraham beleued God, and it was reputed vnto hym for righteweines, and he was called ỹ frende of God. ✠ Ye se then how that of dedes a man is iustified and not of fayth only. Like wise also was not Raaly harlot iustified throw workes, whē she receaued ỹ messengers, & sent them out another way? For as the body, without the spirite is dead, euen so fayth without dedes is dead.

The notes

a* Can sayth Sane hym: S. James speaketh not here of true fayth, which by loue is mighty in operacyon, but of the vayne ymagination and opynyon of vnthankful people haue of fayth, and therfore doth he call it dead fayth, because there are folowe no good workes of it, as there do of the fayth that iustifieth in the syght of god.

b* To be iustified here, and all thys Chapter ouer is, to be declared iust, and that before the world, as in Luke the. vii. And the. xviii, not to be made iuste in the syght of god. So that when he sayth, was not Abraham our father iustifyed thrugh workes, &c. signifyeth thus much: was not oure Father Abraham by his workes declared iust, that is, did not his workes declare and shew that he was iust, and were sure tokens of hys ryghtwousnes. It signifyeth not that Abraham, was by hys workes made iust before god, reputed rightuous, obtayned remission of sinnes, for by fayth he came thereby, not by workes, as wytnesseth sayne Paul. Rom. iiii. a.

c* Yese then that of dedes a man is iustifyed, &c, that is, is declared iust, is openly knowen to be rightuous: lyke as by the frutes, the good tree is knowen for good. Other wyse maye not thys sentence be interpreted. For there cou'de nothing be moare folysh the this sayinge of sainct James, if a man would thus interprete it: that no man obtayneth remyssyon of synnes: but because hys workes are worthye of so great a benefyt. This interpretacion who so seyeth forwardly by, vnderstandeth not what remyssion of synnes, is, or how the conscience ought to be comforted when it seyth that it bringeth no workes to god, which are sufficient to please hym. And this interpretacion is cleane contrary to other open sayynges of the scripture, which teache that remyssyō of synnes commeth freely: as the Psalmyst sayeth. I sayde, I wyll knowledge myne offence and accuse my selfe vnto the Lord. And thou forgauest me the wickednes of my sinne. And Rom. iiii. a. To hym that worcketh not but beleueth on hym that iustifyeth ỹ vngodly &c. what can be moze playnely spoken, than that sinnes are forgeuen to a wicked and vngodlye manne that worketh not, that is, not for any of his workes but freely. To conclude, if the gospell forgeue not sinnes but for our good workes takes for our worthines: it differeth nothing from the lawe/ it saueth no moze then the lawe. This I truste wyll suffice the good and wyse. For as touchinge them ỹ bring nothing vnto this cause, but a wyll to braule and chyde, wyll neuer suffre them selues to be satisfied. And yet yf we wold contende by the numbre of aucthorities, this one place of saint James is ouer throwen with many wytnesses of Paul, if men will vnderstande by iustification al one thynge in them both. Therfore when Paule sayth, sayth iustifieth vnderstand therby, sayth causeth ỹ we be counted iust, reputed rightwes, and ỹ oure sinnes are not imputed vnto vs, but forgeuen vs for Christes sake. When James sayth, ỹ workes iustifyeth, he meaneth thus, workes declare vs iuste and shew euidently ỹ we are rightwes. Thus shalt thou make them accord. Place faith vnto me here (O reader) rather then eyne or will, elles yet wolde I haue spoken moze of thys thing.

¶ What good and euil commeth thorow ỹ tonge. The dutie of such as be lerned. The difference betwene ỹ wildome of ỹ Gospell and ỹ wysdome of the worlde.

¶ The. iii. Chapter

MY brethren, be not euery man a *master remembringe how that we shal receaue the more damnation: for in many thynges we sinne al. If a man sinne not in worde, the same is a parfecte man, and able to tame al the body. Beholde we put bittes into the horses mouthes that they shoulde obeye vs, and we turne about al the body. Beholde also the shyppes, which though they be so great, and are dryuen of feare winde, yet are they turned aboute with a very smal helme/ whither soeuer the violence of the gouernor will. Euen so the tonge is a litel member, and boasteth great thinges.

Beholde how great a thinge a litle fyre stndleth, and the tonge is fire, and a world of wickednes. So is ỹ tong set amonge oure membres, that it defyleth the whole body, and setteth a fyre all ỹ we haue of nature, & is it selfe set a fyre euen of hell.

All the natures of beastes, and of birdes, and of serpentes, and thinges of the sea are meked and tamed of the nature of man. But the tonge can no man tame. It is a vnruely euil, ful of deadly poyson. Therwith blesse we god ỹ father, & therwith curse we men which are made after the similitude of god. Out of one mouth proceadeth blessinge and cursinge. My brethren these thynges ought not so to be. Doth a fountaine send forth at one place swete water and bitter also? Can ỹ figge tre, my brethren, beare olyue berries: other a vine beare figges. So can no fountaine geue both salte water and fresh also. If any man be wise & endued w learning amonge you let him shew ỹ workes of his good conuersacion, in meknes that is coupled with *wisdome. But if ye haue bitter enuying & strife in your hertes, reioyce not: nether be lyers against ỹ truth: this wisdō descendeth not from aboue: but is earthy, & *natural, & deuelish. For where enuieng & strife is, there is vnstablenes & al maner of euell workes. But ỹ wysdō ỹ is frō aboue, is first pure, then peasable, gentle, & easy to be entreated, ful of mercy & good frutes without iudging, & without simulation or ye, & ỹ frute of rightwesnes is sowen in peace, of them that maynteine peace.

Keepeth is all that a man doth without the spirit of God.

*Be that taketh aucthoritie to rebuke other of ỹ wherin he sinneth hym selfe, ỹ same shall haue the greater dampnacyon. He must be without synne ỹ wyll caste the fyrst stone.

*wisdom. It meknes & obeydence must be acoyded vnto the wysdome and worde of god.

Warre and fighting commeth of voluptuousnes. The frendship of the worlde is enmyte before God. An exhortacyon to flie sclaunder and the vanyte of thys lyfe.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

FRom whence cōmeth warre and fighting amōg you: cōe they not here hence, euen of your voluptuousnes, ỹ raigne in youre membres. Ye lust, and haue not. Ye enuy and haue in dignacion, and cannot obtayne. Ye fighte and warre and haue not, because ye aske not. Ye aske and receaue not, be cause ye aske a mysse: euen to consume it vpō your voluptuousnes. Ye aduoutrers, and women that breake matrymonye: knowe ye not howe that the frendship of the world is enmyte to godward? Whosoeuer will be a frende of ỹ world, is made the enemy of god. Ether do ye thinke that the scripture sayth i vayne, The *spyryte that dwelleth in you, lusteth euen contrary to enuye: but geueth more grace.

Submyt your selues to god, and resist the deuil, and he wil flye from you. Drawe nie to God and he wil drawe nie to you. Clense your handes ye sinners, & pourge youre hertes ye wauering mynded. Suffer afflictiōs, sorowe ye & wepe. Let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your ioye to heuines. Cast doune your selues before the Lord, and he shal lifte you vp. Backbite not one a nother, brethren. He ỹ *backbiteth his brother, & he that iudgeth his brother backbiteth ỹ lawe. But and if thou iudge the lawe, thou arte not an obseruar of the lawe: but a iudge. There is one lawe geuer, which is able to saue & to destroye. What arte thou that iudgeste a nother man.

Go to nowe ye that sayen: to daie and to morow let vs go in to suche a citie and continue there a yeare and bie and sel, & winne: and yet can not tel what shal happen to morowe.

Of S. James

For what thinge is youre lyfe? It is euen a vapour that apereth for a lytell tyme, and then vanissheth away: for ỹ ye oughte to saye: yf the Lorde will and yf we lyue, let vs do t his or ỹ. But now ye reioyce in your boastynges. All suche reioysynge is euyll. *Therfore to him ỹ knoweth how to do good, & doth it not, to hym it is synne.

The notes,

Christes spirite (which is in all that be his, Roma. viii.) resisteth hate, enuye and all sinne, whose motion if we folowe: grace increaseth in vs, and lustes minishe. and therfore he sayth submit youre selues to god.

*He that backbiteth or iudgeth hys brother doth ỹ same to the law to be euell for the law forbiddeth to do so.

*He that knoweth and yet doth not is without excuse. For god hath promised no mercye, but to hym that wyll do his godly wyll.

¶ He threateneth the wicked riche men, exhorteth vnto patience, to beware of swearinge, one to knowledge his faultes to another, one to pray for another, & one to labour to bringe another to ỹ truethe.

¶ The. v. Chapter

GO to now ye ryche me. Wepe, and howle on your wretchednes that shal come vpon you. Youre ryches is corrupte, youre garmentes are moth eaten. Youre golde and youre syluer are cāker'd, & the rust of them shal be a wytnes vnto you, & shall eate you re flesh as it were fyre. Ye haue heaped treasure to gether in youre last dayes. Behold ỹ hyre of the labourers which haue reped doune youre feldes (which hyre is of you kept backe by fraude) crieth: and the cries of them which haue reped, are entred vnto the eares of ỹ Lord Sabbaoth. Ye haue lyued in pleasure on the earth & in wantonnes. Ye haue norysshed youre hertes, as in a daye of *slaughter. Ye haue condemned and haue killed the iust and he hath not resysted you.

*Be pacient therfore brethren, vnto the commynge of the Lord. Beholde ỹ husband man wayteth for the precious frute of the earth, & hath long pacience ther vppon, vntyll he receue *the early and the latter rayne. Be ye also pacient therfore and settle your hertes, for the commynge of the Lorde draweth nye. Grudge not one against another brethren, lest ye be dampned. Beholde the iudge standeth before ỹ dore. Take (mi brethren) ỹ Prophetes for an ensample of suffering aduersitie, & of long pacience, which spake in the name of the Lorde.

Beholde we counte them happy which endure. Ye haue hearde of the pacience of Job, and haue knowen what ende ỹ Lorde made. For the Lord is very pitifull and mercyfull.

But aboue al thinges my brethrē, sweare not, neither by heauen, neither by earth, neither by eny other othe. Let youre * yee be yee, & your naye, naye: lest ye faule into ypocrysy. If any of you be euell vsed, let hym praye. If any of you be merye, let him synge Psalmes. If any be diseased amonge you, let hym cal for the congregatiō, & let thē pray ouer hi, & anoynte hi with oyle in the name of the Lorde: and * the prayer of fayth shal saue the sycke, and the Lorde shal rayse him vp: and yf he haue cōmytted synnes, they shalbe forgeuen hym.

+ Knowlege your faultes one to another: ād praye one for another, that ye may be healed. The praier of a righteous man auaileth much if it be feruent. Helias was a man mortal euen as we are, & he prayed in his prayer that it might not rayne: and it rained not on ỹ earthe by the space of thre yeares and sixe monethes. And he prayed againe, and ỹ heauen gaue raine, and the earth broughte forth her frutes.

Brethren if any of you erre from the trueth and another conuert him, let the same knowe that he which conuerteth ỹ synner from goynge a straye out of hys waye, shal saue a soule from death, and shal hyde the multitude of sinnes.

¶ The ende of the epistle of Saincte James.

The notes,

* Slaughter as when men kyll beastes to make theyr wyth all, and as the Iewes did in theyr thankesofferinges &c.

* Two speciall raynes haue they, the one at sowinge tyme, & the other at blomynge tyme, of which if they lacke either, all is frutelesse.

* Whether ye saye ye or naye: se it be so. For yf yee haue one thinge in the herte, and another in the mouth or dede, in vesture or gesture: it is ypocrisye or dissimulacyon.

a * And the prayer of faith &c. Vnto the prayer of fayth ascribeth he the obtaynynge and saluacīō, not vnto the anoynting nor to the oyle, among those nacions vnto which S. Iames wrote thys epistle, it was the maner to anointe the body with oyle, which thing Christ cōmaundeth his apostles to do: oyle, vnto many diseases, is a wholsome medicine. We, wher such annointing is not in vse, may vnder ỹ name of oyle, vnderstand the office & dutie of charite in ministryng vnto ỹ sicke, such thinges as he requyreth.

The Epistle of Saincte Judas.

¶ He rebuketh such as being blynded wt their owne lustes, receyue not the truth ỹ we maye know them the better, he saith they be such as sinne beastlye against nature, & despise rulers &c. He exhorteth vs to edifye one an other to pray in the holy goste to kepe vs in loue to loke for the comynge of the Lorde, & to helpe ano ther out of the fyre.

IUdas the seruaūt of Jesus Christ, ỹ brother of James. To them which are called & sanctified in god the father, ād preserued in Jesu Christ.

Mercy vnto you and peace and loue be multiplyed.

Beloued, when I gaue al dilygence to write vnto you of the commen saluacyon: it was needfull for me to write vnto you, to exhorte you, that ye shuld continually labour in the fayth which was ones geuen vnto the saīctes. For there are certayne crafftely crepte in, of whiche it was written afore tyme vnto such iudgemene. They are vngodly and turne ỹ grace of our Lorde god vnto wantonnes, and denye god the onely Lord, and our Lorde Jesus Christ.

My mynde is therfor to put you in remembraunce, for as muche as ye ones knowe this howe that the Lorde (after that he had delyuered the people out of Egipt) * destroyed thē which afterward beleued not. The angels also, which kepte not their first estate: but lefte their owne habitacion, he hath reserued i euer lastinge chaines vnder darcknes vnto the iudgement of the great daye: * euen as Sodome and Gomor, and the cytyes about them (which in lyke maner defyled them selues with fornicacyon, and followed * straunge flesshe) are set forth for an ensample, and suffre the vengeaunce of eternal fyre. Lykewise these dremers defyle the flesh, despise rulers and speake euell of them that are in auctorite.

Yet Michael the Archangel when he stroue agaynste the deuill, and disputed about the bodye of Moyses, durste not geue rayling sentence: but sayd: the lorde rebuke thee. But these speake euell of those thinges which they knowe not: & what what thinges they knowe naturally, as beastes which are wout reason, in those thiges they corrupt thē selues. Woo be vnto thē, for they haue folowed ỹ waye of Balam for lukers sake, * and perysh in the treason of Core.

These are spottes which of youre kindnes feast to gether, wyth out feare, fedynge thē selues. Cloudes they are wout water, caryed about of wynde, and trees wout frute at gadrige time, twyse dead ād plucked vp by the rotes. They are the the ragyng waues of the sea, fomynge out their awne shame. They are wauoringe starres to whom is reserued the myst of darcknes for euer.

Enoch ỹ seuenth from Adam prophecied before of suche, sayinge. * Beholde, the Lorde shall come wyth thousandes of saynctes, to geue iudgement agaynst all men, and to rebuke all that are vngodly among them of al their vngodly dedes, which they haue vngodly cōmitted, and of all their cruell speakynges, which vngodly synners haue spoke agaynst hym.

These are murmurers, complayners, walkynge after their awne lustes, whose mouths speake proude thynges. They haue men i greate reuerence because of aduantage. But ye beloued, remember the wordes which were spoken before of the Apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, howe ỹ they tolde you * that there shuld be begilers in ỹ last time which shulde walke after their awne vngodly lustes. These are makers of sectes fleshlie, hauynge no spirite.

But ye derlye beloued, edifye youre selues in youre moste holy fayth, prayīng in the holy goste, and kepe your selues in loue of God, lokyng for the mercy of oure Lord Jesus Christ, vnto eternall life. And haue compassion of some (separatynge them: and other saue with feare, pullynge them out of the fyre and hate the fylthy vesture of the flesshe.

Vnto him that is able to kepe you ỹ ye faule not, an to present you faultlesse before the presence of his glory wt ioye, that is to saye, to God oure saueoure, which only is wyse, be glorye, maiestie, dominion, and power, now and for euer.

Amen.

The Reuelacion

of saīct John the deuine.

¶ Happie are they ỹ heare the worde of God and kepe it. He writeth to ỹ seuen congregations in Asia, saith seuen candelsticks, & in ỹ middest of them one like vnto ỹ sonne of man.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

THe reuelacion of Jesus Christe, which God gaue vnto hi, for to shew vnto his seruauntes thinges which must shortlye come to passe. * And he sent & shewed bi his āgel vnto his seruaūt John, which bare recorde of the worde of God, and of the testamony of Jesus Christ, & of al thinges that he sawe. Happy is hee ỹ that readith, ād they that heare the wordes of the prophesy, and kepe those thinges which are written therin. For ỹ time is at hand.

John to the. vii. congregacyons in Asia. Grace be wyth you and peace, frō him which is and which was, and which is to come, and frō the. vii. spretes which are present before his trone, and frō Jesus Christ which is a faithful witnes, & fyrst begotten of the dead: and Lorde ouer the kinges of the earth. Vnto hym that * loued vs, ād washed vs from sinnes in his owne bloude, & made vs kinges and prestes vnto god his father, ỹ glory and dominion for euermore. Amen. * Beholde he cōmeth wt claudes, and al eyes see him: and they also which pierced him. And al kynredes of ỹ earth shal waile. Euen so: Amen. I am * Alpha ād Omega, the beginnig and ỹ endinge, sayth the Lorde almighty, which is and which was ād which is to come.

I John youre brother and compaīon in tribulacion, ād in the kingdome and presence whiche is in Jesu Christe, was in ỹ yle of Pathmos for ỹ worde of God, & for the witnessig of Jesu Christ. I was in the spirite on a sonday, & herd behind me a greate voice, as it had bene of a trompet sayeng: I am Alpha and Omega, the fyrst and the laste. That ỹ ceiste wrytte in a boke, & sende it vnto ỹ vii congregacions which are in Asya vnto Epheſus, and vnto Smyrna, and vnto Thiatira, and vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicia.

And I turned backe to see the voyce that spake vnto mee. And when I was turned, I sawe seuen golden candelstikes, and in the middeſt of the candelstikes one lyke vnto the sonne of mā, clothed with a lynen garment, downe to the grounde, and gird about the pappes with a golden girdle. His head and hys heares were whyte, as whyte wolle, and as snowe: and hys eyes were as a flamme of fyre, and his feete like vnto brasse, as though they brenne in a fornace: and hys voyce as the sounde of manye waters. And he had in hys righte hand, vii starres. And out of hys mouthe wente a sharpe two edged sword. And hys face shone euen as the sunne in hys strength.

And when I sawe hym, I fell at hys feete, euē as dead. And he layd his right hande vpon me, sayinge vnto me feare not, I am the first and the laſte, and am alyue, and was dead. And behold I am alyue for euermore, and haue the keys of hel and of death. Wryte therfore the thinges which thou haſt seene, and ỹ thinges whiche are, and the thinges whiche shalbe fulfylled hereafter: and the mysterye of the. vii. starres which thou sawest in my right hande. And the seauen golden candelstickes. The. vii. starres are the messengers of the vii. congregacions, and the vii. candelstickes whiche thou sawest are the seuen congregaciōs.

a ✻ Alpha and Omega are letters of the greke crosse rowe. Alphā is the fyrſt letter and Omega ỹ laſte. ¶ Beholdeth foure congregations to amend, and sheweth the rewarde of hym that ouercommeth.

¶ The .ii. Chapter

Vnto the messenger of the cōgregacion of Epheſus, write these thinges, sayth he ỹ holdeth the seuen starres in hys righte hande, and walketh in the myddes of the seuen golden candelstickes: I know thy workes and thy labour, and thy pacience, & how thou canst not forbeare them whyche are euel, and examinedſte them which say they are Apoſtles, and are not: and haſte found them liers and diddeſt waste thy selfe. And haſte pacience: and for my names sake haſt laboured and haſt not fainted. Neuertheles I haue sum what against thee, for thou haſt left the first loue. Remember therfore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first workes. Or elles I will come vnto thee shortly, and will remoue thy candelstike out of hys place, except thou repent. But this ỹ haſt because thou hatest the dedes of ỹ ✻ Nicolaytans, which dedes I also hate. Let him that hath eares heare what the spyrite sayth vnto the congregacions. ✻ To him that ouercommeth wyll I geue to eate of the tree of lyfe, which is in the middes of the Paradiſe of God.

✻ And vnto the Angel of the congregacyon of Smyrna wryte: These thinges saith he that is first, & the last which was dead and is alyue. I know thy workes, & tribulacion and pouerte but thou art ryche: And I know the blaſphemy of them which cal them selues Jewes, & are not, but are the congregacion of Sathan. Feare none of those thinges which thou shalt suffer. Beholde, the deuil shal caſte of you into preſon, to tempte you, & ye shal haue tribulacion. x. dayes. Be faithfull vnto the death, and I will geue thee a croune of life. Let him that hath eares heare what ỹ spyrite saith to ỹ cōgregacions: He ỹ ouercōeth, shal not be hurte of the seconde death.

And to the messanger of the congregacion in Pergamos write: This saith he which hath the sharpe sworde with two edges. I know thy workes and where thou dwelleſt euē where Sathās seatis, & thou kepeſt my name and haſt not denied my faith. And in my dayes, Antipas was a faithful witnes of mine, which was slayn amonge you, where Sathā dwelleth. But I haue a fewe thinges against thee that thou haſt there, the that maintaine ỹ doctrine of Balā ✻ which taught Balake, to putte occasion before the Chyldren of Israell, that they shoulde eate of meate dedicate vnto Idoles, and commyt fornycacyon. Euen so haſte thou them that maynteyne the doctrine of the Nycolaytans / whyche thynge I hate.

Num. xxiiii.b

But

But be conuerted, or elles I will come vnto thee shortly, and will fight against them with the sworde of my mouth. Let him that hath eares, heare what ỹ spyrite saith vnto the congregacions. To him that ouercommeth wyll I geue to eate Manna that is hid, and will geue him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth sauing he ỹ receaueth it.

And vnto the messenger of ỹ cōgregacion of Thiatira wryte. This saith ỹ sonne of god, which hathe his eyes lyke vnto a flāme of fyre, whose feete are lyke brasse: I knowe thy workes & thy loue/ seruice/ & faith, & thy pacience, & thy dedes, which are mo at ỹ laſt then at ỹ first. Notwithstanding I haue a fewe thinges against thee, ✻ ỹ ỹ sufferest ỹ woman Jesabel, which called her self a Prophetisse to teache & to deceaue my seruauntes, to make them commit fornicaciō/ & to eate meates offered vp vnto Idoles. And I gaue her space to repent of her fornicacion, & she repented not. Behold, I will cast her into a beed, & the ỹ comit fornicacon with her, into great aduerſite, except they turne frō their deades. And I wyll kil her children with death. And al ỹ cōgregacions shal know ỹ I am he which sercheth ỹ raines & hertes. And I will geue vnto euery one of you accordynge vnto your workes. Unto you I saye, & vnto other of the of Thiatira, as many as haue not this learning & which haue not knowen the depenes of Sathā (as they saye) I wil put vppon you none other burthen, but ỹ which ye haue already. Holde faſt til I come, & whosoeuer ouercommeth & kepeth my workes vnto ỹ ende, to hī will I geue power ouer nacyons, & he shal rule thē with a rodde of yron, and as the vessels of a potter shall he breake them to sheuers. Euen as I receaued of my father, so wyll I geue him the morynge starre. Let him that hath eares, heare what the spyrite sayth to the congregacions.

He instructeth and enfourmeth the Angels of the congregacions, declaringe also the rewarde of him that ouercommeth.

The .iii. Chapter

And wryte vnto the messenger of the congregacyon of Sardis: this saith he that hath the spyrite of God and ỹ .vii. starres. I knowe the workes, thou haſte a name that ỹ lyueſt, and thou arte dead. Be awake and strengthe the thynges which remayne, ỹ are redy to dye.

For if I haue not founde thy worcke perfayte before God. Remember therfore how thou haſt receaued and heard, and holde faſte, and repent. ✻ If thou shalte not watche, I wyll come on thee as a theefe, and thou shalte not knowe what houre I wyll come vpō the. Thou haſte a fewe names in Sardis, whych haue not defyled their garmentes, and they shall walke with me in white, for they are worthy. He that ouercommeth thal be clothed in white arraye, and I will not put out his name out of ỹ boke of lyfe, and I wyll confeſſe hys name before mi father, and before his Angels. Let him that hath eares, heare, what ỹ spyrite saieth vnto the congregacions.

And wryte vnto the tydinges bringer of the congregacyon of Philadelphis: this sayth he ỹ is holy and true, ✻ whych hath the keye of Dauid: which openeth and no man shutteth, and shutteth and no mā openeth, I knowe workes. Behold I haue set before thee and open dore and no man can shut it, for thou haſte a lytell strength and haſte kept my sayinges: & haſte not denyed my name. Behold I make them of the congregacion of Sathā, whych cal them selues Jewes & are not, but do lye: Beholde, I will make them that they shall come & worſhippe before thy feete: and shall knowe that I loue thee.

Because thou haſt kept ỹ worde of my pacience therfore I will kepe the from ỹ houre of temptacion, wich wyl come vp on all the worlde, to tempte them ỹ dwel vpon the earth. Behold I come shortly. Holde that which thou haſte, that no mā take away thy croune. Him that ouercōmeth, wyll I make a pyllar in the temple of my God, & he shal go no more out.

And I will wryte vpon him, the name of my God, and the name of the cytie of my God, newe Jerusalem: which commeth doune out of heauen from my God and I wyl wryte vpon hī my newe name. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the spyrite sayth vnto the congregacions.

And vnto the messenger of the congregacion which is in Laodicia, write: thys sayth (Amen) the faithfull and true witnes, the beginning of the creatures of god. I know thy workes that ỹ arte neyther colde nor hotte: I wold thou were colde or hotte. So then because thou art betwene both/and nether could nor hot, I wyl spewe thee out of my mouthe: because ỹ art ryche and increased w̃ goodnes/and hast nede of nothing and knowest not howe ỹ art wretched and myserable, poore, blinde and naked. I counsel thee to bye me golde tried in the fyre ỹ ỹ mayest be riche: and white rayment ỹ ỹ maiest be clothed, ỹ thy filthye nakednes do not appeare: ād anoynt thine eyes with eye salue, ỹ ỹ mayest see.

* As many as I loue/I rebuke and chasten. Be feruent therfore and repente. Beholde I stand at ỹ doore and knocke. If any mā heare my voice & ope ỹ dore, I will come in vnto him and wyl suppe with him, and he with me. To him that ouercommeth, will I graunte to syt w̃ me in my seate, euen as I ouercame ād haue sitten with my father in his seate. Let hi ỹ hath eares, heare what ỹ spyrete saieth vnto the congregacions.

¶ Ye seyth the heauē open, and the seat and one sitting vpon it, and xxiiii. seates about it with xxiiii. elders sittinge vpon them, & foure beastes praising god daye and nyght.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

AFter this I loked, & beholde a doore was open in heaue, and the first voyce whiche I herde, was as it were a trōpet talkinge with me which sayde: come vp hidder, and I will shew thee thiges which must be fulfilled here after. And immediatly I was in ỹ spyrete, and beholde a seate was put in heauen, and one sate on the seate. And hee that sate, was to loke vpon, like vnto a iasper stone: And ther was a raynebow aboute the seat, in sight like to an emeralde. And aboute the seate were xxiiii. seates. And vpō the seates xxiiii. elders sittinge, clothed in white rayment, and had on their heades crounes of golde.

And out of the seate proceded lyghtnynges, and thunderinges, and voices & there were vii. lampes of fyre, burning before ỹ seate, which are ỹ vii. spyretes of God. And before the seate there was a see of glasse lyke vnto a Chrystall, and in the myddest of the seate, and rounde about the seate were foure beastes ful of eyes before and behinde, and the fyrste beaste was lyke a lyon, the second beaste lyke vnto a calfe, and the thirde beaste had a face of a man, and the fourth beast was lyke vnto a flyinge egle. And the iiii. beastes had eche one of them vi. winges aboute hym, and they were ful of eyes within, and they had no reste daye nether night: saying. Holy, holy, holy, Lord god almighty, whiche was and is and is to come. Esay. vi. 6.

And when those beastes gaue glorye and honour and thankes to him that sate on the seate/which lyueth for euer/ād euer, the xxiiii. elders fell downe before him that sate on the trone and worshipped him that lyueth for euer, & cast their crownes before the trone sayinge, thou art worthy Lord to receaue glorye, and honour ād power, for thou hast created all thinges, and for thy willes sake they are, and were created.

¶ Ye seith the lambe opening ỹ boke, and therfore the foure beastes, ỹ xxiiii. elders, & the angels praise the lambe, and do him worship.

The. v. Chapter.

AND I sawe in the right hande of him that sate in the trone, a boke writen within, & on the backsyde sealed with seuen seales. And I sawe a stronge angell which cried with a lowde voice: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to lose ỹ seales therof. And no man i heauē ner i earth nether vnder ỹ earth, was able to open the boke, nether to loke theron. And I wepte muche, because no man was founde worthy to open and to rede the boke/nether to loke theron.

The boke sealed w. vii seales.

And one of the elders sayde vnto me: wepe not: Beholde a lyon beinge of the tribe of Juda, the roote of Dauid, hath obtained to open ỹ boke, & to lose ỹ. vii. seales therof. And I beheld, & lo/in the myddest of ỹ seat & ỹ. iiii. beastes & in the middest of the elders stoode a lambe as though he had ben killed, which had seuen hornes and seuen eyes which are the spyrites of God sent into al the worlde. And he came and toke the boke oute of ỹ ryght hande of him that sate vpon the seate

Ihon obteined to open the boke.

Cseate.

And when he had taken the boke, ỹ. iiii. beastes and. xxiiii. elders fel doune before the lambe, hauyng harpes and golde vialles ful of odoures, which are ỹ prayers of sayncte and they sōge a newe sōge sayinge: thou art worthy to take the boke/ and to open the seales therof: for thou waste kylled, and haste redemed vs by thy bloud out of al kynredes, and tōges, and people, and nacions, and haste made vs vnto oure God, kynges and prestes, and we shal raigne on the earth.

* And I beheilde, and I hearde ỹ voyce of many angels about ỹ trone, & about the beastes and the elders, and I hearde thousande thousandes, sayinge with a lowde voyce: Worthy is the lambe that was kylled to receaue power, and ryches, and wysdome, ād strength, and honour/ & glory, & blessig. And al the creatures which are in heauen, & on the earth & vnder the earth, & in the sea, & al that are in them, heard I sayinge: blessinge, honour, glory, and power be vnto him that sitteth vpon the seate, and vnto ỹ lambe for euermore, & ỹ. iiii. beastes sayd: Ame. And the. xxiiii. elders fell vpon their faces, and worshipped him that liueth for euermore.

¶ The lambe openeth the. vi. seales and many thinges folowe the openinge therof.

The. vi. Chapter.

AND I sawe when the lambe opened one of the seales/ād I hearde one of the iiii. beastes saye, as it were the noyse of thunder, cōme & see: & I sawe. And behold ther was a whyte horse, & he that sat on him, had a bowe, and a Croune was geuen vnto him, and he went forth conquerynge & for to ouercome. And when he opened ỹ seconde seale, I herde the seconde beast saye: come and see. And ther went out a other horse that was red, & power was geuen to him ỹ satte theron, to take peace frō the earth, and that they shuld kyll one another. * And ther was geue vnto him a great swearde.

And when he had opened the thirde seale, I herde the thirde beast saye come & see. And I beheld and lo a blacke horse and he that sate on hym had a payre of balances in hys hande. And I hearde a voyce in the middest of the iiii. beastes saye: a measure of whete for a peny, and iii. measures of barley for a peny: & oyle & wine see ỹ hurt not. And when he opened the fourth seale, I hearde the voyce of the fourth beast saye, come and see, & I loked, and beholde a grene horse, ād his name that sate on him, was Deathe and hell folowed after him, and power was geuen vnto them ouer the fourthe parte of the earth to kyll with swearde, and with honger and with deth that cōmeth of vermen of the earthe. Greene horse

And when he opened the fifte seale, I sawe vnder ỹ alter the soules that were kylled for the worde of god, and for ỹ testimony which they had, and they cryed with a loud voyce sayeng: how longe tarieste thou Lorde holy and true, to iudge and to auenge our bloude on them that dwel on the earth? And longe white garmentes were geuen vnto euery one of them. And it was sayde vnto them ỹ they shoulde reste for a lytle season vntyl the numbre of their felows and brethren, and of thē ỹ shoulde be kylled as they were, were fulfylled. Soules vnder ỹ altre. Esay. xi. 9

And I beheld when he opened the. vi. seale, and lo ther was a great earthquake, ād the sunne was as blacke as sacke cloth made of heare, ād the moone was red euen as bloud, and the starres of heauen fel vnto the earth euen as a figge tree casteth from her her figges, when she is shaken of a mightye winde. And heauen vanished awaye, as a scrol, whē it is rolled together. And al mountaines and Iles were moued out of their places, and the kinges of the earth, and the great men and the rich men, and the chefe captaynes and the myghtye men, and euery bondman and euery free man, hyd them selues in dennes and in rockes of ỹ hylles, * and sayde to the hylles and rockes fall on vs, and hide vs from the presence of hym that sitteth on the seate/ād from the wrath of the lambe. for the great daye of his wrathe is come, and who can endure it. Osee. x. b Luc. xxiii. i. b ¶ Ye seyth the seruauntes of god sealed in their foreheades out of all nacions, and people, which though they suffre trouble/ yet the lambe fedeth thē, leadeth them to the fountaynes of liuing waters, & god shall wype away all teares from their eyes.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

And

A And after that, I sawe .iiii. angels stand on the .iiii. cozners of the earth, holding the .iiii. wyndes of the earth, that the wyndes shoulde not blowe on the earthe, neyther on the sea, neither on any tree. + And I sawe another angel ascende from the risinge of the sõne: which had the seale of the lyuig god, and he cried with a loude voyce to the .iiii. angeles: to whome power was geuen to hurte the earth and the sea, sayinge: hurt not ỹ earth, nether the sea, nether trees, tyl we haue sealed the seruantes of oure god in theyr forheades.

B And I heard the numbre of them which were sealed an. C and, xliiii. M. of all the tribes of the Chylderen of Israell. Of the tribe of Juda were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Ruben were sealed, xii. M. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Aser were sealed. xii. M. Of ỹ tribe of Neptalim were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Manasses were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Symeon were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Leuy were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Issacar were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Zabulon were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed. xii. M: Of the tribe of Ben Jamin were sealed. xii. thousand.

C After thys I behelde, and lo a great multitude (whiche no man coulde numbre of all nacions and people, and tonges) stode before the seate and before ỹ lambe, clothed with long whyte garmẽtes, ỹ palmes in theyr handes, and cried with a loude voyce, sayinge: saluacio be ascribed to him that sitteth vpon the seate of oure God, and vnto the lambe/ And all the angels stode in the compas of the seate and of the elders, and of the .iiii. beastes, and fell before the seate one their faces, and worshipped god/ saying Amen: Blessinge, and glory, wisdome, + thankes, and honoure, and power, and myght, be vnto our God for euermore. Amen.

D And one of the elders aunswered sayinge vnto me: what are these which are arayed in longe white garmentes, and whence came they? and I sayde vnto hi: Lorde thou wottest. And he sayde to me: these are they which came oute of greate tribulacion and made theyr garmentes large, ād made them white/ in the bloud of the Lambe: therfore are they in the presence of the seate of God/ and serue hi daye and night in his temple, and hee ỹ sitteth in the seate shall dwell amonge them. They shall honger nomore, nether thurst, nether shal the sunne lyght on the nether any heate, for the lambe which is in the myddest of the seat shal feede the and shall leade them vnto fountaynes/ of lyuing water, and shall wype away al teares from theyr eyes.

Thenotes,

* Angel is a greke word and signifieth a messenger. And al ỹ Angels are called messengers, because they are sent from God to man on message: euē so prophetes, preachers and the prelaytes of ỹ churche, are called Angells: that is to say messengers, because they offer is to bringe the message of God vnto ỹ people. The good angelles here in this boke are the true bisshoppes and preachers, and the euel angels are the heretykes and false prophetes which euer falsifye gods worde, wyth which the churche of Christ shalbe thus myserably plaged vnto the ende of ỹ world, as is paynted in these figures.

C The seuenth seale is opened, ther is silence i heauen, ỹ foure Angels blowe their trompettes, + great plages folow vpon the earth.

C The. viii. Chapter.

A And when he had opened the seuenth seale, ther was silence in heauen about the space of half an hour. And I saw angels standing befor god/ and to them were geuen seuen trompettes. And another angell came, and stode before ỹ aulter hauing a golden sencer, + much of odoures was geuen vnto him/ that he should offre of the prayers of all saīctes, vpon the golden aulter, whiche was before the seate. And the smoke of the odoures whiche came of the prayers of al Saintes ascended vp before God, out of the angels hand. And the Angell toke the censer and filled it wyth fyre of the aulter, and cast it into the earthe, and voyces were made, and thundringes, ād lightenynges, and earthquake.

B And the seuen angels whiche had the vii. trompettes prepared theim selues to blowe. The fyrst angell blewe, and there was much hayle and fyre, which were mingled with bloud and they were cast into the earth: and the thyrde parte of trees was brente, and all greane grasse was brent. And the second Angell blewe: and as it were a great mountayne burninge with fyre was cast into the sea, and the thirde parte of ỹ sea tourned to bloude, and the thyrde parte of ỹ creatures whiche had lyfe/ dyed, and the thirde part of shippes were destroyed.

D And the thyrde Angel blewe, and there fel a gret starre from heauen burning as it were a lampe/ and it fell into the thyrde parte of the ryuers, and into fountaines of waters, and the name of the starre is called wormwod: + ỹ third part was turned to wormwod. And many men died of the waters because they were made bytter. And the fourth Angel blew, + ỹ thirde parte of ỹ sunne was smitten, ād ỹ thirde parte of the moone, and the third parte of starres: so that the third parte of thē was darkened. And ỹ daye was smytten ỹ the thyrde part of it shulde not shyne, + lyke wise the nyght. And I behelde + herde an Angell flying thorow the myddes of heauen, sayinge with a lowde voice: Woo, woo, woo: of habiters of ỹ erth, because of the voyces to come of the trompe of the .iii. Angels which were yet to blowe.

C The fifth + syxte Angel blewe their trompettes, ỹ starre falleth from heauen: the locustes come out of ỹ smoke: The fyrst woo is paste: ỹ foure Angels that were bounde are lowsed, + the third part of me is kylled.

C The. ix. Chapter.

A And the fyrst Angell blewe, + I sawe a starre fall from heauē vnto ỹ erth. And to him was geuen the kaye of the bottōlesse pyt. And he opened the bottomlesse pyt/ and ther arose ỹ smoke of a great fornace. And the sun and the ayer were darckned by the reason of the smoke of ỹ pyt. And there cāe out of the smoke locustes vpō the earth, and vnto them was geuen power as the scorpiōs of the earth haue power. And it was commaunded thē, that they shulde not hurt the grasse of the erth: nether any grene thynge: nether any tree: but only those men which haue not the seale in their forheades. And to thē was commaunded that they should not kil thē, but that they shulde be vexed .v. monethes, and their payne was as the payne that cometh of a scorpion, when he hath stonge a man. * And in those dayes shall men seake death, and shall not finde it, + shal desyre to dye, and deathe shall flye frō them.

B And the symilitude of ỹ locustes was like vnto horses prepared vnto battail, and on theyre heades were as it were crounes, lyke vnto golde: and their faces were as it had bene the faces of me. And they had heare as ỹ heare of women. And their teeth were as the teeth of lyons. And they had habbergions as it were habbergions of yron, and the soūde of charettes when many horsses runne to gether to battayle. And they had tayles lyke vnto scorppyons, and there were styngs i their tayles. And their power was to hurt mē. v. monethes. And they had a kyng ouer them, which is ỹ angell of the bottomles pyt, whose name in the Hebrew tong is Abadon: but i the Greke tong, Apollion. One woo is past, and behold two wooes come after this:

Abadon is as much to say as a destroier.

C And the syxte Angel blewe, an I herde a voyce from the .iiii. cozners of ỹ golden aultre, which is before God, saying to the syxte Angel, which had ỹ trōpe: Loose the iiii. Angelles/ which are bounde in the greate ryuer Euphrates. And the iiii. Angelles were losed which were prepared for an houre, for a daye/ for a moneth, and for a yeare, for to slea the .iii. part of men. And the numbre of horsmē of warre were, xx. tymes. C. M. + I herde the numbre of them: and thus I sawe the horses in a vision, and them ỹ sate on thē, hauyng fyry habbergions of a Jacincte coloure/ and brimstonne, and the heades of the horses were as ỹ heades of lions.

D And out of their mouthes went forth fire and smoke and brimston-and of these thre was the .iii. parte of men kylled/ that is to say of fyre ād smoke and brimstone, which proceded out of ỹ mouthes, and theyr tayles were lyke vnto Serpentes, and had heades, and with them they did hurte: And the remnaunte of ỹ men which were not kylled by these plages repented not of the dedes of theyre handes, that they should not worshippe Deuelles and Images of goulde, and Syluer, and brasse, and stone, and of wodde wood which neither can see, nether heare, nether go. Also they repented not of ther murther, and of their sorcery, neyther of their fornication nether of their theft.

The angel hath the boke open: he sweareth ỹ there shalbe no more time: he geueth ỹ boke vnto Iohn which eateth it vp.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

A And I sawe another mighty angell come down from heauen clothed with a cloude, and the rayne bowe vppon hys heade. And his face as it were the sunne/ād hys feete as it were pylleres of fire, and he had in his hande a lytle boke open: & he put his right foote vpon the sea, and his lyft foote on the earth. And cried with a loude voyce, as when a lyon roareth. And when hee had cryed/ seuen thundres spake theyr voyces. And when the seauen thundres had spoken theyre voyces, I was about to wryte. And I herde a voyce from heauē saynge vnto me, seale vp those thinges which the vii. thunderes spake, and wryte them not.

And the aungell which I saw stande vpon the sea, and vppon the earth, lyfte vp his hande to heauen, and sware by him that lyueth for euermore, whiche created heauen, and the thinges that therin are, and the sea, and the thinges which therein are, that there shoulde be no lenger tyme: but in the dayes of the voyce of the seuenth angel, when he shall beginne to blowe: euen the mistery of god shalbe fynished as he preached by hys seruauntes the Prophetes.

And the voyce which I herde from heauen spake vnto me agayne and sayde: * go, and take the lytle boke which is open in the hande of the angel which standeth vpon the sea, and vpon the earthe. And I wente vnto the aungell, and sayde to hym: geue me the lytle boke, and he sayde vnto me: take it, and eate it vp, and it shal make thy belly bytter, but it shall bee in thy mouth as swete as hony. And I toke the lytle boke out of his hande, & ate it vp, & it was in my mouth as swete as hony, & as sone I had eaten it my belly was bitter, and hee sayde vnto me: ỹ must prophecy againe among the people: and nacions, and tonges and to many kinges.

¶ The temple is measured. The .ii. woo is paste,

The.xi. Chapter.

And thē was geuen me a rede, like vnto a rod, & it was sayde vnto me: Ryse & meate the temple of God, and ỹ aulter, and them ỹ worshipe therin, and the quere whych is without in the temple, caste oute and meate it not: for it is geuen vnto the Gentyles, & ỹ holy cytie shall they treade vnder foote. xlii. monethes: ād I wyl geue power vnto my two wytnesses, & they shall prophesy a thousand/ two hundred and lx. dayes, clothed in sacke cloth. These are two olyue trees, and two candelsticke, standinge before the God of the earth.

And yf any mā wyl hurt thē, fire shal proceed out of their mouthes, and consume their enemies. And yf any man will hurt thē thys wyse muste he be kylled. These haue power to shut heauen, that it rayne not in the daies of their prophesieng:

And haue power ouer waters to turne them to bloud, and to smyte the earth with all manner plages, as oftē as they wyl.

And when thy haue fynyshed their testimony, the beast that came oute of ỹ bottomlesse pyt, shall make warre agaynst them and shal ouercome them, and kylle them. And their bodyes shall lye in the stretes of the great cytie, which spiritually is called Sodom & Egypte, where our Lorde was crucifyed.

And they of the people, and kinreds, ād tonges, and they of the nacions shal see theyr bodyes. iii. dayes and an halfe, and shall not suffre their bodyes to be put in graues: and they that dwel vpō ỹ earth shall reioyce ouer them/ and be gladde, and shal sende gifres one to another for these two Prophetes, bycause thē that dwelt on earth.

And after iii. dayes and an half, the spirete of lyfe from God, entred into thē. And they stode vp vpon their feete: and great feare came vpon them which saw them. And they herde a great voice frō heauen, saienge vnto them. Come vp hyther. And they ascended vp into heauen in a cloude, and their enemyes sawe them. And the same houre was there a great earthquake, & ỹ tenth parte of the cytie fell, & in the earthquake were slaine names of men seuen. M. ād the remnaūt were feared, ād gaue glory to god of heauen. The second woo is past, & beholde the thirde woo will come anone. And the seuenth angel blewe/ & there were made great voices in heauen, sayeng: ỹ kyngdomes of this world are oure lordes & hys Christes, & he shal raigne for euermore. And ỹ. xxiiii. elders, which sit before god on their seates, fell vpon there faces: and worshipped god saying: we geue ỹ thankes Lorde god almighty: which arte ād wast, and arte to come, for thou hast receaued thy great might, and hast raygned. And the nacions were angry, & thy wrath is come, ād the time of ỹ deade ỹ they shulde be iudged, ād that thou shuldest geue rewarde vnto thy seruauntes the Prophetes and Sainctes, & to thē ỹ feare thy name smal and great ād shuldest destroye thē, which destroy ỹ earth. And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and ther was seene in his tēple the arcke of his testament: and there folowed lyghtenynges, and voyces/ and thondrynges and earthquake, and much hayle.

¶ The seuenth angel, bloweth his trompet. There appeared in heauen a woman clothed with ỹ sonne: Michael fyghteth wyth the dragon, which persecuteth the woman.

¶ The.xii. Chapter.

And there appeared a great wonder in heauen: A woman clothed with the sunne, and the moone vnder her fete, & vpon her heade a croune of xii. starres. And she was with childe, ād cryed trauelling in byrth, and pained redy to be delyuered. And ther appeared a nother wounder in heauen, for beholde a great red dragon hauynge seuen heades, and ten hornes and crounes vpon his heades: and hys tayle drue ỹ thyrde parte of the starres, and cast them to ỹ earth.

And the dragon stode before the woman, which was ready to be delyuered: for to deuoure her childe as soone as yt were borne. And she brought forth a mā childe, which shulde rule all nacyons with a rode of yron.

And her sonne was taken vp vnto God and to his seate. And the woman fled into wyldernes, wher she had a place, prepared of God, that they shuld feade her there a. M. ii. hundred and lx. dayes.

And ther was a great battayl in heauen. Michaell and his Angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angeles, and preuayled not: neither was their place founde any more in heauē. And the great dragon, that olde serpente called the deuyll and Sathanas was cast out. Which deceaueth all ỹ worlde. And he was cast into ỹ earth ād hys angelles were cast out also.

And I herde a lowde voyce saynge: in heauen is nowe made saluacyon & strengthe & ỹ kyngdome of oure God/ and the power of his Christ. For he is cast downe which accused them before God daye and nyght. And they ouercame him by the bloud of the lambe, ād by the wordes of their testimony, & they loued not their lyues vnto ỹ death. Therfore reioyce heauens/ and ye that dwelle in them. Woo to the inhabiters of the earth, and of the sea: for the deuyl is cōe down vnto you which hath great wrath because hee knoweth that he hathe but short tyme.

And when the dragon sawe, that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted ỹ woman, which brought forth ỹ mā chylde. And to ỹ womā were geuē two wynges of a great egle, that she myghte flye into the wilderne, into her place, where she is norysched for a tyme, tymes, & halfe a time, from the presence of the serpēt. And the dragon cast out of hys mouthe water after the woman as it had bene a ryuer, bycause she shuld haue bene caught of ỹ floud. And ỹ earth holpe ỹ woman, & the earth opened her mouth & swalowed, vp ỹ ryuer, which ỹ dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the woman: and went and made warre with ỹ remnaunt of hyr sede, whych kepe the commaundementes of god/ ād haue the testimony of Iesus Christ. And I stode on ỹ sea sande.

¶ A beast ryseth out of ỹ sea wyth seuen heades and ten hornes. Another beast commeth out of the earth with two hornes.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter

And

AND I sawe a beast ryse out of the sea, hauing seuē heades, and ten hornes, and vpon hys hornes. x. crounes & vpon his heade the name of blasphemy. And the beaste which I sawe was lyke a catte of the mountayne, and hys feete were as the feete of a beare, & his mouth as the mouth of a lyon: and ẏ dragon gaue him his power and hys seate, and great auctoritie, and I sawe one of his heades as it were wounded to death, and hys deadly wound was healed. And all the worlde wondred at the beaste, and they worshipped the dragon whych gaue power vnto the beaste, and they worshypped the beast sayeng: who is like vnto ẏ beast? who is able to warre with hym?

By this is ment the Pope figured in the Prophetes, as is sayd Esay. xiv. c

B

And ther was geuen vnto him a mouth that spake greate thinges and blasphemyes, and power was geuen vnto hym/ to do. xlii. monethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemye agaynste god to blaspheme hys name and hys tabernacle/ and them that dwell in heauen. And it was geuē vnto hi to make warre wyth the Sayncles, ād to ouercome them. And power was geuen hym ouer all kinred, tonge, and nacion. and all ẏ dwell vppon the earthe worshipped him: whose names are not written in the boke of lyfe of the lambe, which was killed frō the beginninge of the worlde. If any mā haue an eare let him heare: * He that leadeth into captiuitie, shall go into captiuitie: * he that kylleth wt a sweorde must be kylled with a sweorde. Here is the pacience/ and the fayth of ẏ saincles

Apoc. xiii. Matth. xxvi Genes. xxiii, Psal. xxvi

And I beheldе another beaste comming vp out of the earth, and he had two hornes lyke a lambe, and he spake as did the dragon. And he did all that the firste beaste coulde do, in his presence, and he caused the earth and them which dwell therin, to worshipp the fyrste beaste, whose deadly wounde was healed, ād he did greate wonders, so that he made fyre come downe from heauen in the sighte of men, And deceaued them that dwelte in the earth by the meanes of those sygnes whych he had power to do i the syght of the beast, sayinge to them ẏ dwell on ẏ earth: that they should make an ymage, vnto the beast, which had the wound of a swerde, and did lyue.

And he had power to geue a spyrite to ẏ beast/ and ẏ the image of the beast shuld speake, and shuld cause that as many as wolde not worshipp the image of the beast shulde be killed. And he made al both smal and great, riche and poore, free and bonde, to receaue a marke in their right handes or in their foreheades. And that no man myght bie or sel, saue he ẏ had ẏ marke or ẏ nāe of the beast, or ther ẏ nomber of his name. Here is wisdome. Let him that hath wyt counte the nombre of the beast: For it is the nomber of a man, and his nomber is sixe hundreth three score and sixe.

¶ The lambe standeth vpon the mount Sion and ẏ vndefyled congregacion wyth hi: The angel exhorteth to the feare of God and telleth of the fall of Babylon:

The. xiiii. Chapter.

AND I loked, and lo a lambe stode on the mount Sion, & with him an. C. ād xliii. M haupnge his fathers name, written in their foreheades.

And I herde a voice from heaue, and ẏ sounde of many waters, and as ẏ voice of a great thunder. And I hearde the voice of herpers herpinge wt their harpes.

And they songe as it were a newe songe, before the seate, and before the foure beastes, and the elders/ and no man couide learne that songe, but the. C. ād xliiii. These were redemed frō men beynge the fyrste frutes vnto God and to the lambe, and in their mouthes was found no gyle. For they are wt out spot before the trone of God.

And I sawe an angell flie in the middeste of heauen hauinge an euerlasting gospell, to preache vnto them ẏ sit and dwel on the earth, and to al nacions, kinreds, and tonges and people, saying with a lowde voyce: * Feare God. and geue honour to hym, for the houre of his iudgement is come: and worshipp him that made Heauen and earth, and the sea, ād fountaines of water. And there folowed an notherangell, sayinge: *

Babylon

Apoc. xiii. c. xviii. a

Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great cyte, * for she made all nacyons dryncke of the wyne of her fornycacion.

And the thyrd angell folowed them sayinge with a lowde voice: If any mā worshyppe the beast and hys ymage, and receaue his marke in his forhed, or i hys hande, the same shall drynke the wine of the wrath of God, which is powred in ẏ cuppe of his wrath. And he shallbe punyshed in fyre ād brymston, before ẏ holy angels, and before the lambe.

And the smoke of their tormente ascendeth vp euermore. And they haue no rest daye nor night, which worshyppe ẏ beast and his ymage, and whosoeuer receaueth the wrynt of hys name. Here is ẏ pacience of saincles. Heare are they that kepe the commaundmentes and ẏ fayth of Jesu.

And I heard a voyce frō heauen sayinge vnto me: wryte. Blessed are the dead whych here after dye in the Lorde, euē so sayth the spyrite: that they maye rest from their labours, but their workes shall folowe them.

And I loked and beholde a whyte clowde/ ād vpon the clowde one sytteynge lyke vnto the sonne of mā, hauinge on his head a golden crowne, and in his hande a sharpe sikle. And another Angell came oute of the temple, crying wyth a lowde voyce to him that sate on the clowde.

Apoc. xiii. c

* Thrust in thy sikle and repe for ẏ tyme is come to reape, for the corne of the earth is ripe. And he that sate on ẏ clowde, thrust in hys sykle on the earth, and ẏ earth was reaped.

And another Angell came out of ẏ temple, whiche is in heauen/ hauinge also a sharpe sykle. And another Angel came out from the the aultre, whych had power ouer fyre, & cryed wyth a lowde crye to hym that had the sharpe sykle, and sayde: thrust in thy sharpe sykle, & gadre ẏ clusters of the earth, for her grapes are ripe. And the Angel thrust i hys sykle on the earth, ād cut doune the grapes of the earth: ād cast them into ẏ greate wynefat of the wrath of God, and ẏ wynefat was troden wyth out the citie & bloud cāe out of ẏ fat, euen vnto ẏ horse bydles by ẏ space of a thowlande and vi. C. furlonges.

¶ He seeth seuen Angels hauinge seuen vialles full of wrath.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

AND I sawe another sygne i heuen great & merueilous: vii. Angels hauynge the seuen laste plages, for in the is fulfilled ẏ wrath of God.

And I saw as it were a glassye sea, mingled with fyre: and them that had gotte victory of the beast/ and of his ymage/ & of his marke, ād of the nombre of his name, stand on the glassye sea, hauynge the harpes of God, and they sounge the songe of Moyses the seruant of God, & the songe of the lambe, saying. Great & marueilous are thy workes: * Lord god almyghty, iuste and true are thy wayes B kynge of Sayncles. Who shal not fea- Esaye. xii. c. te o Lorde, and glorify thy name? For ẏ Jeremy. x. b. only art holy, ād all gentyles shall come and worshyp before thee, for thy iudgementes are made manifeste.

And after that, I loked/ and beholde the temple of the tabernacle of testimoni was open in heauen, and the seuen angels cāe out of ẏ tēple, wich had ẏ seuen plages, clothed in pure & bryght lynnen and haupnge their brestes gyrded with golden girdels. And one of the fowre beastes gaue vnto ẏ seuen Angels. vii. golden vialles ful of ẏ wrath of god, which liueth for ever more, and the temple was full of the smoke of the glory of God & of his power, and no man was able to entre into the temple, tyll the seuen plages of the seuen Angels were fulfylled.

¶ The Angels poure out their vialles ful of wrath

¶ The. xvi. Chapter

AND I herde a greate voice out of the temple sayenge to the. vii. Angels: go poure wayes, powre out your vialles of wrath vpō ẏ earth. And the first went, and powred out his vial vpon the earth/ and there fel a noysome and sore botche vpon the manne, which had the marke of the beast, ād vpon them which worshipped the image.

And the secoude angel shed out his vial vpon the sea, ād it turned as it were into the bloude of a dead man: and euery liuyng thinge died in the sea.

And

And the thirde angell shed oute his vyall/vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloude And
B I herde an angel saye: Lorde which art and wast, thou art righteous and holy, because thou haste geuen such iudgementes, for they shed oute the bloude of saictes and prophetes, and therfor hast thou geuen them bloude to drinke: for they are worthy: and I heard another oute of the aulter saye: euen so Lord God almightie true and righteous are thy iudgementes.

And the fourth angel poured out hys vyal on the sonne/and power was geuē vnto hym to vexe menne with heate of fyre. And the men raged in greate heate and spake euell of the name of god, which hathe power ouer those plages, and they repented not, to geue hym glorye. And the .v. angell poureth out hys vyal vppon the seate of the beaste, and hys kingdome, waxed darcke, and they gnewe their tonges for sorow, & blaspheined the god of heauen, for sorow and payne of theyr sores, and repented not of their dedes.

And the sixte angel poured out hys vyal, vpon the great ryuer Euphrates & the water dryed vp that the wayes of the kinges of the east shoulde be prepared.
C And I sawe thre vncleane spirites lyke frogges, come oute of the mouthe of the Dragon, and oute of the mouthe of the beast, and out of the mouthe of the false prophet. For they are the spirites of deuels, worcking myracles, to go out vnto the kinges of the earth, and of the whole worlde/to gather them to the battayll of that great god almighty. * Beholde I

And the seuenth Angell poured oute
D his vyall into the ayre. And there came a voyce out of heauen from the seat, saying: it is done, and ther folowed voyces, thondringes, & lightenynges/and ther was a great earthquake, suche as was not sens me were vpō the earth, so mighty an earthquake & so great: & the great cytie was deuided into thre partes, and the cities of al nations fel. And great Babilon came in remembraunce before god, to geue vnto her the cuppe of the wyne of the fearcenes of his wrath. Euery yle fled away, and the mountaynes were not founde. And there fell a greate hayle, as it had bene talentes, out of heauen vpō men, and the men blaspheined God: because of the plage of the haile/for it was great and the plage of it sore.

¶ Hee describeth ỹ woman sytting vpon ỹ beaste with ten hornes.

¶ The. xvii. Chapter.

AND ther came one of the seuen Angels, which had ỹ seuen vialles: and talked with
A me, sayeng vnto me: come I wyl shewe thee the iudgemēt of the great whore that sitteth vpō many waters, wt whome haue cōmitted fornication the kinges of the earth, so that the inhabiters of the earth, are dronken with the wyne of her fornication. And he caried me away into the wildernes in ỹ spirite. And I sawe a woman sit vpon a rose colored beast full of names of blasphemy, which had ten hornes. And ỹ woman was arayed in purple and rose colour and decte with gold, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cuppe of golde in her hande, full of abhominacions āð filthines of her fornication. And in her
B forhed was a name wrytten, a mysterye, great Babilon the mother of whordom, and abhominacion of ỹ earthe. And I sawe the wife dronken wt the bloud of saictes, āð wt the bloud of the wytnesses of Jesu. And when I sawe her: I wondred with great meruayle.

And the Angel sayde vnto me: wher fore maruaylest thou? I wyll shewe thee the mistery of the woman, and of ỹ beast that beareth her, which hath seuē heades and ten hornes. The beast that ỹ sawest, was, and is not, and shall ascende out of the bottomles pyt, and shal go into perdition, āð they that dwel on ỹ earth shal wonder (whose names are not wrytten in the boke of lyfe from ỹ begynnyng of ỹ worlde) when they behold the beast that
C was, and is not. And here is a mynd that hath wisdome.

The seuen heades are seuen mountaynes

taines on which the woman sitteth: they are also seuen kinges. Fyue are fallen, & one is, and another is not come. And whe he cōmeth, he must cōtinew a space. And the beast that was, & is not, is euen the eyght, and is one of the seuē, and shal go into destruccīō. And ỹ ten hornes which thou sawest, are the kinges, which haue receyued no kyngedome, but shall receyue power as kynges at one houre wyth the beaste. These haue one mynde, and shal geue their power and strength vnto the beast. These shall fight with the lambe, Deut. vi. c & the lambe shall ouercome them. * For he is Lorde of Lordes, and kinge of kinges: and they that are on his side, are called, and chosen and faythfull.

D And he sayde vnto me: the waters which thou sawest, where the whore sytteth, are people, & folke, and nacīōs, and tonges. And the ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the beast, are they that shal hate ỹ whore, & shall make her desolate and naked, and shal eate her flesche and burne her wyth fyre. For God hath put in theyr hertes to fulfyl hys wyl, and to do with one consent, for to geue her kingedome vnto the beaste, vntill the wordes of God be fulfylled. And the womā which thou sawest, is that greate cītye, which raygneth ouer the kynges of the earthe.

¶ The louers of the worlde are sory for the fall of Babylon, but they that be of God, haue cause to reioyce for her destruccyon.

¶ The. xviii. Chapter.

AND after ỹ, I sawe another
A aungel come frō heauen, hauing great power, & ỹ earth was lightened wt his brightnes. And he cryed mightelye wyth a strong voyce sayinge: * Greate Esaie. xxi. c. Jeremy. l. a. Babylon is fallen, is fallen: is become the habytacyon of deuyls, & ỹ hold of al fowle spirites, & a cage of all vncleane and hateful byrdes, for al nacions haue dronken of the wine of the wrath of her fornicacīō. And the kinges of the earthe haue cōmitted fornication with her, and her merchauntes are waxed ryche of the aboundance of her pleasure.

And I heard another voyce frō heauen, sayeng: come a waye from her my people, that ye be not partakers in her sinnes, that ye receyue not of her plages.
For her sinnes are gone vp to heauen, & God hath remembred her wickednes. Reward her euen as she rewarded you, and geue her double accordinge to her workes. And poure double to her in ỹ same cupp, which she filleth vnto you. And as muche as she glorified her selfe, and lyued wātonly, so much poure ye in for her of punishment āð sorow, for she sayd in her selfe: I syt beynge a quene, & am no wyddow, and shall se no sorowe. And the kinges of the earth shalbe wepe her & waile ouer her, which haue cōmytted fornication with her, and haue lyued wantonly with her, when they shall se the smoke of her burninge and shall stande a farre of, for feare of her punyshement, sayng: * Alas, Alas ỹ greate Jeremy. li. a

And the apples that thy soule lusted after are departed from thee. And al thinges which were deynte, and had in price are departed from the, and thou shalt finde the nomore. The marchauntes of thes thinges which were ryche, shal stande a farre of from her, for feare of

And euery shipe gouerner/& al they ỹ occupied shipes & shipmē which worke in the sea stode a farre of, āð cried, when they sawe the smoke of her burning, say pnge:what citye is lyke vnto this greate citie. And they cast dust on their heads, & cried weping and wayling, and sayde:*

F Alas alas, that great citye wherin weare Ieremy.li.b. made riche al that had shippes in the sea, by the reason of her costlynes, for at one houre is she made desolate.

Reioyce ouer her thou heauen, and ye holy Apostles and prophetes: for God hath geue your iudgemēt one her. And a myghte angell toke vp a stone lyke a great millstone, and cast it into ye sea, sayinge: with suche violence shal that great citie Babilon be cast and shal be founde no more. And the voyce of harpers, and musycyons, and of pypers, and trumpetters shal be harde no more in the, ād no craftes man of whatsoeuer crafte he be, shalbe founde any more in thee. And the sounde of a mylle shalbe harde no more in thee, and the light of ye candel shal no more shine in thee/and the voyce of the bridegrom and of the bride, shalbe hard no more in ther, for thy marchaūtes were the great men of ye earth, And ye thine enchauntment were deceaued al nacions: and in hir was founde the bloude of the prophetes and of the saynctes, ād of al ye were slayne vpon the earth.

Prayse or thankes are geuen vnto God for iudgeing & the whore for auenging ye bloud of his seruātes. The Angel will not be worshipped. The foules and birdes are called to the slaughter.

¶ The xix Chapter.

A Nd after ye, I hearde the voice of much people in heauen saying: Alleluya, Saluacion ād glory ād honour and power be ascribed to the Lorde oure God, for true and righteous are his iudgementes, for he hath iudged the great whore whiche did corrupt the earth with her fornicacion and hath auenged ye bloud of his seruāntes of hir hande, And agayne they sayde: Alleluya. And smoke rose vp for euermore And the xxiiii. elders and the iiii. beastes fell doune, and worshipped God ye sate on the seate, saying: *Amen Alleluya, ād a voyce came out of the seate, saiynge: prayse youre Lorde God al ye that are his seruauntes, and ye ye feare him both small and greate.

And I hegrde the voyce of muche people euen as the voyce of many waters/& as ye voice of strong thundringes, saying Alleluya, for God omnipotent raygneth Let vs be glad and reioyce and geue honoure to hym: for ye mariage of ye lambe B is come, ād his wyfe made her selfe redy. And to her was graunted, ye she shulde be arayed wyth pure ad goodly raynes.

For the raynes is the righteweines of saynctes. And he sayd vnto me, * happy are they which are called vnto the lābes supper. And he sayed vnto me: these are the true sayinges of God. And I fel at hys feete, to worshippe hym And he sayde vnto me, se thou do it not For I am thy felowe seruaunt, ād one of thy brethrē, & of the ye haue the testimonye of Jesus. Worshippe God. For ye testimony of Jesus is the spyrete of prophesy. Matt.xxii. Luke.xxiii.

And I sawe heauen open, and beholde a C whyte horsse: and he that sat vpon him was faythfull & true, and in ryghteweines did iudge and make battayle. Hys eyes were as a flamme of fyre: and on his head were many crounes: and he had a name written, that noman knewe but he Esaye.xlvii himselfe.* And he was clothed w the vesture dipt in bloud, & his name is called the word of God. And the warriers whych were i heauen/followed hym vpon whyte horsses, clothed with white ād pure raynes: and out of his mouth wēt D out a sharppe a swearde, ye with it he shulde smyte the heathē. And he shall rule them with a rodde of yron, & he trode ye wynefat of fearsines & wrath of almighty God. And hath on his vesture & on his thygh a name writtē: kynge of kynges, and Lorde of Lordes. a. By the swerd is signified the word of god as it is sayd Ephe. vi.c. Hebre. iiii.c. Apo.i.b. Esay xlix.a.

And I sawe an Angell stande i ye sunne, & he cryed w a lowde voyce, sayinge to all ye fowles ye flye by ye middes of heauē come & gather youre selues to gether vnto ye supper of ye great God, ye ye maye eate ye flesshe of kynges, & of hys captaynes & ye flesshe of myghty mē, ād ye flesshe of horses, & of thē that sit on thē, & the fleth of all fre men and bond men & of small & great: & I sawe the beast & the kinges of ye earth & their warriers gathered together to make battayl agaynst him ye sat on the horse, and agaynst hys soudiers. Ezec.xxxviii. xxxix.

And ye beast was taken with him that false prophet that wroughte myracles before him, with which he deceaued thē that receyued the beastes marke, and thē that worshipped his image. These both were cast into a ponde of fyre burninge with brimstone: and the remnaunt were slayne with the swearde of hym that sat vpō ye horse, which swearde proceaded out of his mouth, & all ye fowles were fulfilled with their flesshy.

¶ The dragon is bounde for a thousande yeares. The deade aryse, and receyue iudgemente.

¶ The.xx. Chapter.

A Nd I sawe an Angell come doune from heauen, hauinge the kay of ye bottomlesse pyt, & a great chayne i his hād. And he toke ye dragon ye olde serpent, which is ye deuyll & Satanas, & he bounde him a thousād yeares: & cast him into the bottomlesse pit, and he bounde him and set a seale on him, ye he shulde deceaue the people no moare, till ye thousād years were fulfylled. And after that he must be loosed for a litle season.

And I sawe seates, & they sat vpon them and iudgement was geuen vnto them: and I sawe the soules of them that were beheaded for the wytnes of Jesu, ād for the worde of God: which had not worshipped ye beast, nether his ymage, nether had taken hys marke vpon their forheades, or on their handes: and they lyued, and raygned with Christ a. M. yere: but the other of the dead men liued not agayne, vntill the thousande yere were fynished. This is ye fyrst resurrecceyon: Blessed and holy is he that hath parte in ye fyrst resurrecceyon. For on suche shall the secōd death haue no power for they shal be the preestes of God and of Christ, ād shall raygne with him a M. yeare.

And whē ye M. yeres are expired Satā shalbe lowsed out of his preson, ād shall go out to deceaue ye people whych are in the four quarters of the earth Gog and Magog, to gather thē to gether to battayle, whose nombre is as the sand of ye sea: and they went vp in the playne of ye earth: & cōpassed the tentes of the saynctes about, and the beloued cytie. And fyre came doune from God out of heauen, and deuoured them: and the deuil that deceaued them, was cast into a lake of fyre & brimstone/where ye beaste and the false prophetes were, and shal be tormented daye and nyght for euer more.

And I sawe a greate whyte seate & him that sate on it, from whose face fled awaye bothe the earth and heauen, and their place was no more founde. And I sawe the dead/bothe great and small stande before God: And the bokes were opened/ and another boke was opened, which is the boke of lyfe, & the dead were iudged of those thynges whych were written in the bokes accordinge to their dedes: & ye sea gaue vp her dead, whych were in her, and death ād hel deliuered vp the dead, whych were in them: & they were iudged euery man accordynge to his dedes. And death and hell were cast into the lake of fyre. This is the second death. And whosoeuer was not founde written in the boke of lyfe, was cast into the lake of fyre.

¶ In this chapter is described the new and spirituall Jerusalem.

¶ The.xxi. Chapter.

A Nd I sawe a new heauen and a new earth. For the fyrst heauē, & the first earth were vanished away, and ther was no more sea. * And I Esay.lxv.c. and lvi. ii. Petri.iii. John sawe that holy cytie newe Jerusalem come doune from God out of heauē prepared as a bryde garnished for her husband. For I heard a great voice out of heauen saying: beholde the tabernacle of god is with men, and he will dwel with them. And they shalbe hys people & god him self shalbe with thē & be their B God. * And God shal wype al waye all Esaie.xxv.c teares frō their eyes. And there shalbe no more deth, nether sorow nether crying nether shal ther be any more paine: for the olde thynges are gōe. And he ye sate vpō ii. Cor. v.d. ye seate, sayde: * Beholde I make all thinges newe. * And he said vnto me: write, for these wordes are faythfull and true. Esay. xlii.d

And he said vnto me: it is done, I am a. Alpha & omega is as much to say in Greke as A. and Z. in Latyne. * Alpha and Omega, the begynnyng ād the ende. I wil geue to him, ye is a thirst of the well of the water of life, frely. He ye ouercommeth, shal inherit al thinges, & I wilbe his God, & he shalbe my sonne. C But the fearful and vnbeleuinge/ & the abhominable, and murtherers & whor-mongers, and sorcerers, and ydolaters, and all liars shal haue their parte in the lake, which burnyth with fyre, and brimstone, which is the seconde death.

And there came vnto me one of the vii. angels, which had the seuen vyals, ful of the .vii. laste plages: and talked with me sayinge: come hyther, I wil shewe thee the bride, the lambes wyfe. And he caried me away in the spirite to a greate and an hye mountayne, and he shewed me the greate citie, holy Jerusalem descendinge out of heauen from God, hauing the brightnes of God. And her shyninge was lyke vnto a stone moste precious, euē a Jasper cleare as cristall: and had walles greate ād hye and had .xii. gates and at the gates .xii. Angels: and names written, which are the .xii. tribes of Israel: on the East parte .iii. gates, and on the Northside .iii. gates and towardes the South .iii. gates, and frō the west .iii. gates: and the wall of the citye had .xii. foudacions, and in them the names of the lambes .xii. Apostles.

And he that talked with me, had a golde rede to measure the citye with all, and the gates therof, and the wall therof. And the citye was bylte foure square and the lenght was as large as the breadth of it. And he measured the citie with the rede .xii. M. furlonges: and the lenght and the breadth, and the heyth of it, were equal. And he measured the wall therof an C. xliii. cubites: the measure that the angel had was after the measure that mā vseth. And the bildige of the wal of it was of Jaspar. And the citie was pure golde lyke vnto cleare glasse, and the foundacions of the wal of the citie were garnished with all maner of precious stones. The first foundacion was Jasper, the seconde Saphyre, the thirde a Calcedony, the fourth an Emeralde: the fifte Sardonix: the sixte Sardeos: the .vii. Crysolite: the eyght Berall: the .ix. a Topas: the tenth a Chrysoprasos: the eleuenth a Jacyncte: the twelueth an Amatist. The .xii. gates were .xii. pearles, euery gate was of one pearle, and the strete of the citie was pure golde as thorowe shynynge glasse. And ther was no temple therin. For the Lord God almighty and the lambe are the temple of it and the citie hath no nede of the sonne nether of the mone to lighten it. For the brightnes of god did light it: and the lābe was the lyght of it. And the people which are saued shal walke in the light of it and the kinges of the earth shal bringe their glory vnto it. * And the gates of it are not shut by daye. For ther shalbe no night there. And ther shal entre into it none vncleane thynge: nether what soeuer worketh abhominacions or maketh lyes: but they only which are written in the lambes boke of lyfe.

¶ The ryuer of the water of life, the fruitefulnes and lyght of the citye of. God. The Lorde geueth euer his seruauntes warninge of thinges for to come, that no man will not be worshypped. To the worde of God maye nothinge be added nor minished there from.

The .xxii. Chapter

And he shewed me a pure ryuer of water of life clere as Cristall: proceding oute of the seate of god and of the lambe. In the middes of the stretes of it, and of euery syde of the ryuer was ther wode of life: which bare .xii. māner of frutes: and gaue frute euery moneth: and the leues of the wode serued to heale the people with all. And ther shalbe no more curse/ but the seate of God and the lambe shalbe in it: and his seruauntes shal serue hym. And they shall se his face, and his name shalbe in their foreheades. * And there shallbe no nighte there/ and they nede no candle, nether lighte, of the sunne for the Lord geueth the light and they shal raigne for euermore.

And he sayde vnto me: these sayinges are faythfull and true. And the Lorde God of Sayntes and Prophetes sent his angel to shewe vnto his seruaūtes, the thinges which must shortly be fulfylled. Behold I come shortly. * Happy is he that kepeth the saying of the prophesy of this boke. I am John which sawe these thinges and herde them. And when I had hearde ād sene, * I fell downe, to worship before the feete of the Angel which shewed me these thynges. And he sayd vnto me: se thou do it not/ for I am thy felowe seruaunte, and the felowe seruaunt of thy brethren the Prophetes and of them which kepe the sayinges of this boke. But worshippe God.

And he sayde vnto me: seale not the sayinges of the prophesy of this boke. For the time is at hande. He that doeth euyll, let him do euill styll: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy styll: and he that is righteous, be more righteous: and he that is holy let him be more holy. And behold I come shortly/ ād my rewarde with me, to geue euery mā accordinge as his dedes shalbe. I am alpha and Omega the beginninge and the ende: the first and the last. Blessed are they that do his commaūdemētes, that their power maye be in the tre of life, and may enter in thorow the gates into the citie. * For without shalbe dogges, and inchaūters and whoremongers, and murtherers, ād ydolaters, ād whosoeuer loueth or maketh lesinges.

I Jesus sent myne angel to testifie vnto you these thinges in the congregacions. I am the rote and the generacion of Dauid, and the bright morning star. And the sprete and the bryde sayde come. And let hi that heareth, saye also come. * And let hi that is a thirst, come. * And let whosoeuer wil, take of the water of life, free.

I testifye vnto euery mā that heareth the wordes of the prophesy of this boke. * yf eny man shal adde vnto these thinges God shal adde vnto him the plages that are written in this boke. And if any man shal mynishe of the wordes of the boke of this prophesy, God shal take away his parte out of the boke of lyfe and out of the holy citie, and from those thinges which are written in this boke, He which testifieth these thynges saith: be it I come quickly. Amē. Euē so come lord Jesu. The grace of our Lord Jesu Christ be with you al Ame
